Soviets approve presidential system

MOSCOW (UPI) — Parliament approved the creation of a super-presidency for Mikhail Gorbachev Tuesday to take the nation from crisis to a more democratic form of government.

In another momentous move to transform the Soviet political landscape, Parliament began considering a law that would give the 15 republics a legal mechanism for seceding from the union.

Gorbachev, admonishing lawmakers that "there is no need to play cat and mouse," made an impassioned plea for the power to quash forces blocking his "perestroika" reform drive.

"The Supreme Soviet resolves to recognize the essential need to establish the post of president of the Soviet Union," said the measure lawmakers passed by a 347-24 vote.

The resolution mandated the Soviet Union's first popular elections for president but made an exception for the first chief executive, certain to be Gorbachev, to be chosen in two weeks by the 2,250-member Congress of People's Deputies.

"Life has shown that we must fundamentally regroup our forces at the highest echelons," Gorbachev said. "It is necessary to strengthen executive power so that laws can work."

The secession law, which Gorbachev promised last month during his trip to Lithuania, would allow any republic to vote for secession in a referendum called by its parliament or one-third of its adult population, Radio Moscow's Interfax news service said.

But any vote for secession would have to be approved by the Soviet parliament — both immediately after the referendum and following a five-year waiting period, Interfax said.

Ortega says election will not stop Sandinista revolution

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — President Daniel Ortega told a crowd of Sandinista supporters Tuesday he will not allow President-elect Violeta Chamorro to roll back the decade-old Sandinista revolution, vowing, "We will govern from below."

"This election in no way means an end to the revolution," Ortega told 5,000 stalwart Sandinista faithful at a morale-boosting afternoon campaign rally.

Ortega outlined in a stern tone the "fundamental conquests of the revolution," including the Sandinista Popular Army and a revolutionary agrarian reform program.

"The Sandinista Front will defend the integrity and professionalism of the Sandinista Popular Army ... and the Interior Ministry," Ortega said.

"Just one army!" came his supporters' cries.

"We were born down below, and we are used to fighting from below," Ortega said, vowing uncompromising opposition to Chamorro's National Opposition Union that is scheduled to take office April 25. "With the Nicaraguan people, the Sandinista Front will continue to govern from below."

Ortega predicted that the Sandinistas soon would return to office. He also promised to oppose any firing of state workers or the reversal of the state-owned banking system and government-controlled foreign trade.

Reading from a proclamation approved minutes earlier by an assembly of more than 1,500 Sandinista leaders and activists, Ortega also demanded "immediate dismantling of the (U.S.-backed Contras) so that a peaceful Democratic candidate for Lt. Governor Jim Burns, a former Chicago Bull, said he's ready to play with Neil Hartigan on a new team in 1990.

Burns is joining forces with Hartigan, currently the attorney general, to run for Lt. Governor in 1990, and he told an enthusiastic crowd in the Student Center Tuesday he's geared up for the race.

"I've been traveling across the state to hear the concerns of citizens," Burns said. "The main concern I've been hearing is that people want to see some return on their tax dollar."

People seem to think the government has forgotten about them when it comes to taxes, he said.

"There is no question that these people are frustrated," Burns said. "Neil Hartigan and I want to help."

The Republicans have already "cornered the market on spending and raising taxes" and Burns said he would fight to keep taxes down.

Another concern for the Burns-

Exxon indicted on five counts for Valdez oil spill

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — A federal grand jury indicted the Exxon Corp. and the Exxon Shipping Co. Tuesday on five criminal charges arising from last year's oil spill that soiled the pristine environment of Alaska's Prince William Sound.

The indictment came after weeks of intense negotiations between the world's largest oil company and the Justice Department in a futile effort to reach agreement on a plea bargain under which Exxon would avoid a criminal indictment.

Weeks of intense negotiations at plea bargaining prove futile

The state of Alaska was vehemently opposed to such a deal. State Attorney General Douglas Baily has said such a deal would have been stanted in Exxon's favor.

The charges are violation of the Clean Water Act, the Refuse Act, the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, the Ports and Waterways Safety Act and the Dangerous Cargo Act.

The indictment said the Exxon Valdez left the designated shipping lanes on March 24, 1989, with the master absent from the bridge and the ship under the control of "an officer who lacked the required Coast Guard certification for pilotage in Prince William Sound and a helmsman who was known by Exxon Shipping Co. to be incompetent at performing his assigned duties."

Under the control of these crewmen, the 987-foot oil tanker grounded on Bligh Reef, tearing a gaping hole in its hull and spilling nearly 11 million gallons of Alaska crude into the environmentally sensitive waters.

Exxon wilfully and knowingly violated the Dangerous Cargo Act by employing crewmen aboard the Exxon Valdez "knowing such persons to be physically and mentally incapable of performing the duties assigned them," the indictment said.

Exxon also "did wilfully and knowingly fail to ensure that the wheelhouse of the Exxon Valdez, while under way, was constantly manned by persons who directed and controlled the movement of the vessel, each of whom was Possible legislation to lower the blood-alcohol content level to .05 for persons under 21 could be discriminatory, local legislators said.

Sen. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, said lowering the blood-alcohol content from .10 to .05 only for people under 21 is discrimination and said he would not support such a bill.

Under current law, drivers with the blood-alcohol level of .10 or more are considered legally drunk.

"If you lower the blood-alcohol content for one group of people, you should lower it for everybody," Dunn said.

Dunn said he does not think the Illinois General Assembly would pass a bill lowering the blood-alcohol content.

Last year, a bill to lower the blood-alcohol content to .07 was proposed, but not adopted, Dunn said.

"If the Assembly didn't adopt the bill to lower the content to .07 last year, then they probably won't adopt a stricter bill this year," Dunn said.

Sen. Jim Rea, D-Christoper, said there was a definite interest in the General Assembly to curb the drunken driving problem, but limiting the legislation to those under 21 could be discrimination.

Herrin: We earned right to be No. 1

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

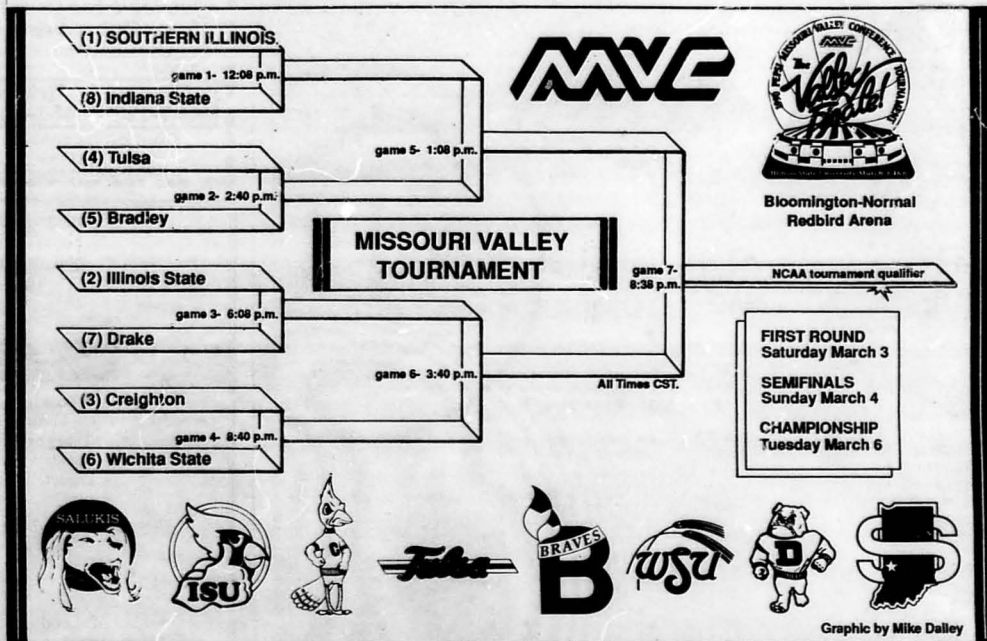

The Salukis earned the Missouri Valley Conference title with season-long dedication to hard work and hustle.

Now the Salukis, 24-6 overall and 10-4 in league action, are beginning to reap the benefits, beginning with a No. 1 seed in the conference tournament. The tourney is hosted by Illinois State March 3, 4 and 6 in Normal.

Matched against No. 8 seeded Indiana State on Saturday, the Salukis will start of the weekend's festivities with a 12:08 p.m. tipoff at Redbird Arena Saturday. Winning the tournament would automatically catapult the Dawgs into the NCAA tournament. Their last appearance was in the 1976-77 season when they advanced to the second round.

If the Salukis are upset in the tournament, they still have a strong shot of being accepted into the NAAs on the strength of their overall record.

The Sycamores are 8-19 overall and 2-12 in the Valley. Indiana State ended up on the short end of the stick both times they were matched against the Dawgs this season — 62-60 in Terre Haute

New Rec Center equipment falling victim to 'high traffic'

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

On Nov. 6, 1989 SIU-C students got their first look at where some of the money the University collected from student fees went. The new expansion area of the Recreation Center was loaded with $192,000 worth of new exercise equipment.

Four months later students are beginning to find out that maybe the new equipment was a bad investment.

Out-of-order signs hanging from new equipment have been a common sight at the Recreation Center ever since the new addition was opened. While most students who use the facilities are more than happy with the accommodations, there seems to be some definite problems.

Brian Lukes, coordinator of Intramural-Recreational sports, attributed most of the problem to the fact that the equipment receives so much use. He said that sometimes more than 4,000 students go through the Rec Center in a single day and an enormous amount of stress is put on this equipment.

Barb Rester, a competitive powerlifter and a member of the weight room advisory board, spoke out on what she considered poor choices on the part of the Recreation Center administration.

"I do think there is a certain level of misuse, I'll agree with that. But I don't think it is even 50 percent, I'm not even going to give it 25 percent. I'd say the bigger concern is that the equipment that was purchased is not designed to withstand the high traffic or the heavy weights that this equipment gets used for," Rester said.

Some students will agree that the new equipment purchased by the Recreation Center looks very nice and really adds to the appearance of the weight rooms.

In an Oct. 6 article in the Daily Egyptian, Lukes was quoted as saying, "The weight equipment we will receive is the latest in technology and the electronic equipment is the best available on the market."

The equipment was purchased from Pyramid, Smith and Universal.

Rester is very concerned about the purchases the Recreation Center administration made.

"There are a lot of health clubs and fitness centers that might be very happy with that equipment, but here at the Rec Center it just gets so much use and we have so many serious lifters, by this I mean anyone who lifts several times a week for a couple hours, and they lift very heavy weights and that takes a toll on equipment that's not designed to withstand that kind of use," Rester said. "Common sense will tell you that that stuff isn't going to hold up.

"We felt that they were more concerned with making the room pretty with chrome and mirrors. We can see part of it like that, but

NFL pushes schedule to 18 weeks for 1992

NEW YORK (UPI) — The NFL announced schedule changes Tuesday that will stretch the 16-game regular season to 17 and then 18 weeks.

According to the new schedule, teams will play 16 games over 17 weeks in 1990 and 1991, and 16 games over 18 weeks in 1992 and 1993.

The 16-over-17 format provides each team with one open weekend. The 16-over-18 plan gives each team two free weekends. Teams in groups of four by division, not counting the NFL's four fifth-place finishers from the previous season, will be off the same date. The four fifth-place teams will also have the same week off.

There will be 10 out of 17 weeks in 1990 and '91 when all 28 teams will play and four out of 18 weeks in 1992 and '93 when everyone plays.

The NFL season was last expanded in 1978 when an additional first round of playoffs, increasing the wild-card teams from two to four, was included. That same year, the exhibition and regular-season format was changed from six exhibition and 14 regular-season to four pre-season and 16 regular-season games.

"This new schedule format allows us to expand our share of the annual sports calendar," NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue said in a statement released by the league. "Television revenue was an obvious factor, but we also are sensitive to possible over-exposure of our sport. Both were weighed in the decision."

Possible Gateway title on line when Salukis battle Redbirds

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

Two teams with hopes of winning a Gateway Conference championship meet tonight in Normal.

The Saluki women play first-place Illinois State at 7 tonight at Redbird Arena in a game that could determine the conference championship.

Third-place SIU-C is 12-4 in the Gatsway and needs a victory at Illinois State tonight or at Indiana State Friday to secure a spot in the four-team Gateway Conference postseason tourney. But SIU-C has its sights set on higher goals.

If the Salukis knock off the Redbirds and Indiana State, they would win the Gateway Conference outright.

If the Gateway Conference ends in a tie, the Salukis receive the No. 1 bid because of their two victories over fourth-place Bradley, Illinois State (13-3) and Southwest (13-4) split with Bradley.

Illinois State has won 25 consecutive games at home and have their sights set on a fourth Gateway title. With a victory over the Salukis tonight, Illinois State would clinch the No. 1 seed for the conference tournament March 9-10.

The Redbirds took over the top spot with victories over Drake and Northern Iowa last week. Second-place Southwest Missouri fell out of first place after losses

Poland, Isreal sign protocol to restore diplomatic ties

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Arens and Polish Foreign Minister Krzysztof Skubiszewski signed a protocol Tuesday restoring diplomatic relations severed more than two decades ago. Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki, who was present at the signing ceremony, expressed regret over the severing of relations and said Poland is interested in making up for that mistake, the official news agency PAP said.

Future of aerial surveillance plan unclear

OTTAWA (UPI) — The United States and Soviet Union were at a virtual impasse Tuesday over the terms of an "Open Skies" plan allowing Warsaw Pact and NATO members to conduct flights over each other's military activities. U.S. State Department official John Hawes, who led the American negotiating team during the three-week conference in Ottawa that ended Tuesday, told reporters the two superpowers failed to agree on key issues such as the number of overflights, the type of sensors aboard the aircraft, the extent of territory covered and whether a common pool of aircraft should be used for the flights.

Serious crimes charged in thrift takeovers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William Seidman, chairman of the government agency taking over insolvent thrifts, estimated Tuesday that "serious criminal activity" took place at 60 percent of the more than 300 seized savings and loans. Seidman, who heads the Resolution Trust Corporation created last year to help untangle the S&L crisis, told a House Ways and Means oversight subcommittee hearing that a special "fraud squad" has been formed to prosecute culprits.

Govs end session with hope for education

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Governors Association concluded its winter meeting Tuesday with an admission from its chairman that measuring progress toward meeting the country's new education goals will be difficult, at least in the near future. But Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad, a Republican, added that the group was committed to developing an objective method to gauge how well the nation's schools were faring in their effort to meet the ambitious goals.

Durable goods orders in record decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Orders for durable goods plunged by a record 10.5 percent or $13.8 billion in January to $118.2 billion, with aircraft and aviation parts accounting for a third of the loss. Durable goods are items made to last three or more years and the report reflected a general weakness in the nation's manufacturing sector. The government said the overall decrease was the largest since a 9.2 percent decline during the recession of February 1982.

Shuttle Atlantis set for sixth launch attempt

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — NASA engineers Tuesday fueled the shuttle Atlantis for its sixth launch try in a week on a secret mission to launch a military spy satellite. But high winds at the Kennedy Space Center threatened to scotch another pre-dawn liftoff attempt, scheduled between midnight and 4 a.m. Wednesday. Air Force meteorologists predicted a 40 percent chance of acceptable weather at the beginning of the launch period.

State expands contract with dental organization

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The state has expanded its contract with a controversial dental firm to provide care for 400,000 more public aid recipients and has added provisions to tighten control over the company, state officials said Tuesday. Auditor General Robert Cronso: had criticized the contract between the Department of Public Aid and River Forest-based Delta Dental because of Delta's high administrative costs, $17 million profit, failure to document prior negotiations and inability to provide adequate dental care.

GAME OBJECTIVE: The objective of the scavenger hunt is to collect tokens by matching clues printed in the D.E. with various activities offered during the month of March, or with sites designated as pick-up stations. At each activity or site, the token will be distributed for the corresponding clue. There are 13 tokens in all. Six of the 13 will be available at their sites throughout the month of March - National Nutrition Month. SEVEN OF THE ACTIVITIES HAPPEN ONLY ONCE, so there is only one opportunity to collect a token to correspond with these clues. Thirteen tokens in all must be collected to be eligible for the grand prize drawing. If nobody collects all 13, then those who have collected 12 will be eligible for the drawing, and so on.

OFFICIAL RULES AND REGULATIONS SCAVENGER HUNT

1. Any SIU student, group of students, or student organization is eligible.
2. To be eligible, participants must register by March 5, 1990. Registration forms will be available at the Student Health Assessment Center in the Student Center. A form is at the end of the rules in this ad.
3. All original tokens must be dropped off in an envelope labeled with registration name and identification number at the Student Health Assessment Center between March 28, 1990 and 4:30p.m. April 5, 1990.
4. Only one prize will be awarded per registration form. Only one registration form per envelope of validated tokens will be accepted.
5. All registrants who have 13 tokens will be eligible for the first drawing. The drawing will continue until registration forms or prizes are gone. If prizes still remain, those with 12 tokens will be eligible for a second drawing, etc.

Bed and breakfast inns to start tourism trends

Southern Illinois entrepreneurs tap inn market

By Jackie Springer
Features Editor

Frances Morgan, homemaker turned businesswoman, can't say enough about the bed and breakfast industry.

The Du Quoin woman runs Francie's, a 3-year-old bed and breakfast inn on Line Street in Du Quoin.

A few years ago, travelers in Southern Illinois found only a few spare rooms and empty houses tucked away behind fast-paced motels and hotels. But because of the enthusiasm of a few Southern Illinois entrepreneurs, inns like Francie's are becoming more common.

"These have been some of the best times of my life," says Morgan. "I came into the business kind of by accident. I wanted the piece of property (on Line Street), but renovations were too expensive. I opened Francie's to help with the costs."

Morgan said because of Francie's success, she wants other Southern Illinois residents to know the joys of running a bed and breakfast inn.

"Southern Illinois has tourism in its future," she said. "Bed and breakfast inns are in that future."

Morgan and Du Quoin attorney Carol A. Smith are teaching a class, "Developing a Bed and Breakfast," at John A. Logan College in Carterville this spring.

Sue Lipe, coordinator for on-campus continuing education at John A. Logan, said about 19 students registered for the class.

"They are educated, energetic people, mostly husband and wife teams from Cairo to Mount Vernon," Lipe said.

"After the class, the students will be able to take a completed business plan to the bank," she said.

The class offers students learning opportunities for procedures involved in starting up a bed and breakfast, such as consulting professions related to the bed and breakfast business, determining and researching the market, and developing plans for marketing and regulation.

Trish Richey, director of the Carbondale Convention and Tourism Bureau, said Southern Illinois is beginning to see a new market for bed and breakfast inns.

"Tourism runs in trends just like everything else," she said. "Now the trend is that people like that at-home atmosphere."

Marilyn Kunz, owner of the Mansion of Golconda in Pope County, opened her bed and breakfast inn about four and a half years ago.

The Mansion has four private rooms and a full-service restaurant. Prices start at $45 for the smallest room and go to $65. When private bathrooms are installed, the smallest room will cost $60 and the largest $80.

"Southern Illinois has a very big market (for bed and breakfast inns) because other than along the expressway corridors, there are no motels," Kunz said.

Kunz, president of the Illinois Bed and Breakfast Association, said 66 of the 160 bed and breakfast inns in Illinois are members of the Illinois organization.

Southern Illinois has about 30 bed and breakfast inns with 13 registered with the association.

Bed and breakfast facilities must be licensed with a lodging permit and be inspected by the fire and health departments.

Kunz said besides meeting requirements set by the state, an inn also must meet standards set by the Illinois Bed and Breakfast Association to become a member.

Those standards include offering immaculate accommodations, serving food attractively and keeping a light on when guests are expected.

The association is producing a guide to bed and breakfast inns in Illinois that is scheduled to come out later this year.

Opinion & Commentary

Making a difference in the face of apathy

GREED. APATHY. Conspicuous consumption. If there's nothing in it for me, Jack, keep it to yourself.

Do these lines sound familiar? They should, because, like it or not, they're representative of the popular view many sociologists hold of what happened to American values—especially to those of our youth—in the 1980s.

Thursday night in Lawson Hall, several former and present SIU-C student leaders met in a forum to discuss changes within student government over the last 20 years.

The general consensus that emerged was one of today's students being intimidated by the administration, that adequate feedback isn't given to student leaders and that students might be confused about what they really want.

SADLY ENOUGH, all these insinuations are more or less accurate. In an age of unprecedented affluence, many American students have developed soft underbellies—vulnerable to the lure of credit cards, VCRs and Nintendos—more concerned with where they'll do their drinking on any given night than where the city's homeless will find shelter. But then again, it would be presumptuous to assume any of us today are saintly enough to honestly put social welfare above personal interests.

Not that the students of the late 1960s and early 1970s were social altruists—as the American novelist John Irving wrote in "A Prayer For Owen Meany," there never was an anti-war movement in this country; there was a "don't get drafted" movement.

YET TALK with any former activist and they'll tell you students from that era were, in fact, less intimidated by the tactics of establishment weasels in custom-tailored suits, less likely to cower under administration regulations and, most importantly, more likely to be aware of what was happening on their campus and in the world.

Perhaps the views of these past princes and princesses of the "revolution" are a trifle romanticized, colored by the passage of years and the collapse of pragmatic liberalism. But the idea that "we can do so much more than what we're doing now," as student trustee and 1988-89 USG president Bill Hall said Thursday, is an idea worth acting on.

In the face of sweeping positive changes in Europe and, possibly, Central America, the times are ripe for renewed volunteerism. President Bush used the abstract catch phrases "thousand points of light" and "a kinder, gentler America" in his campaign against the ill-fated Michael Dukakis and First Lady Barbara Bush brought the campaign for literacy to national prominence.

AS CYNICAL as Americans have become in these last 20 years, disillusioned by war, assassinations, scandals and general government corruption, it's no wonder so many of us, especially students, scoff at such high-minded rhetoric originating in the Oval Office. And this cynicism trickles down to the community and University level.

This is the essential evil of our time—the self-created nemesis of lethargy that plagues so many, students and non-students alike. In a world that demands compromise and sometimes even outright betrayal, students are learning at a younger age the necessity of looking out for No. 1.

BUT, SIMPLISTIC as it sounds, it doesn't have to be that way. With genuine effort and a newfound sense of community, students can begin to make a difference. Students and other citizens can work to reverse, homelessness, illiteracy and impending environmental destruction while looking to something other than selfishness as a guide.

As a popular advertising campaign said: Just do it.

Veterans' money spent capriciously

ATTENTION VETERANS: On Nov. 6, 1989, the Bush Administration announced plans to ship $250,000 worth of durable Veterans Administration medical equipment to the communist government of Vietnam. The equipment consists of everything from typewriters to anesthesia machines that was declared excess to the VA's needs after the closing of the VA Medical Center at Minneapolis, MN. I could not believe this to be true, but it was confirmed by Secretary Derwinski's staff when I telephoned his office.

Furthermore, this is to become a routine activity within the scope of General Vessey's mission as Bush's special envoy to Vietnam on the POW/MIA issue. The VA declared $84,918,641 of medical equipment as excess to its needs in 1988. The $250,000 shipment to Vietnam has not yet taken place, but is still in the works as a viable plan despite strong opposition from veterans groups and their elected representatives.

While negotiating an end to the Vietnam War, President Nixon promised the Communist Vietnamese over $3 billion in war reparations. This was never paid because it did not have the approval of Congress. Except for the initial return of the POWs at the end of the war, the communists have tied the accounting of POW/MIA's to the receipt of political recognition and reparations from the U.S. or the receipt of "humanitarian aid" by Vietnam from the U.S. In other words, we are ransoming our POW/MIA's.

General Vessey has been directly involved in promoting and organizing humanitarian aid to Vietnam. Most recently, he has asked veterans to contribute to "Operation Smile" a group of specialists who perform reconstructive surgery on the faces of children. Specialists will be sent to Hanoi, Ho Chi Minh City and other locations in Vietnam.

An August 1989 message from the Secretary of Defense outlines the U.S. Government's official position on the POW/MIA issue. It states in part, "...POW/MIA accounting is a humanitarian matter not linked with any other issue...as of 22 August 1989, 243 remains have been returned/recovered...1,707 individuals are still missing or unaccounted for in Vietnam and there is credible evidence that the governments in Indochina have information concerning the fates of many missing...it would be irresponsible to rule out the possibility that live Americans are still being held captive."

Even though Congress has never approved of reparations to Vietnam, the U.S. Government has been making ransom payments for our POW/MIA's to Vietnam under the guise of "humanitarian aid." In addition, American veterans are being asked to pay this ransom in the form of contributions to schemes like "Operation Smile" and, if it goes through, the giving away of Veteran's medical facilities. I find this appalling. If it is necessary for the U.S. to pay ransom for the return of our POW/MIA's from Southeast Asia, then let's do so in a straight forward and honest way. Many of us believe that there are live American POWs being held against their will in Laos and Vietnam. Be that true or not, we want all our POW/MIA's to be returned home and this issue settled once and for all. But not in any underhanded, dishonorable way. We want the lies and subterfuge stopped with an honorable settlement for those who have served and given their all for our nation. -- Terry S. Bowman, Assistant professor, College of Technical Careers.

Tragic accident survivor shocked by hazards of motorcycles, remembers loved one fondly

It is such a tragedy when two people so in love are torn apart never to be together again. This is the story of Jason Golan and I. Everyone who knew us will remember that we were inseparable and our lives revolved around each other. And now only I am left.

I have learned so much from this catastrophe and I hope I can teach you these painful but important lessons. Two lessons linger in my mind: One: being the dangers of motorcycles and the other is the power of love.

I will never ride a motorcycle again. It makes me sick to see or even hear them from a distance. Unfortunately, I had to learn the hard way that motorcycles are death traps. It only takes one ride without a helmet to kill you. Ironically, Jason and I were not being reckless when the accident occurred. Instead, we were merely returning home from class like we did everyday. We didn't give a thought to the dangers beyond our control...

As well as being shocked into the hazards of motorcycles, I changed my attitudes of love. No longer do I take love, life or future plans for granted. Instead, I

"I feel lucky to be alive, and there is light and hope in my future."

Kristin Cargill, motorcycle accident survivor realize that love is both eternal and temporal. Although I will always love Jason, our plans for marriage and children suddenly have been destroyed, and I am left to live without him.

I am also forced to accept the fact that life must go on. I must heal my physical and emotional wounds and achieve a greater understanding of this tragedy. But it is so difficult to accomplish this when I don't feel the same, look the same, or have many of the same things that I loved. I feel as if I am starting from scratch as a 19-year-old widow. Yet I do feel lucky to be alive, and there is light and hope in my future.

No one will ever understand why Jason, a man with such zest for life and an incredible capacity for love, met such an untimely, senseless death. I certainly don't understand — my mind is constantly filled with the question: Why? While Jason and I were in the hospital, I foolishly thought that our eternal love was enough to save his life. Perhaps losing Jason was fate. After all, the promise ring he gave me was not oval-shaped, heart-shaped or round. It was a teardrop. I love you, Jason! — Kristin Cargill, sophomore, former forestry major.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Board, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, the associate editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a School of Journalism faculty member.

Letters to the editor must be submitted directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

The measure, approved by lawmakers Tuesday, would make Gorbachev head of state similar to the U.S. president with new formal powers exceeding the premier's role as head of government.

Soviet presidents have traditionally been figureheads who met dignitaries at airports and fulfilled other titular duties.

The measure makes the president commander in chief of the Soviet armed forces, allows him to declare war and states of emergency throughout the vast country and to demand that parliament fire any member of the government.

"The Soviet parliament today overwhelmingly voted to support the proposal by the presidium of the Supreme Soviet to institute the post of president in the country," the official Tass news agency said.

Lawmakers from Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania boycotted the debate in another sign that the three Baltic republics are divoring themselves from Soviet political institutions.

Baltic legislators said their concerns are "confined to preparing for talks on the restoration of the independence of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania," Tass said. The once free states were annexed by the Kremlin in 1940.

Deputies from the Transcaucasian republic of Georgia set conditions for their participation in the debate on the Soviet political system, Tass said.

In the furious debate that preceded the landmark vote, Gorbachev went head to head with critics who said it will give him too much power.

"The very people who just three or four weeks ago were clamoring for a president now are trying to spread the idea that introducing a presidency is the path to dictatorship, to stepping on the throat of democracy and suffocating perestroika and burying it," Gorbachev said.

"The only people who would urge us to put off this most important decision are those who don't want the situation to change for the better," he said.

Mindful of the legal transgressions of former Kremlin strongmen Josef Stalin and Leonid Brezhnev, the legislators demanded to know why increased powers are needed for Gorbachev.

Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov, an emerging rival of Gorbachev, would serve at the president's pleasure under the new system in what appeared to be a master stroke by Gorbachev to outflank the popular Ryzhkov.

Ryzhkov agreed the country needs a stronger executive but warned the special powers created for Gorbachev go too far, saying, "Extraordinary powers may help resolve one issue, but they would plunge the nation into instability if used extensively."

"Society must be well protected against lawlessness and the attempts of irresponsible and corrupt forces to usurp power," Yakovlev said.

and orderly transition of government can occur."

It was not immediately clear whether the demand was meant as a condition for turning over power to the 60-year-old Chamorro.

Chamorro attended Mass Tuesday presided over by Managua Archbishop Miguel Obando y Bravo to give thanks for her 55 to 41 percent election victory.

When Ortega hands over the presidency it will be the first time this century in Nicaragua that a governing party willingly hands over power to an opposition party after an election.

The opposition Radio Catolica denounced the pro-Sandinista media for stirring up an already tense political conflict, saying the calls to Sandinista activists to remain militant "could have unpredictable consequences."

At least one person was injured Monday night when UNO supporters celebrating Chamorro's victory in the streets clashed with Sandinista sympathizers. Riot police broke up the melee firing tear gas.

Former U.S. President Jimmy Carter, who observed Sunday's elections and pronounced them honest and fair, was investigating the incident, members of Carter's delegation said.

Radio Sandino said Ortega would attend a rally in Managua's Revolution Square Tuesday afternoon, but government officials said it was unlikely his meeting with other Sandinista leaders would be over before the evening.

Ortega met early Tuesday with the National Directorate of the Sandinista Front, the nine-man junta that is the party's maximum authority, to discuss the party's future after Sunday's loss.

He also met with the Sandinista Assembly, a consultative body of about 100 prominent Sandinistas, and then was scheduled to address a meeting of about 1,500 activists from the army, police and Sandinista unions.

"Right now President Ortega is explaining to them the situation and how things are going to be in the future," said Rafael Solis, vice president of the National Assembly and a member of the Sandinista Assembly.

"I don't think a process of violence could begin in Nicaragua right now, the people of Nicaragua are tired of war and tired of violence and want to begin a true process of reconciliation," Solis said.

competent to perform that duty ...," the indictment said.

The indictment said that after the tanker left the shipping lanes the skipper, Capt. Joseph Hazelwood, "left the ship's bridge." The indictment, which did not mention Hazelwood by name.

In Washington, Attorney General Dick Thornburgh said Exxon approached the Justice Department last week to see what it would take to work out an agreement, but the "terms we insisted upon were not acceptable to the defendants."

In a statement released by the company's New York headquarters, Exxon Chairman Lawrence Rawl called the spill "a tragic accident." Noting that no individual was charged, Rawl said, "Nobody willfully grounded the ship or caused the spill."

The indictment said the oil traveled 700 miles from Bligh Reef and contaminated Prince William Sound, the Gulf of Alaska, Kenai Fjords National Park, Katmai National Park, Aniakchak National Preserve, the Alaska Peninsula National Refuge, the Alaska Maritime National Wildlife Refuge, Becharof National Wildlife Refuge, Kodiak National Wildlife Refuge and many islands and waters.

Hartigan team is the job development in Southern Illinois.

As a Southern Illinois native of McLeansboro, Burns said he is aware of the problems in the area.

"Southern Illinois has been forgotten for the past decade," Burns said. "I want to bring new businesses there to help the economy. I want people to locate in Southern Illinois."

He said the brightest and the best have been leaving Illinois after they graduate because there aren't a lot of businesses that are hiring.

"I'm not concerned with the big businesses," Burns said. "I want to get the mid-sized and the smaller businesses to come to Illinois so our college graduates will have a reason to stay here."

The former assistant U.S. attorney said he's very familiar with the drug crisis and he plans on attacking the problem through education.

"I want the kids to be able to hope and dream without the shadow of drugs to cloud their future," Burns said.

He also said he has two goals for education in Illinois—to keep up adequate funding and prepare the students who don't go to college for the real world.

Most students who don't continue their education after high school and they are lost after they graduate, he said.

"I think we need to better prepare these people for the real world," Burns said.

"The limited legislation is something that would have to be studied closely before voted upon," Rea said. "The courts may have to decide whether or not the legislation is constitutional."

Although the possible legislation has received some criticism, Jerry Cosentino, state treasurer, said he will strive to get the bill passed.

Cosentino, who is seeking the democratic nomination for secretary of state, said he will have legislation proposed during the spring session that will convict people under 21 with blood-alcohol content of .05 or more. The legislation would also call for the loss of the convicted person's license for one year.

"This is a program that teen-agers will understand," Cosentino said. "Since they are prohibited by law from consuming alcohol until age 21, the .05 limit is eminently reasonable," Cosentino said.

Cosentino said his proposal won't only deal with lowering the blood-alcohol content.

Under the Cosentino plan, driver education classes would include five hours of instruction on the dangers of drinking and driving taught by certified alcohol counselors.

Havel winds up landmark Moscow trip

MOSCOW (UPI) — Vaclav Havel, a dissident playwright long before becoming Czechoslovakia's president, ended a Moscow visit Tuesday by meeting fellow artists and paying respects to Andrei Sakharov, the late Moscow dissident whose fight against oppression echoed his own.

Havel later departed for home after a landmark two-day visit in which he and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev met and signed a bilateral accord on withdrawing Soviet troops from Czechoslovakia.

The first train with Soviet soldiers coming home under the pullout pact crossed the two Warsaw Pact neighbors' border from the Czechoslovak town of Cierna-Nad-Tisa shortly before Havel left Moscow, the official Tass news agency said.

Before ending his two-day trip, Havel laid flowers at the grave of

Czechoslovakian president signs bilateral troop withdrawal agreement with Soviets

Sakharov, whose transformation from dissident to Parliament deputy before his death Dec. 14 closely resembled the recent dramatic turnaround in Havel's fortunes.

Havel's visit to Sakharov's final resting place at Vostryakovskoe Cemetery on the outskirts of Moscow was a poignant homage to the late Soviet physicist, dissident, Nobel Peace laureate and lawmaker.

Sakharov and Havel supported each other's causes in the 1960s and 1970s when both fought lonely battles against repressive communist regimes and Sakharov strongly condemned the 1968 Soviet-led Warsaw Pact invasion of Czechoslovakia.

"Czechoslovak President

Vaclav Havel completed a two-day working visit to the Soviet Union," Tass said. "Vice President Anatoli Lukyanov and other officials saw him off at Vnukovo Airport."

Havel also told Soviet lawmakers that he supports Gorbachev's bid to establish a strong presidency because it will end anonymous decision-making, Tass said.

The dissident playwright-turned-president assured the Kremlin legislators that a more powerful executive, approved Tuesday by the Soviet parliament, "will by no means infringe on democracy and will strengthen the people's control over the head of state," it said.

Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennadi Gerasimov told reporters, "We believe that in light of the major changes in the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia, President Havel's visit ... has helped both sides compare their positions on fundamental issues in bilateral relations and determine ways to further improve them."

Havel also met Tuesday with well-known Soviet writers, musicians and artists including Culture Minister Nikolai Gubenko, who also is a prominent actor.

Gubenko told Havel that eight of the president's plays have been translated into Russian and one of them will be staged at Moscow's Taganka Theater.

Havel met a beaming Gorbachev on Monday when their two foreign ministers signed a pact for the total withdrawal of Soviet troops sent in by Leonid Brezhnev to crush the 1968 "Prague Spring" reform movement.

Colombian army patrols attacked by anti-communist death squads

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Anti-communist hit squads stepped up their bloody campaign against the leftwing as revolutionary guerrillas assaulted army patrols around the country, killing 11, authorities said Tuesday.

Right-wing death squads killed a journalist, three peasant activists and a leftist mayor while army battles with communist guerrillas left five soldiers and one rebel dead.

The increased violence occurred less than two weeks before congressional elections with revolutionary guerrillas targeting army patrols in an attempt to sabotage balloting, scheduled for March 11.

On Monday, journalist Silvia Dusan, working on a British Broadcasting Corp. television special on violence in Colombia, was shot dead in a restaurant in Cimitarra along with three peasant leaders, police said Tuesday.

Dusan had been contracted by the BBC to interview peasants victimized by violence from leftist rebels and rightist hit squads, a source who knew the reporter said.

According to the source, Dusan met with the three peasant activists in a restaurant in Cimitarra, about 100 miles north of Bogota, on Monday when several men opened fire. Dusan died in a nearby hospital later that night, police said.

Radio reports from the scene said police believed the killing was the work of right-wing death squads active in the area.

Human rights groups say there are many such squads in Colombia hired by wealthy landowners and drug traffickers to eliminate social activists and leftists suspected of sympathizing with the guerrillas.

In other violence, leftist politician Diana Cardona Saldarriaga, mayor of Apartado, was assassinated Monday in Medellin shortly after she was kidnapped by unidentified men claiming to be security police. Her death brought to 18 the number of leftist leaders killed so far this year.

Cardona, who governed Apartado, the center of the violent banana-growing region in northwest Colombia, was found dead Monday night in a car on the outskirts of Medellin.

The Patriotic Union, a political party formed by ex-guerrillas and leftists in the 1980s, protested the killing and the leftist party called for the resignation of the minister of defense.

Meanwhile, the leftist National Liberation Army continued its offensive by ambushing an army patrol in western Choco state, killing two officers and three soldiers Tuesday morning, a military source said.

The Liberation Army, waging a violent campaign to sabotage elections next week, recently kidnapped and released three Americans to protest the "interventionist" visit of President Bush to Cartagena.

Simon's daughter endorses treasurer candidate at SIU-C

By Tony Mancuso
Staff Writer

Sheila Simon, daughter of U.S. Sen. Pau' Simon, D-Makanda, endorsed a Democratic candidate for state treasurer at the Student Center Monday evening.

Simon and husband Perry Knopp attended a meeting to assist the Students for Peg Breslin Committee, an SIU-C organization committed to electing Breslin, D-Ottawa, as state treasurer this fall.

"If she makes it through the (March 20) primary and wins in the general election, Peg and (Sen.) Dawn Clark Netsch, (D-Chicago), will become the first women elected to statewide offices," Simon said.

Breslin, who has served for 14 years in the Illinois House, is assistant majority leader. She is serving on the Committee on Constitutional Officers, the Judiciary I Committee and the Rules Committee.

Simon said Breslin, a trial lawyer by background, served on the Banking Committee and the Appropriations Committee in the past, a task that makes her amply suited for the treasurer's job.

"She has had some good leadership experience, and she has a good basis to go into the treasury. She will know what her priorities are as treasurer,....handling the millions of dollars the state of Illinois appropriates each year," Simon said.

Netsch, who is running for state comptroller, has been a state senator for 17 years. She is on the Committee on Appropriation, the Committee on Elementary and Secondary Education, the Executive Committee, the Revenue Committee, the Rules Committee and the Economic and Fiscal Commission.

Netsch serves as chairwoman on the Revenue Committee and as co-chairwoman on the Economic and Fiscal Commission. She is a professor of law at Northwestern University.

Knopp said Breslin will be at the University at noon March 8 for either a rally or a meet-the-candidate conference at a site to be designated later.

The committee has not decided which kind of meeting to hold, but members are planning to set up information tables and pass out flyers next week.

Monica Fierlage, head of the committee, said the committee may also sell campaign buttons and T-shirts.

Palestinian students protest film for showing Israel as democratic

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

Two University students from Palestine protested a film being shown in the Interfaith Center that they said wrongfully portrayed Israel as democratic, free and equal.

Wael Gharbieh, junior in accounting, and Omar Alkassab, sophomore in electrical engineering, handed out literature and talked to passersby at Grant and Illinois Streets after 6 p.m. Friday night.

"They are trying to show a film about the democratic face of Israel in (the Interfaith Center), while in the meanwhile the Israeli government has arrested about 15,000 Palestinians and killed almost 900 Palestinians in the last two years," Gharbieh said.

Avi Goldfarb, youth director at the Jewish Federation, is from Israel. Goldfarb was in the Interfaith Center at the time of the protest. The movie is a promotional film to advertise high school and college student trips to Israel, Goldfarb said.

land."

But Goldfarb said, "It's nothing political. What (the protesters) doing...It's cheap propaganda."

Addressing the protesters claims, Goldfarb said the Israeli army is trying to make the West Bank as quiet as possible.

"The Israelis don't want trouble. They want to live in peace," Goldfarb said. "Israelis used to give Palestinians jobs in Israel. Now, because of the Intifada, it's like a civil war between the Palestinians and Israelis," he said.

Intifada is the term for the uprising of the Palestinian people. Goldfarb said if the Palestinian people want to be recognized as a state, the two countries must sit together and work it out.

"The Israelis feel horrible about this situation. We hate to make our soldiers fight people in the streets," Goldfarb said.

"It's nothing political. What they're (the protesters) doing...It's propaganda."

—Wael Gharbieh

Gharbieh said, "The reason we are here is to show the real face of Israel. Israel always claims it is a free and equal country, but (the Israelis) are killing the Palestinians and occupying their

Additional parking spaces scheduled for construction

University parking shortages may be lessened for both students and faculty with the renovation of three parking lots.

Lot 59, which is accessible to vehicles with red parking decals, will be enlarged to accommodate 258 new spaces. The lot is located by Lesar Law Building on the west side of campus.

Merilyn Hogan, coordinator for University Parking, said the expansion will take place once the weather permits. Hogan said the expansion will encompass a distance of 390 feet to the west and 200 feet north and south.

The cost of the project is estimated at $61,824, including lights for the parking lot, Hogan said. The lot will remain in gravel for one year prior to asphalt being applied.

The cost of the asphalt application to the lot is not included in the original cost, however, Hogan said.

All funds for the lot widening will come from tickets that are issued and parking decal fees, Hogan said. No state funds will be used in the project, she said.

A proposal to turn Stehr Field into a parking lot for vehicles for blue stickers was ended because of opposition. The field, a memorial to a former physical education teacher, was used for physical education instruction.

Other parking lot improvements slated for this spring include:

■ Parking Lot 30, located on the north side of the Wham building, will have parking meters removed and the meters will be placed in Lot 29, Hogan said.

Lot 30 will become a parking lot for disabled drivers. The drive leading to Lot 30 also will have 12 spaces added along the drive leading to Lot 30.

Hogan said Lot 30 will be resurfaced and additional lighting added. The total cost of the project will be $5,500 with $3,500 for resurfacing and $2,000 for additional lighting.

■ Lot 94 behind the Recreation Center will have 20 spaces designated for vehicles with blue decals. Hogan said this will bring the total number of spaces for vehicles with blue decals to 32.

Bicycle theft reported at shop

By Chris Walker
Staff Writer

Carbondale Police reported the theft of a bicycle Tuesday from the display window of Phoenix Cycles, 300 S. Illinois Ave.

According to police, the bike was taken about 2:27 a.m. Tuesday morning. Entry to the business was gained through a plate glass window broken in the front of the building. The bike was then taken out of the display window, and the suspect rode away on it, police said.

Damage to the building was estimated at $400, with the cost of the bike estimated at $670. An employee of Phoenix Cycle said the stolen bike was a Cannondale Mountain Bike.

A Carbondale Police spokesman said one witness heard the store's alarm go off and called police.

White House calls to stop aid sanctions to Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Bush administration intends to lift economic sanctions against Nicaragua soon and will develop a "significant and meaningful" aid program for the emerging Central American democracy, a White House spokesman said Tuesday.

Press secretary Marlin Fitzwater also said President Bush has invited economic advisers to Nicaragua President-elect Violeta Chamorro to visit Washington and he is discussing aid plans with other countries.

Earlier, congressmen emerging from a White House meeting with the president said Bush is on a "fast track" to help Nicaragua and maintained that aid would have to be massive and long term.

"You're talking about hundreds of millions of dollars, but you also have to talk about four- or five-year plans," Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., told reporters. "Their economy is in shambles."

Nunn and other congressmen said Bush told them he expects President Daniel Ortega will keep his word and accept Sunday's election victory by Chamorro, the U.S.-backed candidate, and participate in a smooth transition.

Fitzwater again called for renewal of a cease-fire so that U.S.-backed Contra rebels — who failed to overthrow the Sandinistas during nearly a decade of guerrilla war — could demobilize. But he said the rebels, organized by the CIA and beneficiaries of millions of dollars in U.S. aid, must decide for themselves when to disband.

U.S. humanitarian aid to the Contras formally expires

Wednesday, but money in "the pipeline" will likely continue to flow into next month, Fitzwater said.

He also said Bush would act promptly on naming a new U.S. ambassador to Managua, and Chamorro will likely be invited to Washington after her April 25 inauguration.

The Nicaraguan economy has been devastated in part by sanctions imposed May 1, 1985, by President Ronald Reagan and the bread-and-butter issue was a factor in the election results.

Fitzwater said, "The U.S. strategy for achieving this election outcome ... started with President Reagan's steadfast support for democracy. President Bush called the former president, last evening to acknowledge his years of support for the cause of freedom."

Kremlin accepts election results

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Kremlin Tuesday accepted Nicaragua's election results, which toppled the Sandinista government it had aided for a decade, and said the Soviet Union is ready to join the United States in helping the new administration in Managua.

"The Soviet Union many times proclaimed its readiness to respect the results of the election in Nicaragua and we now confirm this stand," Foreign Ministry official Yan Buriyai said at a news conference.

Violeta Chamorro, a 60-year-old publisher of the opposition newspaper La Prensa, stunned Sandinista supporters and the world Sunday when she defeated Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega by a 55 percent to 41 percent spread.

"Exercising their inalienable right to decide their destiny, the Nicaraguan people made their choice — a choice that should be unconditionally respected by all members of the international community," Buriyai said.

"Regardless of who won, the Nicaraguans voted for peace, freedom and democracy, national reconciliation and accord, for economic revival and social progress in the country," he said.

In a surprising statement,

Buriyai said Moscow is prepared to continue sending economic and even military aid to Managua even though Chamorro published a newspaper that strongly opposed the government and was sympathetic to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels' U.S.-backed war against the Sandinistas.

"We will also be ready to discuss military cooperation with the new Nicaraguan administration," Buriyai said.

The statement set the stage for competition between Washington and Moscow to woo Chamorro's govern ment.

Republicans talk up plans at dinner in honor of Lincoln

By Fernando Fellu-Moggli
Staff Writer

All but one candidate on the state Republican ticket gathered in Carbondale Monday for the Jackson County Lincoln Day Dinner.

Secretary of State Jim Edgar, U.S. Rep. Lynn Martin, Lt. Governor George Ryan and other GOP candidates to local and state offices talked at the dinner, organized by the Jackson County Republicans.

In a press conference offered before the dinner, Edgar, a gubernatorial candidate, talked about his plans for the state budget.

Edgar said he would "hold the line on new taxes," promising to help maintain the budget by holding the number of state employees and re-distributing the money allocated in state offices to benefit education, which he deemed his "first priority."

He said increased funding for education did not mean better education, but called for private investment in schools, as well as more parent involvement.

On environmental policy, Edgar said he would try to better the Illinois environmental condition, but that this could not be done at the expense of state business.

U.S. Senatorial candidate Lynn Martin talked about several issues of her campaign, criticizing her opponent, Sen. Paul Simon, D. Makanda, on his poor voting record in the Senate and his views on foreign policy.

"If we had listened to (Simon) we would not be celebrating the victory of democracy in Eastern Europe or Nicaragua," she said.

Martin said the victory of opposition candidate Violeta Chamorro in Sunday's Nicaraguan election was a "triumph of democracy and a victory for the Reagan and Bush administration policy."

The guest speaker at the dinner was Paul Lewis, one of the hostages in the 1979 Iranian hostage crisis.

Lewis, a former Marine, talked about the Reagan and Bush administrations as periods of "steady leadership that had brought about results."

He said he did not become a Republican because of the hostage crisis, but because of the moral and patriotic values that being Republican implied.

'Easy-going' Kansas City comic brings his folksy humor to SIU-C

By Stephanie Steiner
Staff Writer

After his first attempt at comedy, Randy Jaymes took the country's comedy club circuit by storm, and tonight at 9 p.m. he will take on the Comedy Cellar.

Jaymes, from Kansas City, Kan., takes a close look at the humor in life and shares these observations with his audiences.

He started in comedy about three years ago after entering an "open microphone night" competition at The Funny Bone comedy club in Kansas.

A year later, Jaymes entered and took first place in the Kansas City "Laff Off" competition. That same year he placed second in Showtime's "Funniest Person in Kansas" competition.

Jaymes is known throughout the comedy club circuit as "easy going."

His ability to read an audience allows him to change his routine to suit the crowd.

Most of Jaymes' stand-up material focuses on personal observations and anecdotes, family life and growing up. "For college audiences, I like to talk about dating and the trials and tribulations of finding the perfect mate," said Jaymes.

Jaymes, who performs regularly at comedy clubs across the nation, recently toured with the Second City comedy group from Chicago.

When he is not touring clubs, Jaymes is performing stand-up comedy on college campuses around the United States.

"I'm going to have a good time at SIU-C, and I hope everybody else does," said Jaymes.

Mandela arrives in Zambia, seeks donations for ANC

LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI) — Black leader Nelson Mandela flew to the African National Congress' headquarters-in-exile Tuesday and received a welcome befitting a head of state to start his 17-day diplomatic mission to raise support for the movement's return to South Africa.

Seven African presidents, Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat, representatives of the Commonwealth nations and exiled ANC leaders embraced the 71-year-old Mandela at a tumultuous welcome that rivaled the visit of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II a decade ago.

Mandela stepped down from the Zambian Airways turbo-prop plane that ferried him and his wife, Winnie, from Johannesburg and waved a clenched fist before moving along the line of enthusiastic dignitaries.

Among the first to hug the beaming Mandela were Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda and Alfred Nzo, ANC secretary general.

Overcome with joy, Arafat hugged Mandela twice, kissed him and ran his hands through his hair.

The warm welcome given him "means that the many years ... spent in jail have not been in vain," Mandela told the thousands of ANC exiles and supporters gathered at Lusaka International Airport.

The ANC headquarters was established in Zambia during the 30 years the organization was banned by South Africa.

President Frederik de Klerk lifted the ban on the ANC and released Mandela from prison earlier this month in an effort to further along power-sharing negotiations.

Responding to Kaunda's declaration of a public holiday to celebrate Mandela's first foreign tour since his Feb. 11 release, thousands of Zambians lined the route from the airport into Lusaka.

They waved to Mandela who returned their salutes from the back of an open jeep during the 10 miles of bumper-to-bumper traffic into the city.

During his five-day stay in Zambia, Mandela will hold key meetings with ANC officials focusing on his future role in the movement, mounting pressure for the movement to suspend its armed struggle and proposed power-sharing negotiations with South Africa following de Klerk's Feb. 2 decision to lift the 30-year ban on the ANC.

Not only must Mandela muster international financial support for the ANC's return to South Africa, but he also must deal with a wide range of divergent opinions within the organization.

Shortly after his arrival, Mandela met with leaders of the alliance of southern African front-line states and was guest of honor at a dinner given by Kaunda.

Among those who welcomed Mandela at Lusaka International Airport were 88 young children of ANC exiles, including several whites. Wearing the black, green and gold colors of Africa's oldest liberation movement, they placed garlands of flowers around the necks of Mandela and his wife. Mandela said his visit to Zambia was something "I have looked to during my last 27 years in prison."

Partiers flock to New Orleans in celebration of Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Mardi Gras drew hundreds of thousands to town Tuesday for a day of masquerading, parade-watching and no-holds-barred merriment in a self-indulgent ritual of excess that signals the end of Carnival and the beginning of Lent.

Before dawn thousands of people already were staking out front-line positions along the routes of the more spectacular of the 15 parades rolling in and around the city from morning to late night. Thousands of others continued their heavy drinking and carousing in the French Quarter.

MAYOR SIDNEY Barthelemy gave Rex, King of Carnival, control of the city until midnight, when Fat Tuesday ends abruptly and gives way to the Christian penitential season of Lent on Ash Wednesday. Lent, a time of self-denial and religious reflection, continues until Easter.

The decree for the day from the Monarch of Merriment was to let "pleasure reign day and night."

Along St. Charles Avenue, thousands set up camp on the median that carries the nation's oldest streetcar line. The aroma of barbecued chicken, sausage, hot dogs and hamburgers wafted from grills into a sunny sky.

EARLY ARRIVALS set up ladders with kiddie seats to give their youngsters a view of the procession and a chance to compete with adults for souvenirs tossed from the floats by masked riders. Older children squirmed themselves into low-hanging branches of oak trees that line the avenue.

The first parade of the day was the originally all-black Zulu, which began its roll at 8:30 a.m. But, as usual, clarinetist Pete Fountain and his Half-Fast Walking Club stole the march. Dressed as gypsies, the 200-member group departed the uptown area at 7:30 a.m. and headed on foot for the French Quarter about 4 miles away.

BETWEEN PARADES, revelers, many in costume, strolled along the avenue and visited with friends.

Costumes ranged from families of Dalmatians to Energizer rabbits to Robocops and aliens. Walking bananas mingled with Wizard of Oz characters, and African warriors wandered past white alligators wearing top hat and tails. Disguises ranged from a couple of dollars worth of grease paint to thousands of dollars worth of beaded, sequined and feathered fantasies.

Similar scenes were played out on Canal Street, the main downtown thoroughfare, and along parade routes in the suburbs.

AT THE SAME time, the raunchier side of Carnival was being played out in the French Quarter, where gays held a costume contest, bold women exposed their breasts in exchange for plastic bead necklaces and hordes of college students from around the country maintained a stupor begun several days ago.

A man dressed in a red cape and not much else, calling himself "King Donn of St. Ann Street," blessed people as they walked and staggered by his spot.

"Ladies and gentlemen, you too can be kings and queens," Donn said as he waved a wand covered with aluminum foil over the giddy crowd.

"OFF WITH YOUR blouse!" Donn shouted through rouged lips at women who passed him near Jackson Square.

A major traffic jam occurred a block from Bourbon Street when a gathering of Christians ran into a group of homosexual samba dancers.

"Jesus is the only ay," chanted the religious group. The dancers, many dressed in stunning evening gowns, ignored the chant and continued down the street.

Despite a gang-related shooting Sunday night that left four youths wounded, there have been fewer problems with crowd control this year than in previous years, police said. Sheriff Charles Foti said there had been about 400 fewer arrests so far this year than in 1989.

THE ONLY OTHER major casualty of the Carnival season so far was John Folkenroth, 45, who toppled from a Hermes Parade float on Friday and suffered a critical head injury.

A man was arrested on Bourbon Street about 1 a.m. Tuesday for wearing nothing but a few strands of beads and a smile. Several women in the street crowd posed with him for pictures before police moved in.

The arrest apparently angered some people in the crowd who began booing the officers and throwing bottles. Police moved swiftly and harshly to disperse the crowd, using officers on horseback and motorcyclists to chase people away from the area.

The police wink at mild mischief, a certain degree of intoxication, and bawdy, but not vulgar, actions.

Radio service on the air for visually impaired, disabled

By Fernando Fellu-Moggi
Staff Writer

A local radio broadcasting service that functions mainly with the aid of volunteers is getting some help from local churches, but its executive director says the station still could use some extra help.

Richard Parrish, executive director of the Southern Illinois Radio Information Service, said the program is directed toward the visually impaired and the handicapped that broadcasts from Carbondale seven days a week and covers 21 Southern Illinois counties and areas of Kentucky, Missouri and Indiana.

SIRIS broadcasts consist mainly of readings from newspapers, books and magazines that provide information and entertainment to the blind and disabled and are recorded by volunteers.

Parrish said although some local churches, such as the Newman Center and the Wesley Foundation, encourage some of their members to volunteer, the program could use as many new volunteers as possible.

Parrish's wife, Valerie Brew Parrish, founded SIRIS in 1980.

"I had worked closely with disabled students," Valerie Parrish said. "My husband is visually impaired, and I often had to read the newspaper to him."

Valerie Parrish said television news did not provide in-depth coverage like newspapers did. "I spent some time in a hospital, and I had trouble turning the pages of newspapers and books," she said. "I thought it would be a good idea to organize a program like this."

"Although we filed the paperwork in 1980, we did not go on the air until 1984 because of economic problems," Valerie Parrish said.

SIRIS is a non-profit organization that is run mostly through state grants, especially a State Library Grant, United Way grants and the help of private contributors.

Parrish said there are about 150 similar stations across the nation, 10 of them broadcasting in Illinois.

"Setting up the program is difficult and costly," Parrish said.

Valerie Parrish said the program has been an excellent learning experience.

"We had no radio experience whatsoever, but we have learned a little about everything from how to work the boards to Federal Communications Commission regulations," Valerie Parrish said.

Parrish said obtaining the equipment was the most expensive part of the program.

He said most of the broadcasting equipment was donated by local radio stations. "We don't have one piece of new equipment," he said.

Because the broadcasts are made in closed circuit radio, special receivers are needed to pick up the service.

"Each receiver costs $75 to $85, and we provide them to those who qualify for the service," Valerie Parrish said.

People qualified for the service - blind, physically impaired or dyslexics - receive the receivers free as a "permanent loan," meaning that they can keep them "until they get sick of them or until they die," Valerie Parrish said.

Parrish said there are 154 receivers spread through the SIRIS listening area, which translates into about 3,000 listeners.

"Many hospitals and nursing homes, as well as private residences have receivers," Parrish said.

"The university provides the airwaves and gives us a good deal on the renting of the building," Parrish said.

SIRIS broadcasts use the same signal as SIU, WSIU and the local National Public Radio station.

He said the service runs on a very low budget, "about $30,000 a year," and because of that it is difficult to distribute information about the program. "We still get calls from people who did not know the program existed," Parrish said.

Valerie Parrish said local volunteers are desperately needed in the station.

She said the station can use almost anybody for any purpose.

Aaron Brooks, assistant director of SIRIS, said volunteers can do all kinds of jobs at the station. Board operators, engineering students, who can help to repair electronic equipment, readers to record readings, painters to help with the maintenance of the building are needed.

Jim Skinner, one of the station's volunteers, says SIRIS has given him the chance to develop his skills in communications.

Skinner, who is blind, said he has always enjoyed reading out loud and the service allows him to use his voice.

For more details, call Richard Parrish at 549-5604.

Lecture series focuses on faith

By Fernando Fellu-Moggi
Staff Writer

What insight to life or what messages would professors want to pass on to students in their last lectures?

The Newman Center is organizing a faith-centered program that will try to answer just that, Rev. Joe VanLeeuwen said.

The Last Lecture Series, a program organized as part of the center's Friday Lenten devotions will feature a faculty member each week, who will talk about the relationship between his or her faith and areas of scholarship.

VanLeeuwen said.

VanLeeuwen said faculty members are asked to present their lecture as if it were the last one of their teaching career, saying "whatever they would like to pass on to their students."

Thomas Christianson, an assistant professor in the microbiology, who will be the first speaker of the series, says the lecture will give him an opportunity to explain how his faith and his job as a molecular biologist combine.

"I will try to explain how my faith influences me when I study nature," Christianson said. "I would like to talk about my personal experiences and how I became interested in my job and through it, see an artwork and learn about the job of the artist."

Christianson said the idea for the series has a lot of potential, and it allows professors to talk about issues they could not address in class.

The lectures will be held every Friday after the 6 p.m. Lenten service.

Christianson will speak March 2; William Garner, a political science professor, is scheduled for March 9, and Jack Cody, a professor in educational psychology will speak April 6.

Engineering program gets corporate funding

By Fernando Fellu-Moggi
Staff Writer

A University summer engineering program has received a $2,000 boost from a national corporation, the largest corporate contribution in the program's history, an officer from the school of engineering said.

Women's Introduction to Engineering, a summer program for high school women organized by the College of Engineering and Technology received the donation from United Postal Service, Linda Helstern, public information officer for the college of engineering and technology, said.

Women's Introduction to engineering is a two week program limited to 16 outstanding math and science high-school students from Southern Illinois, Helstern said. She said the academically oriented program provides students with a clear insight into the nature of engineering careers, including areas such as math, engineering problems and experiments, introduction to robotics, computer graphics and a design competition.

Helstern said other corporations have contributed to the program, but UPS's gift was about four times larger than any received in other years.

She said corporate help is needed to help cover the expenses of the program which is mainly supported by the University.

The National Science Foundation gave money to the program in its first three years, but Helstern said the NSF did not aid the program this year.

NO, I'M NOT SEEING ANYONE. IT'S BUMBO LIMBO UNTIL THIS THING COOLS OFF.

BESIDES, MARLA AND I ARE JUST GOOD FRIENDS. I DON'T KNOW HOW SHE FOUND OUT I WAS GREAT IN THE SACK, BECAUSE WE'RE DEFINITELY NOT HAVING AN AFFAIR! IF WE WERE, I'D KNOW ABOUT IT.

I'M ALSO NOT HAVING AN AFFAIR WITH RAQUEL WELCH, MADONNA, PAULA ABDUL, CHER, MORGAN FAIRCILD OR BO DEREK! I CATEGORICALLY DENY IT!

and 67-55 at the Arena — and are losers of eight straight to SIU-C.

As for the Salukis' seeding in the Valley tournament, Saluki head coach Rich Herrin is elated to be No. 1.

"This is probably the best position to be in," Herrin said. "I'd rather be the favorite than be the underdog anytime. We're not picked to win it, we earned the (No. 1 seed) right. We're happy to be there."

Not taking Indiana State for granted, Herrin says all teams start with a clean slate at tournament time.

"It's all a new season," Herrin said. "Everybody starts over. It will be a tough ballgame. We're going to be ready."

Herrin was happiest about wrapping up the championship in front of consecutive sellout crowds at the Arena.

"I know that our players are really excited," Herrin said. "We were so fortunate to win the Valley at home with a sellout crowd. Things just worked in our favor. It was one of my most exciting nights as a coach and I've been in this business a long time."

Herrin credited his "big four" — seniors Jerry Jones and Freddie McSwain and juniors Sterling Mahan and Rick Shipley — for providing the foundation for this year's success.

All four are averaging in double figures and have led the club in scoring in different games this season. Jones averages 14.9 points and 10.3 rebounds from his center position and Shipley, a forward averaging 12.3 points and 7.9 rebounds, will provide much of the inside muscle in the tournament.

Mahan (16 points, 4.5 assists) and McSwain (17.5 points, 4.5 rebounds) combine to form the highest scoring guard tandem in the conference.

Illinois State finished second in the league (9-5) tied with Creighton and Tulsa. The Redbirds were picked as the No. 2 seed on the strength of their head-to-head play against the lower seeds and will play at 6:08 p.m. Saturday against No. 7 Drake, 13-17 and 5-9 in the league.

Redbird head coach Bob Bender said finishing the regular season on an high note will help his team, but his team has to stay motivated.

"We have to remain a very hungry basketball team," Bender said. "Whoever is going to play the best three games of the year this far is going to be the eventual tournament champion."

"There's no way for us to come into the game with Drake expecting anything to be easy," Bender said. "It's tough to beat a team three times in one year. They're a very tough team for us to match up with."

The Salukis would have won the title regardless but the Redbirds helped their outright cause by beating Creighton 83-77 Monday. With the home-court advantage in the tournament, Illinois State is a solid candidate for the championship game Tuesday, very possibly against SIU-C.

"Southern Illinois is the favorite," Bender said. "You have to give them that because they're the conference champs and rightfully so."

"I think the advantage that we have is that the logistics of having to travel, being away from your campus for an extended period of time, are things that we don't have to deal with," Bender said.

Creighton won the 1988-89 Valley tournament with a 79-77 win over the Salukis in Wichita and advanced to the NCAA tournament. The Bluejays, 20-10 overall, are the No. 3 seed and play No. 6 Wichita State (10-18 and 6-8) at 8:40 p.m. Saturday.

The Salukis swept the regular season series against the Bluejays, 83-72 in Omaha and 84-76 at the Arena and would like to make it three for three if both teams advance to the final game.

Tulsa (16-11 and 9-5) plays Bradley (11-18 and 6-8) at 2:40 p.m. Saturday.

If SIU-C advanced past the first round, they will play the winner of the bracket two semi-final game at 1 p.m. on Sunday. The winners of the lower bracket will play their semi-final game approximately 22 minutes after the conclusion of first game on Sunday.

The championship game — televised by ESPN — starts at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

to Eastern Illinois and Southern Illinois.

Illinois State's home winning streak will be put to the test this week. After playing the Salukis Wednesday, Illinois State closes out the season against Eastern Illinois Friday.

The Redbirds defeated SIU-C 68-60 in overtime Jan. 4 at the Arena.

The Salukis never led but tied the Redbirds three times in the second half after Illinois State built a 30-16 lead with 3:55 left in the first half.

The Redbirds won two of three from: the Salukis last season.

Dibble: Fans don't realize player talent

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cincinnati Reds pitcher Rob Dibble says fans who complain that major league baseball players are over-paid don't realize how few people have the talent to make the majors and how hard they work to get there.

"John Q. Public doesn't understand what you have to do to get to this point," said Dibble. "People think I just stepped off Mars onto a big league field."

"They didn't see the five years I struggled in the minors — the bus rides, the politics, not having enough money, getting beers and batteries and coins and all that stuff thrown on me."

"It's dog-eat-dog to get here. Once you make it, you like to think you'll get the red carpet treatment, but that doesn't always happen."

Meanwhile, Cincinnati's highest paid player, outfielder Eric Davis, says he's solidly behind the players union in its current contract squabble with owners even if it means he will miss some big payday if the start of the regular season is delayed.

"If I didn't care (about the union), I'd be in Florida right now, working out," said Davis, who recently signed a three-year contract worth $9.3 million.

"The way I feel, it's up to me and guys in my position to stick behind our union and sacrifice for the players coming up. Without the guys before us, we wouldn't be able to make the money we make today. There wouldn't be any free agency."

at the same time functional." The weight room advisory board was established to advise the administration of the purchase of exercise equipment when the plans for the new addition of the Recreation Center were being proposed. The board included weightlifters of all kinds. Powerlifters, Olympic lifters, bodybuilders and recreational lifters were represented.

"The reason we established the board was because we had heard about some of the changes they were going to make in the weight room and we just couldn't believe it," Rester said.

Rester explained that the advisory board was working with the administration but that they (board) felt that their advice wasn't taken seriously and most importantly they did not advocate the purchase of Pyramid equipment.

"We were really startled that they chose Pyramid. They had told us initially that they were going with Universal equipment across the board, both in the new weight room and the old weight room, and we were OK with that," Rester said. "We do think there were some other brands out there that they should've looked at, but we thought Universal was OK. The bottom line is we just really did not think that Pyramid was OK."

John Allemand, president of the weightlifting club, also discussed the problem of the equipment purchases.

"It would be like me going to the computer lab and buying a bunch of computer software and hardware and I don't know a thing about computers," Allemand said. "It's the same thing here. Someone went ahead and bought the equipment without asking for help. Obviously they are looking for the short-term benefits rather than the long-term benefits. I think mainly it is a lack of communication between us and the guys here at the Rec Center. Hopefully we can get that worked out."

The advisory board has made several suggestions to the administration to handle the duties of taking care of the equipment.

One suggestion was to set up a maintenance program for the equipment, which has been done.

"We do a very good job of staying on top of the problems with the equipment," Lukes said. "We have student workers in there every night cleaning and checking out the machines. If anything major goes wrong we do have warranties on the new equipment."

Kevin Helfrich, the supervisor for maintenance for the weight rooms, explained the maintenance program at the Recreation Center.

"Monday through Sunday we have people come in when the building is closed and what they do is put all the weights away, clean the mirrors, pick up trash and things like that and then they go through each machine and see what is broke," Helfrich said. "We have a report each night that they have to fill out."

"Then the next day I go through those reports and see what is needed to get these things fixed. If it is in our inventory I'll just go back there and put the part on myself. If not then we'll order the part."

Helfrich stated that he hasn't seen anyone from Pyramid, Smith or Universal in the Recreation Center to service equipment which is under warranty.
