ISSC awards slashed 10 percent

By Randy Roguski
Staff Writer

THIS SEMESTER'S STATE scholarships for 3,800 SIUC students will be cut by 10 percent because the Illinois State Scholarship Commission is short of money, Joe Camille, director of student work and financial assistance, said Wednesday.

Those students will owe the University 10 percent of the amount they were awarded by the commission, Camille said.

The ISSC voted the cutbacks Monday after determining that fewer students than anticipated dropped out of school this semester.

The cuts will be made on spring semester and third quarter awards only. They will affect 80,000 students statewide and will save the commission $2.7 million.

CONNIE LINSELY, DIRECTOR of the ISSC's grant program, said the commission was "terribly unhappy" about its decision, but said, "If we have a shortfall, we have a shortfall. What else can we do?"

The ISSC bases its state budget request on the number of applications it expects to receive and on how many award recipients it expects to leave school after fall semester.

Linsely blamed reduced attrition rates on unemployment, which she said is encouraging students to stay in college.

The ISSC notifies universities of the amount it has awarded at their campuses, and universities credit it to students in expectation of repayment from the commission.

Because the commission will now pay the University $172,000 less than was awarded, SIUC must bill students.

Camille said

Camille said students' charges probably will appear on the bursar's May bills, provided administrators can program the office's computers in time.

CAMILLE SAID THE majority of SIUC's award recipients received full ISSC grants this semester. They will owe the University $46.81, he said.

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said that the charges will force students to leave school with outstanding bills. But he said that despite the bills, students will not receive incompletes for this semester's classwork.

Swinburne said he's not sure what payment arrangements will be made for graduating students but said that their debts will not affect their graduation plans.

"We don't want to foul that up."

Swinburne said "We don't keep students from graduating here."

BEFORE THE ISSC voted the cuts, it considered a $40 across-the-board cut for all students in the state. That plan was discarded, however, after commissioners decided that the 10-percent cut would be more equitable to public school students.

A plan to seek supplemental funding from the General Assembly also was discarded because commissioners doubted legislators would pass it. A bill to supplement the commission's $85 million budget was defeated in January.

"There were problems with all the options," Linsely said. "This was not an easy thing to do."

Linsely said the ISSC plans to send letters to students notifying them of the cutbacks.

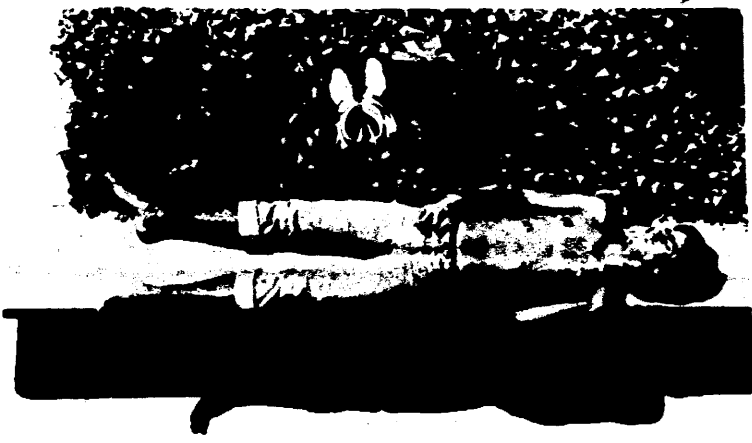

Gus says if state scholarship students wanted to give a dirty name to it, they could say they're being asked for a kick back.

House Democrats 'scrambling' over looming budget showdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders scrambled Wednesday to hold the party's ranks for a looming budget showdown, but rebellious conservatives stressed their determination to join the Republican minority to pass President Reagan's package.

One congressman said as many as 35 of the 44 members of the Conservative Democratic Forum probably will support the president's proposal over an alternative budget plan still being pieced together by the Democratic leadership.

In addition, Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, predicted that six to 10 Democrats who are not members of the forum also will go along with Reagan, who addressed Congress Tuesday night in a nationally televised appeal for enactment of his program.

If correct, Stenholm's count coupled with Republican claims that they will suffer only two or three defections would give Reagan a stunning victory in the Democratic-controlled House next week.

The Senate Budget Committee approved a plan drawn to White House specifications Tuesday and a final vote in the GOP-dominated Senate is expected within two weeks. At issue is a budget outline that would set guidelines for Congress to follow later in the year on spending and taxes. The precise shape of spending cuts and tax reductions themselves will not be worked out for weeks or months.

Opponents of the president's plan in the House, including Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., conceded that Reagan had helped his cause with the speech, his first since surviving an assassination attempt March 30.

Gephardt and other Democrats on the Budget Committee met privately to decide precisely which alternative plan to take to the floor for a vote.

Committee members said the panel already had decided to support an increase in defense spending to the figure the administration wants.

But conservative Rep. G.V. (Sonny) Montgomery, D-Miss., said, "It's really too late now for new plans."

In an assessment similar to Stenholm's, Montgomery estimated that between 25 and 30 of the 44 members of the Conservative Democratic Forum would be joining the Republicans. "Mine is a very conservative figure," he added.

Democrats hold 242 seats in the House, compared with 190 for the Republicans — a majority of 52. That means a net switch of 27 Democrats would enable the president to prevail if all the Republicans stand fast.

Educator uses 'probing' to reach, teach students

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

Students generally equate the educational process with book learning, memorization and seemingly endless hours of study. However, at least one educator prefers to utilize the processes of communication and interaction as his basic teaching tools.

Alfred Fleishman, founder of the Fleishman-Hillard public relations firm in St. Louis, recently helped 35 troubled students obtain an education outside of the conventional classroom. And he did it through the art of conversation and "probing" his students' minds.

Fleishman spoke to a group of journalism and public relations students Tuesday about the study of semantics and the public relations field as part of Journalism Week. He has written a newly published book about his educational experiences titled "Dialogue With Street Fighters."

As one of five teachers participating in a government-funded program called the "Street Academy," Fleishman gave individual instruction to drop-outs or young people who were kicked out of school in order to help them obtain a General Education Development certificate, the equivalent of a high school diploma. Students and teachers met in an empty warehouse in downtown St. Louis for most of 1979.

Fleishman said these students, some of whom were on parole, had already failed at the traditional schoolroom concept of education. Hence, he preferred to approach the students with a general topic and let them do most of the talking while he asked them questions in the same manner a psychologist "probes" the mind of a patient. He said he got the students "thinking about what they had said."

For example, on Martin Luther King's birthday, Fleishman asked a student why the day was celebrated as a holiday. The student responded with general answers such as King was a historical figure or a famous person. From there, through questioning and probing, Fleishman helped the student realize what King's accomplishments were, why they were important and what influence they have had on the world.

The student did most of the talking while Fleishman only directed him toward a better education through simple conversation and discussion of facts and events. Other topics which Fleishman covered with his "Street Academy" students included drugs, current events, violence and murder.

Fleishman said he had to "pick up on everything, don't let anything get by without asking a question." Much of his teaching process simply involves working with human nature to break down conversational barriers, he explained.

English murder suspect admits to crimes of Yorkshire Ripper

LONDON (AP) — Truck driver Peter Sutcliffe admitted Wednesday he is the Yorkshire Ripper, killer of 13 women and namesake of one of history's most notorious murderers. But he pleaded innocent at London's historic Old Bailey Criminal Court to murder charges, saying he was not responsible for his actions.

Sutcliffe said he was guilty of manslaughter, "pleading grounds of 'diminished responsibility' or lack of mental competence. The judge expressed 'grave anxieties' about Sutcliffe's plea and ordered a jury trial to decide whether Sutcliffe committed manslaughter or murder.

Sutcliffe is to stand trial before a jury in the Old Bailey next Tuesday.

The bearded Sutcliffe, 34, is accused of carrying out a five-year string of savage slayings in the north of England.

Britain's most notorious mass murder of women since the Victorian killer Jack the Ripper slashed to death at least six prostitutes in London's East End in the 1880s. Jack the Ripper was never brought to justice.

Sutcliffe, who could go to jail for the rest of his life, also pleaded guilty to the attempted murder of seven other women. They survived the attacks which cast five northern England cities into the grip of fear and prompted the most extensive manhunt in British police history.

At the 90-minute hearing Wednesday, Attorney-General Sir Michael Havers said he was willing to accept the reduced pleas. He referred to the findings of three psychiatrists who have examined Sutcliffe since his Jan. 2 arrest.

Most of the Yorkshire Ripper's victims, aged 16 to 47, were smashed over the head with a hammer in nighttime street attacks, and their bodies were slashed and mutilated. Nine of the women were prostitutes. The others were two university students, two clerks and a middle-aged civil servant.

Exhibits laid out in the courtroom Wednesday included eight hammers, a hacksaw, carving knives and screwdrivers.

News Roundup

Riots increase as Sands nears death

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Catholic rioters hurled gasoline bombs at police and British troops Wednesday in support of Bobby Sands, the jailed IRA guerrilla reportedly so emaciated by 60 days of fasting that he was put in a water bed and taped to keep his bones from breaking through his skin.

The rioters set fire to a tobacco factory and furniture warehouse but firemen extinguished the flames and security forces dispersed the mobs with plastic bullets.

Sands, 27, was reported drifting into unconsciousness frequently. He has dropped from 155 pounds to 90 pounds.

Fear, curfew rule Atlanta streets

ATLANTA (AP) — Fear and a strict curfew are keeping lone children off the streets of this city where 26 young blacks have been slain. And that may be why four of the most recent victims have been adults. Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said Wednesday.

City Councilwoman Carolyn Banks, who proposed the dusk-to-dawn curfew for children 14 and younger, said, "I think that because of the non-availability of children on the streets, the killer or killers are moving on to child-like adults."

Brown said adult victims posed an additional headache for investigators because it was more difficult to verify if they had been abducted.

Israel, guerrillas trade rocket salvos

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israel jets pounded Palestinian bases in southern Lebanon Wednesday, and guerrilla rockets from Lebanon hit northern Israel. Meanwhile, the Syrians moved sophisticated anti-aircraft missiles into eastern Lebanon, witnesses reported.

The deployment of the Soviet-built, surface-to-air missiles was seen as a counter to Israeli jets that shot down two Syrian helicopter gunships Tuesday and a serious development that might widen the Syrian-Israeli confrontation.

Vets services will be ended by budget cuts, coordinator says

By Tony Gordon
Staff Writer

The Reagan administration's proposed cuts in the federal budget will "virtually eliminate the only comprehensive package of services for veterans seeking post-secondary education," if they are adopted by Congress, according to Morgan Ruph, SIU-C veterans coordinator.

Speaking at a news conference Wednesday, Ruph said the SIU-C Veteran Affairs Office "will be out of business by June 30" if Congress approves Reagan's proposal to end the Department of Education's Veterans Cost of Instruction Program.

Ruph said the Vet Affairs Office counsels and informs veterans of the educational benefits and opportunities available to them, and "helps cut the red tape and bureaucratic hassles..." for the 2,800 vets enrolled at SIU-C and in its programs on military installations.

Ruph said that the services his office performs are "an earned benefit," which the veterans deserve because of their past military service.

Of the $12,039 million VCIP budget last year, the SIU-C Vet Affairs Office received $95,440, the largest grant awarded to a single institution in the nation, Ruph said. That figure is lower than the 1979-80 budget of $118,000, because less money was available from the federal government for the VCIP.

Although the major package of veteran educational benefits, the GI Bill of Rights, is not available to persons who enlisted in the military after

Jan. 1, 1977, Ruph said there "are still a good number of vets to be served" on college campuses. He said many people who have GI Bill entitlement are still in the military, and veterans have 10 years from the date of separation from service to use the benefits. All entitlement to the GI Bill educational subsistence allowance expires on Dec. 31, 1989, he said.

Even if the VCIP is rescinded, Ruph said "there will be a fast and furious scramble at this level..." to keep his office open

"I never descended to any levels to be 'buddy-buddy' with them," Fleishman said.

He said many of the students frequently used foul language, but most of them calmed down during the course of the program.

"You've got to speak their language, but yet not speak their language," he said. "You've got to know how they tick."

The experience of teaching the troubled students and helping them to get a better job, and possibly a college education, has given Fleishman a rewarding feeling of accomplishment. An author of three previous books, he said this new one "makes me feel the best."

"In all my 75 years, you can't tell me of anything that makes me feel such accomplishment."

New policy will help technical transfer students

By Randy Roguski
Staff Writer

Credit from regionally non-accredited institutions will sometimes be accepted by SIU-C as transfer credit under a policy approved Tuesday by John Guyon, acting vice president for academic affairs and research.

Another policy signed Tuesday by Guyon provides for the acceptance of all vocational and technical credit from regionally accredited institutions, with its application to program requirements to be determined by individual departments.

The University has not accepted credit from regionally non-accredited schools for the past four years.

The new policy on credit from non-accredited schools is similar to procedure followed before 1977, when credit was accepted based on reports from institutions which were accredited by the Association of College Registrars and Admissions Office.

Roland Keim, director of records and registration, said the University of Illinois will be the reporting institution for transfer credit from Illinois schools.

"We will check with them, see how they view it and use it in the same way," Keim said.

He said the policy will most often help transfer students from schools with religious affiliations.

Vocational and technical credit has been presented to individual departments who decided how much of it should be accepted. All credits have not always been accepted.

Keim said admissions and records will now record as general studies or unspecified electives any vocational and technical credit not applied to program requirements. The new policy will not reduce students' degree requirements but will acknowledge students' work at other institutions, he said.

"This is an attempt to eliminate confusion on the part of students. It's just a change in procedure," he said.

Both policies have been approved by the Faculty Senate and are effective immediately. Neither is expected to affect enrollment levels, Keim said.

The time has come for a state bottle bill

ILLINOIS FINALLY MAY HAVE reached the point of mandatory returns.

Riding a slow-moving wake that began in 1972 when Oregon passed a law forbidding the sale of beverages in nonreusable containers, Illinois may become the eighth state to pass a bottle bill—a bill that we feel has come of age.

The House's Energy and Environment Committee began hearings on the Illinois Beverage Container Act (H.B. 343) Wednesday.

The bill requires a minimum 5-cent deposit on all soft drink and beer containers, a mandatory refund of deposits by all dealers and the prohibition of the sale of cans with pull-tab openers.

Though a bottle bill is not new to the Illinois Legislature (it has been defeated twice before), the time has come for the Legislature to act in the public's interest. Now is not the time to bend to the demands of large businesses and interest groups. Their arguments should carry little weight when the waste of manpower, resources and energy are considered.

THE ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION Agency estimates that between 20-30 percent of all litter in this country is caused by nonreusable bottles and cans. The number of man hours needed to keep America beautiful could be drastically reduced if the bottle bill is passed.

The EPA estimated that litter was reduced by 23 percent in Oregon after the passage of a bottle bill. In addition, the amount of solid waste in the form of containers dropped 81 percent.

These results indicate that Oregon is saving energy. The Midwest Research Institute, which is under contract with the EPA, has demonstrated that it takes about 60 percent more energy to make a once-used aluminum can than it does to make a reusable bottle that can be used more than 15 times.

Opponents of the bill contend that almost all of the energy used in making an aluminum can be saved through recycling. But the fact is that high freight costs and an industry preference for raw ore over scrap metal makes recycling undesirable for companies.

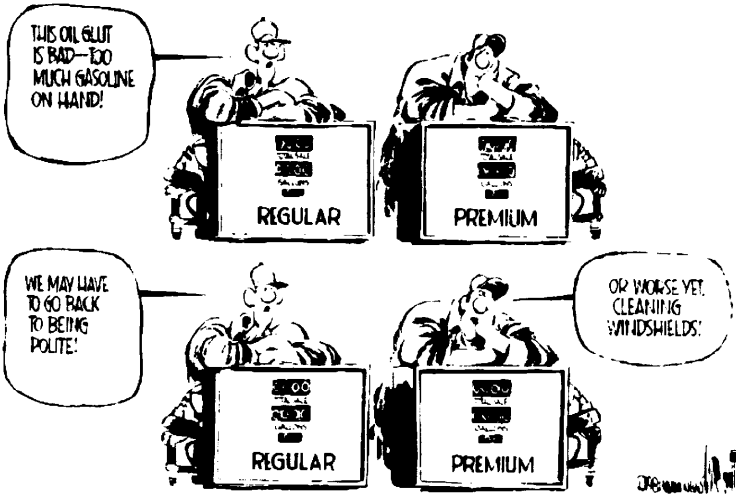

THOSE WHO OPPOSE THE BILL also cry about the jobs that the packaging industry will lose. They say small grocery owners will have to spend more time, money and space for returnable bottles—meaning higher beverage costs for consumers.

While Illinois' $419 million packaging business may suffer some losses if a demand for nonreturnable containers is reduced, other jobs to help ship and process returnables would be created with a bottle law. And while store owners may have some trouble providing space for empties, that does not mean that there will be a reduction in sales.

Prices won't go up with a bottle law either. In Oregon, prices in both soft drinks and alcohol have remained competitive with those of surrounding states.

The benefits of the bottle bill far outweigh the arguments against it. Litter laws are difficult, if not impossible, to enforce. We deserve uncluttered highways but not at the expense of other worthy state and local projects. And it's time that man stopped his inconsiderate attitude towards nature and its resources.

Rep. Wayne Alstad (D-Murphysboro) is serving on the Energy and Environment Committee and anyone interested in this bill should contact him. Also, the Illinois Public Research Group and the Student Environmental Center both have more information on House Bill 343 and located in the Student Center. Give them a call, this bill deserves your support.

Let's channel our patriotism Personal choice should not be limited by others

A disturbing occurrence has come before our country since Ronald Reagan was elected president. We have now become aware of the cuts in spending he has proposed and it has caused many of us to lash out in hate at each other, instead of taking a look at ourselves and our situations first.

We have a dangerous habit in this country, a habit of turning our problems over to the government. The usual cure (more government) is only a temporary suppression of pain and results in a progressive dependency on the government. The real and only cure (cuts in government spending) leads to the painful prospect of habitual withdrawal.

The question I pose is, Do we have the courage and resolve to help stop this dreaded habit? It is the truly needy who are in need of some type of government aid, for they are not at fault for their sad situations. The blind, the mentally retarded, the physically handicapped and the abused child, to name a few, are the deserving users of government.

It is we that are the undeserving users, we who use government services and aid in place of individual action. This habit (addiction) can grow and, as we depend more heavily on government aid, we become less effective in dealing with our problems ourselves as individuals. If we let this trend continue we will begin to lose our skills and possibly our own individuality altogether.

The answer is clear, but it will be hard on all of us. We must stop and make some tough decisions about who is responsible for what and then place the responsibility where it belongs—with the individual. An example is the various college aid programs. I do not mean to be harsh but if a person loses his or her aid, would it really be that bad for that person to skip school for a year or two so that the person can earn the money to pay for an education? This has happened in my own family and, yes, it is an inconvenience. But an education is not an unattainable goal by any means. All of us must remember that our lives are what we make of them and that if you want an education bad enough you can get it.

Government spending and aid are terribly impersonal and consequently lead to an impersonal society. This is evident everywhere and something has got to be done about it. We have built walls around ourselves and our communities; instead of loving each other we hate or totally ignore each other and that is tragic.

Since the hostage crisis we have felt a new resurgence in American patriotism. If we could just channel this patriotism into our own families and communities and start confronting these problems, we will in time start eliminating this terrible dependence (and the apathy that accompanies it). Little things such as driving an elderly person to the store or taking care of children whose parents work or just asking a person how he or she feels would all be good places to start.

Whether you agree or disagree at the very least we should all look at our own situations and "buckle down." As Pogo once so aptly said "we have met the enemy—and his is, indeed, us." We can end this problem. Let's start now.—Jim Granate, junior, Political Science.

There will probably never be a conclusion drawn as to what constitutes "right" and "wrong" in the abortion issue. No one can seem to agree when human life begins—not physicians, not the Supreme Court. If one is of the opinion that human life begins at the moment of conception, then it is therefore "wrong" for a woman to have an abortion. In this case, an abortion would be murder.

However, since there will probably never be an agreement as to when human life actually begins, it is dangerous to legislate what a woman may or may not do with her body. If a woman is not morally opposed to abortion, and her right to an abortion is taken away from her, then it is truly a violation of her freedom of choice.

Banning cheap, popular methods of birth control is even more dangerous than banning abortion on demand. Banning the pill and the IUD gives couples less sexual freedom and little choice over when the woman wishes to conceive; it is therefore puritanical and narrow-minded. If abortion and certain methods of birth control are made illegal, the number of unwanted children and illegal, unsafe abortions will rise dramatically. The HLA will be creating many more problems than some people think it is solving. Choosing any method of birth control should be a couple's personal choice, and whether or not to have an abortion should be a woman's individual choice.—Cyndi Ashley, English and Bill Cemen, Graduate Assistant, Russian.

DE wallows in the mud wrestling

Was mud wrestling all there was at Springfest '81? No. What the Daily Egyptian failed to report on was the other 90 percent of Springfest that transpired before 6 p.m. There were activities that ranged from Bad Cinema to watching Smokey the Bear and Woody Owl fencing with the Saluki Slashers. There were bands, clubs and innumerable arts and crafts booths.

Although the highlight obviously was the mud wrestling, there was indeed much more. David Hurley, freshman, Political Science.

Former editor gives publication do's, don'ts

By Liz Griffin
Staff Writer

Although there is talk to the contrary, most colleges and universities still determine instructors' pay increases by the amount of work they have published, said Stanley Elam, former editor of the Phi Delta Kappan, an education journal based in Bloomington, Ind.

Elam spoke on the "Do's and Don'ts of Publication" to an audience of about 30 SIU-C graduates in higher education, faculty and guests Wednesday in Student Center Ballroom D. In his lecture, which concluded the four-day program for Post-Doctoral Academy of Higher Education, Elam forwarded tips on how to successfully write and publish articles for educational journals.

Elam said that writers should choose a topic in which they have a consuming interest and then select an audience to match the topic.

"Your approach and style will be different for the audiences you address," said Elam, who was director for public relations and alumni services at Eastern Illinois University from 1946 to 1956 and a stringer for the Chicago Daily News from 1946 to 1950.

Practice, criticism and reading will improve one's ability to write, he said. Categories under the third element in his five-part recipe for publishing are: don't make mechanical errors in the manuscript; refer to a dictionary or someone who is familiar with grammar and spelling; and "cut the pom-posity" by coming straight to the point.

Elam said directories, such as Writers' Market, can refer writers with manuscripts to publishers with a need for certain types of subjects. The writers should then send letters of inquiry to prospective publishers, detailing the contents of the manuscripts.

Writers may also send proposals of articles to publishers, he said. Interested publishers will return form letters stating the style and subject matter of articles they publish.

Elam also advised aspiring writers to become proteges of published authors. Acquaint yourself with your editor, and be willing to rewrite an article, are Elam's maxims. He also suggested that a writer with a manuscript should not hesitate to ask an editor about other markets for his story if it has been rejected.

Think "persistence," "will- ingness," "thick skinned" when you think "published writer," Elam said. These virtues are needed to overcome the feelings of defeat when an article is rejected.

"It's not just a gift from God. It has to be nourished," said Elam, who admitted that only one out of the 15 unsolicited manuscripts offered for publication in the Phi Delta Kappan are ever published in the journal.

Special athletes await 12th annual olympics

By Carol Knowles
Staff Writer

The thrill of victory and the smiling faces of the special olympians will return to Carbondale Thursday, at the 12th annual Special Olympics. The events will take place from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Bleyer Field at Carbondale Community High School, 206 N. Springer.

Over 1,000 people from 18 counties in Southern Illinois are expected to compete this year, according to Amos Black, director of the Special Olympics of Southern Illinois. About 500 volunteers also are expected to attend. Black said a bus will leave the SIU-C Student Center every hour and return at 20 minutes to the hour for student volunteers who need transportation to and from the field. Frisbee competition and wheelchair races, as well as track and field events are on the agenda, with medals and ribbons being handed out to all participants.

Black said entertainment will be provided by the SIU-C rugby and football teams, and the gymnastic and self-defense clubs. Horseback rides, a petting zoo, a carnival and hundreds of clowns also will be on hand for the event.

Last year's olympics were held at McAndrew Stadium, but since the track is still being repaired the location had to be changed. Black said the inconvenience could lower the amount of student volunteers participating.

Black said he is busy readying for the event by placing the participants into age and ability categories. Refreshments are being donated by local merchants.

Women throws niece to safety from building fire

JOLIET (AP) — A 19-year-old woman tossed her baby niece to safety from a second-story window of a burning building, then jumped from the window herself to escape the flames, fire officials said.

Charmaine Haywood, who was babysitting for her 19-month-old niece, tossed the child to Desmond Holas, a neighbor, after the fire broke out Tuesday afternoon. Joliet fire officials said. The baby was examined at a hospital and released.

Miss Haywood then jumped from the building and landed on her back. She was reported in good condition Wednesday at Silver Cross Hospital in Joliet.

Lane, Chartbusters walking a thin line between pop, rock

By Alan Sculley
Staff Writer

Robin Lane & the Chartbusters walk a thin line between pop and hard rock—exactly between American-style pop and hard rock.

The only other band that comes to mind as having done a good job with this hybrid style is Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers, and the Chartbusters have a style even truer to this combination.

Petty usually straddles the line closer to a hard rock style. Lane, however, plays up a soft-toned electric lead guitar, anchored by traditional rock-styled bass and rhythm guitar—a sound dead center to rock and pop.

"Imitation Life" is the Chartbusters' second album and it proves to be every bit as good as the band's first album which critics considered, along with the Pretenders' debut album, as one of the most pleasant surprises of 1980.

At this time in her career, Lane is actually writing better music than Petty was at about the same time.

As with the debut album, which opened with the single, "When Things Go Wrong," a hit around the band's home base of Boston, the Chartbusters also begin "Imitation Life" with its ace, "Send Me An Angel."

But the album has plenty of other trump cards to play. Many of the best songs take a medium-paced beat that fits a smooth, low-pitched rhythm guitar accentuated by a subtle lead electric guitar. "What the "People Are Doing" and "Idiot" are the two songs that best reflect this style.

Other times, the band plays up its pop style on slow electric guitar-based ballads such as "Say Goodbye" and "For You." Unfortunately, these songs also expose the Chartbusters' weakness—Lane's vocals.

She sings in a low voice that strains to reach high notes, robbing power from the songs just where it's needed most. Those ballads would be exceptional songs with better vocals.

But the band can't survive without Lane. She writes nearly all the band's material herself.

The other weak spot for this album comes when the Chartbusters attempt to rock it out in a new wave style. The title song is muddled by this fast, harder rocking pace "No Control" is a big success at this style, but it too, is not in a class with the album's best music.

Clearly the Chartbusters are more at home with a straight pop-rock style. If they stick with that sound, the Chartbusters should soon find a home near the top of the record charts. (Album courtesy of Plaza Records)

Johnston survives to prove that his music still feels good

By Randy Lynch
WDBB Music Director

Tom Johnston is a true survivor. He lived and wrote about life in the fast lane before it was hip to do so. He also succumbed to that same lifestyle and it forced him out of music for a while. However, he's come back strongly with all his skills in-all the Doobies' albums. The first album was a cumbersome, over-produced compromise. However, his second effort is quite an improvement.

Michael Omartian, a veteran who has worked with everyone from Rod Stewart in the good old days to Christopher Cross, has recaptured the sound of the Doobies circa 1973. The musicians include Patrick Simmons (the only original Doobie still with them) on backing vocals and Bobby LaKind (who joined the band just before Johnston left) on congas. However, the core of the sound is still Johnston's songs and vocals.

The eight tunes on "Still Feels Good" depict a man who has seen and lived a lot, and has gained some perspective from the experiences

"Still Feels Good" has the potential to be the album of the summer. Much like the Rolling Stones' "Some Girls" recalls the summer of 1978, Johnston's album could spawn numerous hit singles that could have the neighborhood singing along.

But even if radio ignores it, die-hard Doobie fans will relish the fact that Johnston's talent is intact, and it still feels good.

tact. And as the title of his new solo album suggests, "It Still Feels Good."

Johnston was a founding member of the Doobie Brothers, a band whose influences on the West Coast rock sound are sorely underrated. While Jackson Browne was takin' it easy and the Eagles were still wishing they had a band, the Doobies were already rockin' down the highway.

Johnston wrote more than half of the material for the Doobies' first five albums. Among his finest were "Listen to the Music," "Long Train Runnin'" and "China Grove." But touring sapped his creative juices, and as new blood joined the Brothers (Jeff Baxter, Michael McDonald, etc.), new influences changed the direction of the band.

Johnston's departure after "Takin' it to the Streets" left the band without a true rocker. Today the Doobies are nothing more than a delapidated middle-of-the-road monster. Meanwhile, Johnston has remained true to his roots.

"Still Feels Good" is Johnston's second solo LP. Two years ago he released "Everything You've Heard is True," produced by Ted Templeman, who also produced

Criminal justice system topic of journalism panel discussion

A panel discussion on "Covering the Criminal Justice System" will be held Thursday afternoon as part of the last two days of Journalism Week events, which end on Friday.

The discussions, which will be held in the Ohio Room in the Student Center, are sponsored by the SIU-C student and professional chapters of Sigma Delta Chi, the Society of Professional Journalists.

Lenore Sobota, an SIU-C law student, and former police reporter for the Belvidere Daily Republican, will start the program with a speech on Criminal Procedure at 1:30 p.m. At 2:30 p.m., Tom Mc-Namara, assistant to the Carbondale chief of police and Byron Tracy, editor of the Robinson Daily News, will discuss "Getting Along with the Cops."

Friday's schedule of events starts with a 9 a.m. lecture by Jim Cherry, marketing director for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and St. Louis Post Dispatch, in the Student Center Auditorium. At 10:30 a.m. a representative from Rockwell International in Chicago will speak in the Auditorium, followed by an 11:15 a.m. lecture by Kelly Leiter, professor of journalism at the University of Tennessee.

Representatives from WVON in Chicago will discuss "Minorities in Broadcasting" from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. in Room 1248 of the Communications Building.

The week's activities will close with a 7 p.m. Friday banquet at the Carbondale Holiday Inn, highlighted by an address from Mike Davies, editor of the Kansas City Star and Times.

After the game, The Bears Beer.

Actors Theatre of Louisville, the Tony Award-winning State Theatre of Kentucky, is on its way with the hilarious comedy BUS STOP. BUS STOP is a warm and sensitive play about a burlesque of weary travelers at a cheerful Midwest roadside diner in the middle of a howling snowstorm. Chara has the most to worry about: she's been pursued, romanced, and finally kidnapped by a 21-year-old boisterous cowboy with the romantic methods of a headstrong bull. From the author of PICNIC, COME BACK LITTLE SHEBA, and NATURAL AFFECTION, William Inge has put together an uproarious comedy!

Stevenson Arms takes first in off-campus dorm contest

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

A team effort between residents and staff brought Stevenson Arms dormitory its third straight first place finish in a year-long contest between off-campus dormitories, according to John Scheiss, Stevenson Arms head resident. Stevenson Arms finished ahead of Freeman and Wilson Halls in the annual "Five-Star Hall Competition," and will keep the traveling trophy awarded to the winner each year. The contest, which was started three years ago, is based on the participation of off-campus dormitory residents in five areas. Patricia McNeil, supervisor of off-campus housing, said.

McNeil said the dorms are awarded points for the academic record of their residents and their activities involving athletics, social recreation, cultural education and community service. McNeil said she determines the amount of points awarded for each activity based on resident participation and response.

"The entire concept of the competition is to design a healthy competitive feeling of comradeship and individual participation and achievement within and among the off-campus dormitories," McNeil said.

Scheiss, who has been the head resident at Stevenson Arms for 1 1/2 years, said he thinks being the smallest of the off-campus dorms helps promote a "family-type atmosphere," that leads to more participation and involvement. He said the activities held this year ranged from participating in an Easter Seals fund-raising event to a no-handed ice-cream eating contest.

The results of the contest were announced at an end of the year event held Tuesday night. The final point totals were Stevenson Arms, 438.5; Freeman Hall, 409; and Wilson Hall, 235.

McNeil said she was very pleased with the efforts of all the off-campus dormitories, especially in the work they did in community service. She said residents colored Easter eggs for children at Carbondale

Memorial Hospital, took part in a Big Brother-Big Sister program and "adopted" two elderly people to be "dorm grandparents."

538-3321 STUDENT CENTER

Public relations group mixes learning, service

By Brenda Wilgenbusch
Staff Writer

SIU-C's chapter of the Public Relations Student Society of America has found a way to combine both practical experience and extracurricular activity.

In addition to providing a means for the "meeting of the minds" of public relations students, they also have formed a public relations agency—Raymond D. Wiley, named after the founder of PRSSA's chapter at the University.

RDW can provide practical experience not only for students in public relations, but also for students in other branches of the communications spectrum, John W. Bischoff, director of University accounts at RDW, said. Since the agency's formation last February, RDW has handled about 15 accounts, he said, and the services have varied. The accounts and services, he explained, have included consulting for the Union County Mental Health Clinic, which "had a problem because people thought they were part of the state mental institution and were not aware of their counseling services."

RDW's volunteers also have helped Wedding Works, a bridal shop in Marion. Bischoff said, because they have a different kind of service—renting wedding and prom dresses. They also have been designing a brochure and business cards for Helios, energy consultants who sell solar heating equipment, he said.

Bischoff, who also is a junior in public relations, said that one of the major accounts RDW is working on right now is with Golden Bear and Quality of Life Services. RDW, he said, is working on a Pancake-a-thon to be held May 2nd from 4:30 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. The proceeds, he said, will go to Quality of Life Services, whose aim is to provide education, health and social services to individuals. Quality of Life also helps the elderly and handicapped, he said.

The organization, Bischoff explained, is run by an executive director, Isabel Broomfield; Bischoff, a director of community accounts, Richard Jarrett; and a director of publicity, Doris Harrah. He said that the professional advisor is Russ Savage, who works for Southwestern Bell in St. Louis, and their faculty advisor is Donald MacDonald, an associate professor of speech communication at the University.

The idea of an agency first began last semester, Bischoff said, when a couple of people worked on a political campaign. After that, they had to find a sponsor from a professional chapter, the Public Relations Society of America. The professional chapter in St. Louis agreed to sponsor SIU-C's chapter, Bischoff said.

"The Speech Communication Department has hired Elizabeth Park Lance to begin teaching next fall," Bischoff said. Lance, who has 10 years of experience in public relations, also has agreed to be the faculty advisor for the agency, he said.

Though the agency ultimately answers to PRSSA President Kevin Knight, Bischoff said, "you don't have to be a member of PRSSA to help."

RDW has many volunteers with varied interests, Bischoff said, and when a service is needed they pick out those who have the skills for the job. "There aren't any real requirements to help," he said. If someone volunteers, they can usually find a job for the person, he continued.

Elections held

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—The ruling white minority voted in national elections Wednesday that almost certainly will permit Prime Minister P.W. Botha to continue his cautious reforms of South Africa's racial segregation policies.

About half of South Africa's 5 million whites are registered voters. The country's 23 million non-whites are denied the right to vote.

Bill to toughen drunk driving law passes in House

SPRINGFIELD (UPI)—A bipartisan measure to toughen Illinois' drunk driving law by increasing the arrest and conviction rate passed the House 156-7 Wednesday.

The legislation (House Bill 143), sponsored by Rep. Roger McAuliffe, R-Chicago, and Rep. Fred Schraeder, D-Peoria, now goes to the Senate for action.

Backed by Secretary of State Jim Edgar, the measure would eliminate the current 90-minute waiting period in which an arrested suspect must decide whether or not to take a breath test. It also would eliminate the requirement for a second test.

The legislation would add blood and urine as substances that may be tested in addition to breathalyzer tests, as well as increase the penalty for refusing to take the test. The penalty would be increased from a three-month to six-month suspension of a driver's license on the first arrest and the suspension period would climb to 12 months on the second arrest.

The bill is the result of statewide hearings of victims, police officers and families of victims.

McAuliffe, a former policeman, told lawmakers in House debate that since the "implied consent" law was enacted 10 years ago, the number of drunk driving arrests has dropped from about 15,000 to 4,000.

The secretary of state said he had no promise from Gov. James R. Thompson on the bill if it passes the Senate. However, he said, "I would be very surprised if the governor won't sign this."

Golfers to face MVC adversaries

By Mike Anthony
Staff Writer

Saluki men's golf Coach Jim Reburn is looking for a fifth-place finish for his team in the 72-hole Missouri Valley Conference Tournament to be held Thursday through Saturday at Las Cruces, N.M.

The Salukis also have a good chance of having at least one player named all-conference, Reburn said.

SIU-C is ranked fifth in the conference, Reburn said, but could do as well as third.

"We're not capable of winning the tournament," he added, "and it really would surprise me if we finished second."

Nine teams will compete in the tournament, New Mexico State, Tulsa, Wichita State, Illinois State, Indiana State, West Texas State, Drake and Bradley.

According to Reburn, New Mexico is the favorite to win the tournament because the Aggies won last year's conference crown and have the same five players returning. The Aggies had four top-10 finishers in 1980.

"If anybody gives New Mexico State a run," Reburn said, "it could be Tulsa, but New Mexico is just ahead of everybody else and that home-course advantage is definitely a factor."

Rich Jarrett, John Schaefer, Doug Clemens, Robert Hammond and Tom Jones are the team members making the trip.

"Hopefully, Jarrett will play well," Reburn said. "He has the most experience of anyone going and he has a real good chance to finish all-conference. Between him and John Schaefer, we should have at least one all-conference finisher."

Of the teams participating, the Salukis have beaten West Texas State, Drake and Bradley, Illinois State, Indiana State and Wichita State all have beaten the Salukis this season.

The par-72, 7,058-yard course is relatively tight, Reburn said, but it still demands accuracy.

"If you miss the fairways, you're pretty well out in the desert," he added.

In last year's tourney, the Salukis finished fourth with a 1267 score. SIU-C's Butch Poshard tied for fifth in the individual competition with a score of 306.

Cubs end losing streak, Cardinal victory skein

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Buckner's tie-breaking two-run double triggered a five-run eighth inning that gave Chicago a 6-1 victory over St. Louis in the first game of a doubleheader Wednesday, ending the Cubs' 12-game losing streak and St. Louis' eight-game winning streak.

The second game was called because of darkness after 11 innings with the score tied 2-2. The game will be resumed in the top of the 12th on July 3.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the first inning of the opener when Buckner doubled and scored on Steve Henderson's single. But the Cardinals tied it in the sixth on Keith Hernandez's second homer of the season, one of only three hits allowed in 81-3 innings by winner Mike Krukow, 1-1.

Krukow singled with one out in the eighth off loser Andy Rincon, 2-1, but was forced by Ivan DeJesus. Scott Fletcher walked before Buckner doubled in two runs, snapping the tie, and scored on another single by Henderson.

Leon Durham followed with a run-scoring triple and scored on a wild pitch.

Krukow gave up seven walks, including two in the ninth, before Lee Smith relieved and got Ken Oberkfell to hit into a game-ending double play.

The Cardinals took a 2-0 lead in the first inning of the second game on a two-run triple by Darrell Porter. Garry Templeton singled and Tony Scott reached first on an error before Porter's hit.

Lary Sorensen retired the first 14 Cubs he faced before Ken Reitz singled with two outs in the fifth. The only other hit off Sorensen in six innings was a pinch-hit single in the fifth for rookie Gary Krug's first major league hit.

Cage squad signs another transfer from Jackson CC

New basketball Head Coach Allen Van Winkle Wednesday announced the signing of Ken Byrd, a 6-3 guard from Jackson, Mich., Community College, to a national letter of intent.

Byrd is the third player from Jackson, where Van Winkle coached last season, to sign with SIU-C. Earlier, James Copeland, a 5-10 guard, and Pye Walker, a 6-6 redshirt forward, signed from the Golden Jets.

Van Winkle also has signed Dennis Goins, a 5-11 guard from Vincennes, Ind., Junior College.

Byrd averaged 14 points per game last season and made 52 percent of his field-goal attempts. A two-year starter at Jackson who will have two years of eligibility remaining, he was an all-Ohio selection and city player of the year at Toledo's Scott High School.

"He's a very solid player and a good all-around backcourt who will help us," Van Winkle said.

Synchers perform Thursday

The Southern Synchers will put on their annual water production show April 30 and May 1 the Student Recreation Building pool.

The theme of this year's show is "From Bach to Rock" and is based on music from the past. Joyce Craven, assistant coordinator of intramural athletics, said the show should be interesting, and would show the club's expertise in synchronized swimming.

The performance is being put on for the University community and admission is free.

Hartzog contends the Salukis are close to qualifying for the NCAA outdoor championships in the 1,600-relay (Adams, Heggs, Lance Peeler and David Lee), Karsten Schulz in the 1,500-meter run, Tom Fitzpatrick and Mike Keane in the 10,000-meter run, Adams in the open 400-meter run, Tom Ross in the steeplechase and John Sayre in the pole vault.

Richardson's homer gives SIU twinbill split

By Dave Kane
Associate Sports Editor

Conditions looked ripe for an unexpected Eastern Illinois doubleheader sweep over the Saluki baseball team midway through the second game Wednesday in Charleston. After hitting heroics by Tim Pzynarski and Gordon Smith gave the Panthers a 4-3 win in game one, EIU had taken a 2-0 lead going into the top of the fifth in Wednesday's nightcap.

But the Salukis put three runs across in the fifth, and sophomore Joe Richardson's three-run homer in SIU-C's four-run sixth inning helped the Salukis take a 7-5 win and salvage a split. It gave SIU-C a 22-13 record, while the Division II Panthers are 26-10.

The Panthers scored a run in the bottom of the sixth in game two to cut the Saluki lead to 7-3, and EIU came on strong again with a two-out rally in the seventh. After the first two batters were retired by lefthander Rob Clark, a single and a Pzynarski RBI double made it 7-4. Another single scored Pzynarski to make it 7-5, and reliever Paul Evans came in and struck out the last hitter to earn his eighth save of the season.

The Salukis used a total of six pitchers in the two seven-inning contests, attempting to give as many pitchers as possible work. Senior righthander Chris Wicks pitched the first four innings of game two and gained his second win without a loss.

In game one, it was the Panthers who had to play catch-up. SIU-C's Bobby Doerrer hit a leadoff homer—his third of the year—in the first inning to give SIU-C a 1-0 lead, and Joe Richardson's fourth inning RBI single and P.J. Schranz's fifth-inning solo homer—his second of the year—made it 3-0.

But the Panthers erupted for three runs in the bottom of the fifth off Ken Klump, who relieved starter Rick Wysocki. A single and an error followed by another single made it 3-1, and after the next two hitters were retired, a single and a walk loaded the bases, and Pzynarski ripped a two-run double to make it 3-3.

In the seventh, Klump was still on the mound and gave up a single, a wild pitch and a walk. Evans came in to relieve and balked the runners to second and third. Smith then rapped his game-winning single—giving Klump the loss and a 3-4 record.

In the second game, Doerrer and Schranz had RBI singles in the three-run fifth inning, and following Richardson's homer in the sixth, Mike Heflin doubled, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Doerrer's sacrifice fly.

Badminton is eliminated from WIA

By Cindy Clausen
Staff Writer

Charlotte West, director of women's intercollegiate athletics, has announced her decision to terminate the women's badminton program at SIU-C. West has held meetings recently with the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee, the SIU-C varsity badminton team, and the WIA Student Athletic Advisory Board, to discuss the program.

"I have decided to terminate the badminton program," West said. "This was purely my decision and was made without pressure from above. I think it was a wise decision and the best one for our program."

West, who began the badminton program at SIU-C, is admittedly reluctant to take such a step. She prides Southern for its heritage in offering such a wide spectrum of sports for the athlete and public.

However, West cites several reasons for making the decision.

One is the rapid drop in the number of teams throughout the nation. In 1975 there were 120 teams. Now that number stands at 51, making competitors harder to find.

The decision by the NCAA to host women's championship events also is a factor, according to West.

The NCAA does not recognize badminton as an intercollegiate sport and, although the women's program at SIU-C has only decided to compete in affiliation with the NCAA in two sports, West said it is inevitable that the NCAA will soon be the sole governing body of athletics.

The most obvious reason for the cut concerns the financial straits within which the athletic department is operating.

"A very key reason is our financial condition in women's athletics and the entire program," West said.

Meeting the rate of inflation is one problem, but West is especially concerned with trying to reduce the number of coaches on half-time appointments. Several of the women's coaches are employed on a half-time basis despite having to fulfill coaching duties year-round, without assistants.

West said this year's coach, Paul Blair, who recently resigned his position, was on such a half-time salary and was forced to leave in order to further his professional position. West's decision was made easier with Blair's resignation.

West's decision affects 19 varsity badminton players and especially three players who are receiving financial aid by playing the sport. One of those, Canadian Nancy Little, had not planned to return to SIU-C.

Another team member, junior Cathy Skiera, will continue to receive aid through her senior year, according to West. West said the other person affected is involved in another sport and the department will attempt to accommodate her as well.

"Our department feels a very moral commitment to those athletes," West said.

West said she hopes the badminton players will be devoted enough to the sport to establish a club team. Club teams are recognized competition by most schools and are often created when programs must drop a sport. These teams can still be considered entrants in AIAW national tournaments.

West does not consider the removal of badminton from the program a picture of things to come.

"I don't want anyone in any sport to feel threatened or any of the coaches to be threatened by this decision," West said.

"I've looked through fiscal year 1984 and we have sufficient finances to keep quality programs in the 10 sports we have."

Intercollegiates reunite SIU-Illini

By Greg Walsh
Staff Writer

Track coaches Lew Hartzog and Gary Wieneke seem to get a kick out of debating whose team will be favored when the two meet.

SIU-C's Hartzog feels the Illinois Intercollegiate outdoor track meet slated for this Friday and Saturday in Champaign will essentially be a rematch between the Salukis and Illinois.

But, Illinois' Wieneke disagrees. He contends SIU-C is the "significant" favorite after the Salukis stunned the Big Ten champion Illini, 86-77, two weeks ago at Illinois' Memorial Stadium.

"I would not call it as close as the first meet," Wieneke said. "SIU-C had a good meet against us, and a good Drake Relays. It will be tough for us."

Other Illinois college teams also will be represented at the meet, but most agree the Salukis and the Illini will be battling for the top spot. Illinois won the indoor intercollegiate with 173 points, followed by SIU-C with 135, and Illinois State, 130. ISU probably will not be a factor this weekend because five of its key performers are injured.

Hartzog, sounding almost philosophical, said every meet is a little different, so the Salukis will face a strenuous battle this weekend.

"It's a brand new balgame," Hartzog said, "but we are not as afraid of the Illini as we were the first time."

Two weeks ago, the Salukis were struggling against the Illini until a one-two-three sweep in the 5,000-meter run gave the Salukis the lead. They won the final event, the 1,600-meter relay, and the meet.

"That won't happen again in the 5,000," Hartzog said, adding that Wieneke wouldn't let it happen again.

"This time the Salukis will, however, have the services of sprinters Javell Heggs and Tony Adams, both freshmen football players who could not compete two weeks ago because of spring practice. Both are crucial to SIU-C's relay teams. Freshman triple jumper Jim Topp also will compete after missing the first meet.

Hartzog feels most of the other events also will be closely contended.

"It has been pretty difficult over the years to predict the finishers in each event. One good kid from Augustana could have a super-great day and whip everybody," Hartzog said.

The Salukis also could turn in some top performances at the meet, Hartzog said.

"This time of the year is very exciting because you know someone is going to pop (do well

Salukis to 'start over' in state softball tourney

By Michelle Schwent
Staff Writer

The regular season is over for the SIU-C softball team and it's time to start all over again in the state tournament.

The Salukis compiled an 11-20 record and are seeded second in the IAIW tournament which begins Thursday. Illinois State (35-7) is the No. 1 seed while Western Illinois (15-15) is seeded third. Northwestern is seeded fourth and Northern Illinois is fifth. The seedings were based on the teams' records against in-state competition only.

SIU-C will play Western Illinois in the first game of the double-elimination tournament. The Salukis thumped the Westerwinds twice last week in a doubleheader, 1-0 and 4-3. Northwestern plays Northern Illinois and the winner from that game will play ISU, the only team to draw a bye. The Redbirds are the favorites, according to Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer.

"Illinois State is probably the best team in the Midwest and one of the top 10 teams in the nation," Brechtelsbauer said. "They have dominated the state this year and we haven't had that happen for about five years."

Brechtelsbauer added that the other four teams are evenly matched, although the Salukis play a tougher schedule than the other schools, with the exception of ISU.

"There will be a big battle for the second and third places because the teams are so even," Brechtelsbauer said. "That second-place finish is important because that team could possibly receive an at-large bid to the regional."

Northern Illinois amassed a 20-19 record this season, but did not play SIU-C because of rain. The Huskies field a team similar to the Salukis, Brechtelsbauer noted.

"They are a young team, but they are coming on fast," Brechtelsbauer said.

The Salukis were rather slow to blossom this season. At one point, SIU-C had lost 10 of 12 games and was in the throes of the worst losing streak in Saluki history. SIU-C turned that around and has won four of its last six games. The team is batting a lowly .174 while the leading hitter, senior first baseman Pat Stang, is batting .262. Despite the dismal offense, Brechtelsbauer pointed out the Salukis have lost six games by one run and five games by two runs.

"We're improving slowly but steadily," Brechtelsbauer said. "We need to get more key hits because we are getting the runners on but not bringing them around."

Pitching has the only steady feature of the team, and the Salukis will have to rely on that strength in the tournament, according to Brechtelsbauer. Either Meredith Stengel (3-2) or Sunny Clark (4-6) will start against WIU. Brechtelsbauer said she may start Stengel because she has not pitched against WIU yet.
