The motels are booked, the police are ready. Look out Carbondale, it's time for another Halloween.

While police expect Saturday will be "the big night," there will be about 40 Carbondale and SIU-C officers patrolling South Illinois Avenue on foot both Friday and Saturday evenings, said Art Wright, Carbondale police press officer, and they will close "The Strip" only when the crowd size makes it necessary.

He said police are expecting the crowd to be comparable to last year's, about 15,000.

Carbondale Police Chief Ed Hogan said he hopes that this year's Halloween enthusiasts will restrain from carrying potential weapons like knives, swords, bayonets, guns, whips, chains and baseball bats. Last year police confiscated 200 such items.

"We want everyone to have a good time," he said, "and by following these guidelines, we hope to reduce the number of accidental injuries."

Hogan said people should remember and abide by the city's bottle ban, which takes effect at 6 p.m. Friday and lasts through 2 a.m. Sunday. During that time, beer, wine and hard liquor in glass bottles cannot be sold. The ban on glass containers began at 2 a.m. Monday, Oct. 25, and will last through 2 a.m. Monday, Nov. 1.

Police do not know just how many out-of-town guests there will be this weekend but they said they are expecting many.

Employees at the Best Motor Lodge, Holiday Inn, University Motor Inn and Uptown Motel said all rooms are filled for the weekend and

Iowa anti-draft student may get GSC support

By Robert Green
Staff Writer

A student body president indicted three weeks ago by a federal grand jury for refusing to register for the draft may soon receive a letter of moral support from the Graduate Student Council.

The council Wednesday passed by a 16-13-5 vote a resolution urging that GSC President Paul Matalonis send a letter expressing support to Rusty Martin, student government president at the University of Northern Iowa.

Martin, who was elected to office on an anti-draft platform, became the twelfth man to be indicted for failing to register for the draft. Under a law signed by President Carter in 1960, men born in 1960 and after are required to register within 30 days of their 18th birthday.

Council member Fred Marx presented the resolution, saying that the council should protest "the selective prosecution of youth leaders."

"I'm not saying that we as a body should support not registering for the draft," Marx said, "but that we should object to people like Rusty Martin being singled out because of their visibility. We should make a stand supporting a fellow student council member at another university."

Martin, who "burned" his registration papers during an anti-draft demonstration in 1980, has reportedly said that the Reagan administration is "using this law to go after its opponents." About 500,000 men have failed to register, according to the Selective Service System.

After Matalonis said that he would gladly draft a letter of support for Martin, he was asked if it is proper for the council to involve itself in non-University civil matters.

"The GSC has a long history and reputation for seeing graduate students as part of a larger community which we are concerned about," Matalonis said. "For example, last year we endorsed the boycott of Nestle products, and recently we expressed support for Leonard Peltier's case."

Davis still sought in Franklin County

By Jennifer Phillips
Staff Writer

The search for twice-convicted murderer Bruce Davis, who escaped from Menard Correctional Center Sunday, is still being concentrated in Franklin County, said the Franklin County Sheriff Bill Willis.

Authorities are still receiving calls from citizens reporting that Davis has been sighted, he said, and each call is followed up.

Although he did not know how many officers are still involved in the search, he said they are a mixture of local, state and correctional officers and have been rotating shifts to keep about the same number of officers on duty.

It is possible that Davis is still in the area, but "I have my doubts," Willis said. There have been no reports of stolen cars, food or other such items, which Willis thinks indicates that he has fled the area.

He said Davis could have a contact within the county, though, so they have to keep looking.

Davis was discovered missing from the correctional center at Chester about 7:15 p.m. Sunday, authorities said, after inmates found the slain body of Joseph Cushman, a foreman at the prison farm. Davis was in charge of storing tools on the farm.

He is described as white, 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighing about 160 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes and a scar on his right palm.

Police have said the Davis is possibly dangerous.

Lack of jobs stirs race for Congress

By Bob Delaney
Staff Writer

The big issue in the 22nd Congressional District race is unemployment in Southern Illinois.

Unemployment is reaching Depression levels in several Southeastern Illinois counties, but incumbent Paul Simon has not ducked when challenger Pete Prineas said joblessness was the only issue in the campaign.

Simon stands on his record, saying he has saved or created 5,000 jobs by preventing the abandonment of Conrail's line and using Urban Development Action Grant funds for World Color Press and the Carlisle

Election 82

Rubber Plant.

Prineas says Southern Illinois is "front and foremost" in the election. He said in the first debate between the candidates that he will have "tunnel vision" for Southern Illinois, and has criticized Simon for allowing unemployment to rise in the region and for not deterring the loss of jobs by recruiting industry.

The two candidates have disagreed on almost every issue during the campaign.

Prineas and other opponents of Simon don't talk of how the

Paul Simon

Republican will beat Simon -- they say Simon will beat himself.

Pete Prineas

That is the problem Simon faces and wants to eliminate in this election. Simon is fighting himself as well as Prineas. The image of Simon is of a liberal who exits the district only stage left.

"I'm a fiscal conservative," Simon insists.

Simon also is a vocal critic in Congress of President Reagan's policies. He blames high interest rates and the largest defense expenditure in U.S. history for unemployment.

He says if Reagan wants a balanced budget, he should present one to Congress. Simon voted against the balanced budget amendment Reagan presented because it tied the budget to gross national product. Simon said this

Buzbee says Senate campaign one of political history's dirtiest

By Andrew Herrmann
Staff Writer

Sen. Kenneth Buzbee said Thursday that the contest for the 58th District senate seat will "go down in the annals of political campaigning history as one of the dirtiest ever."

Buzbee, who was at the Quigley Hall day care center to announce he had received an award from the Illinois Collaboration on Youth for his contributions to state youth programs, said that his opponent, Rep. Wayne Alstalt, has waged a "mud-slinging" campaign that is the worst he has ever experienced.

Buzbee said Alstalt has based his campaign on "insuendo, quotes taken out of context and half-truths" and called his opponent "a desperate man" who is considerably behind in the polls. He said Alstalt has an unlimited amount of money and "has absolutely nothing to say about himself. His only hope is to dirty me up."

He said Alstalt is attacking him because his opponent "lacks a complete legislative record." Buzbee said Alstalt has sponsored seven house bills in two years as state representative and "was able to pass only one."

Buzbee appeared to be particularly upset when asked to comment on a news release issued Thursday by Alstalt's office that accuses the senator of inappropriately using $10,000 in state funds for "vacation" travel.

Buzbee refuted Alstalt's claim, saying he used the travel expenses to represent his constituents and "to make sure they get their fair share." He said he was "a recognized leader" in the coal area and made trips to Washington, D.C. to lobby Congress in that capacity. He also said he made trips to the nation's capital as chairman of the Appropriations II Committee in an effort to receive Illinois' share of the federal budget.

Keith Snyder, Alstalt's campaign manager, said he stands behind the information released. He said that Buzbee has put in 30 vouchers for out-of-state travel in the past two years to such places as Phoenix, Ariz., Richmond, Va. and Toronto, Canada as well as Washington, D.C.

"Rep. Alstalt feels that at a time when the district is tightening its belt, it is inappropriate for Sen. Buzbee to make such trips," Snyder said.

Addressing the mud-slinging charge, Snyder said that Alstalt "is slinging the truth and sometimes the truth hurts."

State Senate President Phillip Rock also attended the press conference, saying Buzbee has a "100 percent record" behind overall child-related issues and that Buzbee "has been consistent and unwavering" in his support of children's rights.

News Roundup

Spain elects Socialist premier

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The Socialist Workers Party won a solid majority in Thursday's parliamentary elections, which will make Felipe Gonzalez the first Socialist premier in Spain since the 1936-39 civil war.

Interior Ministry undersecretary Juan Jose Izarra del Corral said early Friday that with all the votes counted for the 350-member lower house of Parliament, Gonzalez' Socialists won 194 seats and their nearest rival, the rightist Popular Alliance, 97. He said the Socialists got 45.7 percent of the popular vote and the Popular Alliance 24.9 percent.

EPA OKs leaded gas regulations

NEW YORK (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency announced final approval Thursday of new rules limiting the amount of lead in gasoline, a move the agency's director said would raise gasoline prices slightly but "protect the health and welfare of all Americans."

The regulations were written after a study indicated that thousands of pre-school children had excessive levels of lead in their blood.

Small refiners, who said they faced going out of business, vowed to fight the rules in court.

Weinberger warns against freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — In his first general Pentagon news conference in nearly 21 months, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger countered Thursday a tough speech by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev with a bid to convince American voters that a nuclear weapons freeze would increase the danger of war.

Weinberger also appeared to back away from his assertion last week that he did not believe the U.S. Marine peacekeeping force in Lebanon would be enlarged and its mission broadened.

The Undergraduate Student Organization sent letters Tuesday to eight colleges in Illinois promoting safety during Halloween.

The letters, which said last year's arrest statistics showed that 23 of the 32 persons arrested were from out of town, were sent to Illinois State, Northern Illinois, Western Illinois, Eastern Illinois, Sangamon State, the University of Illinois two campuses and SIU-Edwardsville.

Instead of having to obtain University guest parking stickers as has been the practice in the past, guests will be allowed to park in any legal parking spot and not be ticketed, said Marilyn Hogan, campus parking manager.

However, city ordinance prohibits parking on South Illinois Avenue between Grand Avenue and Walnut Street between 2 a.m. Friday and 2 a.m. Monday during this weekend.

procedure would have done exactly the opposite of what the government should be doing to manage the economy.

Simon supports a balanced budget. And he opposes what he sees as excessive defense spending because he believes it takes money away from education and other social programs. The support of which has led opponents to label Simon a liberal.

Simon says if Prineas is elected, voters will be sending a rubber stamp for Reagan policy to Congress.

"I'm not tied to anything Reagan's done," Prineas says. "I look at each issue alone."

Prineas, a Carbondale engineer, has been on a grassroots campaign, trying to turn people against Simon and calling their attention to the unemployment that Prineas says is Simon's responsibility. Prineas has also been running away from the image of being a conservative Republican at a time when Democrats are pinning unemployment on Reagan's neck.

But Prineas is conservative and agrees with Reagan along some lines. He says he is against abortion, for school prayer and against gun control. He is also strongly free market and protectionist, especially against dumping of Japanese products.

However, he backs off from his free market beliefs when it comes to solving the problems of American farmers. He wants to impose mandatory production levels on farmers that would raise grain prices.

Simon says America must expand exports to improve its economic standing. He opposed Reagan's parts ban for the Soviet natural gas pipeline to Western Europe because he says it hurt American industry and drove the Soviets to other markets.

However, he agrees with Prineas that America must get tough and protect its products against the dumping of products from abroad.

Simon admits he is liberal when it comes to social programs. He says Reagan's programs threaten higher education, Social Security and other areas where Simon says the government should intervene.

As chairman of the House Subcommittee on Post-Secondary Education, he has fought for universities, including SIU-C, and student aid. His most recent victory was to save Pell grant funding that was scheduled to be eliminated.

Prineas says he likes the low-interest loans now offered to students, but opposes grants. He says he admires any student who thinks enough of himself or herself to invest in a short-term debt.

However, he wants federal control over primary education lifted, saying federal involvement has gone hand in hand with lower test scores among American students.

Like most Southern Illinois politicians, Prineas has accepted the role SIU-C and other universities could play in retaining workers for a high technology society.

He agrees with Reagan that the private sector should carry the ball. He supports a reduced federal government, meaning fewer restrictions on business and less of a tax burden on Americans.

With Congress faced with salvaging Social Security, Prineas says that the problem is a longer average lifespan which puts a strain on the general fund. He proposes an incremental rise in the retirement age and earlier payments into the system by workers.

Simon also receives high marks from coal miners. He expects coal desulfurization research to save the Illinois coal market. He fought to gain Black Lung benefits for affected miners.

Prineas wants air pollution standards relaxed in Southern Illinois so that high sulfur coal from the region can be burned. Simon accuses him of holding false hopes before unemployed miners, but Prineas says pollution now is a political question, not an environmental question.

Opinion & Commentary

Simon is man for nation and for Southern Illinois

What do you do with a man who attracts $400,000 in campaign funds when his opponent gets only $16,000? You elect him to office, no matter how loudly his opponent hollers that the elec...

U.S. Rep. Paul Simon has reportedly amassed $400,000 in his campaign against Peter Prineas for the Illinois 22nd District seat in Congress. Rather than showing that anything is wrong, Simon's money gathering ability shows that something is right. It shows that people have confidence in him and want him in Congress.

Conversely, Prineas' difficulty is raising funds, even contributions from his own party, works against him. The GOP's reluctance in opening its purse for Prineas is indicative of lack of confidence in their own Republican candidate.

Paul Simon's grasp of world and national affairs and his experience and knowledge of the workings of Capitol Hill are vital assets for the nation. His support of such people-oriented causes as government compensation for Agent Orange and Atomic testing victims and his sponsorship of the bill for a clearinghouse for information about missing children have won him national acclaim.

Prineas finds Simon's interest in national issues objectionable, saying that Simon should spend more time with local issues.

But Simon has not neglected home issues. He has helped create or save 5,000 jobs in Southern Illinois. Coal miners and widows remember with gratitude his fight for black lung benefits.

His success in getting Southern Railways to pick up where Conrail backed out not only saved jobs but retained a vital transportation resource that Southern Illinois needs. His national prestige helps put Southern Illinois on the map and create the necessary confidence for outside investors to move in. The parochial view advocated by Prineas would close this off.

Simon's integrity is a refreshing factor in the political scene. He was foremost in the move to require public disclosure of campaign funding sources.

Finally, Simon is probably the chief spokesman in the House for higher education, stressing also the need for foreign language education that would enhance international understanding and trade. His firm commitment to education and his effective leadership in heading off the Republican administration's cuts in student aid have been invaluable not only to education generally but to SIU directly.

Southern Illinois needs Paul Simon in Congress. So does the United States.

I am ready to defend my stand

In the Oct. 25 issue of the DE, there was an indictment by one Jewell A Friend, Dean, General Academic Programs, that was most incorrect.

I am Alaudin Shabazz. I do not belong to any "sect". I am not an "inmate at Graham Correctional Center". Nor do I know where such a center is located. I made no comments at any "Id U Filtr... Ramadan Holy Feast". I have never had an article (nor any of my comments printed) in any issue of "Telegrapham". I have never condoned any massacre.

I challenge Jewell A Friend to prove her allegations concerning me. I challenge Jewell A. Friend to a public debate on the history of the Jews, Palestinian genocide, U.S. involvement in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, use of Bible literature, etc. Let the public decide who it is who blatantly misuses Biblical literature indulges in linguistic sophistry and suffers from "intellectual hysteria". Let the public at large decide who "lacks a sense of history" and who is "politically naive". Let's see who has at their mental tips the best "available resources"!

It is clear that Jewell A. Friend is operating out of a void since she said I was an "inmate" and imparted comments I've never heard off. Why didn't she make sure she was correct before writing such misleading falsehood? Let's get to the root of the issue, Jewell. How about a debate? He who has a firm grip on truth has nothing to fear. I wait your reply. -man Alaudin Shabazz, Carbondale.

Apology offered

I am sorry that there has been a confusion in identity of the party referred to in the Telegrapham article and the DE letter to the editor Oct. 25 insofar as the status of Mr. Shabazz is concerned.

Obviously, it is even more shocking that he would make a statement in the DE condoning the incineration of Jews in Nazi Germany in view of the greater accessibility of resources he had.

Whether he was a free man or an inmate, the statement stands as a testimonial to the continuing struggle of the Jewish people. - Jewell Friend, Dean, General Academic Programs.

On pro-life God can also test the pro-lifers

The pro-life folks were meeting the other day and were awaiting their next speaker when suddenly a light appeared (not a bright one for Jerry Falwell and Phyllis Schlafly had those rented for the day) and an intelligent and kind personage emerged from it.

"Who are you?" they asked from the other end of the narrow hall. "I am God." "Impossible," said a knowing individual in the crowd. "You're not white, you're not middle class, you're not Protestant!" "Or Catholic," said another.

"Perhaps you're right," said the personage, "think of me as a humanist - a seeker of true life." "Fine" said the group. "Now tell us why you're here."

"I have listened to your logic for a long time now," said the personage. "And I've decided that it just might have merit."

The pro-life folks were pleased at that but then they had always known that God was on their side.

"However," he continued, "I'd like to put it to a test first." Immediately a darkness enveloped the group and they felt themselves crushed within a fraction of themselves.

"Where are we?" they cried.

"You have just been born," said God. "But why is it so dark - why so crowded?" "Your mother cannot afford to pay utilities, let alone food. By the way, I hope you enjoy hunger and malnutrition. Anyway, you've got seven brothers and sisters next to you to help you feel secure. Expect some more before your mother is talked into sterilization when she's 19. Sure beats putting money into planned parenthood programs, doesn't it?"

"What's going on now?" asked the group. "Be still," said God, "your mother is deciding."

"Deciding what?" "Which one of you to beat. Unfortunately she's taking out her troubles on you. Unemployment, crime, poverty, racism, a poor education, there's a lot of trouble to take out."

"Oh God!" they cried. "We do not want to be abused or cold or hungry, living in filth and decay."

"The choice is not that of the child," said God, "We must abide by the rules of the test. The group cried out louder but their cries were ignored. They sat unprotected against the forces of poverty, disease and abuse.

"Oh God, stop this! Is this not a fate worse than death?" "Ah, but isn't this the meaning of your life? Isn't the simple fact that you were conceived reason enough for you to fulfill this role in life?"

"But we are Human Beings and as such should be treated as Human Beings."

"Sorry" said God, "This is a society where there is a great concern for the 9 months before birth and a disregard for the 80 years after. Your President and your Congress says that your life isn't worth diddy. They're cutting all the programs which may have helped you. But have faith. In 10 years if you survive you can join the army. Your President and your Congress will spend plenty to teach you how to kill."

"No! No!" shouted the crowd. "Eld the test."

"Don't worry," said God. "It will end. 60 or 70 years, maybe less. You've got a life of bad schools, street and domestic violence, drug abuse, rape and incest, discrimination and poverty to look forward to. Being pro-choice I'm sure you'll enjoy living it." - John Lauer, Senior, Design.

Anti-abortion movement is oppression of women and injustice to unborn child

Living in this material world of the physical senses, it is easy to come to regard ourselves as minds and bodies, forgetting our true selves, our Soul, which is the central reality of the individual. Thinking of ourselves as so much plumbing and electrical impulses causes many misunderstandings about just what constitutes life. This case illustrates this better than the abortion issue.

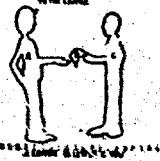

In a chapter on abortion in his by Garry Trudeau book "Your Right to Know," Darwin Gross, an Eck Master and spiritual leader in Eckankar, states "The unborn child is not a person. The fetus is a biological entity only. The whole point is that soul, which is the individual spark of God, does not enter the body while it is in the womb of the female, but only after the child has been brought into the outer world, and sometimes later than that. Therefore, it is not murder if the woman decides not to bear the child and carry the responsibilities of feeding it, seeing it through school and out into life, any more than it is murder if I cut a bit of skin from my finger."

of God brings knowledge of the immorality of Soul.

The anti-abortion movement represents an oppression of women, and an injustice to the child resulting from an unwanted pregnancy. For the woman in Eckankar it is simply her choice. There is no guilt factor involved. Each of us as individuals should have the right to control our lives and it is not someone else's part either through religion or legislation to attempt to dictate the good of all mankind. May the blessings be. - Scott Eaton, Radiologic Technology.

God's interest is in Soul, and Its continuation, which It supports through Its vehicle of Spirit, and not the physical body, which Soul uses to gain experience in the material world. Associating oneself with the physical body produces a fear of death, while tuning into Spirit, the Light and the Sound

SPC video alive and rolling on Student Center's fourth floor

By Jeff Todd
Student Writer

In the recesses on the fourth floor of the Student Center is a video lounge known to few students.

In the lounge, stars like Mr. Bill, James Dean and the Three Stooges have appeared recently to sparse audiences.

"I think it takes most new SIU-C students one year to realize that a fourth floor exists at the Student Center," said Bjorn Reddington, Student Programming Council video chairperson. "After they've discovered it exists, it may take them another year to realize that SPC shows movies up there."

Reddington, a junior in cinema and photography, said that SPC Video is trying to increase student awareness of the fourth floor lounge.

"By developing more student awareness we hope to increase attendance at our movies," Reddington said. "If we can increase attendance we will have more money which can be used to upgrade the quality of video equipment which is used by SPC."

Reddington said improvements have been made this year in the quality of the video system.

"We now have a video recorder which can play all movies in stereo and project a clearer image on the viewing screen," Reddington said.

Reddington said that management of the lounge had been improved.

"This year we have tried to create a theater atmosphere,"

Bjorn Reddington, Student Programming Council video chairman.

Reddington said. "For example, we now show shorts of Mr. Bill, or cartoons before the main feature to allow people who arrive late to see the entire movie."

Reddington plans to expand the duties of SPC in the future to include specials which will be filmed at SIU-C.

"We are planning to film some shorts which will be shown on the first floor television in the Student Center," Reddington said.

Reddington also said that the shorts will concentrate on activities at SIU-C.

Reddington said that SPC is currently working on a special containing an interview with Pat Metheny and slides from the Pat Metheny concert held recently at SIU-C.

"We're trying to do a lot of things here at SPC," Reddington said. "I just hope we can develop more student awareness of what we have to offer. Where else can a person go in Carbondale to see a feature movie for one dollar?"

Carbondale banana lovers are in for a-peeling feast

In a series of one-minute rounds, students will be challenged to consume 400 pounds of bananas during the "Big Banana Bash" scheduled from 6 to 9 p.m. Saturday at the Wesley Community Center on South Illinois Avenue.

Kevin Valintine, member of the Black Affairs Council, sponsor of the event, said, "We're trying to provide a non-alcoholic activity during the Halloween festivities."

Valintine said that for 50 cents per round, at least 10 persons at a time can stuff themselves with as many bananas as they can stomach in one minute. The blue-ribbon winners of each round can then stuff themselves for a second time in the "big-eat-off" round for a surprise prize, he said.

Valintine said they decided to use bananas because it's fun to watch people tear into them, and "bananas are more filling."

He said there will be no chance to monkey around with choosing winners because each round of banana stuffing will be regulated by judges from various fraternities and sororities under the BAC umbrella.

The Black Affairs Council plans to make the banana bash an annual event during the Halloween weekend, he said.

Those interested in participating in the contest can register by calling Kevin Valintine at the Black Affairs Council, 453-2534.

Tax conference will focus on income tailoring, estate tax

Tailoring income and estate tax planning services to the needs of individual clients will be the main theme of a tax preparation conference Saturday at SIU-C.

Program content has been organized by the Southern chapter of the Illinois Certified Public Accountant Society, which is sponsoring the seminar in cooperation with the Division of Continuing Education. The meeting begins at 8:30 a.m. in Student Center Ballroom B.

St. Louis tax attorney Joseph P. Giljum will present a review of developments, cases and rulings. Other seminar leaders are Theodore Z. Gelt, a Colorado attorney and federal tax specialist; James P. Breen and Michael J. Lins, both CPAs with Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co.; and John DeBruyn, an attorney who specializes in estate planning strategies.

Continuing Professional Education credit will be awarded to participants who attend all sessions and pick up completed certificates following the final discussion.

More information is available from Jeanne Bortz, coordinator, at 536-7751.

A preview of the work of Master of Fine Arts candidates in the School of Art and Department of Cinema and Photography is showing now through Nov. 18 at the University Museum in Faner Hall.

The graduate students' work provides examples in a variety of media and an overview of the work involved in the terminal degree of an artist.

The MFA is a 60-hour program which can take three years to complete. The graduate is expected to work with a sense of freedom and experimentation and also develop a personal style or language through their art. An MFA candidate must present a thesis exhibit that exemplifies these characteristics.

The exhibit contains works of 18 artists. MFA candidates from the School of Art include Cheryl Hahn, Karl Fresa and Kurt Eckert showing paintings and drawings and Dan Overturf in printmaking. Jewelry and metals are being shown by Ken Colman, Sydney Esherr and Kara Nasca.

Sandy Johnson's work is fiber sculpture. Ceramics is the work of Sonia Baysinger, Lynn Goodman and John Elias. Elias' work also includes glass.

The sculpture department has six candidates - David Olson, Jerome Kegler, Deborah La Grasse, Michael Pascucci, Dave Durham and Jeff Wilcox - who work with an array of materials.

The Department of Cinema and Photography is represented by work of Giorgio Majno.

Admission to the gallery is free. Museum hours are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sundays.

Socialists leading in Spain vote

By Susan Linnee
Associated Press Writer

MADRID, Spain (AP) — From the slopes of the Pyrenees to the Rock of Gibraltar, millions of Spaniards voted Thursday in an election expected to give them their first all-Socialist government and 40-year-old Felipe Gonzalez as prime minister.

Despite threats by Basque terrorists to disrupt the election, sporadic bombings during the three-week campaign and fears of a military coup to block the expected Socialist victory, two bomb explosions were the only violence reported.

The bombs went off outside banks in Bilbao, the capital of the Basque region in northwestern Spain, and injured two policemen, one seriously. No group claimed responsibility immediately, but it was assumed they were set off by ETA, the radical Basque separatist organization.

More than 130,000 police officers patrolled the country as long lines formed at the polling places in warm, sunny weather. Reports by the national radio network indicated the turnout was much higher than in the two other general elections held since the death of dictator Francisco Franco in 1975.

There were 8,150 candidates for 350 seats in the lower house of the Cortes, the Spanish parliament, and 208 seats in the Senate. The seats are allocated on the basis of the parties' total votes in each election district, and enough returns to permit projections of the outcome were expected early Friday.

The final pre-election opinion polls, published last week, indicated that the Socialists would win between 193 and 217 seats in the lower house. That would give them their first majority in Spanish history and return them to power for the first time since Franco destroyed the short-lived republic in the 1936-39 civil war.

A Socialist victory would continue a leftward trend in the European countries along the Mediterranean. In addition to the French Socialist triumph last year, Andreas Papandreu and his Panhellenic Socialist Movement won control of Greece a year ago, and the Italian Socialists made their biggest gains in a decade in local elections last year.

Gonzalez, a charismatic lawyer from southern Spain with the boyish good looks of a film star, has turned the party away from Marxism and committed it to a program less radical than that on which Francois Mitterrand and the French Socialists won France last year.

With the unemployment rate running as high as 25 percent in the northern Basque country, Galicia and Gonzalez' native Andalusia, the central plank in the Socialist platform promises creation of 800,000 jobs over the next four years. But nationalization of industry is no longer advocated.

The Socialists have also modified their opposition to the American military bases in the country and Spain's application to join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. They say their government will review the agreement extending the American lease on base facilities, which the Cortes has not ratified, and will call a referendum to decide whether Spain should join NATO.

"Tintypes," set for Monday at Shryock Auditorium, focuses on America from 1850 to 1920.

'Tintypes' provides a taste of history

A time and image in American history, illuminated through its popular music, will come to Shryock Auditorium at 8 p.m. Monday through the musical "Tintypes."

The Broadway show, which was nominated for two Tony awards, comments on the changes the country enjoyed and endured from the end of the Civil War to the 1920s, much in the way that now-antique tintypes captured the subjects of yesterday.

While serenading the audience with 50 American songs like the "scandalous" "Ta-Ra-Ra-Room-De-Ay!" and "Pastime Rag," the cast members remark on the events which colored the decades of that era.

In that time, the transcontinental railroad was completed, reconstruction was implemented, the Whiskey Ring was unearthed, federal troops crushed the Pullman strike and William Jennings Bryant was defeated three times for the presidency.

Besides those happenings, such personages as Theodore Roosevelt and Emma Goldman are portrayed and prototypical characters of America's ethnic heritage are created.

Tickets for "Tintypes" are $11, $9.50 and $8.50 and are available from 11:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays at the Shryock Auditorium box office.

Computer concepts course set

Computer concepts in manufacturing engineering will be the subject of a three-day course to be offered by the Division of Continuing Education, Monday through Wednesday.

The course will describe the basic features of computers and their role in manufacturing. Computer capabilities to execute operations sheets with thousands of instructions, operate dozens of machines simultaneously and plan and schedule production will be described.

William Britcher, a computer science expert who has worked with computer applications for 20 years, will teach the course.

The sessions will be sponsored by Cunningham Enterprises Inc. of Anna.

USO votes to fund WIDB Radio

By William Jason Yong
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Organization passed a bill Wednesday which will allocate $1,055 to WIDB Radio after a lengthy and heated discussion.

Earlier at the meeting, the bill to fund WIDB was removed from the senate floor, but was reintroduced after arguments by the senators and further clarification by Karen Wolf, Senate Pro Tempore, on the rules and procedures of tabling a bill.

WIDB General Manager Jim Haggarty, who spoke at the senate meeting, said that the station is incurring about $6,000 in debt, mostly from phone bills. He inherited about $7,000 debt when he took over as general manager, he said.

"Our salary budget was reduced from $10,000 to $4,000 this year," Haggarty said. "The equipment in operation is in need of repair and replacement."

He said the WIDB staff members have to maintain and clean the office entirely by themselves.

"I don't know of any Recognized Student Organization that does its own cleaning job," he said. "We operate 24 hours a day, seven days a week. We are almost comparable to the Daily Egyptian in this nature and in providing services to students as a medium."

Marilyn Melvin, station employee and a proxy representative at the meeting, said that WIDB has many students who work for 30 hours or more per week, some without pay and some with minimal pay.

"The whole 150 student workers at WIDB get less money per year than Jerry and Fritz get," Melvin said. "WIDB gets $4,000 this year while Jerry and Fritz get $3,000 and $2,000 respectively."

She said that there are many students at WIDB who work for 30 hours or more per week, some without pay and some with minimal pay.

"I receive only $100 per semester for working 30 hours a week," she said.

In a joint memo to the senate, Perry Baird and Michael Olowu said that WIDB is using equipment that is obsolete, and lacks other required equipment necessary for quality productions.

"The lack of funds has prevented the station from acquiring the essential equipment and the required maintenance of the obsolete," the memo stated. "WIDB is a Recognized Student Organization that serves the student community and is a USO constitutionally classified organization that performs important functions necessary to undergraduate student life."

Olowu, who is USO finance commissioner, said that WIDB had requested $2,200, but that because of a tight budget, the commission could allocate only $1,055, including $750 for reel-to-reel, $105 for two headsets and $200 for emergency parts.

It was proposed that senate elections be held Nov. 17, but the date will be discussed by the Committee on Internal Affairs before final approval.

The senate also passed three other bills to fund the Student Theatre Guild, the Geology Club and the American Society of Interior Designers.

The Student Theatre Guild was allocated $329 for partial funding of its participation in the American College Theatre Festival to be held at Milwaukee, between Jan. 18 and 22 next year and for three plays titled "An Evening of New Plays" to be held Nov. 5 to 7.

A $72 fund was allocated for the American Society of Interior Designers for its trip to Columbus and New Harmony, Ind., for educational purposes on Nov. 5 and 6.

The senators unanimously passed a bill to impeach two of their colleagues for three consecutive absences in senate meetings. The senators impeached were Trudy Hale and Terrence Alan.

A provision of the USO constitution states that a senator may miss two senate meetings per semester without proxy representation, but upon the third absence without a proxy, the senator shall be subjected to impeachment for dereliction of duty.

Both senators were absent on meetings Sept. 15, Sept. 29, Oct. 13 and Oct. 20.

Cook announced the resignations of three senators: Rich Witt, Mary Walsh and Hal Gibson. They resigned because of personal reasons, Cook said.

Plant society to visit swamp

The Southern Illinois Native Plant Society will sponsor a lecture about the Bottonwood Swamp, and a field trip to the area.

Neal Needham, of Dongola, a conservationist attempting to save the swamp, will present a lecture and slide program at 7 p.m. Friday in Room 404 of Life Science II.

Needham will lead a field trip to the swamp, south of Vienna, which will begin at 8:30 a.m. Saturday at Unity Point School.

Buttonwood Swamp is one of the largest and most important cypress swamps left in the central United States, according to Robert Mohlenbrock, a professor of botany and a spokesman for the society.

Some of the oldest and largest trees east of the Mississippi River are found at the swamp. The area has 200 trees over four feet in diameter. Those include 143 tupelo gums, 50 cypresses, six swamp red maples and one overcup oak, Mohlenbrock said.

GIs abroad fight stress from isolation

By Susan J. Smith
Associated Press Writer

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (AP) - The bowling alley in Patrick Henry Village is in the heart of Germany, but it looks and sounds more like Tennessee or Texas - what with young Americans munching on hot dogs bought with U.S. dollars, leaning on a bar where a sign proclaims, "We Sell American Beer."

It is a U.S. Army village, complete with a theater, chapel, schools, stores and a restaurant; it is so well-equipped with the necessities and comforts of home that soldiers hardly need venture elsewhere.

Many soldiers don't - the U.S. Army has been in West Germany for nearly four decades, but in many ways it behaves like an uneasy newcomer, living in isolation from the country it is helping to protect.

"There are people in Patrick Henry Village who never leave. They have never been down to the Hauptstrasse (Heidelberg's main street)," said Molly Markwick, who formerly lived in the village with her husband, an Army sergeant.

"We have structured our organization in such a way that if you want to avoid ever speaking to a German, you can," says Maj. Robert J. Schneider, head of the Army's medical research team in Europe. "I'll bet the number of American families with German friends is under 20 percent, maybe under 10 percent."

Schneider says this isolation is a major cause of stress among GIs, and that to overcome it, the soldiers need to learn German.

Most GIs finish their tour of duty - 18 months to 3 years - without learning to say more than the few German phrases they need to get a beer, order a meal or find a public toilet.

So many soldiers say they feel uneasy off the American bases that are home to three-quarters of the U.S. soldiers and their families in Germany. They become what are referred to as "the barracks rats."

Soldiers may take tours or meet Germans through Army community offices, but Doris Scott, a public affairs officer at Mannheim, says she gets more Germans asking to meet Americans than the other way around.

"The Germans are calling all the time, two or three a week...The Americans are more afraid of doing it. Usually I would say if I have 10 Germans I have five Americans," she said.

"I just dread going downtown," said Jerry Abrams, a soldier from Fresno, Calif., who is stationed at Gieszen. "I can't talk to anybody."

"On the whole, most Americans don't like or aren't comfortable in Germany. Very few people I know like Germany," said Spec. 5 Bob Sanders of Chicago, who is stationed in Heidelberg. "I think that problem would be erased if everyone knew the language."

Money is a factor in the soldiers' isolation. In the 1960s, the U.S. dollar bought four German marks. It now buys 2.50 marks, a constraint on low-paid lower ranks when they think about going out for a German meal.

Texas may ban health books that mention venereal disease

AUSTIN, Texas AP — School administrators in Texas are considering ordering all references to venereal disease deleted from new textbooks, fearing the issue may be too delicate for some local districts.

"The bottom line issue is, when you're talking about sexually transmitted diseases, you're relating it to 'How do you get it?'" Tom Anderson, the deputy commissioner of the Texas Education Agency, said Wednesday.

Education Commissioner Raymond Bynum last week sent letters to publishers of five series of health textbooks that were up for adoption, advising them to "delete all references to venereal diseases and sexually transmitted diseases."

Bynum last year had Webster's dictionary removed from the agency's list of approved textbooks, saying it included seven words that the U.S. Supreme Court judged in 1973 to be unfit for broadcast.

Bynum said the VD issue was under study and no decision has been made. He said the State Board of Education meets Nov. 13 to adopt the new list of approved textbooks and he will ask then that the decision on health books be postponed until January.

According to state law, local school boards in Texas may purchase only those books that are on the state board's approved list. Once a book or a version of a book is approved, it can remain in use indefinitely. Should the ban be approved, the local districts would decide whether to keep using older, approved books with VD references.

"We've got 1,100 school districts, and what may be an attitude about the public schools delivering that kind of information to students in an urban district may be significantly different from the attitude in a suburban or rural district," said Anderson, who is in charge of curricula for the education agency.

The books in question are designed for grades 4 to 8. Texas is the second-largest public school textbook market in the nation and VD has been mentioned in two textbooks used in the state since 1974. Texas ranks second in the nation in per capita incidence of infectious syphilis and 12th in reported cases of gonorrhea, according to the state Health Department.

Normally, issues like this are first brought up before the agency's textbook committee, but the VD question was not raised when the committee met during the summer.

That prompted David Burton, president of the Texas Association of Textbook Publishers, to charge that Bynum's letter meant that he had "arbitrarily and unilaterally" changed policy.

In Fort Worth, state Sen. Betty Andujar said deleting VD references from schoolbooks would be "irresponsible."

"While Commissioner Bynum would require increased emphasis on the danger of rabies — a disease reported in humans twice in the last 10 years — he would omit any reference to venereal disease which will victimize about one of every four school children prior to their graduation," she said.

Effect of a-bomb on religion to be focus of class next spring

By Sherry Chisenhall
Student Writer

The dropping of the first atomic bomb affected many aspects of life in the United States, but an aspect perhaps overlooked is its effect on religious life.

Ann-Janine Morey-Gaines, assistant professor in the Department of Religious Studies, said the dropping of the bomb has led to many changes in the religious lives of Americans.

"People had to find a way to still be religious in a world come of age," she said. "The world has changed since we've nearly experienced the annihilation of an entire group of people."

Morey-Gaines said religion since the bomb will be the focus of a course she will teach spring semester. The course, called "Religion, Reform and Revolution," will deal with the "incredible diversity of religious responses" to the dropping of the bomb, she said.

"The first reaction of Americans was to retreat to the suburbs in the 1950s," she said. "There was a numbness in religion, perhaps exhaustion after the war."

"This was followed by the activism of the 1960s and the Death of God movement, with the results being both destructive and constructive," she went on.

Morey-Gaines said the activism gave rise to an era of narcissism, or religion of the self. She said a "Me generation" developed, where people were concerned with their own well-being.

Liberation theology was another response to the war, she said. "Liberation theology is the belief that Christ came to preach freedom for oppressed people," she said. "It is the belief that Jesus didn't come to uphold the status quo, he came to challenge it."

"The country also experienced a revival of fundamentalism," Morey-Gaines said. "Fundamentalism is a literal interpretation of the scriptures, a focus on the need for personal salvation through social activism."

"The SIU-C campus has seen some bad examples of fundamentalism in back-yard preachers," she went on. "They stand outside the Student Center and harangue people. Religion is not a matter of gathering a crowd and making noise. It's not flashy; it takes thought. I'm afraid perhaps serious ministries around campus are being overshadowed."

The course on religion since the atomic bomb will be a unique experience for students, Morey-Gaines said.

"The course will be different in that history has coherence and meaning to us when we look back at it, but what we will be studying is taking place now," she said.

"The students have their own chance to put things together and decide for themselves what things mean. What does it mean to have Jim Jones and the Moral Majority in the same era?"

Morey-Gaines said a highlight of the course will be a visit from the author of the class's textbook, "New Woman, New Earth," Professor Rosemary Ruether. She said Ruether has written many books on Western theological history, liberation theology and feminist theology.

Morey-Gaines said religious studies courses are a good way for students to approach religion intellectually.

"It is the only place in this area to talk about views in a systematic and academic manner," she said. "We're not trying to sell anything. We just want to educate people on the values they believe in. Religious studies courses are a practical way to do that."

Morey-Gaines said the purpose of the Department of Religious Studies is to give students the resources to learn.

"The idea is silly that students need to be religious to take a course in the department," she said. "They just need to believe. We're not here to teach one person's view of Christian philosophy. We're here to teach many ideas."

Nothing Else Feels Like Navy Flying.

The thunderous roar of jet engines rolls across the carrier's flight deck.

Throttles are at full power, and you're waiting for the signal to launch.

Now. The catapult fires. G forces press you back into your seat. Suddenly, you're flying low and fast over the open sea. Zero to 150 in 2.5 seconds.

Nothing else feels like Navy flying. Nothing. And when you become a pilot or flight officer you're at the very heart of it.

Once you've earned your wings, the Navy puts you in full control of a multi-million-dollar supersophisticated combination of jet aircraft and electronic wizardry.

And Navy training makes sure you're up to the challenge. Rigorous flight training gives you the navigation, aerodynamics and other technical know-how you need.

Leadership and professional schooling prepares you for the immediate decision-making authority and management responsibility you have as an officer in the Navy.

On the ground, as a Navy officer, you work with and supervise today's most highly skilled aviation professionals. In the air, as part of the naval aviation team, you have about the most exciting job anyone can have.

It's a uniquely rewarding job with pay to match. You start at $18,000 a year — more than the average corporation pays you just out of college. After four years, with regular Navy promotions and pay increases, your annual salary climbs to $30,400. That's over and above a full package of benefits and privileges.

Medical use of heroin rises in Britain

By Robert Glass
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — British doctors are increasingly using heroin as a painkiller for terminal cancer patients and others suffering from severe pain, despite a 35 percent increase in the number of registered drug addicts last year.

"In this country, heroin is a drug of very longstanding clinical value," said Jasper Woodcock, director of the Institute for the Study of Drug Dependence, a private non-profit research foundation. "There has never been this campaign to demonize heroin such as went on in the United States when addiction became such a problem."

In contrast to the United States, where both the medicinal and personal use of heroin is banned, British doctors have been able to prescribe the drug for most of this century.

Total legal consumption of heroin in Britain has grown from 92.4 pounds in 1970 to 235.4 pounds in 1980 according to the latest available statistics provided to the institute.

Heroin is most frequently given to terminal cancer patients, but it is also prescribed for those in severe pain after surgery, heart attacks, respiratory problems and even childbirth.

In addition, the country's 3,850 registered drug addicts can receive reducing doses of heroin in a cost-free rehabilitation treatment at National Health Service clinics, although most are given methadone, the synthetic narcotic.

According to Home Office statistics, the number of registered drug addicts in Britain rose 35 percent from 2,850 at the end of 1980 to 3,850 at the end of last year. The true number of addicts, however, is estimated at closer to 20,000, because most shy away from cash-short clinics where supplies of pure heroin are limited.

Woodcock said the evidence of British doctors prescribing heroin and morphine for the relief of pain is that patients rarely develop an addiction to those drugs.

"One of the signs of addiction is the development of tolerance, which means a necessity to keep increasing the dose. That is one of the signs that does not seem to occur for a patient receiving a strong analgesic (painkiller) for pain in cancer, for instance," Woodcock said. He likened the response of such patients to the way most people react to alcoholic drinks.

"Some people who want the effects of alcohol need to drink more and more and more, but most of us get the effect we want by drinking the same amount all the time."

He said that unlike street addicts, such patients do not require increasing doses or suffer withdrawal symptoms. Doses are carefully controlled and experience has proven that when the cause of pain subsides, the need for a painkiller disappears.

At Michael Sobell House, a London hospice providing care mainly for victims of terminal cancer, 90 percent of the patients receive heroin at some stage in their treatment. ac-ording to Dr. Robert J. Dickson, consultant radiotherapist. The 25-bed facility treats about 250 new patients a year.

Dickson said the degree of pain is the "main indication" of whether heroin should be used, although it is sometimes given to relieve deep depression.

Some patients receive heroin for as long as two to three years, Dickson said, while others do not require it until the final weeks of their lives.

Dickson said patients usually have no idea they are receiving heroin and are grateful for respite from excruciating pain.

"There is no attempt to deceive them; they just don't ask," he said.

The effectiveness of heroin as a pain reliever is unquestioned, but doctors on both sides of the Atlantic debate whether it is better than numerous available substitutes, especially morphine.

Heroin, a white, bitter powder known medically as diacetylmorphine or diacetylmorphine, is derived from morphine. Heroin and morphine produce similar results — immediate relief from pain and a feeling of peacefulness, with few side effects. They are considered equally addictive.

The main advantage of heroin, Dickson said, is its solubility. It takes about 10 times as much morphine as heroin to prepare a syringe solution of equal potency, he said.

Heroin is the addicts' choice because of its greater potency and availability. Its clinical use is banned in the United States and most other countries because of concerns over storage, theft and diversion to illicit sources.

Groups lobbying for the legalization of medicinal heroin in the United States claim the ban deprives terminal cancer patients of the one thing doctors can give them: relief from pain.

But research carried out recently on 166 patients at New York's Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center concluded: "Heroin has no apparent unique advantages or disadvantages (over morphine) for the relief of pain in patients with cancer."

Pipeline gas rate increase blocked

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Two federal agencies took an unprecedented action Thursday and blocked a Midwestern natural gas pipeline from getting into effect higher rates from the purchase of expensive liquefied gas from Algeria.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and the Energy Department acted together to suspend the rate increases, which were to take effect on Monday.

"This is good news for consumers immediately, and it also could prove to be good news in the long run," said Illinois Commerce Commission Chairman Michael V. Hasten. Hasten said he would ask the commission later Thursday to also block six Illinois utilities from charging customers, beginning Monday, for the higher gas rates the utilities thought they were going to have to pay to the pipeline supplier.

Critics have charged the rate increases, sought by subsidiaries of Houston-based Panhandle Eastern Corp., would have raised bills by as much as 20 percent for some central Illinois residential customers, and by 16 percent for customers in four other Midwestern states.

The two federal agencies, which have jurisdiction in the case, issued a joint order denying the rate increase until hearings are held.

It was the first time the two agencies had acted together on a natural gas case and one of the rare times the commission has ever blocked a rate hike from going into effect.

Normally, such rate increases are allowed to take effect subject to refund if they are later proved unjustified.

The order set a deadline of Dec. 14 for completion of hearings and Dec. 24 for both sides to submit final arguments.

Under Panhandle's request, its rates were to have gone up on Nov. 1 by 78 cents per thousand cubic feet on its Trunkline pipeline and 28 cents on its Panhandle pipeline to pay for the Algerian gas. Those costs would have been passed on to customers of the 130 local gas distribution companies served by the pipelines.

Eighty percent of the two pipelines' sales are in the states of Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and central Missouri.

The Energy Department's Economic Regulatory Administration held two days of hearings on the gas hikes earlier this month in Illinois, in Peoria and Springfield.

Critics have complained that Panhandle cannot justify paying $7.13 per thousand cubic feet for liquefied natural gas from Algeria when the average domestic price is currently $2.30 and many wells are shut down because of oversupply.

In the past few weeks, Panhandle received its first two shipments of liquefied natural gas at its $567 million reprocessing plant in Lake Charles, La. The two shipments would heat 19,000 homes for a year.

In the order, the two agencies said they would review 19 different issues, including whether the 1977 import license can or should be revoked, cost overruns for tanker and conditioning plant construction and the general consumer impact of the increase.

Gays can be Christians too, is theme of Awareness panel

By Cynthia Rector and Juliana Anastasoff Staff Writers

There doesn't have to be a conflict between being a homosexual and a Christian.

That was the theme proposed by representatives of the St. Louis chapter of Dignity, during a panel discussion Wednesday, sponsored by the Gay and Lesbian Peoples Union as part of Gay Awareness Week.

The session, "Being Gay and Christian," was attended by about 50 people.

Dignity is an international organization of Catholic gays, and other concerned people who believe that gay people can express their sexuality in a manner consonant with Christ's teachings.

"I wish we were at a point in our social history where we could simply take scriptures and apply them to our lives, where we were able to look at just being Christian rather than define our spirituality according to our sexual preference," said Hank Krussel.

Krussel said that there are many ways to interpret scripture. "It is a matter of the questions and mindsets you have when you go into it - no one can jump out of their skin, so to speak," he said.

The word of God is pre-eminently Jesus Christ, Krussel said, and Jesus himself never addressed the issue of homosexuality. Krussel also pointed out that the word "homosexual" is a Latin word, which does not translate into Hebrew, Greek or Arabic, the languages in which the scriptures were originally written.

Krussel said that often scripture verses are taken out of historical, social and linguistic context to condemn and oppress homosexuals, as well as other groups of people. He addressed several such scriptures, dispelling them on the grounds of scholarly evidence, and putting them in a cultural context.

He drew a parallel between this particular "oppressive misuse" of scripture and the way it has been used to condone slavery in the United States, genocide in Nazi Germany and a second-class citizenship of women.

He cited these as examples of how humans conveniently interpret scripture in ways which validate current societal norms and rid them of their own paranoia.

"What it comes down to is whether the gospel message means as much for gays and lesbians as the people they are as it does for heterosexuals?" said Larry Sather. Did Jesus die for those who are homosexual

Lions Club plans pancake days, Saturday, Sunday

The Carbondale Lions Club will hold their Annual Pancake Day from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, at Turley Park in Carbondale.

People will receive sausage, milk, coffee and, of course, all the pancakes they can eat - after paying $2.50 for adults, $1.25 for children under 18.

The majority of the proceeds will go to benefit the visually handicapped and impaired.

as well as for those who aren't, he asked.

Sather's presentation was disrupted midway by a former lesbian who said she repented her lesbian lifestyle to embrace what she sees as a "righteous" Christian lifestyle. Sather said he was happy that she had resolved her confusion about her sexual orientation, but that not every gay person is confused about their sexuality.

He said, that many gays find their sexuality confirmed within the Christian experience.

The argument of many of the disruptive audience members was whether homosexuals needed to repent from their sexual orientation in order to accept Christ. Sather said this viewpoint is only valid for those who see homosexuality as a conscious decision to sin, rather than an innate human orientation. "I never woke up in the morning and decided to be gay," he said.

Sather said that spirituality, in general, is a human experience to find one's center or organizing set of values. Christian spirituality is when an adult person finds this centering, this meaning of life, in the person of Christ or the Christ event.

He said that this spirituality is not an abstract, but rather a lived faith. "I would dare anyone to say my sense of being gay conflicts with my sense of being Christian. The only thing that separates me from anyone else is my sexual orientation, which can mean just as much about love for me as it does for anyone who is heterosexual."

School funding, ICC issues in district races

Mike Nelson
Staff Writer

Changes in education funding and the Illinois Commerce Commission are among issues at separate the candidates in the 118th District state representative race.

Four-term incumbent Rep. Robert Winchester, Republican-Rosiclare, faces Democrat Ralph Colbert, of quality, in the election Tuesday.

In the 115th District, Rep. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, is facing a relative newcomer to the state political scene, James Mathis, Democrat, the mayor of Sparta.

In the 117th District, Rep. Jim Rea, D-Christopher, is being challenged by another city official, Robert "Dog" Connell, Marion water commissioner. The new 118th District is composed of Saline and Gallatin counties. The 115th takes in Randolph, Perry, Monroe and Washington counties, and the 117th has Williamson and Franklin counties.

Although he lacks Winchester's eight years of experience in the Legislature, Colbert is no stranger to Illinois politics. He has been Gallatin county clerk for 24 years.

Both candidates agree that property taxation is an unfair means of funding higher education. Winchester favors a substantial reduction in property tax rates to help remove some of the burden on property owners.

He favors a "one or two percent increase in the state income tax" to make up for education revenue lost by reducing property taxes.

Colbert said that if elected, he will focus on getting 100 percent funding for state-mandated educational programs. Mandated programs now receive about 80 to 90 percent funding.

Colbert said. Colbert favors an elected Illinois Commerce Commission. Winchester is satisfied with the present system of an appointed ICC but says he is open to evidence that an elected commission would better serve the public.

Dunn, 68, counts among his major legislative accomplishments the passage of the 21-year drinking age law and a bill giving job preference in state institutions to Illinois residents.

Dunn, who owns Dunn Apartments in Carbondale, usually supports business interests in the Legislature but also has labor backing for his support of coal miners in his district. He is chairman of the Illinois Energy Resources Commission.

Election 82

Mathis, 47, mayor of Sparta since 1979, says his abilities as an organizer of diverse community interests will aid him as a legislator. He describes himself as a "person who brings things together."

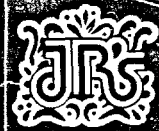

Rea, formerly on the SIUC staff in the Department of Community Development, has been in the Legislature since 1978. He's prominent in coal issues. He supports a coal severance tax and was sponsor of a bill that gives counties payments in lieu of taxes from federally-held coal property.

Connell, a Central Illinois Public Service Co. lineman for 35 years, presents himself as a "workingman's candidate." As a Marion commissioner he supervises purchasing of city supplies and is credited with developing a money-saving unified system and maintaining low water rates.

THE FIRST Lite BEER BOWLING TOURNAMENT

THE LITE BEER ALL-STARS STRIKE AGAIN.

When famous bowler Don Carter invited 23 Kingpins to the First Lite Beer Bowling Tournament, it seemed like a great idea.

It was the guys who drink Lite Beer from Miller, because it tastes great against the guys who drink it because it's less filling. And once again, the All-Stars proved they're in a league by themselves.

After a lot of pins (and quite a few Lite Beers) went down and the smoke finally cleared, the score was

All he needed to win was one pin. A klutz situation, Rodney in top form, got the same amount of pins as he gets respect. None.

Teammate Ben Davidson fell. Rodney deserved a break, or at least a fracture. Billy Martin didn't argue with that. Jim Hornechuck couldn't believe his eyes. Neither could Marvin Thronberry.

So the First Lite Beer Bowling Tournament ended in a draw. And the argument over the best thing about Lite was left unsettled.

But there was one thing everyone agreed on. It was truly every-thing you always wanted in a bowling tournament. And less.

Rolls-Royce sales slow, even rich feel the pinch

LONDON (AP) — Is $111,000 too much to spend for the least expensive Rolls-Royce, the ultimate status symbol on the road? The answer appears to be yes.

The world recession has hit the luxury carmaker, forcing layoffs in Britain and a search for new VIP buyers overseas.

The carmaker to kings, sheiks, millionaires and movie stars had been hoping to boost production by 5 to 7 percent this year. But sagging sales in Rolls-Royce's two major markets — Britain and the United States — has forced a cutback.

Rolls-Royce announced Thursday that it is laying off 750 of its 4,500 workers at its main factory in Crewe, in northwest England, which has been on a three-day work week since mid-September.

The company said it had 1,000 unsold cars worldwide.

"Business is a bit difficult, but we're not at all downhearted because after all we sell the best product in the world," said Malcolm Sargeant, an executive with Jack Barclay Ltd. of London's Berkeley Square, the biggest Rolls-Royce dealer in Britain.

The company sells over 60 percent of its cars overseas and said that to revive its fortunes, it has shaken up top management to put "even more emphasis on export marketing."

Reg. Abbiss, spokesman for Rolls-Royce in the United States, said although sales in America were down about 20-25 percent since January, they had picked up since interest rates dropped recently.

He projected 1982 sales in the United States "upwards of 1,000," compared to 1,158 in 1981, and said 147 Corniche convertibles had been sold so far this year, compared to 103 in 1981.

The Corniche, the top of the line, sells for $162,500, and the Silver Spirit, the lowest-priced Rolls, goes for $111,000 in the United States, said Abbiss, whose office is in Lyndhurst, N.J.

Rolls-Royce is currently celebrating the 75th anniversary of the Silver Ghost run between Glasgow and London, the feat that first earned the accolade. "The best car in the world."

New scholarship endorsed

An advisory committee to the SIU-C Department of Agricultural Education and Mechanization has endorsed creation of a $1,000 scholarship to SIU-C.

The committee has also recommended a seminar series to help Illinois agricultural teachers cope with what is commonly known as teacher burnout.

The committee met recently at the SIU-C School of Agriculture. Its 14 members are from Illinois community college, high school and adult education programs.

The $1,000 scholarship is planned as a four-year program of financial assistance to students who major in agricultural education at SIU-C, according to James Legacy, head of the department, which is Illinois' largest collegiate agricultural education program.

The teacher burnout seminars will feature presentations by SIU-C faculty members to help Illinois agriculture teachers add new information to their curricula and to spice up teaching methods.

GRID from Page 24

Mudra thanks SIU-C for the discovery of Staples' talents. Last time these two squads met, Staples was a freshman turning kickoffs. He took an SIU-C kick, and ran it back 90 yards for a touchdown. "It was that run that brought Staples to my attention," said Mudra. "We let him start the next week because of the run, and he gained over 100 yards at game. He's been in there ever since."

Staples is also an ex-high school teammate of the Salukis' Evanville Butler. The two could get reacquainted on the field Saturday, as Butler leads the Salukis with 133 tackles, and Staples is the Panthers' leading ball carrier. Butler has captured the Missouri Valley Conference Defensive Player award the last two weeks.

"Even though the Panthers' pass rush is fierce and Johnson has had a few "off" games, Dempsey said the passing game will come around for the Salukis.

"I think Rick has lost a little confidence," he said. "He's been a little injured, too (right shoulder). He will improve. He's got a good attitude and wants to do well.

"We're only a fair running team, I admit that," Dempsey continued. "Therefore, our success depends on our passing game."

And, if Dempsey has called the shots right, a field goal.

Scrimmage gives look at future

In its second preseason scrimmage, the SIU-C cagers showed plenty of hope for the future.

Three players who are ineligible to play this season because of NCAA transfer rules turned in fine performances. Mike Thomas, Kenny Perry and Cleveland Bibbens all showed why SIU-C is willing to keep them around before they become eligible next season.

Thomas contributed 20 points for the winning squad as the Maroon team defeated the White 76-75. Darnall Jones led all scorers with 21 points for the Maroons.

Perry had 13 points and six rebounds for the Maroons, and Bibbens scored 14 and had seven rebounds for the White team.

The Salukis held their second scrimmage at Century High School Wednesday night and plan two more before the season opener Nov. 26.

run on Wednesday, the sophomore twisted his ankle when he jumped into a ditch to avoid being hit by a car.

"We hope he's okay," Cornell said. "Little things like that scare the pants off you. You can't get overconfident."

Cornell said that the individuals who pose the greatest threat to a top Saluki finisher are George Collier of Wichita State and Waid Johnson of Drake. At last year's championship, Collier finished second while Johnson finished eighth. SIU-C's top finisher was Keane who finished fifth.

SIU-C has never had a runner finish first in any of the seven previous MVC championship meets they've run.

But with no competition posing a real threat, SIU-C runners are out to change that.

rivalry, according to Illner, is the fact that several of the Salukis from the East Coast are former teammates and high school opponents of some of the Westervinds.

Five seniors, Cindy Clausen, Cindy Davis, Barb Donahue and co-captains Ellen Massey and Barb Smith, will be playing in their last regular season game for the Salukis, though it won't be their last home appearance. SIU-C will host the Gateway Collegiate Conference Championship the next weekend. The Salukis' opponents this weekend are also in the conference

Lady Harriers get conference preview

By Dean Kirk
Staff Writer

Although SIU-C women's cross country coach Claudia Blackman admitted that her harriers may not come out on top at this weekend's meet in Charleston, she did say that the Salukis are going to make a difference in the total outcome of the race.

The Saluki coach believes that SIU-C will be able to break up the pack of Illinois State runners and will give other schools a better chance to defeat the Redbirds, who Blackman has "given the nod" to.

The course is relatively flat with only one moderate hill and a few sharp turns. John McLaughlin, Eastern's women's sports information director, said it is open, allowing the the runners to see the rest of the field. The runners may then stack up and run as a pack.

Blackman believes that SIU-C has improved more as a team than the other schools at the meet.

The Salukis will be competing with Bradley, Illinois, Western Illinois, Illinois at Chicago, Illinois State, Eastern Illinois, Chicago State and Loyola. McLaughlin said Eastern will finish third or fourth.

Blackman was hard pressed to say where the Salukis will finish this weekend, mentioning that the only team SIU-C has beaten consistently is Bradley. She also noted that Illinois "beat us rather soundly at our first meet" and considered Western a threat.

Blackman expects senior Rosa Mitchell and freshman Lisa Reimund to have times under 19 minutes for the 5,000-meter course.

Blackman predicted that Illinois State's Wendy Van Mierlo will capture first place followed by teammate Sarah Schumacher and Illinois' Marianne Dickerson.

The weekend meet will also give the Salukis a chance to see how they might perform at the Gateway Conference meet next week.

"It's a tune up for our conference meet," Blackman said. "Half of the conference schools will be from Illinois, which will give us a good idea where we'll be the following weekend."

What's Really True About Senator Ken Buzbee?

- Fact: He has been chief Senate sponsor (or chief co-sponsor) of every pay raise received by SIU employees for 10 years. Three times he got higher raises for SIU employees than the Governor recommended.
- Fact: He was chief Senate sponsor of the SIU Law School bill.
- Fact: He was chief Senate sponsor of the legislation which renovated the women's gym.
- Fact: On two occasions he has been chief Senate sponsor of legislation which would make much needed improvements in the Food Production and Research Program at the School of Agriculture.
- Fact: He voted again at the elimination of the Veteran's Scholarship Program and will introduce legislation to restore it.

Senator Ken Buzbee has been fighting and winning for Southern Illinois. Let's make sure he returns to Springfield.

Wrestling gets thumbs down

By Brian Higgins

Wednesday night's wrestling championship at the Recreation Center just may have been SIU-C's last, as a mere 17 competitors showed up to try to grab a title.

Owen Deruz eased into the title spot in the 119-126-pound weight class unopposed. Ruth Nelson, as the only female competitor, claimed the championship in the same weight class for the women.

Senior Charles Steinbrecher needed only six seconds to dispose of freshman Rich Seuzko in the lone match in the 135-142-pound class.

Chris Lahciv also scored an easy win in the 143-150-pound weight class's only match. Lahciv needed a mere two seconds to pin Mike Hertz. Stephan Egan was the only entrant in the 159-167-pound division.

In the first round of the 168-177-pound class, Joe Lachiana nailed Dan Darflinger in eight seconds. Ed Kowalski then overpowered Kent Probst in four seconds. That set up the final, where Lachiana's experience in two Midwest Regional competitions paid off, notching him a four-second victory and a class championship.

"The technique to winning," Lachiana said, "is first getting his arm extended and pulling him across to you. Then it's your body against his arm. If he was able to get my arm extended, he would've won."

Steve Albert claimed his first wrestling title at SIU-C by pinning John Miller in six seconds in the 178-190-pound class.

In the heavyweight division, Dave Featherston and Greg Ferkis wrestled two matches, using each arm to accompany the opposite-handed competitors. Ferkis captured the left-handed match in 13 seconds. Featherston rebounded, however, and pinned his opponent from the right side in 10 seconds, clinching a three second-differential victory.

Tournament coordinator Joyce Craven, Director of Intramurals, expressed her disappointment at the low turnout.

"In the last two years there's been quite a decrease. That's one thing we'll have to consider in setting it up next year," she said. "We'll reexamine it. Maybe we're due for a rest on it."

Salukis take aim at No. 7 Eastern

By Jackie Rodgers
Sports Editor

A few years ago, Eastern Illinois had a relatively obscure Division II football program. The Panthers were a good team, for a Division II school. In those days, Eastern would occasionally schedule matchups with Division I opponents. That would be the game they would shoot for all season, and more often than not, the Panthers would set the big Division I coaches' hearts aflutter by scoring an upset victory, or making the score closer than their foes would have liked it to be.

Saluki Coach Rey Dempsey knows all about those nail-biters. In his first season as head coach, Eastern pointed its season to the SIU-C match-up, and upset a Saluki team that finished the season 8-3.

Two years ago the Panthers almost pulled off another upset, but the Salukis were able to hang on for a 37-35 victory.

This season the Panthers are anything but underdogs. Eastern is anything but obscure. They are a team of national prominence, sporting an undefeated 7-0-1 record and a No. 7 ranking in Division I-AA.

But some things never change. According to Panther Coach Darrell Mudra, the SIU-C game Saturday in Charleston is the game his team has been keying on all season. Dempsey predicts a field goal will be the deciding factor in the contest — a Saluki field goal.

"We can win. We're going to have to play heads-up football the whole game," said the Saluki coach. "I really don't believe that they have that psychological edge they used to have in the past — wanting to beat SIU-C because it was a Division I school."

Eastern has all the qualities a good football team should have — a balanced offensive attack combined with good defense.

According to the I-AA stats, the Panthers rank No. 7 in scoring defense and No. 8 in rushing defense. Mudra admits his Panthers have a harder time trying to stop the pass, which is the Salukis' meal ticket.

"Their passing game could pose a problem for us," Mudra said. "Rick Johnson is such a good quarterback, and their receivers are having a fine year, so it's hard to stop the passing game. We're going to have to apply a strong pass rush."

The pass rush has paid off for Eastern this season, as it leads the I-AA in quarterback sacks. That could mean that Johnson, who has spent a lot of time on the ground in recent games, is going to have get rid of his passes quickly.

"They have a defense that is as aggressive as any we've seen this year," said Dempsey. "They are very aggressive and keep going after you. They create errors and fumbles, and then capitalize on it."

Errors and tumbles have plagued the Salukis all season long. SIU-C has 19 fumbles, but Dempsey points out that 13 of them came in a two game span. He admits, though, that SIU-C can ill afford to cough up the ball against Eastern, which, according to Dempsey, has the best passer the Salukis will see this season, Jeff Christensen.

Christensen has re-written the Panther record books for most passes attempted, completed and touchdown tosses, even though Mudra insists the quarterback has gotten off to a slow start.

"He's got a quick release, is well coached, and knows what to do," Dempsey said.

Christensen's favorite target this season has been running back Kevin Staples. Staples also leads the team in rushing, averaging 98 yards per game for 783 total yards on the season.

Granville Butler (50) and John Harper (87) dump Saturday's game. The two will have to team up for Indiana State quarterback Jeff Miller during last a tough pass rush against Eastern this weekend.

Spikers ready for tough battle

By Jackie Rodgers
Sports Editor

If rivalries bring out the best in athletic competition, then there should be some great games in Davies Gym Saturday.

That is where the SIU-C volleyball team will be playing Illinois State in a 2 p.m. match that may determine who will get the No. 1 seed in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference tournament in November.

There is no love lost between the Salukis and the Redbirds, but there have been some memorable matches. Last year, the two schools split their four meetings, the last being a grueling two-hour, five-game ISU victory at the Illinois Collegiate Classic.

The 18-10 Salukis retained a spot in the Top 20, coming in at 20. That may be something the Redbirds will look at with interest, for it was an SIU-C victory that knocked them out of the Top 20 last season.

"It's an intense rivalry, no doubt about it," Coach Debbie Hunter said. "In the past, the two teams have had, uh, certain feelings against each other on the court. This match may have a little extra emotional aura surrounding it, although it shouldn't. It will be an extra-competitive match."

The bad blood boils over from the days when schools had to beat other in-state schools to earn a post-season berth. Also, Hunter said, both SIU-C and ISU usually key their recruiting on the same in-state players.

The Redbirds come into this weekend's match with a 19-13 record. They have changed their style of play a bit, said Hunter. Instead of a dominating tall team, ISU has been forced to turn to much the same style the Salukis employ. Although they will still have a bit of a height advantage over the Salukis, it will not be as decided as in the past.

"They used to play a real power game," said Hunter. "Since they don't have the personnel to be physical, they play intelligent volleyball instead. Their setter is a really smart player."

That setter, Sue Bockman, runs the offense very well, according to Hunter. She is able to turn a bad pass into a good offensive play, and is quite effective in the attack herself, Hunter said.

"She is really very good at the setter's attack — dumping the ball over the net on the second hit. We have the defense to counter that move, but if she catches us sitting back, she will dump it over for a point."

The match will have a special meaning for three SIU-C starters, Bonnie Norrenberns, Barb Clark and Sonya Locke, who will be playing in their last home game. Hunter suspects that may result in some extra emotions for the three, and that they may put some extra pressures on themselves to perform well.

"It will be my job to not let this match get out of context," Hunter said. "They can enjoy the little ceremony before the match, but once it is time, I want to see some dead serious volleyball."

As it appears now, SIU-C and ISU should be the two teams playing for the GCAC championship. The winner of that match will receive a bid for the NCAA tournament.

Hunter said a lot of things can occur between now and then, pointing out that injuries can always find a way to wreak havoc on a team's hopes. But she said that the match this weekend could definitely be a foretasting of a Nov. 20 showdown.

Fielders host old rivals in finale

After a busy October filled with tough road trips and multi-game weekends, the field hockey team comes home to finish its regular season against Western Illinois 1 p.m. Saturday at Wham Field.

The Salukis lead the series 11-8-1, but the Westerwinds have won the last five. SIU-C should stop that streak this weekend, according to Coach Julee Ilner.

"I think they've been up and down this season," Ilner said of the 8-4-1 Westerwinds. "They beat Southwest Missouri, so they've had some moments when they've been strong. We'll have to play a good game. We can't take them for granted." Western Illinois is not as strong as in recent years, according to Westerwind Coach Nancy Veroni, who gives an advantage to the Salukis.

"We have a good group of seniors and two very fine goalkeepers, but we also have some inexperienced players," Veroni said of her team. She also described their season as "up and down."

Diane Freidmann leads the Westerwinds with 12 goals in 15 games. Beth Peticof is second with 11.

Though the Westerwinds have had the edge in recent games, Veroni doesn't believe it will have an effect on this weekend's game.

"The past is past," she said. "The edge doesn't come from the past, it comes from the play this season. The trick will be for us to control the momentum."

The Salukis, looking to break the streak, have been looking at the past for some incentive.

"Most of the games have been close ones," Ilner said. "Some they controlled, but others could have gone either way."

"In the last few years, a very intense rivalry has built up," she continued, "and it's not a friendly one."

The rivalry has been especially strong since 1979, when the Salukis, who finished 21-9-1 that season, lost to Western in the State Championship playoff. They came back to beat them in regional play, but have dropped the five since.

Halloween is full of many traditions, of course, but the SIU-C men's cross country team has pulled a few tricks at this time of the year, too.

One of them has been winning the Missouri Valley Conference title the past two years. Another is just plain winning. With a 5-0 dual meet record and a first place at this year's Illinois Intercollegiate Championships, the Salukis are heading into this weekend's MVC championship at Midland Hills on an optimistic note.

"We're the definite favorites," said Coach Bill Cornell.

So much the favorites, in fact, that Cornell can think of only one other team that might give the Salukis a run for their money, Illinois State.

ISU's Coach John Coughlan considers Cornell's assessment to pretty accurate. But he wasn't about to count the Redbirds out of the race.

"Illinois State is a team that could upset them," Coughlan said. He also said that unlike many teams, the Redbirds like to run at Midlands. The ISU coach considers Jeff Hill, Mike Kirk, Bob Diuzen, and Jim Knudsen to be his top four runners. "Those are the people that have the best opportunity to crash that top-10," he said. Kirk, Coughlan said, has been sick with the flu but is starting to come around. The Redbird's top runner also finished fourth out of a field of 140 at this year's Notre Dame Invitational. Coughlan also said that Hill has always run well at Midlands. He finished 18th at Notre Dame.

At 1981's MVC championships, Hill finished 11th while Kirk finished 26th.

The Redbirds come into the meet with a 2-1 dual record and third place finishes at the Illinois Intercollegiate and the Notre Dame Invitational.

This year, the Salukis defeated Illinois State 20-35 at Normal. At 1981's MVC Championships, Coughlan's squad finished third behind SIU-C and Wichita State.

Cornell's top five include senior Tom Ross. SIU-C's top finisher at the intercollegiate meet, and juniors Tom Brees and Mike Keane. Keane, SIU-C's ironman, has finished first in dual meets with Illinois State and Murray State, and at a double dual with Bradley and Illinois. Senior Mike Gonzalez and freshmen David Behm and Kevin Sturman will also be running for the Salukis. Against Kansas, Sturman managed his best finish of the season when he was the first Saluki to cross the line for a second place finish overall.

SIU-C's Gary Munson may not compete. During the Salukis
