Springfest draws thousands

By Anne Flasz
Staff Writer

Thousands of students and community members converged on the Old Main Mall Saturday to make Springfest '84 a blazing success.

Temperatures soared into the 90s, but that didn't stop anyone from taking part in the games, rides and food.

One of the most successful activities was the Texas Barbecue sponsored by Student Center Graphics and the Student Center food service.

According to Michael Blank, assistant director of the Student Center, demand for the beef, beans and baked potatoes was so great that the group began serving at 1:30 p.m., rather than the scheduled 3 p.m. And by 3:30 p.m., Blank feared he would run out of the over 600 pounds of Applegate smoked beef obtained for the barbecue.

"THE RESPONSE has been super," Blank said. "We looked for something that would draw people in and we succeeded."

Members of Sigma Pi collected about $149 for Bobby Funnell, a Marion youth in need of a bone marrow transplant.

Marc Pullman, Sigma Pi treasurer, said the group was pleased with the results and still hopes to meet their goal of $2,000 by Wednesday. So far, a total of $1,100 has been raised by Sigma Pi.

Other groups worked to raise both awareness and funds for their own organizations.

LANA RIZZO, freshman in auto technology, and Anita Coleman, junior in electrical engineering, represented the SIU-C women's rugby team at a table where people were challenged to guess the team's weight. As of 3 p.m., nobody had even come close, Rizzo said.

"People tend to underestimate," Rizzo said.

Coleman said they were trying to let people know that there is a woman's rugby team.

"A lot of older women looked surprised - maybe they think it's a sport reserved for men," Coleman said.

KEVIN BETHKE, sophomore in zoology, and Mike Schaeffer, sophomore in political science, won the egg toss sponsored by the Obelisk II yearbook for which they each won a free yearbook.

Mark Pasiennik, sophomore in accounting, won the hotdog eating contest by consuming one hotdog in 3.87 seconds. The dogs were provided by Jackson's Chicago-Style Hotdogs.

William Eppley, a graduate assistant in the history department, said he was not pleased with the way contestants were chosen for the contest. According to Eppley, contestants in some heats were allowed to participate if they could catch a ball thrown in the air. Eppley said he thought this was unfair.

Taiwan cloud hangs over China voyage

PEKING (AP) — President Reagan will end a year-long chill in cultural relations and open the door for U.S. nuclear energy sales to China in a signing ceremony Monday, but differences over Taiwan cast a shadow as he prepared to leave for Shanghai.

The president and his wife, Nancy, took Sunday off to visit the ancient capital of Xian to see the 2,200-year-old site where an army of terra cotta soldiers was unearthed in 1974 near the tomb of China's first emperor.

After the signing and farewell ceremonies in Peking on Monday morning, the Reagans were to fly to Shanghai for an overnight stay highlighted by a tour of a joint U.S.-Chinese industrial plant and a visit to students and faculty at Fudan University.

Peking's complaints about U.S. arms sales to Taiwan, the offshore capitalist republic that claims to be the true government of China, intruded before the presidential party flew to Xian.

At a meeting with Secretary of State George P. Shultz, Chinese Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian said Washington is not reducing weapons sales to Taiwan fast enough and called for an "urgent solution."

In an ABC-TV interview, Shultz rejected the complaint and said the sales were "one way to be sure" the Communist Chinese did not invade the island.

Two days earlier, Premier Zhao Ziyang asked Reagan for a "considerable" reduction and early cessation of arms sales.

Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping was quoted Sunday as saying his summit with Reagan was very good and should boost economic ties.

But the Communist Party general secretary, Hu Yaobang, meeting with a Japanese political leader, quoted Deng as adding that Taiwan was the "root cause" of continuing

New Lebanese leader vows 'no mercy' on foes

BEIRUT (AP) — Prime Minister-designate Rashid Karami said Sunday his government's top priority will be to regain Israeli-occupied southern Lebanon and he vowed to have "no mercy" on anyone who tries to undermine his drive for peace.

The 62-year-old pro-Syrian politician also called for an international conference under the auspices of the United Nations to resolve the Middle East crisis and "restore to those who have been ousted from their homeland their legitimate rights," a reference to Palestinians.

In his first foreign affairs statement since his nomination last Thursday, Karami said Israel "should open the way for just settlement. Injustice results in instability and the rights of people should not be denied in any way."

Karami's remarks were broadcast live by the state radio. He spoke from his home in Tripoli, 50 miles north of Beirut. He had left the capital on Saturday after completing talks with parliamentary leaders on formation of a Cabinet.

Newspapers, radio stations and the state television all said the Sunni Moslem leader, prime minister for the 10th time, would announce formation of a half-Christian, half-Moslem Cabinet on Monday.

Christians have held more political power than Moslems since the 1940s when Lebanon won independence from France, despite the Moslems' increasing in number until they have become the majority. The National Pact of 1943 distributed government and legislative offices in the ratio of six Christians to five Moslems.

Karami officially takes office once Parliament approves a platform proposed by his Cabinet.

Marion inmates' fasts OK'd by judge

By John Racine
Staff Writer

A federal judge has ruled that three fasting inmates from Marion Federal Penitentiary can continue their hunger strike, as long as they remain "competent and conscious."

Judge William Beatty granted Leonard Peltier, Robert Wilson and Albert Garza a temporary restraining order until May 3 in U.S. District Court in Aiton on Thursday. The three have been fasting since April 10 to protest the prison's refusal to hold religious services, which were suspended last October after the stabbing deaths of two guards and an inmate.

Leonard Peltier Support Group spokesman David Baker said that the three would continue their "Lifefast" for as long as possible. He said that the fast would likely end if the Indians were allowed to practice some form of religion.

Jim Roberts, an attorney for the inmates, will file a motion for a preliminary injunction by Thursday. If that motion is not ready, Baker said, Judge Beatty will likely grant an extension of the restraining order.

He said the fact that all three men have fasted before was prominent in influencing the judge's decision. Peltier fasted for 34 days late last year amid rumors that arsenic was being brought into the maximum security facility.

Peltier, 39, ended his hunger strike for one day on Wednesday for fear that he would be injured or might die if bound to his bed and force-fed, which is a violation of his religious freedom, Baker said.

All three inmates are at the U.S. Medical Center for Federal Prisoners in Springfield, Mo. Peltier was moved there on April 22, and the other two were moved two days later.

Robert Wilson, 62, also known as Starling Deer, claimed that he was assaulted by a staff member at the Springfield facility.

Baker said his group was happy with the judge's decision, and with the fact that he recognized fasting as a "practice in many religions."

Baker said the three inmates will not be brought back to Marion before Thursday and will likely stay at the Springfield facility until the issue of allowing them to practice their religion is resolved.

He said Peltier might end his hunger strike if a partial reinstatement of religious freedom is allowed. Baker said that if spiritual advisers were allowed in, or if pipe ceremonies were permitted, then Peltier would probably end his hunger strike.

The hunger strike is the only way to have religious freedom restored, Baker said. He stressed that the strike was the only way the three could practice their religion.

Last week Peltier said, "I can't practice my religion. I have no useful purpose on earth. I haven't given up fighting for my religion."

Official says guards not thugs

By John Racine
Staff Writer

A lieutenant at Marion Federal Penitentiary said that prison guards are not uneducated, as stereotypes often make them out to be, but are friends and neighbors who are civic-minded.

"The people who work at the prison are also your friends and neighbors who may work as volunteer firefighters," said Rick Edenfield. "We are not quite the uneducated group that we are made out to be."

Edenfield, speaking at a press conference Friday to announce National Correctional Officer Week, said that the guards who work at the maximum security facility are trained to deal with virtually any situation.

The week-long observance, May 6-12, was established by a joint resolution of Congress on March 20.

Jerry Williford, who became warden on April 18, agreed that prison guards sometimes have a problem caused by stereotypes, which he said have been created by the media and dramatizations.

Williford said that the public's perception of guards is distorted even more when the prison is closed to the public. The Marion prison has been on 23-hour-a-day lockdown since late October, when two guards and an inmate were stabbed to death.

Edenfield said that to be a prison guard one must be a high school graduate and have either a four-year college degree or at least three years law enforcement experience.

Mayors of nine Williamson County towns and at least three county officials were on hand to laud prison guards and administrators for their work and to say they were thankful that the prison was located in Williamson County.

Marion Mayor Robert Butler pointed out that since the prison was constructed 20 years ago it has improved the county's economy. Edenfield said the prison has an annual payroll of $8.2 million.

He also said that most of a $1.5 million construction project now under way at the prison works its way back into the local economy.

Recognition by local officials is more important than that by the lawmakers who declared the week to honor the guards, Williford said, adding that the Marion facility was the toughest he had worked at.

Both Williford and Larry Hardin, president of the Marion guards' union and a guard at the prison for the past 16 years, received awards from the mayors and from Williamson County State's Attorney Randy Patchett.

All the mayors said that the residents of Southern Illinois were glad to have the prison in the area and were proud of the work done by the guards and administrators.

In a letter presented Thursday, Patchett said, "They (the guards) perform a valuable service to our society under hazardous conditions, and perform it with pride and professionalism."

Freight train kills illegal aliens

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A freight train plowed through a group of illegal aliens walking across a railroad trestle in the dark, forcing some to jump into a shallow creek 31 feet below and killing four of them. At least seven were injured.

As many as 50 aliens may have been on the bridge when the train approached late Saturday night at about 40 mph, said Kleberg County sheriff's dispatcher Jody Guerra.

A Border Patrol spokesman said the dead were a woman and three children.

Poll says mayor's popularity 50-50

CHICAGO (AP) — One year after Mayor Harold Washington took office, Chicagoans are evenly divided — largely along racial lines — on whether they would like him to seek a second term, a new poll said Sunday.

The telephone poll, conducted by the Gallup Organization, also indicated that Washington, the city's first black mayor, may be losing vital support among white voters. The poll of 1,002 Chicagoans showed that 44 percent of those surveyed would like Washington to seek re-election while 46 percent would not.

Judge, 3 others drown in accidents

By The Associated Press

Four people, including a circuit judge and a father and son, were killed in two unrelated weekend boating accidents in Southern Illinois, authorities said Sunday.

Judge Frank G. Schniederjorn, 42, of Effingham, was killed Saturday night after his boat ran up on a dam and he was thrown from the craft. About 100 miles away, three people, including Robert Walz, 30, and his 9-year-old son, Jason, both of the Brighton area, drowned Saturday night after their boat hit an object, sheriff's officials said. A third mar, James Sexton, 39, of Bethalto, also drowned, authorities said.

differences with Washington and Sino-U.S. relations had not reached maturity.

The initialing Monday of an agreement on nuclear energy cooperation could have a dramatic effect on bilateral trade, which totaled $4.4 billion last year.

Under negotiation since 1981, the agreement would permit American manufacturers such as Westinghouse and General Electric to compete for billions of dollars in reactor and component contracts.

Energy-short China plans to have 10,000 megawatts of nuclear power by the year 2000.

The agreement was delayed by Chinese reluctance to seek U.S. consent before transferring or reprocessing nuclear material.

The pact was secured as the president arrived last Thursday, and Reagan was to witness the initialing by U.S. Ambassador Arthur Hummel and Chinese science commissioner Jia Weiwei.

Premier Zhao spoke Friday of a "cooperative spirit" on both sides and said, "Finally we have found a solution which conforms to China's sovereignty as well as to the laws of the United States. I'm satisfied with it."

The sale of defensive weapons to Taiwan has obstructed U.S. relations with China ever since 1979, when Washington recognized the communist regime in Peking.

The Taiwan Relations Act of April 1979 permits "unofficial" U.S. contacts with Taiwan, including arms sales.

Nuclear waste shipment fuels debate

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - The train is scheduled to rumble across a Mississippi River bridge into Illinois in late May or June; the exact date is a closely guarded secret.

Its only cargo will be two 65-ton stainless steel cylinders holding one of the most dangerous substances known to man - spent fuel from a nuclear reactor. They will be headed for the nation's only active civilian site intended solely for storing spent nuclear fuel, a General Electric facility near Morris, Ill.

The planned shipment has rekindled a debate that in recent years has extended from the Illinois Statehouse to the U.S. Supreme Court. At issue is the safety of moving tons of the potentially deadly wastes along hundreds of miles of railroad or highway, some of it in heavily populated areas.

"This is a national problem, and yet it appears that Illinois may become the dumping ground for nuclear waste from across the nation," said Illinois Senate President Philip Rock. "I don't think we can afford to sit back and cross our fingers and hope for the best."

The shipment set for later this spring is to be the first of 30 train loads of spent nuclear fuel from the Cooper Nuclear Power Plant at Brownsville, Neb., south of Omaha. In all, 200 metric tons of the material is to be shipped from the plant to Morris over five years.

At Morris, in deep pools of water suffused with an eerie blue glow, more than 200 metric tons of spent nuclear fuel already is stored "temporarily."

Eventually, the federal government is to develop a long-term plan to store this material and other spent fuel, thousands of tons of it, that is now kept at power plants across the country.

But that plan, intended to keep the fuel safe from spills or accidents for the tens of thousands of years that it will remain dangerously radioactive, is acknowledged to be at least a decade away.

So as the nation's nuclear plants run out of temporary storage space for their spent fuel, some hope to turn to the Morris facility, which has enough room for 750 tons of spent fuel, or about five years' output from five large nuclear plants.

To reach Morris, about 70 miles southwest of Chicago, the train from Nebraska is to roll through nine Illinois counties and a handful of cities including Galesburg, with 37,000 residents, and Aurora, population 77,000.

And the prospect of that journey has spurred controversy. State lawmakers and environmental groups have been trying to erect legal roadblocks to shipments of spent fuel to Morris since 1980.

In that year, the state Legislature passed a measure banning the shipment of spent nuclear fuel into Illinois for storage. But a federal judge said the law was an unconstitutional obstacle to interstate commerce. A federal appeals court agreed, and the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear the state's appeal.

Lawmakers are now considering a bill that would require public hearings and a formal decision by the Illinois Commerce Commission before spent nuclear fuel could be shipped through the state. Foes of the measure, including railroads and the nuclear industry, say the hearing process could add a year to the time needed to get the shipments started.

Opponents also argue that new rules would simply add another layer of bureaucracy to what they say is already one of the most stringently regulated business activities in the nation. To support their claims that the shipments are safe, they say:

- In 600 rail and truck shipments of spent nuclear fuel to and from the Morris facility, there has never been an accident.

- In tests, prototypes of the $5 million containers that hold the nuclear fuel have been dropped onto steel punches, crashed into concrete walls at 80 mph, scorched in 1,400-degree fires and submerged in water for eight hours.

- Though the train's route through Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois is published, its schedule is kept secret to guard against sabotage.

- The train will travel between 10 mph and 35 mph, well below speed limits set by the Federal Railroad Administration.

Crash victim identified

A man killed in a car-motorcycle accident on Murphysboro Road has been identified as Michael Turnbull, 20, of Washington, D.C.

Police said Turnbull was a passenger on a motorcycle driven by David Compton, 21, of Carbondale Route 6.

Compton was traveling east on Murphysboro Road at 4:25 a.m. Saturday when his motorcycle struck an automobile driven by Tori M. Long of Carbondale. Long was attempting to turn east onto Murphysboro Road from Parrish Lane, police said.

Turnbull was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident. Compton is in stable condition at Carbondale Memorial Hospital. Long was treated at Memorial Hospital and released.

Turnbull's body remained unidentified until Sunday because no identification was found on the body. Carbondale police and SIU-C campus security circulated pictures of Turnbull on campus and in town in an attempt to identify him.

Police said Turnbull had been hitchhiking from the Midland Inn Tavern when he was picked up by Compton.

Amusement tax change merits public hearing

BAIT AND SWITCH is an old con game. The huckster draws in his mark with an attractive proposition, sets the hook, and sells him something he didn't expect to buy.

The City Council is planning its own well-intentioned version of the bait and switch in its plans to use tax money raised for one specific purpose for another.

The sales tax on hotel and restaurant receipts was the result of a battle fought in 1982 involving business people, the city and student government. The 1 percent tax on restaurants and 4 percent tax on hotel and motel receipts is less than originally proposed two years ago. The compromise was won partly as result of objections from students, on whom the tax on restaurants falls most heavily because they do most of the eating and drinking.

ORIGINALLY, MOST OF the money from the amusement tax was to be spent paying interest on $4.2 million worth of bonds sold to build a parking garage. The parking garage died with the downtown conference center project last December, and the city has two years of tax money and an understandably strong desire to spend it.

The council is considering an amendment to the original tax ordinance that would give the city wide leeway in how the money could be spent.

Finding another use for the money makes sense, but given the heated debate over the tax when it was originally passed, the council should schedule a public hearing to give the interested groups a voice in deciding how that money is spent.

GRANTED, THE MOST recent attempts to hold public hearings, on a water rate hike and the FY 84-85 budget, were met with a thundering silence from the public. But the council can't safely assume that an issue once as controversial as the amusement tax would be met with the same silence. And even if no one showed, the silence would at least give them a clear mandate to do what they wished with the money - without appearing like confidence men.

April is National Child Abuse Prevention Month. The greatest form of child abuse is, of course, legalized abortion which kills 1.5 million children yearly. Do your part to prevent this abuse to children through supporting a

Brantley blasts DE's election coverage

This letter is in response to several letters that appeared in the Daily Egyptian on April 24. First, the editorial: Regardless of the outcome of the elections, I really don't consider myself a "loser." You see, I can, after all this is over and done with, sit back and say I tried to bring about a change in student government. I consider a loser one who sits around and rags and complains about things and does nothing to try to correct them. By running for Undergraduate Student Organization president, I proved that I at least gave a damn and tried to correct the problems I saw in student government. Furthermore, you claim that I look foolish by not recognizing earlier that the polls in the Student Center were scheduled to close earlier than other ones. For one, your claim proves my opinion about your professionalism; it is nonexistent. Until the time the polls actually closed at the disputed time, most of us were led to believe that they would be open until 6:00 p.m. Now, you tell me how I am supposed to know the polls were going to close earlier than others, if the Election Commission didn't tell anyone until it was too late to do anything.

Now it's time to respond to Mr. Schrag's commentary. First of all, you are the last person to be preaching righteousness to others. All year

Leighton thanks backers, opponents

I would like to extend a hearty thank-you to every one of the Action Party candidates and backers. It was from these active supporters that we emerged victorious on April 18. It is people like these who have put encouragement and ambition into our hearts. One just has to appreciate the ideas and advice given as well as the hugs and pats on the back. It was through these cooperative efforts that we formed Action.

I would also like to thank my worthy opponent, Lamont Eric Brantley, and the Trojan Party long, you have done nothing to try to correct the problems of student government. You wait after the elections are over and problems occur that may endanger your hand-picked candidate's chances of getting into office before you say something of substance. If you really cared about student government and its effect on the students here, you would have used your position to offer both advice and constructive criticism all year long, rather than just after the elections are over. Furthermore, it is amazing how you tout the initiative of your pal Andy Leighton and not his shortcomings that could very well affect student government, should he become USO president. You neglected to tell your readers that it was your pal Andy Leighton that voted in favor of the athletics fee increase. It was also your pal who went up to Springfield and lectured the state legislature on how dumb it was for them to fund the MX missile. Unfortunately for Andy, the state has nothing to do with MX funding. Now, tell me, John, is this the kind of initiative you want? All throughout this election, I have made it a point to address the issues and steer clear of insults aimed at my opponent. However, the Daily Egyptian, allowing its editorial staff to write about any and everything without regard to its validity, is just as much to blame for problems here as student government is. I have no problems with reporting the facts, either good or bad, but it is the "reckless disregard" for the truth that you have practiced which I believe has not only hurt student government but SIU as well. -Lamont Erik Brantley, Senior, Political Science and Administrative Justice

POPULAR METHODS OF TORTURE:

Letters USO has responsibility to groups

This is a letter of awareness for future Undergraduate Student Organization finance commissions. This is also a warning for future student groups requesting funding.

As many people know, the USO has the responsibility of funding the 350 student groups at SIU-C. One of these student groups is Mobilization of Volunteer Effort.

On March 20 I appeared before the finance commission of the USO. The finance commission consists of a number of USO members. The body of students I appeared before was under the authority of Ron Janarek. At the hearing I requested funds for MOVE. Before I left I was told the funding bill for MOVE would be brought before the senate on April 18. The senate would consider the recommendation from Ron Janarek's commission and then vote on the funding bill.

I, as MOVE coordinator, was prepared to attend the April 18 senate meeting when the MOVE bill would be presented to the senate. Unfortunately, I did not attend this meeting, although I was planning to.

On April 13, an article appeared in the Daily Egyptian stating that MOVE was funded the night before by the senate. To say I was surprised and angered is an understatement. The issue here is responsibility. All that was needed was a phone call to me by a member of Ron Janarek's commission to tell me the date had been changed for the MOVE funding bill. This was not done. Working as closely with MOVE as I have, I wanted to be at this meeting. If there were any questions concerning funding, I could help clear up any confusion.

For future finance commissions, this letter is to inform you that you have a responsibility to the student groups you are listening to. What was needed in this case was more concern and commitment by this finance commission. -Mark Beveridge, Coordinator, Mobilization of Volunteer Effort

The boat made by the staff of the Obelisk II yearbook heads for the finish line. The boat, built to look like a backgammon board, had moveable pieces so the paddlers could play during the regatta.

Cardboard boat regatta draws wacky competitors

For the winners, it was a day to bask in the splendor of conquest. For the losers, it was time to call it a day and plan for next year. For everyone, it was a day to soak up some sun and watch contestants cruise to victory or sink in defeat.

For some, it was a day of surprises Saturday at the 11th Annual Great Cardboard Boat Regatta on Campus Lake. The biggest shock of the day was the defeat of Aldon Addington, faculty member in the School of Art. Addington's winning ways in the last few years have given him a reputation as a hands-down favorite who usually wipes up the lake with his opponents.

Addington, sponsored by Mary Lou's Restaurant, was humbled in the experimental boat division by first-place finisher Howard Lo, senior in engineering mechanics and materials, who attributed his win to good engineering practices.

Addington settled for third place, while his 10-year-old son Bryan taught Dad a thing or two by coming in second.

Before the race, Addington said, "This boat is longer, narrower and faster than last year's boat." However, he had to eat his words after the regatta. His boat, the Makanda Flyer III, didn't quite match up to the prowess of the Makanda Flyer II, the vessel that paddled him to victory three consecutive years before succumbing to a soggy retirement.

Another surprise was the failure of "Brand X," a propeller-powered boat made by Craig Raymon, a teaching assistant in the Design Department. The craft, which Raymon hailed as "a quantum leap in cardboard boat technology" before the race, did not live up to pre-race publicity and expectations of blistering speed. Of all the things that could go wrong during the race, the chain that powered the boat's propeller came off while driver Joel Cram pedaled furiously.

Other boaters in the field of about 150 seemed either deadly serious about the race or profoundly interested in drinking large amounts of alcohol.

Tim Foran, junior in marketing, and Scott Bell, sophomore in engineering, lounged in luau shirts and puffed on stogies while waiting to launch their boat made from 18 taped-up Rhineland beer cases.

"Last year we made one out of Stroh's cases, but we wanted to go up to a better beer this year," Foran said. The pair was able to maneuver their boat around the 200-yard course without it sinking, but did not fair well enough to proceed to the semi-finals.

"We were doing real good, but then I had to jump off the boat to save a drowning beer," Bell said.

As the races progressed, the wreckage of sunken or just plain mushy canoes and kayaks began to pile up in a graveyard of sorts on the shore near the boat docks.

Of the boats that survived the day, some of the more interesting ones included a huge backgammon barge complete with moveable pieces and dice, a Hawaiian Island raft with a palm tree, and several submarines made by the Egyptians Divers which were featured in an exhibition race.

"Everyone always jokes about going to see the submarine races - well, now you've seen one," said Richard Archer, originator of the regatta in 1974 and professor of comprehensive planning and design.

Fuzztones look, feel, sound like '60s

By Joe Valter
Staff Writer

Concert Review

Wearing garments such as leather jackets, pointed boots, a turtleneck, a paisley shirt and a miniskirt, the Fuzztones evoked the look, feel and sound of the '60s on the Shryock Steps Saturday night.

The Fuzztones' performance included songs such as "Blackout," "Love at Psychedelic Velocity," "The Witch," "Gotta Get Some" and The Count Five's classic "Psychotic Reaction."

Audience members frugged, jerked or just jumped up and down to the band's solid beat and hard-edged sound, characterized by distorted guitar and harmonic organ.

Organist Deb O'Nair described the Fuzztones' sound as not neo-psychedelic like Dream Syndicate and Rain Parade, but psycho-punk. The term "punk" didn't start with the Sex Pistols, O'Nair said.

"We're more like The Cramps," she said, "or The Chocolate Watch Band. Our image is more like The Cramps, probably."

Michael Jay, bass player, said The Cramps' sound is based more on '50s rhythm and blues and rockabilly than psychedelic.

"We draw more from early psychedelic and rock and roll," he said.

Rudi Protrudi, the lead vocalist and guitarist, said The Fuzztones formed two years ago because they did not care for the European techno-pop and disco sound that was in abundance in New York at that time.

"It's safe to say," Protrudi said, "that we were sick of the music coming around. We started this band because it was something we enjoyed."

Elan Portnoy, guitarist, said he and Jay met Protrudi, who brought with him some high-test LSD.

"Two hours later," he said, "we were gone." Then the idea for the band was born. Ira Elliot, the drummer, also met Protrudi in an offbeat manner. One day, Elliot stumbled into some garbage cans, and Protrudi was there and asked him to join the band.

"He liked the way it sounded," he said.

O'Nair, who was in another band with Protrudi called Tina Peel, said The Fuzztones are doing better than Tina Peel. The band even has a number of recordings out and a video, "The Witch."

O'Nair said The Fuzztones have a song on The Rebel Klad, a compilation LP on Sounds Interesting's independent label.

The band is on the second "Battle of the Garage Bands" LP, and has a single on Zulu Records.

O'Nair and the other band members agreed that the Fuzztones are doing better than their bands they have been in.

"We're doing well without much effort," O'Nair said.

Protrudi said with pride, "We're the banana smokin', paisley tokin' Fuzztones."

City to widen sidewalks to increase bike safety

By Paula J. Finlay
Staff Writer

Crossing busy streets to get from one bike path to another can be challenging - and even dangerous - for bicyclists in Carbondale, but plans are being made to improve this situation.

Four segments of sidewalks will be widened from 4 to 8 feet so that they can accommodate both pedestrians and bicyclists, Linda Gladson, city planner, said. Although the segments total less than a mile, they will act as connectors to help cyclists get from one street with designated bikeways to another such street, she said.

The city's bikeway network uses special lanes for bicycles on low-volume streets and a few bicycle sidewalks to connect the bikeway segments. Green signs are used to mark bike routes which run along the city streets.

Over the next three years about $4,300 from the city's capital improvement budget will be spent for the remaining sections of the bikeway. Gladson said. The city's engineering department must complete its study of the situation before construction can begin. New construction on the bikeway system will begin next year, with completion expected by 1987.

Planned this year is a segment on the south side of Walnut Street from the east end of the Eastgate Shopping Center to Lewis Lane, and another segment from Old West Main to Brook Lane.

Since city ordinance prohibits bicyclists from riding on pedestrian sidewalks, the widened sidewalks will be called pedestrian-bikeways.

Trial coverage changes rape reports

By Timothy Harper
Of the Associated Press

Prosecutors and rape counselors say the recent highly publicized barroom rape trial in Massachusetts has made some victims more likely to seek counseling but less likely to report the crime.

While authorities in many cities say they have seen no change in rape statistics, counselors say the case has had lingering effects, according to an informal Associated Press survey of court officials and rape crisis centers across the country.

"We've seen two trends," said Anne Pride, director of a rape counseling center in Pittsburgh. "First of all, because of the publicity surrounding the trial, we have seen a rather critical rise in our caseload. The other part of it is we absolutely are hearing from our clients a real resistance to reporting."

Dana Cayce, director of volunteer counselors at a San Francisco rape crisis center, said victims don't want to report rapes because they don't want to go through the courtroom experiences of the woman who reported that she had been attacked on a pool table in a bar in New Bedford, Mass.

Portions of the trial were televised last month as defense lawyers attempted to discredit her testimony.

"For women who are intimidated by the process," she said, "those who saw what happened would have their fears reinforced."

"Women now think they must be very cautious about whether they should report based on the experience of that woman," said Bonnie Buchele, a psychologist in Topeka, Kan. "The public opinion that was against her is very frightening to a woman who has been raped."

Even in cities that report no apparent backlash from the case — among them Seattle, Detroit, Milwaukee, Columbus, Los Angeles and Philadelphia — counselors say they are concerned that parts of the trial were televised.

"I would be very concerned if this became standard practice in a rape case," said Karen Bosley, director of a rape counseling center in Seattle. "The thing that makes it difficult is the thought of being put on the witness stand. It's one thing to do it before 25 people, but in the entire state it would make people feel like there's no way they're going to tell the details."

In New Bedford, rape counselors said every woman considering prosecuting a rapist has mentioned two fears.

"One has to do with the idea of their identity being exposed," said Elizabeth Bennett, a counselor. "The other has to do with realizing the dual trauma. The first trauma is the rape; the second trauma is prosecuting. People got to see a rape trial for the first time. It's a horrendous thing for a victim."

Some counselors, however, see benefits from the barroom rape case.

"It really has raised the issue clearly in people's minds about the way rape victims are treated," said Eileen Treacy, chairwoman of the New York City Advisory Task Force on Rape.

"More people now have an idea of what a rape victim goes through and an idea of what goes on in court. More might recognize the need for reforms," said Dean Kilpatrick, director of the Laboratory for the Study of Violent Behavior at the Medical University of South Carolina.

Kilpatrick also said the convictions in the case had sent out the message that the men did not have a right to attack the woman, no matter what her reputation.

"What I think is important," agreed Lisa Dubay, a Washington rape counselor, "is it sends an important message that it doesn't really matter what the woman was doing or where she was. The defendant can still be convicted."

"In that case, at least there was justice," said Debbie Gaynor, a rape counselor in Honolulu. "Ten years ago, it would have been unlikely there would have been a conviction. In a case like this, it brings things out to the public. In the past, it's been such a private crime."

The trial was covered by many reporters, and portions of the proceedings were broadcast live on Cable News Network.

Despite a state rape shield law that prevented the jury from hearing any evidence about the woman's past sexual behavior, viewers and readers learned a number of things about her when she took the stand.

"For example, the defense attempted to discredit her by pointing out she was an unmarried mother on welfare and that she had been drinking at the bar before the rape. The defendants also testified that she had wanted to have sex with one of the men.

Swine nutritionist to take China trip

Robert D. Arthur, a swine nutritionist, will go to the People's Republic of China in May to help the Chinese raise better pork.

Arthur said his goal will be to show swine raisers in China that feeding their swine grain instead of grasses and plant material will increase the quality of their animals by making the swine more economical for the Chinese.

Arthur said China's climate and terrain does not allow for an abundant grain crops. Most grain produced there must be used for human consumption, Arthur said.

"We hope the difference is obvious enough that they'll turn to the United States to increase their supplies of grains for livestock feeding. The potential is staggering," Arthur said.

As boys, they made a pact to share their fortunes, their loves, their lives.
As men, they shared a dream to rise from poverty to power.
Forging an empire built on greed, violence and betrayal, their dream would end as a mystery that refused to die.

FEST from Page 1

"I WAS BROKE and I was hungry and they made it a contest of athletic skill rather than what the event was supposed to be," Epplay said.

But Kyle Englert, sophomore in political science, was the big winner of the day. Englert won the WIDB-sponsored "Laugh Like Larry 'Bud' Melman" contest. Englert said later that it was "kind of weird" and that he didn't expect to win it.

For his effort Englert received a special 2nd anniversary Latenight with David Letterman key chain and other assorted prizes.

Second place went to John Raddatz, senior in math education.

John Bernstein, WIDB production director, said he was pleased with the contest. He added that a video tape of the contest will be made available to the Latenight show.

EIGHT SIU-C police officers were on duty Saturday directing traffic and controlling the crowds at the Cardboard Boat Regatta.

Lt. Marvin Braswell said Sunday that there were no arrests and that everything connected with Springfest went very well despite the crowd's heavy consumption of alcohol.

There were few injuries during the day, according to Alan Duvall, an orderly at the Health Service. A motorcycle burn and a couple of scraped knees were the only injuries, although Duvall said many people sought the aid of suntan lotions.

THE HEAT, which may have helped to wring some of the rowdiness out of the crowd, also gave a great excuse for drinking or jumping into the fountain in the center of the Old Main Mall.

Tom Cimino, sophomore in radio and television, who seemed to have been doing both throughout much of the day, fell out of a tree earlier at the Cardboard Boat Regatta. Cimino was requested to leave his lookout point above Campus Lake prior to the beginning of the races.

"This is the best weekend of my life in Carbondale," Cimino said as he climbed out of the fountain.

Spokesmen for Pinch Penny liquors and other liquor stores said business was "crazy" on Saturday.

ONE OF THE most humorous contests was the "Jeopardized Trivia" table, where answers were given and contestants were asked to provide the question. Some examples included:

- Q. When will Carbondale lose its party reputation?
- A. When the Cubs win the pennant.
- Q. Name a legal downer.
- A. A Barry Manilow concert.

Funeral for music professor set

A memorial service will be held Wednesday for retired SIU-C music professor Roderick Gordon, who died April 25 of cardiac arrest in St. Louis following a brief illness.

Services will be held Wednesday at 7 p.m. at Unitarian Fellowship, 520 N. Davis St.

Gordon is survived by his wife, Janet, and two sons.

Gordon instructed about 9,000 SIU-C students in the general education course he designed and taught for 18 years, "Acoustics of Music." He was remembered as a man very interested in and a good friend to his students.

As the faculty adviser of the Sigma Kappa sorority "he was like a grandfather" who would offer help and support whenever anyone needed it, said Sandy Suchomski, Sigma Kappa president.

"He was one of those people who you meet once in a lifetime," said Dianne Meyer, Sigma Kappa faculty liaison. Meyer said Gordon was a good friend, and that in his class, taught in Lawson Hall, he preferred to show students acoustics principles rather than to lecture to them.

Gordon enjoyed working with students. Meyer said he worked with new students and was a mentor in an Office of Student Development orientation program.

Gordon came to SIU-C in the mid-1960s after teaching at the universities of Wisconsin at Madison, Michigan, Illinois, Boston and North Texas State.

He was on the radar research staff at Harvard University and taught electronics to military personnel during World War II. He also performed music, and was the principle oboist with the Madison, Wis., and Schenectady, N.Y., symphony orchestras.

In addition to his music Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin-Madison, Gordon extensively studied electrical engineering, electronics and physics at Wisconsin and Harvard. He was a member of Sigma Xi scientific research honorary society and the National Defense Research Council during World War II.

Gordon, 68, retired last summer and was an emeritus faculty member of SIU-C. He was recognized in Outstanding Educators of America and in Who's Who in the South and Southwest.

The memorial service has been planned by George Hussey, a professor of music, who said Gordon was primarily a music educator who will be remembered for his personal interest in students. The family has asked that memorial contributions be made to the American Heart Association.

Illinois oil industry mushrooms as drilling rivals coal and corn

By Mary Bety Sammons
Associated Press Writer

Illinois, widely regarded as the nation's leader in agricultural exports and coal reserves, is busy pumping out a new image as one of the nation's leading oil producers.

Billed as "Little Texas," Illinois is rapidly becoming a reservoir for the most profitable new oil fields, ranking as the fifth largest oil and gas drilling state among the nation's 33 oil-producing states.

This may come as a surprise to people who commonly link the billion-barrel industry with Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Colorado and the southern part of the country, but not to hundreds of oil wildcatters nationwide who are scurrying to Illinois to claim a piece of the estimated $885 million pie.

"They're (oil prospectors) are coming in by the plane loads," said George Lane, a petroleum engineer for the Mount Vernon-based Illinois Department of Mines and Minerals, the regulatory agency for the industry. "It sounds hard to believe, but oil drilling is a depressed industry in the Southwestern states right now."

The oil industry is attracted to Illinois because its shallow wells - 200 feet to 4,000 feet deep - are easier and considerably less expensive to mine than deeper wells - 13,000 to 25,000 feet - found in the Southwest, Lane said.

"In Illinois you can drill 10 to 15 wells for the price of one in Texas," said Lane, adding that it costs about $25,000 to drill a well of 600 feet or less, compared with about $100,000 to complete the deeper wells found in the Southwest.

Tom Fales, chairman of the board of Excalibur Oil Inc. in South Barrington, is one of those prospectors convinced the "sweet crude" can be found here.

Running the base operations and investment business from its northwest suburban headquarters, Excalibur does its oil drilling in 57 wells in Southern Illinois, commonly referred to as the Illinois Basin. There, an estimated 340 million barrels of oil exist in known reserves and another estimated 350 million barrels in untapped crude.

Oil production in Illinois dates back to the early 1900s when the state produced twice as much oil each year as Texas from its small-scale operations, said Lelan Russell, a spokesman for the Illinois Oil and Gasoline Association. Shortly after that, the industry began to fizzle and oil production in Illinois decreased dramatically until two years ago.

That's when a Mount Sterling real estate man, Ned Price, began to explore seriously modern-day mining prospects in the state. Using old state oil maps, Price and his associates uncovered a wealth of untapped wells. It wasn't long before prospectors from across the state and the country swarmed to Southern Illinois for a piece of the action.

Today, Illinois produces 75,000 to 125,000 barrels a day, according to Russell. At $29 a barrel, that adds up to a $36,250 a day or $13 million a year.

By the end of 1982, one year after the industry was rediscovered in Illinois, 2.3 million barrels of oil were produced in the state and in 1983, 2.4 million barrels were extracted. At the beginning of 1983, there were 27,660 producing oil and gas wells in the state and those numbers are expected to keep rising through the remainder of the 1980's, said Russell.

The oil drilling activity is centered in Southern Illinois, with 44 of the 102 counties in the state producing oil or gasoline in an area spanning 668,000 acres, Russell said.

Two Southern Illinoisans die in car-truck head-on collision

STE. GENEVIEVE, Mo. (AP) - Two Southern Illinoisans and a Missouri man were killed and three others were injured in a head-on collision early Sunday between a car and a pickup truck in eastern Missouri, authorities said.

The Missouri Highway Patrol identified the victims as Ellen A. Bowers, 36, of Grand Tower; Carol A. Williams, 35, of Orient; and David J. LaRose, 23, of Ste. Genevieve. The women were passengers in the car; LaRose was a passenger in the pickup truck. Injured in the accident were the driver of the car, Donald W. Sandefur, 25, of Marion; a third passenger in his car, Lois V. Gale, 45, of Gorham; and the driver of the pickup truck, Clement Ray Naeger, 21, of Ste. Genevieve.

Sandefur and the woman were in serious condition at St. Louis University Hospital. Naeger was in satisfactory condition at Ste. Genevieve Memorial Hospital.

A giant Loch Ness Monster that floated out from the Thompson Point cove during one of the heats may have been built by students from the Engineering Department, Archer said.

"There were rumors they might pull a prank during the regatta," he said.

Archer said the event, which has developed into a grudge competition between the Design and Engineering departments, gives students a chance to use their minds creatively. This year's number of entries was the most ever, he said, and the crowd of well over 8,000 was the biggest yet.

Roger Brunmet, a teacher at Odin High School, was the winningest competitor of the day, taking home trophies for first place in the kayak and canoe division and in the "on-the-spot" category.

Brunmet and Gerald Lively, who took second in the kayak and canoe division, have won or placed second in that class for the last five years. This year, Brunmet kayaked the competition in a kayak sponsored by Centralia Container.

Other winners at the regatta included:
High school challenge race -

First place, Doug Stephenson from Odin High School.

Vogue Award - Tim Maring of Makanda.

Team Spirit Award - Egyptian Divers club.

Most Creative Use of Corrugated Cardboard - Scott Imhoff, freshman in design, for his truncated canoe.

Titanic Award (most spectacular sinking) - Andy Gruber, senior in the school of technical careers. Gruber's gear mechanism separated from his boat's pontoons before he went down in the middle of a race.

Sherry Chisenhall, left, and Bruce Kirkham have been chosen to be editors of the Daily Egyptian for fall and summer, respectively.

Daily Egyptian editors named for summer, fall

Daily Egyptian staff members Bruce Kirkham and Sherry Chisenhall have been named student editors for the summer and fall semesters, respectively.

Kirkham, 24, of Rushville, has worked on the DE for two semesters covering city government and student government.

"We'll continue to cover city and Jackson County events and maintain extensive coverage at SIU-C," Kirkham, a senior in journalism, said.

Kirkham wants to add more investigative reporting and increased feature coverage. Breaking in the twelve staff members who will be joining the newspaper at the beginning of the summer term will be a challenge, Kirkham, a senior in journalism, said.

Chisenhall, a junior with a double major in journalism and political science, has worked three semesters at the DE as sports writer, sports editor, and associate editor. Last summer, she worked as an intern for the Harrisburg Daily Register.

Chisenhall said she is looking forward to working with a "fresh batch of people with fresh ideas" when nine more staff members begin at the DE in the fall. A stronger concentration in human interest stories from the SIU-C area will be taken, she said.

"We need to be more aware of what's going on in our own backyard," the 20-year-old Troy native said. "There are many people at SIU-C who have something to say."

Student editors are selected by the Daily Egyptian's Policy and Review Board.

During the summer semester, the DE will be published Tuesday through Friday, beginning the first Tuesday of the term.

Peltier group to present film

The Leonard Peltier Support Group will present "The Great Spirit in the Hole," a one-hour PBS program on the practice of Indian religion in American prisons, 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Wesley Foundation.

The program discusses the type of religious freedom Peltier sought when he fasted two weeks beginning April 10.

Unclaimed lost items given to charity after six-month wait

By Terry Kownick
Student Writer

Textbooks, watches, I.D.'s, purses, checkbooks, keys and clothing are just a few of the types of items turned in each day at the lost and found service, located at the Information Desk on the first floor of the Student Center.

Whenever possible, owners of articles that have been found are contacted by phone or mail, according to Gloria Schweinberg, main desk attendant. Items such as wallets, purses, checkbooks and textbooks that contain identification are not always claimed by their owners. Once the owners of items have been contacted, they have two weeks to claim their belongings before the service discards them.

"If owner identification can't be established, the recovered article will be kept at the Information Desk for a period of three months," Schweinberg said. "The item will be kept in storage for three additional months before being discarded."

Items that have not been claimed in six months go to one of four places, Schweinberg said. The items are distributed to either the Elks Club, Eyes for the Needy, Hill House - Oakdale House or the Women's Center.

Jewelry is kept indefinitely, however. Mildred Porter, supervisor of Information Services, said the lost and found service has jewelry items dating back to 1964.

Schweinberg said some of the unusual items turned in include crutches, tambourines and even plastic containers of sand. Hats, gloves, scarves and other items of clothing are the articles most frequently turned in.

People who have lost something should first retrace their steps to try to find it. If that fails, they should contact the Information Desk at 453-5351, or in person, and give a complete description of the lost article along with the date and location where it was believed lost.

Faculty dancers lacked pro polish

By Terry Levecke
Staff Writer

"Dancescapes," the faculty dance concert Friday at Shryock Auditorium, exhibited several styles of dance and creative choreography, but the execution of the concert lacked professional polish.

The show exhibited several themes and dance styles. "Egyptian Light Moon," choreographed by a dance class studying abstract movement, was one of the most interesting pieces of the show. Three dancers were enclosed in thin foam to portray creatures from the dawn of man.

As the creatures were "born" from their foam enclosures, metallic spandex costumes helped portray rubber-like creatures. The dance utilized a collage of audio sounds to create a mood of confusion that lead to the destruction of man. The dance evolved from images of the landscape of Southern Illinois and its inhabitants, according to the concert program.

"Chiaroscuro" by Jeff Gurley utilized long, flexible poles to create abstract images. Linda Kostalik began the dance by strolling onto the stage from the audience miming everyday activities while contemplating love.

The dance progressed into erotic movements and abstract manipulation of the poles, ending with Gurley rotating with the poles seemingly spiked through his body. His movements created a stark image, perhaps of St. Sebastian.

Instead of music, a script was read throughout the dance, which at times made it difficult to concentrate on both the audio and the dancers.

SIU-E's J. Calvin Jarrel performed a graceful solo, "One Familiar With the Night," which portraying a bat in nocturnal activity. His physical strength was demonstrated by his supporting himself on one hand while keeping his body only inches off the floor.

The dance was highlighted with dramatic lighting and heavy shadows.

"Sweet Champaign," choreographed by Sallie Idoine, was a lively show-piece characterizing four songs by Leon Redbone. The choreography told the story of the songs, but some of the ensemble work was sloppy and lacked definition.

"I Hate A Man Like You" was the best-performed dance in the four-song piece. Venessa Evans took out her aggression toward the opposite sex on Angie Bergsneider, who portrayed the man in the dance. Orna Frankl also performed in this dance.

The ensemble work in "Sweet Champaign," however, was extremely sloppy and looked as if the dancers could have used a few more rehearsals before the performance. At times it was difficult to determine whether the dancers were trying to dance in synchronicity.

performed pieces was a classical dance, "Albion a quatre pas 1577," choreographed by Linda Kosciuk and danced by Jeff Gurley, Winifred Haun, Keith Haberstroh and Cynthia Piwtorsk.

Haun performed a beautiful, graceful solo and a duet by he and Gurley was the most well-done piece of the concert. The two dancers were in complete synchronicity as they conveyed a sense of communication that should run through all dancers, but was lacking in many of the concert's other pieces.

Winning lottery ticket lost in holdup

CHICAGO (AP) - A 20-year-old man who selected an Instant Lottery ticket worth $100,000 and put it in his shoe for safekeeping was robbed of the ticket before he could get home, authorities said Sunday.

Nassar I. Nassar said he bought the ticket Saturday at the South Side grocery store where he worked and realized it was worth $100,000 after scratching away at the ticket surface to reveal three matching numbers.

Smaller cash winnings can be paid by the ticket seller, but Nassar had to present the ticket to a lottery office on Monday to claim the bigger prize.

"I screamed. I didn't know what to do," said Nassar. "I was so happy."

"I called my mother and she said to watch out. I grabbed my jacket and said to my boss, 'I quit.'"

Nassar tucked the ticket in his shoe and headed for home.

But he assumes somebody heard him talking about his winnings.

He said that when he got off a bus, two men followed him. As he veered into an alley near his home, a car with four more men turned in, too.

The six men approached him and demanded the ticket. Nassar told police they were armed with an automatic pistol, a knife and a screwdriver.

"I was sweating. I didn't know what to do," Nassar said. But when they threatened him, Nassar pulled the ticket from his shoe and surrendered it.

Nassar recalled seeing one of the men in the grocery in the past, but could not remember if the man was in the store when he bought his ticket.

Lottery officials have been warned about the ticket.

Greeley given award by GPSC

In a resolution recognizing her achievements as president of the Graduate and Professional Student Council, Ann T. Greeley, a doctoral candidate in psychology, was awarded the first Deborah J. Brown Award on Wednesday.

The Brown award, named after a former Graduate Student Council president, cited Greeley's "unselfish and outstanding contributions" to the GPSC and her ability to solicit student input and provide relevant, unbiased information on issues.

Greeley, who served as GPSC president for 15 months, was also commended for her integrity and sensitivity in service, in addition to her articulate representation of graduate concerns to the SIUC administration, the Board of Trustees and the Illinois Legislature. The award was presented by the GPSC Executive Board.

A resolution was also passed recognizing GPSC Vice president Dan Venturi, a master's degree candidate in accounting and a third-year law student, for his prudent management of GPSC funds.

While he was GPSC vice president, Venturi arranged for additional financial support for University-wide events and for the purchase of a word processor for the GPSC.

Panthers lose fourth straight

By The Associated Press

Quarterback Brian Sipe ran for one touchdown and passed for another Sunday as the New Jersey Generals handed the Michigan Panthers their fourth consecutive United States Football League defeat.

Sipe scored on a 1-yard bootleg run and threw two yards to tight end Jeff Spek for a touchdown as the Generals defeated the Panthers 31-21 before a crowd of 50,908 at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J.

In other USFL games Sunday, Birmingham trounced Denver 31-14 and Oakland edged Chicago 17-13.

The Panthers, the defending league champions, fell behind 24-14 at the half as the Generals went on to boost their record to 8-2 to remain one game behind first-place Philadelphia.

Safety Gregory Johnson recovered a blocked punt in the end zone for New Jersey's first score, and he later intercepted a pass thrown by Michigan quarterback Bobby Hebert. Gary Barbaro and Kerry Justin also intercepted Hebert, who was sacked four times.

New Jersey halfback Herschel Walker was held to 44 yards on 12 carries, but he did score on a 2-yard run.

Michigan opened the scoring on John Williams' 17-yard run in the first period and Hebert scored on a 3-yard bootleg run to knot the score at 14-14.

In Chicago, rookie Eric Jordan rushed for 186 yards and two touchdowns in the first start of his professional career to lead Oakland over Chicago. The victory snapped a 10-game Oakland losing streak.

With Jordan leading the way, including an 80-yard TD run on Oakland's first play from scrimmage, the invaders set a USFL team rushing record of 300 yards. Jordan also scored on a 46-yard run late in the third quarter, but suffered a slight hamstring pull and left the game.

Going into Sunday's game, Jordan, from Purdue, had carried the ball only 17 times for 103 yards. Against the Blitz, Jordan carried the ball 13 times before leaving the game with a hamstring injury.

In Denver, Joe Cribbs ran for 110 yards, becoming the first 1,000-yard rusher this season in the USFL, and also scored on a 50-yard TD pass play with Cliff Stoudt to lead Birmingham over the Denver Gold.

The victory, before a crowd of 35,262, was Birmingham's ninth straight, while Denver suffered its second straight loss.

On Friday, Philadelphia blanked New Orleans 35-0, Memphis defeated Pittsburgh 17-7 and Jacksonville stopped Oklahoma 34-6. Saturday's games saw Tampa Bay down Washington 37-19, while San Antonio nipped Arizona 24-23.

Monday night, Los Angeles will be at Houston.

Men golfers finish 5th of 24 at Drake Relays

The SIU-C men's golf team finished fifth among 24 teams Thursday and Friday at the Drake Relays Golf Invitational. SIU-C shot a 936.

After leading through the first two rounds Thursday, Saluki Scott Briggs fell off and finished third with a 226. Briggs shot a 70 in the second round, the tournament's low score. John Schaefer took fifth with a 227 and was the only player to break 80 on the final day.

Other Saluki finishers were

J.D. Tomlinson's 237, Jay Sala's 247 and Bobby Pavelonis' 250.

The invitational took place at the Wakonda Country Club and Echo Valley Country Club. The Wakonda course is one of the top-rated golf courses in Iowa and the most difficult, SIU-C Coach Mary Beth McGirr said.

Central Iowa won the invitational with a 920. It was followed by Iowa State's 925, Kansas' 928 and the University of Minnesota-Duluth's 932.

Petry, Gibson lead Tiger attack

DETROIT (AP) - Detroit's Dan Petry came within four outs of a no-hitter and Kirk Gibson drove in three runs as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Cleveland Indians 6-1 Sunday.

Petry, 3-1, did not give up a hit until there were two out in the eighth inning when George Vukovich doubled. Willie Hernandez came in to pitch the ninth and yielded Cleveland's only run on a walk and a double by Julio Franco. Petry walked two and struck out seven.

Gibson drove in two runs with a double in Detroit's three-run third off right-hander Dan Spillner, 0-1.

After striking out Andre Thornton to start the second, Petry walked Pat Tauler. Ron Hassey then grounded out and Tauler got to third on a wild pitch by Petry. Petry walked Brook Jacoby but then struck out Vukovich to end the threat.

With one out in the Detroit third, Tom Brookens reached on a throwing error by Cleveland shortstop Franco. Lou Whitaker then walked, and Gibson doubled in both runners. Gibson went to third on an error and scored on Lance Parrish's double.

Brookens walked in the fifth, went to third on a single by Whitaker and scored on Gibson's single. Dave Bergman and Brookens hit RBI singles in the eighth.

Softballers swept on the road

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

The SIU-C softball team was swept Friday at Indiana State and Saturday at Illinois State to complete a disappointing conference season.

The four losses dropped the Salukis' record to 9-18 overall and 3-10 in Gateway Conference play.

SIU-C went into the weekend with only one pitcher -- sophomore Eileen Maloney -- as Sunny Clark stayed home with a strained lower back. Clark is still out indefinitely, according to SIU-C Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer, and may not be ready for the Gateway tournament, which begins Thursday. The Salukis will close their regular season at home Monday, with a 2 p.m. doubleheader against SIU-Edwardsville.

Maloney, who has rarely pitched more than one game per weekend, was on the mound in every inning this weekend. She pitched well enough to win one game, had another decent outing and was sunk by big innings in the other two games.

The Salukis lost 4-3 and 1-0 at Indiana State, and were beaten 7-0 and 6-4 at Illinois State.

SIU-C dropped both games at Indiana State in the late innings. In the opener, SIU-C tied it in the seventh but then lost in the eighth inning. The Salukis had tied it when Kelly Nelis tripled and Kelly Lebio bunted her home.

Lehto's RBI sacrifice capped a game-long comeback by the Salukis, who trailed 3-0 after one inning. The Salukis made three errors in the first inning to help give Indiana State their lead.

Nelis, Chris Brewer and Toni Grounds each had two hits, and Grounds had a pair of runs batted in. Maloney allowed seven hits.

Maloney's best game came in the nightcap, when she had the Sycamores shut out until the seventh. The Salukis weren't scoring either though, and lost when the Sycamores got three singles and a run in the seventh.

Against Illinois State, one of the best hitting teams in the conference, Maloney had more difficulty, allowing 26 hits in both games. In the opener, the Redbirds got three runs in the first inning and coasted to a 7-0 win, while SIU-C could manage just two hits.

The Salukis had 11 hits in the nightcap and led 4-0 after two innings, but Illinois State scored six runs on seven hits in the third. Five of the seven hits came after two batters were out.

"That's Eileen's problem," Brechtelsbauer said. "She gives up a whole bunch of hits in one inning."

Kittle homers lead White Sox past Red Sox

CHICAGO (AP) - Ron Kittle drove in five runs with two tremendous home runs, including one onto the roof, and the Chicago White Sox snapped a five-game losing streak Sunday with a 6-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Kittle capped a three-run first with a two-run homer that hugged the foul line and landed on the roof in left field. He smashed his sixth homer of the year into the upper deck in the third inning after Greg Walker and Greg Luzinski had singled.

Both blows came off rookie pitcher Al Nipper, 0-1, who was a last-minute starter after Dennis Boyd was sidelined with the flu.

White Sox right-hander, Richard Dotson, 3-2, worked into the ninth, scattering eight hits, and was nicked for two unearned runs in the first as the result of two errors by second baseman Julio Cruz.

Jerry Remy and Dwight Evans both reached on successive errors by Cruz. Remy scored on a single by Mike Easler and Evans scored as Jim Rice bounced into a double play.

Marc Hill doubled in the Chicago first and scored on a single by Luzinski before Kittle hit his homer on the roof. The Red Sox argued the ball was foul, but umpire Mike Reilly ruled it had gone out of the park in fair territory.

Boston added a run in the second on singles by Reid Nichols and Ed Jurak and Glenn Hoffman's infield out. The Red Sox scored their fourth run in the eighth when Easler singled, went to second on an infield out and scored on Rich Gedman's single.

Expos dump
Cardinals, end losing streak

MONTREAL (AP) - Charlie Lea and Gary Lucas teamed up on a six-hitter and Pete Rose drove in a run and scored another to help the Montreal Expos snap a three-game losing streak with a 6-2 win Sunday over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Lea pitched shutout ball through seven innings before leaving in the eighth with no out and the bases loaded. Lucas walked Lonnie Smith to force in one run and another scored on David Green's double-play grounder.

Lea, 4-1, walked four and struck out four in posting his third straight triumph. The Expos' pitching was helped by four double plays.

The Expos staked Lea to a 2-0 lead in the second. Rookie Argenas Salazar, hitting .152 entering the game, drove in Tim Wallach with the first run by lining an RBI triple into left-center field. Wallach had opened the inning against starter Danny Cox, 2-2, with a single.

With two out, Rose singled sharply into left field to score Salazar.

In the fourth, Salazar was hit on the right wrist by a Cox pitch. He left the game for precautionary X-rays.

Rose made it 3-0 in the fifth after a leadoff single. He moved to second on Bryan Little's sacrifice bunt, took third on an infield out and scored on Gary Carter's single to left.

The Expos broke the game open in the seventh with RBI singles by Andre Dawson, Wallach and Chris Speier.

SIU-C's Mike Blumhorst was safe after moving game of Saturday's double-header against first base to third on a passed ball in the first Bradley at Abe Martin Field.

order double play grounder to second baseman Steve Blietz, but the ball went beneath Blietz' glove, allowing Finley to score.

Terry Jones' tap to first was bobbled by Eric Chapman, who got Jones at first but allowed Bridges to score. Mike Blumhorst then collected SIU-C's only hit of the inning, scoring Robert Jones. The Salukis scored three runs in the inning and cruised the rest of the way.

In the opener, the Salukis scored five unearned runs en route to the 6-5 win. Creighton made four errors, including a wild throw by third baseman Alex Ojeda in the sixth inning which allowed Steve Boyd to score the deciding run from second. Boyd had doubled to lead off the inning.

Wooden, who entered in the fifth with a 5-4 lead, allowed a game-tying single by Ojeda, but stymied Creighton in the last two innings to collect his first win. Bluejay ace Dave Hartnett, 5-2, was the tough-rock loser in the nightcap.

An RBI single by Terry Jones and a two-run double by Boyd in first, along with a run-scoring triple by Bridges in the second, staked starter Lee Meyer to a three-run lead. But Meyer's five walks led to his exit in the fifth.

In game one Saturday, Bockhorn got a lift from Boyd, who threw out four base-runners. He picked off Ernie Ojeda from second base to end the game after Bockhorn struck out Alex Ojeda. The twin-killing preserved SIU-C's 2-1 lead and improved Bockhorn's record to 4-5.

SIU-C scored its runs in the third, on an RBI single by Blumhorst and a wild pitch by starter and loser Jeff Kopyta. Bridges and Terry Jones made back-to-back outstanding plays in the fourth to limit a Creighton impending rally to one run.

In Saturday's nightcap, Koch, 3-1, was admittedly shaky, but cruised until the seventh with a 2-0 lead. The Bluejays then touched him for a run and loaded the bases for Tim Osgood, and Jones brought in Wooden.

Osgood rapped an apparent sacrifice fly to Finley in center. Blietz raced across the plate for what looked like the tying run, but Jones called for an appeal at third, suspecting Blietz of leaving the bag too soon. The third base umpire thumbed him out, completing the double play and ending the game.

The Creighton players charged out of the dugout toward the umpire to protest the call.

"It has to be flagrant for an umpire to end a game on a call like that," said Creighton Coach Jim Hendry. "No way was it flagrant."

"As I saw it, he took a step off a little soon," said Jones. "Just a big break."

"We're getting the good breaks at the right time," said Blumhorst, a senior who has watched SIU-C get hot in the late stages of the season before. "Sometimes it takes this long for a team to learn the things itchy is trying to teach us."

"Maybe the breaks are evening out. We're not as bad a team as the record indicates."

Netters finish 3rd in Gateway

The SIU-C women's tennis team relinquished its stronghold in the Gateway Conference as it finished third in the Gateway tournament this past weekend at Wichita, Kan.

Wichita State won the title with 56 points and Drake took second with 50 points. SIU-C beat out Southwest Missouri State for third with 36 points, while Southwest racked up 30. Bradley took fifth, 21 points; Illinois State sixth, 20; Western Illinois seventh, 16; Northern Iowa eighth, 8.5; Eastern Illinois ninth, 6.5; and Indiana State, 0.5.

A win in the regular round was worth two points, while a consolation win was worth 0.5 points.

The Salukis won the first Gateway tournament last year, and have won all 19 conference dual matches the last two seasons.

SIU-C's Mary Pat Kramer, at No. 3 singles, was the lone Saluki to win a title, although Maureen Harney, No. 4 singles, won the consolation title. All three SIU-C doubles teams lost in the semifinals to the eventual champions, while three singles players lost to the title winner in their respective flights.

"We just came up against the good teams, the good people too soon," Auld said. "We didn't get everybody advanced in the singles as far as we thought they would."

Kramer was the top seed in the No. 3 singles flight, and after a first-round bye she recorded three wins to claim the title. She beat Southwest's Helen Crump in the title match 7-6 (7-5), 6-2. Kramer was down 2-5 in the first set before bouncing back. Last year, Kramer finished second in No. 3 singles.

Harney lost her first match after a bye, but rebounded to record three wins to claim the consolation bracket. She knocked off Northern Iowa's Maria McDonough 6-3, 6-3 in the consolation championship.

SIU-C's No. 6 singles Amanda

Allen lost to Wichita State's Eiran Swart 2-6, 3-6 in the title match.

The Salukis' Alessandra Molinari, No. 1 singles, and Stacy Sherman, No. 5 singles, lost in the semifinals. Molinari fell to Sandy Sadler, who won the title, 4-6, 6-1, 3-6. Drake's Wendy Olson beat No. 1 seed Sherman 4-6, 6-2, 6-0. Olson also beat Wichita State's Sally Webber, No. 2 seed, en route to winning the title.

Heidi Eastman was the only Saluki who did not win a singles match, losing both her matches. She was eliminated from play in the consolation round by Bradley's Lisa Pettit in a close match, 6-4, 4-6, 5-7. Eastman was bumped into the consolation round when she lost to Drake's Jean Lettner, who was top seeded.

Molinari and Eastman lost in No. 1 doubles to Saddler and Jill Braendle 6-7, 6-7. Sherman and Harney lost to Kathy and Patti Jablonski of Drake, 3-6, 0-6 in No. 2 doubles. Allen and Kramer lost to Swart and Gloria Orue 1-6, 4-6.

Shot putter hits qualifying mark

Rhonda McCausland was hoping for a second chance after finishing a disappointing 18th out of 20 in the shot put at the NCAA indoor championships in March.

She will get her second chance after qualifying for the NCAA outdoor championships with a 50-foot, 8-inch throw Saturday to finish second overall at the Drake Relays. The qualifying standard for the NCAA outdoor championships is 50-0.

McCausland shattered her school record of 48-3.5, set just more than a week ago. She also finished ninth in the discus with a throw in the 150-foot range.

"Rhonda made some good progress to go from a 48-3.5 throw to a 50-8 in one week," SIU-C Coach Don DeNoor said. "I would like to see her get into the 51- or 52-foot range."

In the javelin, Cynthia Joy finished seventh with a 137-11 effort. Laurie Dvorak had a throw in the 130-foot range but failed to qualify for the finals.

"It was an extremely windy day and that affected all the throwers," DeNoor said. "We're expecting some good throws from Cynthia in our upcoming meets."

SIU-C senior Sue Arbogast this past weekend won the Gateway conference individual title, which was her second collegiate win.

Women's golf team wins Gateway crown

The Saluki women's golf team went into the Gateway Conference tournament as underdogs, but came away as top dogs.

The Salukis shot a 976 at the two-day tournament and claimed the conference title. Host team Illinois State, which entered the tournament as the favorite, shot a 980 and finished second.

SIU-C Coach Mary Beth McGirr was happy with the victory, which ended the Saluki season. SIU-C had not beaten ISU this season and it was not expected to defeat them this time.

"It was essentially a two-team race as everyone predicted," McGirr said. "We were fortunate to edge them out."

The Salukis trailed throughout the tournament. After Friday's competition, the Redbirds held a one-stroke lead. The championship wasn't decided until the final hole on Saturday.

Saluki senior Sue Arbogast birdied the last two holes to overcome ISU's Julie Baxter. Baxter bogied the last hole and finished with a 240 to Arbogast's 238. Lisa Kartheiser placed third with a 243 and Lisa Bremer fourth with a 245. ISU's Karen Schulthes finished fifth. Barb Anderson and Jill Bertram placed sixth and 17th to round out the Saluki scores.

Behind the Salukis and Redbirds were Northern Iowa and Wichita State. Southwest Missouri attended the championship but didn't field a full team.

McGirr said the weather played a factor in the competition. She said that winds were gusting at about 30 mph on Friday. Saturday was cooler with less wind.

"It (Friday) was a very frustrating day to play," McGirr said. "The wind played havoc with the golf ball. It was brutal out there."

McGirr also said the greens were dry and rough from the wind drying them out.

The Salukis and Redbirds dominated the all-conference team for the season, which is decided equally on the basis of the conference tournament play and individual averages throughout the season.

The Salukis had three representatives on the squad. Arbogast, Bremer and Kartheiser made the team along with ISU's Baxter and Schulthes.

The Salukis' 800 medley relay team of Jennifer Bartley, Cathy Davis, Denise Blackman and Debra Davis was disqualified in the finals after it dropped a baton during an exchange.

Cathy Davis, who ran the second leg of the relay, dropped the baton on the exchange from Bartley. The quartet posted the fifth-best time (in the 1:42 range) in the preliminaries and bettered the previous school record of 1:44.56.

In the 4x400 relay, Debra Davis, Tammy Talbert, Karen Cooper and Blackman finished tenth in 3:53.4.

The rest of the team was entered in the Parkland Midwest meet at Champaign. The Salukis had two first-place finishers. Sharon Leidy won the long jump (18-4) and Sydney Edwards won the triple jump (37-6).

Relay team sets NCAA record

By David Wilhelm
Staff Writer

The SIU-C 4x400-meter relay team set an NCAA record and completed its pursuit of the triple crown by winning the third leg at the 75th Annual Drake Relays this past weekend.

SIU-C Coach Lew Hartzog received more than he was expecting at the Relays at Des Moines, Iowa. The Salukis dominated the meet on the strength of record-breaking performances, led by the 4x400 quartet of Parry Duncan, Tony Adams, Elvis Forde and Mike Franks.

The 4x400 was the attention-grabbing event. The Saluki foursome set the collegiate record with a time of 3:00.78. SIU-C broke the record set by Baylor last year with a 3:01.98. The Saluki time broke the Drake Relays record and also the SIU-

C mark. The old Relays record was set last year by Southern Methodist University with a 3:03.21.

Hartzog went into the Relays with hopes of leading the Salukis to their first-ever triple crown. After doing that, he said the record stood out even more.

"It (the triple crown) wasn't as important for me as was the national collegiate record," Hartzog said. "We had an incredibly great Relays."

The triple crown does merit recognition. To win the crown, individuals or relay teams must place first in their event at the Texas, Kansas and Drake relays. Only five relay teams have won the triple crown, the last one being Texas in 1973. Not only did SIU-C win the crown for the first time, but Saturday's win in the 4x400 marked the first time they have won the event at the Drake Relays since they first began competing in the Relays 19 years ago.

The strength of the record is displayed in the quartet's split times. Duncan led off the race with his best-ever time, a 45.5. Adams followed with a 45.6, Forde a 45.1 and Franks a 44.5.

"It was obviously a great victory for us," Hartzog said.

The Salukis' time could have been even better, Hartzog said, if Elvis Forde and Mike Franks had not had difficulty with the baton pass before the event's final leg. Hartzog estimated that the Salukis probably lost one second because of that.

Oklahoma took second in the 4x400 with a 3:01.46. That also broke the old Drake Relays record and is now the second-best collegiate time ever. Former record-holder Baylor took third with a 3:03.56. Texas was fourth and Mississippi State fifth.

The meet was the most competitive one all season for SIU-C, which was the Relays' honorary team. Each year a team is selected to be the honorary team. There were 161 universities and colleges there, setting a record. Last year, 144 teams participated.

The Salukis set a school record in the 4x200. The same quartet as in the 4x400 ran a 1:21.44. The old mark of 1:21.92 was set in 1982. Oklahoma placed second in the 4x200 with a 1:21.57. The world record is 1:20.64.

Amazingly, the 4x200 race was run in winds that were gusting up to 60 miles per hour.

The Salukis finished fourth in the 4x100. But, more importantly, their time of 39.80 qualified them for the NCAA's and broke the school record of 40.04.

SIU-C high jumper Stephen Wray finished second to Ronnie Lott of Texas. Wray jumped 7-1.50 and Lott 7-5.50. Lott is in the running with Franks for the meet's most valuable performer award.

The Salukis' Mike Keane finished third in the 10,000-meter with a 29:12.17. The NCAA qualifying time is 29:08.00.

Sam Nwosu placed sixth in the 400 intermediate hurdles with a 52.21.

The Saluki distance medley team didn't place, although they had a good performance from Mike Elliott. Elliott ran the third leg of the race and brought the Salukis back into contention before they fell back again.

Other Saluki performers who did not place were John Smith in the shot put and discus, Andy Geiger in the pole vault and Edison Wedderburn in the 5,000-meter.

Split end Sebron Spivey (White) was tackled by his six receptions during the Maroon and White cornerback Tony Jackson after catching one of scrimmage Saturday.

Scrimmage led by new names

By Jim Lexa
Sports Editor

Instead of Rey Dempsey, Rick Johnson and Terry Taylor being the center of attraction, it was Ray Dorr, Darren Dixon and Ron Page headlining the SIU-C football team's Maroon and White scrimmage Saturday at McArdle Stadium.

The Maroon scored three second-half touchdowns to overcome a 12-0 deficit to beat the White 21-19. The defenses picked up where last year's left off and dominated most of the game. The two offenses managed just 370 total yards while throwing nine interceptions and fumbling nine times, although only three were lost.

Dixon was the man on the spot while trying to fill the void of Johnson, the record-setting quarterback who now plays with the Oklahoma Outlaws of the United States Football League. Dixon completed 13 of 36 passes for 111 yards and one touchdown, but he threw four interceptions. He also scrambled eight yards late in the game for the White's final touchdown.

New Coach Dorr said he thought Dixon struggled a little bit at times, but that he did well for the most part.

"If he can grow and live with his mistakes he can be a good quarterback," Dorr said. "He's a very positive young man. He didn't get down on himself."

Dixon said his main problem is reading the defense.

"I learned I'm not reading the defenses the way I'm supposed to," Dixon said.

If the season opened this week, Dixon said he would feel ready to play, "but it would be rather hard."

Page intercepted two passes, as did John Field, while Dan

Wetzel lumbered 63 yards with an interception late in the third quarter that put the Maroon up for good at 14-12.

Split ends Sebron Spivey (White) and James Stevenson (Maroon) provided the main excitement in the receiving department. Spivey had trouble hanging onto the football, but he caught six passes for 62 yards and one touchdown. Stevenson showed he hasn't lost any of his skills during the winter, catching three passes for 103 yards, including a 60-yard touchdown pass. That scoring reception put the Maroon on the board for the first time, with 5:32 left in the third quarter.

Maroon tailback Mel Kirksy came out of the backfield to catch seven passes for 93 yards, including a 35-yard reception.

Freshman redshirer Tony McKnight was the game's leading rusher with 40 yards on 18 carries.

Baseballers' sweep led by pitching corps

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

The SIU-C hitters didn't show much life in the Saluki baseball team's four-game sweep of Creighton at Abe Martin Field last weekend.

No matter. The Salukis are alive in the race for the Missouri Valley Conference lead.

Their double-header sweep of the Bluejays Sunday, by 6-5 and 4-0 scores, followed Saturday's pair of 2-1 wins from the reeling Jays, who've yet to win a game in the MVC, but are 18-15 overall.

The Salukis managed just 17 hits in the four games, but were aided by four Creighton base-running blunders Saturday and nine fielding miscues Sunday.

The wins gave SIU-C a 7-3 conference mark and sole possession of second place. They trail Illinois State (7-1), which split with Indiana State Saturday before getting rained out Sunday. Illinois State and Indiana State will try to play two Monday.

"We've put ourselves in a much better position than we were in a week earlier," said Saluki Coach Itchy Jones. "You won't see many teams sweep a series in this conference."

The Salukis, who'll close the MVC next weekend with four games at Abe Martin Field against Indiana State, have won five straight at Creighton their last 19. They are 17-18 overall, one game within .500, a mark they haven't rested at since they were 6-6 on March 25.

"We got good pitching," said Jones, "but it was another indication that we're not hitting."

They got excellent pitching from starters Gary Bockhorn (game one Saturday), Rich Koch (game two) and freshman Todd Neibel (game two Sunday), and from reliever Mark Woodson on both Saturday and Sunday.

Neibel capped the series with a six-hit shutout - SIU-C's first of the year - in game two Sunday. It was his second straight strong outing in five days. Neibel, who upped his record to 1-1, earned a spot in Jones' starting rotation when Jay Bellissimo went out with an injury two weeks ago.

"He kept the ball down and changed speeds well," said pitching coach Jerry Green. "Any time you do that consistently, you'll win."

Neibel got more help from Creighton's fielders than the Saluki hitters. SIU-C collected just two hits off lefty Tom Drees, but the Bluejays committed five errors. Each of the four runs off Drees were unearned.

Neibel got all he needed in the first, when Creighton made three errors. A walk to Steve Finley and a catcher's interference call put Scott Bridges and Finley on first and second. Robert Jones hit a made-to-

Cubs down Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Steve Trout and two relievers combined on a five-hitter and Gary Matthews drove in both Chicago runs Sunday as the Cubs edged the punchless Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1.

Trout, 2-1, worked the first six innings before giving way to Tim Stoddard, after allowing consecutive seventh-inning singles to Jason Thompson and Tony Pena. Johnny Ray's sacrifice fly scored Thompson, but Stoddard got pinch-hitter Lee Mazzilli to fly out to end the Pirates' threat.

Lee Smith came on in the ninth with a man on first and nobody out, and recorded his fifth save.

The Cubs, denying John Candelaria's bid to become a four-game winner, took a 1-0 lead in the first inning. Bob Denker drilled a leadoff double, advanced on Ryne Sandberg's sacrifice and scored on Matthews' groundout.

Sandberg led off the Cubs' fourth with a double and scored on Matthews' single, giving Matthews five runs batted in during his last two games.

Keith Moreland singled and stole second on an aborted pickoff play after Matthews' single, but Candelaria avoided further damage by getting Ron Cey to fly out and striking out Jody Davis and Leon Durham.

Candelaria, 3-2, allowed nine hits, struck out eight and walked none over eight innings.
