City, University get set for Halloween

Police outline rules, warn of dangers

By Dave Saelens
Staff Writer

When the sun sets this Saturday, a swarm of killer Tylenols, contraceptives, transvestites and ghoulish and macabre creatures will descend on South Illinois Avenue for Carbondale's annual celebration of craziness, Halloween.

This year, as with previous Halloween weekends, the city is ready.

Local police said that Saturday will be "the big night," and about 45 SIU-C Security officers will join Carbondale police teams to patrol South Illinois and Grand avenues Friday and Saturday nights.

Carbondale police spokesman Tom MacNamara said they expect a crowd the same size as last year — about 15,000 — and the two streets will officially be closed to traffic at 7 p.m. Saturday.

MacNamara said police confiscated about 100 potential weapons from revelers last year, and suggests that people not take anything onto The Strip "which could be construed as a weapon, or could be used as a weapon."

Items such as canes, staffs and replica weapons fall into this category, he said, and anyone wishing to recover a confiscated item may pick it up at the Carbondale police station Sunday morning.

"We would also like to emphasize that we will be enforcing underage drinking violations," MacNamara said.

Also patrolling areas along the Halloween route will be eight Illinois Central Gulf and two Amtrak police officers.

Superintendent for ICG Bob Prescott said the officers will be centered in front of the Amtrak station and on the railroad tracks near the intersection of Grand and South Illinois avenues.

Residents and visitors to Carbondale are reminded of the city's bottle ban ordinance which prohibits the selling of beer and "pop" wine in glass containers from Monday, Oct. 24 until Tuesday, Nov. 1. The ordinance also includes liquor sold in bottles on Friday and Saturday from 6 p.m. until 2 a.m., and police say that all glass containers brought onto the streets will be confiscated.

Since thousands of people will be attending the celebration, parking can be a major problem. But the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce is trying to alleviate that problem this year by providing a shuttle-bus service to individuals driving cars onto campus.

Executive Director Jim Prowell said two buses will make stops at the south Arena parking lot, Grand Avenue and the First National Bank parking lot on South University Avenue Friday and Saturday nights.

Prowell said the buses will start running at 9 p.m. on Friday and 3 p.m. on Saturday, and will continually shuttle people between the three stops until 3 a.m. both nights.

The shuttle service will be provided by the Jim West Bus Service, Prowell said, and they hope to pay for the project by selling Halloween T-shirts and buttons on Grand Avenue and The Strip.

Visitors to Carbondale will not be required to obtain a University parking permit this weekend, however, they must still follow the University parking rules, said Marilyn Hogan, campus parking manager.

"If they are parking overnight, they must park in a designated overnight parking lot," she said. "And people are asked not to back into spaces."

Hogan said many cars were towed last year because they were parked in restricted lots, such as those around Brush Towers and Thompson Point.

Another problem which faced previous Halloween parties on The Strip was the lack of restroom facilities. The Halloween Core Committee has tried to help eliminate that problem this year by placing 30 portable toilets on the Halloween route.

Prowell said 18 of the chemical toilets will be placed in the First National Bank parking lot, and the other 12 will be located near the beer booths on Grand Avenue.

Also new to the Halloween festivities this year will be two bands playing at the east end of the Recreation Center Saturday night. The bands will begin

Bush visits Marines; death toll now at 219

BEIRUT (AP) — Vice President George Bush donned a flak jacket and helmet to look at the horror of the bomb-devastated Marine camp in Beirut Wednesday and declared that "insidious terrorist cowards" would not shift U.S. policy in the Middle East.

"International terror in the world is simply driven home when you see this," Bush said as he stood before the crushed concrete of what had been the four-story headquarters of the Marines' battalion landing team headquarters.

Bodies continued to be pulled from the rubble during Bush's visit. The U.S. death toll stood at 219 from the bombing Sunday. The French said 53 of their troops died in an almost simultaneous bombing in a building a mile north.

Cpl. Randy Barefoot, 21, of Kenly, N.C., who was helping to dig in the wreckage at the camp, said: "We've given up hope anybody is alive. All the floors are pressed down and everything is squished."

During his three-hour stay, Bush met with President Amin Gemayel and the commanders of the French and Italian peace forces in Lebanon. He landed while the Marines at Beirut airport were on their highest state of alert after a dawn attack with mortars and bazookas.

"The shooting all along our eastern perimeter stopped shortly before 7 a.m. when we fired two rounds from 81mm mortars," said Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan. No Marines were hit.

Bush arrived amid tight security shortly before 9 a.m. by helicopter from the USS Iwo Jima off the Lebanese coast. He had flown to the amphibious assault ship nearly two hours before and his arrival in Beirut was delayed, presumably by the firing on the Marine camp.

Bush put on a flak jacket and a steel helmet for the tour of the building that had housed up to 300

Grenada resistance 'stubborn'

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — The United States, meeting stubborn resistance from islanders and a handful of Cubans, threw fresh paratroopers and helicopter gunships into the fight for Grenada on Wednesday.

The Cuban resistance crumbled at Point Salines airport, on the Caribbean island's southern tip, after U.S. helicopter gunships battered a building holding most of them, the Cuban news agency reported. But Grenadians apparently continued fighting in the nearby capital, St.

George's. At least 30 Cubans were killed in Wednesday's airport combat, radio reports here said. The U.S. death toll for the two-day invasion stood at six.

Here in Bridgetown, 150 miles to the northeast, big U.S. Air Force transports took off from the airport through the day, shuttling arms, stretchers and other equipment to tiny Grenada.

"We're still sending gunships in," Air Force Lt. Col. Vince Strayhorn told reporters here. "It's getting better," he said. "We'll probably be out of there soon."

In Washington, a Reagan administration official, who requested anonymity, acknowledged that the almost 3,000 invasion troops had encountered "more resistance than we thought there would be" from the 1,200-man Grenadian army and the Cubans, most of them workers who had been building an airport runway at Point Salines.

Early Wednesday, U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said more U.S. casualties could be expected, "because the price of freedom is high."

At midday Wednesday, Pentagon sources said six U.S. servicemen had been killed in the operation, which began before dawn Tuesday, and 33 others were wounded. They said eight men were missing. Reports of casualties among the Grenadians remained uncertain. Meanwhile, the evacuation of American residents of the island began.

President Reagan said he ordered the lightning invasion Tuesday to protect those 1,000 or so Americans on the Marxist-ruled island in the aftermath of a coup, and to "restore order and democracy" there.

Pentagon officials said they expected the 82nd Airborne units to relieve the Rangers at the Point Salines airfield to enable them to clean up pockets of resistance.

70 evacuated from Grenada

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Seventy exuberant evacuees from the embattled island of Grenada landed here Wednesday, expressing their delight at being back on U.S. soil and their thanks for "how well those Rangers came down and saved us."

Several people kissed the ground when they got off the C-141B transport plane carrying 69 Americans and one British civilian to Charleston Air Force Base. Others waved or gave the thumbs-up sign.

"I don't think there's a more beautiful sight than being back in the United States or being the Rangers at the True Blue campus to save us," said Jean Joel of Albany, N.Y., a St. George's University Medical School student.

Miss Joel said she woke up to shooting about 5:30 a.m. Tuesday, and the U.S. Rangers had secured the campus two hours later.

The students could hear that the fighting was quite fierce, with constant sniper fire and constant passes by American planes. But they said none of those isolated at the campus could see the fighting.

In Washington, White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said he understood most of the evacuees were not students, but American citizens living or visiting in the country.

At the State Department, spokesman John Hughes said roughly half of the estimated 1,000 Americans on Grenada had asked to be evacuated and that planes carrying evacuees would arrive at bases around the country late Wednesday. He would not disclose a list of the bases.

City opens way for new bond issue

By Paula J. Finlay
Staff Writer

In a move that could save the city about $85,000, the City Council Tuesday night adopted a new method of financing the downtown conference center project.

An Internal Revenue Service provision — limiting the amount of revenue bonds that can be issued for a single project — would have prohibited new bonds from being issued while developer Stan Hoye was still under obligation of the previous bonds.

The responsibility for paying off the 1981 issue conference center bond was transferred by the council from Hoye to the city in preparation of the issuance of up to $15 million of additional revenue bonds.

Both the obligations and the benefits of the original bond were moved to the city under the bond issue agreement. Since project construction has not begun, the 1981 bonds, which were invested at high interest, have gone unused.

Scott Ratter, acting city manager, said proceeds from the bond may provide enough money to pay off the bond itself, some other related costs, and still leave the city with $85,000 in earned interest.

John C. Feirich, Hoye's attorney, said that he knew of obligations of the bond other than paying it off, which could be done on Dec. 14, 1984.

Former City Manager Carr J. Fry, who has been acting as a $50-an-hour consultant to the city on the conference center project, told the council that the city's conference center project task force approved of the agreement.

A memorandum of intent to issue up to $15 million in industrial revenue bonds for the acquisition, construction and equipping of the hotel-convention center was authorized by the council.

News Roundup

Andropov makes new proposals

MOSCOW (AP) — President Yuri V. Andropov said Wednesday that continued talks on limiting medium-range nuclear missiles will be "impossible" if NATO puts new ones in western Europe, but the Soviet Union will ease its demands if the deployment plans are scrapped.

He expressed new flexibility on the number of Soviet missiles in Europe and in Asia, on the number of nuclear-capable aircraft and on the destruction of missiles that would be eliminated in an agreement.

Democrats threaten troop recall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats, accusing President Reagan of failing to comply with the War Powers Act, promised Wednesday to assert their authority to pull troops out of Grenada after 60 days if they are not withdrawn sooner.

With the congressional outcry continuing over the death of more than 200 Marines in a bomb attack in Lebanon, the Grenada invasion appeared to be moving the lawmakers toward their second war powers confrontation with the White House in less than a month.

Young and old flock to recruiters

By the Associated Press

The din of bombs and gunfire in Lebanon and Grenada has sounded a call to arms for gung-ho teen-agers and former GIs, who are joining Marine recruiters with their fervor to enlist and join the fight.

Recruiters in cities across the nation said they were deluged with applicants, including many former leathernecks and GIs who haven't fired a rifle since World War II.

Lt. Col. James Bathurst, who is in charge of 27 recruiting stations in northern Illinois and northwest Indiana, said applicants have doubled this week to about 60 a day.

Bush said he had spoken with President Reagan just before leaving Washington and that Reagan would not shift U.S. policy toward Lebanon because of the attack.

Bush's visit came 48 hours after French President Francois Mitterrand had visited his

Meanwhile, the Gemayel government repeated that it is still planning to convene a reconciliation conference among Lebanon's warring Moslem and Christian leaders Monday in Geneva.

Changes in waste laws recommended

By Karen Torry
Staff Writer

Companies that generate small amounts of hazardous waste want to follow the "spirit" of the laws governing waste disposal, but many ignore them because red tape makes compliance difficult.

That was the opinion John Meister, SIU-C pollution control officer, gave Wednesday to a joint hearing of the enforcement and administrative process committees, part of a state task force studying hazardous waste.

Meister said the laws are intended to prevent improper disposal of hazardous waste and possible environmental damage. He contends the extensive "paperwork shuffle" required by the laws forces some small generators to circumvent the system and dump waste in sanitary landfills not intended to handle hazardous material.

"If a small generator wants to set up his own on-site treatment he has to go through the same red tape as Dow Chemical," Meister said. The generator usually will "dump it down the drain" or in a landfill, he said.

SIU-C now has its own treatment, storage and disposal facility for hazardous waste. Meister said that before 1976, when the program began, some University-generated waste which had not been treated and stored in containers caused fires and explosions in landfills.

The facility enables SIU-C to treat 60 percent to 70 percent of the hazardous waste it generates. Much of the treated waste can be reused in University laboratories, saving disposal costs, Meister said.

Hazardous waste which the treatment facility can't take care of costs SIU-C "an arm and a leg" to dispose of, he said.

The University pays $250 per 55-gallon drum to dispose of waste it can't handle, he said. Between 75 and 80 drums must be hauled away each year.

Meister said high schools are also hampered by the laws because experiments conducted in chemistry classes produce waste which must be disposed of according to the regulations. Those schools sometimes may not comply with the law.

"The attitude of the regulated community is 'We can't teach without doing the experiments, so we're going to ignore that set of rules,'" Meister said, adding that his remarks were general and did not refer to any specific high school.

Meister recommended that regulations be revised to eliminate some of the paperwork for small generators and encourage use of private resources and technology to treat and dispose of waste.

Bill Child, deputy manager of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency's land pollution control division, told the committee members how the IEPA responds to hazardous waste accidents. When a hazardous waste accident threatens the environment, it's Child's job to find out who's responsible and make sure the mess is cleaned up.

The IEPA administers a "superfund" which is used to handle hazardous waste accidents that the responsible parties either can't or won't clean up, Child said.

When an accident is discovered, the responsible party is identified and sent a letter by the federal EPA demanding the party clean up, he said. If there is no response and the IEPA must pay for the work, the party may be sued for up to three times the cost of clean-up.

"And when the bureaucracy does something, they tend to overdo it," said Child. "Generally, the responsible party probably could do it cheaper."

Child said most companies which cause hazards are "good corporate citizens" and are willing to take care of accidents, but by the time many accidents are found, there may be no one to hold responsible.

Beg your pardon

Transposed words created an error in a statement by Professor Horace Sawyer in a story about the memorial service on Oct. 16 for Professors Richard Baker and Jerome Lorenz of the Rehabilitation Institute.

The quotation attributed to Professor Sawyer should have said:

"I once told Dick (Baker) that the only thing larger than his ego was his heart."

The Daily Egyptian has apologized to Professor Sawyer and offers apologies to friends, colleagues and family of Professor Baker, some of whom called the error to our attention.

Although there are no official activities planned by the city during the day Saturday, many visitors to Carbondale often spend part of the day at Giant

City State Park.

Cem Basman, regional interpreter for the Illinois Department of Conservation, said that last year, as with previous Halloween weekends, the park was closed on Saturday for safety reasons when it reached capacity.

Basman said anyone planning to go to the park this weekend should be aware that if the park reaches capacity, the gates will be closed.

Basman added that only beer and wine are allowed in the park, and that legal drinking ages are enforced.

A Halloween rule: be careful out there

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN. Time for ghosts, ghouls, pregnant nuns, walking IUD's and grim reapers to flock to Carbondale from all parts of the Midwest. A time for drinking, dancing, gawking and general merrymaking.

But, it is also a time for hangovers, towed cars, accidents, injuries, overdoses and arrests. Last year, Carbondale Memorial Hospital treated more than 100 people for a variety of injuries and Carbondale police arrested 28 people on charges ranging from possession of a controlled substance to aggravated battery.

USUALLY, a person can make it through the weekend unscathed. But sometimes one finds himself in the unavoidable situation or faces the expected turn of events. There are few things you can do to dodge those stray bullets. A sure fire way to stay out of the hospital, or the local pokey, is to follow a few simple rules:

— Costume accessories like baseball bats, chains, clubs, firearms (loaded or unloaded) or anything else the police deem potentially dangerous, are taboo. Carbondale's finest will take the weapon away from you. If you hassle them over it, they will arrest you for obstructing a police officer.

— FIREWORKS and compacted crowds don't mix. Every year, someone gets blown up, burned by a bottle rocket or arrested for possession. Fireworks compromise your safety and the safety of fellow revelers. Leave them at home.

— Don't bring glass bottles to the Strip. Some drunk always wings one in the crowd and busts someone's head open. The no-glass rule is a good one and should be enforced. There's plenty of beer available in cans.

— Lock your car in a legal parking spot away from the crowd. Also, lock the doors and windows of your house when you're away. There will be a lot of stranger in town. Don't trust them with your possessions or your safety. If you meet a new friend, be wary — things (and people) are not always what they seem.

— KNOW YOUR LIMITATIONS. Don't drink until you pass out in somebody's back yard. If you do drugs, don't do more than your mind can handle. Don't drive when you're messed up. There will be plenty of folks in town who will be happy to give you a ride home.

These rules are simple and they are not intended to cut down on the festivities. They are rules for your safety. For the first time the city is supporting the party. Let's not blow it by doing stupid things. Have a good time, and be careful out there.

Shirt sale a loser in idea marketplace

FASHION EXPERTS would agree that what you wear says a lot about you. But many people on campus have voiced objection to a particular fashion statement being offered at SIU-C — a Halloween T-shirt purveyed by members of Delta Chi fraternity.

On the front, the shirt depicts the Grim Reaper holding a scythe blade across the bare breasts of a woman. On the back is a logo for Stroh's beer, though the beer company did not sanction the design on the front.

To Delta Chi, the T-shirts represent an opportunity to raise money for improvements in the fraternity's lounge area. What Delta Chi apparently did not consider, though, was that the design personifies in a degrading fashion vulnerability of and violence toward women.

OFFERING the shirts was a mistake. Delta Chi apparently did not consider the blatant implications of the design or the sensitivity of a University community that is particularly subject to rape and violent crime against women.

Opposition to the shirt design has been widespread on campus — to an extent that Delta Chi probably didn't bargain for. Sales are high, partly as a result of the substantial publicity the shirt controversy has received. But the fraternity's reputation has nonetheless been compromised.

We would be the last to say that Delta Chi had no right to sell these T-shirts, yet we would also be the last to say that opponents were wrong to be angry over the design.

IN THE material marketplace, the shirts may in fact make Delta Chi some money — but in the marketplace of ideas, the fraternity is in the red.

Letters

Talks, demonstrations won't win women equality

After reading Jacob Boals' letter last Friday, I felt that I needed to say something.

I am not an American. I am a foreign, male student. But it really doesn't matter who I am and where I am from as long as I believe in equality.

First of all, the picture on the T-shirt has nothing to do with nature. Nature didn't put the big breasted woman on the T-shirt. It was men who decided what size the breasts should be. Why weren't they small breasts instead of big ones? Once the designer used the large breasts and other degrading features on his T-shirt, women became his sex objects.

Boals also said that he doesn't drink beer, but he doesn't try to prevent those who enjoy beer from having it. The idea that drinking is nice doesn't constitute any kind of inequality. If you suffer from the alcohol, that's your business. It has nothing to do with the others. But the sexism of the T-shirt does constitute inequality. If you buy it, it surely means you identify with ideology that women are inferior to men. Even if you don't buy it, the ideology still exists.

Also, he said that they were not selling bound women. But they did sell women as a sex object dominated by men. Was that not bad enough?

A letter on the same day by Carly Figliuolo was very different. It said that "If you are going to take sex from women by force, we're going to take our rights by force." I applauded the phrase "by force." Just talk and demonstration won't do.

Dear feminists, how many demonstrations have you conducted? Did they work? People are still happy to be stupid and sexist. It's time for a complete revolution. Not just by demonstrations, but by force. If the workers hadn't used violence in 1917, the Soviet Union would not have been established. It doesn't matter how bad the Soviet Union is now, because the Czar was bad enough for revolution and change. I am not saying that women must be rude and vulgar in order to gain equality. They can still make themselves look good and beautiful while they are struggling for their own rights. But the problem is that most women keep making themselves beautiful without being aware of the fact that what they are doing justifies men's impositions. They want beauty at the expense of their equality with men. This false consciousness must first be changed in order to launch a powerful revolution. To all women — you can be an obedient sex object of men, or you can gain equality with men. It's absolutely up to you. But if you choose the former, don't ask me how to get your own rights while you are happy to conform to your boyfriends' impositions and expectations.

— John Chan, Sophomore, Accounting.

Another shirt found offensive, bad for image

Last week and this week, a fraternity — other than Delta Chi — is selling Halloween '83 T-shirts on campus. The fraternity is selling two styles of shirts. I find one offensive. It pictures a scantily clad "witch" holding a champagne glass in one hand and a whip in the other.

Monday, to my dismay, I find this same T-shirt displayed in the Student Center Bookstore window. The shirt in the window display caused me to write this letter. From the Bookstore display I found that the T-shirt has the SIU logo and Halloween '83 SIU-Carbondale printed under the design. Why is the University logo and name on this T-shirt? With many traditional symbols for Halloween available such as skeletons, ghosts, goblins, and headless horsemen, why is the university logo and name on this style of T-shirt? The university complains about its image as a party school. This T-shirt does not promote the image of the university as an institution concerned with academic study and research.

Halloween in Carbondale seems to be the time to make a fast buck. The sale of T-shirts to raise money is an easy way to raise money, but please, not by the exploitation of women. I would like to acknowledge the American Marketing Association which is also selling T-shirts. Their T-shirts have a Halloween theme in keeping with Halloween. Their efforts should be recognized and imitated when Halloween madness hits Carbondale in 1984. The university needs to examine whatever policy permits the use of the SIU logo and SIU-Carbondale on merchandise. — Mary Campbell, Graduate Student, Community Development and 11 others.

Shame on Delta Chi for travesty

An open letter to Kurt Hyzy and Emil Spees: Shame on both of you for Delta Chi's latest travesty! The blatantly sexist Halloween T-shirts your group is hawked offend me. I feel that since your group is affiliated with the University and, according to one Sigma Kappa editor who wrote the DE, is comprised of "Bright, ambitious young people" who are the "cream" of SIU's student population, you should try to have a less Neanderthal image.

Why not just a T-shirt with two revelling skeletons with male and female symbols on them if you wish them to be a heterosexual couple? Or if you like nudity, a naked man and woman revelling together? I am tired of seeing exploitative images of women as cows. I am saddened that supposedly well-educated men still perceive women that way in the 1980's. And I am angered that you, Mr. Spees, as Delta Chi's faculty adviser, did not advise your fraternity against printing and selling such garbage.

If Greek organizations want to be taken seriously and shake off their self-centered, immature image, you need to avoid maligning 50 percent of humankind for a start. — Candace A. Davis, Carbondale.

Louisiana artists' work to be displayed in exhibit

Twenty-one artists from Louisiana will be featured at the University Museum in Fanner Hall from Friday through Nov. 23.

The exhibit, "Louisiana Women in Contemporary Art," will open with a public reception from 6 to 8 p.m. on Friday.

The featured artists are from various parts of the state with the majority from the New Orleans area due to the very active art center and museums that exist there.

A wide range of media will be incorporated in the show, including collage, watercolor, oil and acrylic painting, colored pencil and pastels, and photographic documentation for two dimensional work. Rubber, plastic screening, and handmade paper with raffia are among the mediums used for three-dimensional work.

Lucille Reed, an artist from Shreveport, La. will be present at the opening and available for questions. At 10:30 a.m. Nov. 19 in the Student Center Auditorium, sculptor Clyde Connel, who is represented in the exhibit, will present a special slide lecture of her work.

The exhibit was curated by Myra Walker, a graduate assistant to the Curator of Art, Evert Johnson. Walker lived in Louisiana for seven years prior to moving to Carbondale to pursue her master's degree.

University Museum is open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free.

Group receives 'most improved' honors

The Beta Chi chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon has earned "most improved chapter" honors from TKE international headquarters. It is the second time in 35 years the chapter has won the award according to Mark Styniger, chapter vice president.

Two delegates from the chapter will accept the award in December at the national convention in New Orleans.

Joey Gutierrez performs winning monologue at talent contest

Students show funny sides in 'Catch a Rising Star'

By Terry Levecke
Entertainment Editor

All kinds of jokes, gimmicks and approaches were used by the 16 "Catch a Rising Star" jester contestants Tuesday night in Ballroom D of the Student Center before a crowd of about 500.

The two and a half hour talent show was emceed by "Catch a Rising Star" comedian Bill Sheft, who appears on a Home Box Office program and at the New York club with the same name.

When the laughter subsided, Joey Gutierrez, a sophomore with an undecided major, was judged the funniest by Sheft, WSJU-TV's Erv Coppi, WTAO deejay Jay Michaels, Mark Johnson of the Miller Brewing Company and Terry Levecke, Daily Egyptian Entertainment Editor.

The show was sponsored by Lite Beer from Miller and SPC Center Programming and is part of a talent search on 10 campuses nationwide.

Reigning as top SIU-C comedian, Gutierrez will open a comedy show at 8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 7 in Student Center Ballroom D, which will feature Rising Star comedians Bill Sheft, J.J. Wall and Jack Kohn. He also has the opportunity to perform at New York's "Catch a Rising Star" club and will compete with the winners of the nine other shows held at Big Ten and West Coast universities.

"This is the best turnout we've had so far," Sheft said. "It was a good audience to sit through almost three hours of acts."

The theme was stand-up comedy, but the contestants tried all kinds of approaches to be unique. Brad Lancaster, senior in radio television, performed some classy magic. Mark Bumb, a design major, did a bit of juggling while trying to get the audience to laugh, and Dave Monk, sophomore in creative writing and radio-television, came out in a full-head furry cap and talked about his cannibalistic origin.

Among the laughter and yawns, Peggy Kusinski took second place for her monologue on "Loser Park" parties, men's egos below the belt and farts. She was introduced as a girl raised in Chicago Catholic schools, who came to SIU with a wardrobe of plaid skirts, knee socks, and solid color blouses, and found herself here — just like at birth — by mistake.

Bill Dwyer, senior in radio-television, placed third with his jokes on tampon and douche commercials, toilet paper and drug jokes.

But polish and professionalism was demonstrated by Gutierrez as he kept the audience laughing with his Mexican and mother jokes, and presented the most solid original material.

Plenty of T-shirts remain

Deltas try to make amends

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

People purchasing a Halloween T-shirt from the Southern Illinois chapter of the Delta Chi fraternity will also receive a pamphlet on rape awareness.

Fraternity members are distributing the brochure, provided by the Rape Action Committee, in an effort to make amends with people who feel the shirt promotes violence against women.

The T-shirts, which have a design on the front depicting the Grim Reaper holding the blade of a scythe across the bare breasts of a scantily-clad woman, are being sold for $5.

On the back of the 2,000 shirts is the logo of the Stroh's Brewing Co. with the phrase "for real beer lovers" printed below it.

During a protest against the shirts last week, members of several women's organizations suggested that people call Stroh's to voice opposition to the T-shirt.

However, according to Stroh's distributor Dick McLaughlin, "the Stroh's Brewing Co. had absolutely nothing to do with this matter."

McLaughlin, president of M & M Beverages in Centralia, said that his company and the Stroh's campus representative assisted the fraternity in getting the shirts printed. Stroh's had no knowledge of the shirt, he said.

He said his company purchased the shirts from a T-shirt supplier, which printed the design of the reaper and woman on the front. The design was made by a Delta Chi member. McLaughlin said M & M Beverages sold the shirts to the fraternity at a break-even price.

"Neither we, nor Stroh's, has any financial involvement in this," he said. "The shirts were paid for in full by the fraternity."

He said beverage distributors often promote their products by giving groups low prices on items which have the name of a beverage on them.

McLaughlin, who said he did not see the design before the shirts were printed, said his company "had no intention of offending anyone."

Several people called M & M Beverages to complain about the shirts, McLaughlin said.

Kurt Hyzy, president of the fraternity, said the fraternity didn't intend to offend anyone either. But he said the fraternity has $5,000 invested in the shirts, and "can't afford not to sell them."

Profits from the shirt sales, he said, will be used to refurbish the lounge area in the fraternity house.

Megha Rizen, a member of the Feminist Action Coalition, met with Hyzy earlier this week. She said that although she is glad the fraternity is distributing the rape awareness brochure, she thinks the best solution would be to take the shirts off the market.

Rizen said the shirts perpetuate a feeling of fear among many women and are particularly offensive to victims of rape.

She said Hyzy told her that Delta Chi is considering taking the shirts off the market once the fraternity has sold enough to cover their costs. The fraternity is also exploring the possibility of somehow adding a red circle with a slash through it over the design to promote the idea of a non-violent Halloween celebration, she said.

Rizen said a group of students is circulating a petition which protests the design on the T-shirt.

Shirt sales are going "pretty good," Hyzy said, but the fraternity "still has plenty left to sell."

Mini-courses to cover varied skills

Guitar, tap dance and Japanese are three of the classes offered by the New Horizons Mini-Course program this fall.

The 11 classes, which began this week, are taught by students and community members. The session will end Dec. 5.

Fees range from $7 for the course Jane Ponda and Aerobic Dance to $2 for knitting and crocheting. The one exception is horseback riding, which costs $48.

The Mini-Courses are offered twice a semester. Three years ago, when the program began, it was known as the Free School, because there was no charge to the students.

The program is subsidized by student fees. As a result, the classes are offered at a lower price than other adult education classes. Jennifer Spaha, New Horizons co-ordinator said, Last semester, 150 students enrolled in the program. Classes hold a maximum of 20 students.

The aerobic dance class usually fills up the fastest while other classes, such as the conversational Japanese course, admit students up to the first day of class, according to Spaha.

The extended deadline for enrollment is Oct. 27.

Student arrested on burglary charge

An 18-year-old SIU-C student was arrested and charged with burglary early Wednesday after he was caught by police running from J & J Coin Co., 821 S. Illinois Ave.

Michael J. McKay, a freshman in general academics, was apprehended by an officer patrolling on foot after Carbondale police received a report at 12:20 a.m. that a person was on the roof of the business.

When police arrived, McKay allegedly kicked out plexiglass on the front door and ran south on The Strip. He was apprehended when he ran into a foot patrol officer.

Police said $192 in cash was recovered.

Cyclist familiar with struggle, but finally gets to know success

By Sherry Chiseshall
Sports Editor

Laura Miller knows all about uphill battles.

As an amateur cyclist, she knows the agony of coaxing a bicycle up and over a mountain, with 20 miles of flat-out racing already behind her and more miles to go. She knows the frustration of trying to carve her niche in a fast-growing sport.

Miller also knows success. She has made it over the mountains and is edging into the cycling limelight.

Just one year after she began competitive bike racing, Miller wheeled out of nowhere to finish 18th among 50 women in the time trial at the U.S. Cycling Federation National Championships last August in San Diego, Calif. She started cycling just three years ago.

She followed that rookie finish by claiming 20th place three days later in the 57-mile road race, among a field of 70 women.

For Miller to even qualify for the nationals was a small miracle in itself. She is licensed in her home state, New York, and had to qualify in the district championship there.

The Northern New York District Championship last June was Miller's first stab at qualifying for nationals. In the 45-mile road race, she sped to a first place finish and duplicated that placement in the 25-mile time trial.

Before the nationals, she squeezed in a second-place ride in the Stowe-Shimano Road Race, a 50-mile trek in Stowe, Vt.

Miller followed those two rides with her 18th- and 20th-place showings at the nationals.

"The road race was really tough," Miller said. "The course was miserable. There were two major climbs, and people were falling off. I had to go out and buy lower gears for my bike before the race."

The time trial was no picnic, either.

"Time trials start at one minute intervals," Miller said. "You have to work alone, and go as fast as you can, the whole way. You can't take pace from other riders."

"The time trial is the most objective way to measure strength. It's really hard because you just ride as fast as possible. There's no strategy, except to know your body and its limitations."

Miller said she has had little trouble tolerating the pain in-olved in a 50-mile race.

"Before I started cycling, I used to run," she said. "I ran competitively for four years, and knowing how to deal with pain helped for cycling. I have a real ability to forget about pain and not think about it. It's almost a game."

"A lot depends on the race. Forty-five miles can be easy if no one's doing anything. It can also be incredibly grueling, though."

That still has not been enough to hold down the swelling in the racing fields. Miller said the sudden growth of cycling has flooded most races.

"The sport is finally starting to get exposure," she said. "People have started seeing it in advertisements, and it's getting to be a 'cool' thing to do. We've also gotten several large sponsors, like Self Magazine and Seven-Eleven."

"Most cyclists welcome the growth of the sport, though. The big surge in triathlons is helping."

Ironically, it was a triathlon that first got Miller to give cycling a glance. She competed in a team triathlon "for fun" and hooked up with a woman who had competed in the USCF nationals.

The woman advised Miller to pursue cycling.

"I was tired of running by then," Miller recalled. "Cycling just seemed like it might be a good thing to try."

She more than gave cycling a try.

"Maybe unfortunately, it's become a priority," she said. "I plan to pursue it and take it as far as I can."

"I make my goals in a series. I want to go to races like the Olympic trials just to see if I can keep up. I haven't really gone to the big races yet. In the upper levels it's easy to get burned out. All they do is ride. There's a lot of pressure, and I don't think I could handle that."

Although she's just a beginner in the cycling world, Miller has made a phenomenal amount of progress in one year of competitive racing.

"This year I'm finally starting to feel like I know what I'm doing," she said. "I've learned things just by doing them."

The cyclist's next series of goals includes a stint at the Olympic trials, finding a sponsor to help financially, and improvement on her top-20 performance at the national championships.

We're going in as a 30-point underdog, and we just hope to make a good showing."

Zechman said the Salukis' No. 1 ranking will not get his squad up more for the game, nor will it have them worried any more than any other game has.

New Mexico State's double wing offense centers around wingbacks Kim Locklin and James Hebert. Last year the pair led the Aggie offense. They rushed for 1,381 yards, caught 53 passes for 587 yards and scored 11 touchdowns between them. This year Locklin and Hebert are back on the trail, leading the Aggie attack.

Locklin, a junior, leads the ground game with 512 yards on 95 carries, an average of 5.4 yards per carry. Locklin also leads the receiving corps with 19 receptions for 204 yards. While returning 14 kickoffs, Locklin has an average of 20 yards per return, with a 100-yard touchdown return among his seven that he has scored.

Hebert is not far behind. The senior has rushed for 424 yards on 90 carries, caught 16 passes for 83 yards and has returned one kickoff for 11 yards. He has scored three touchdowns.

The quarterback spot has been fought for by three players. Bill Ramsey, a sophomore, has won the job, at least for now. Ramsey has completed 25 of 64 passes for 300 yards and one touchdown, while throwing one interception.

Should Ramsey need to be replaced, either freshmen Pierre Cooper or Jason Young would be on hand to step into the action. Both have started at least one game this season.

Cooper has completed 33 of 71 passes for 407 yards and one touchdown, but has thrown five interceptions. Young has thrown only five passes while completing three for 21 yards.

Split end Tony Curtis has grabbed 14 receptions for 201 yards. Another double-figured receiver is flanker Gary Bright, who has 11 receptions for 143 yards.

The offense has averaged 294.5 yards per game, while losing 19 of 28 fumbles this season. It has been outscored 199 to 120. Defensively, the Aggies have given up 340.1 yards per game. The defense is led by right end Fred Young, 6-foot-1, 220 pounds. Young has 92 tackles and 10 quarterback sacks. Linebacker Wilmer Louis, also 6-foot-1, 220 pounds, is second on the squad with 80 tackles and has a team-leading three fumble recoveries.

In the secondary, Bobby Kinder, Reggie Simmons and Dewrell Jackson have two interceptions this season. The Aggies have 11 interceptions for the year.

Junior placekicker Andy Weiler has connected on just six of 16 field goal attempts this season, but he has made all four attempts within 40 yards. Weiler has made all 14 extra point attempts this year.

Freshman punter Willie Madrid has punted 46 times for a sparkling 40.5 yard average. His longest punt this year has been for 73 yards and he has not had a punt blocked.

Schmidt, Rice head All-Star rosters

NEW YORK (AP) — Home run leaders Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies and Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox head The Associated Press major league baseball All-Star team announced Wednesday.

Schmidt, who hit 40 homers last season, won the closest race on the ballot, edging batting champions Wade Boggs of the Boston Red Sox and Bill Madlock of the Pittsburgh Pirates for third base.

Schmidt, who drove in 109 runs, received 40 votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Boggs, who led the majors with a .361 batting average, had 32 votes, and Madlock, who won the National League batting title with a .323 average, had 15.

Rice, who slammed 39 homers and drove in 128 runs, received 78 votes, finishing third among the outfielders, behind Dale Murphy of the Atlanta Braves and Andre Dawson of the Montreal Expos.

Southwest Missouri: Amy Townsend, Illinois State, and Sandy Elsberry, Northern Iowa.

Last year, Drake's Liz Hjalmarson won the individual championship with a swift time of 16:56.5 on the 5,000-meter course at Illinois State's golf course. ISU's Wendy Van Mierlo finished second with a 17:12.6.

The top returnee will be Schumacher. Last year Schumacher was third at 17:56.8, followed by fourth-place Hammock at 18:03.5. Other top 10 returnees are Illinois State's Deb Czajka, Southwest Missouri's Anne Baitsholts and Eastern Illinois' Margaret Smith.

The race starts at 10 a.m. Saturday, south of Abe Martin field.

two teams will have low scores, but the third team will probably triple those. We ran against Bradley earlier in the year. They have three good runners, but they aren't ours or Southern's caliber of runners."

Coughlan said that his Redbirds are ready for the meet.

"We're pretty healthy and we've been running good, so we're ready to go," he said. "I think I'd always like to be more ready. Our stronger races are ahead of us."

The Redbirds have a 2-0 dual meet record this season, in addition to finishing fourth in both the Notre Dame Invitational and the Central Collegiate. Coughlan said that he has a young team that has been showing improvement throughout the season.

Mike Kirk and Jim Knudsen are the two best runners on the squad. Kirk, who recently returned to action after a sprained ankle, was last year's MVC track champion in the indoor mile, 2-mile and the outdoor 1,500. He has run the 5-mile in 24:05. Knudsen, a sophomore, was third in the indoor 2-mile race last season.

Other Redbird runners are Bob Dluzen, Matt Grady, Darrell Frenker and Greg Love. Coughlan said one way to show how much his Redbirds have improved is using Stan Ozarowski as an example. Ozarowski was 11th in the MVC meet individually last season, but is not even in the Redbirds' top seven now.

Despite not racing against the Salukis during the season, Coughlan does not see that as a disadvantage.

"We know the Southern Illinois runners very well," said Coughlan. "They know ours, too. A lot of the runners are from Illinois and most of the kids have run against each other at some time."

Winning the MVC Championship would fulfill the second of Cornell's goals that he set for the Salukis.

Aggies trying to shed image as losers

Fullback Corky Field leaves Indiana State to leave New Mexico State as down and out as the tacklers in his wake. Field and his teammates hope Sycamores last weekend.

By Jim Lexa
Staff Writer

Continued losing breeds acceptance, and at New Mexico State losing has become pretty acceptable.

The Aggies are 3-5 entering their contest Saturday with No. 1 SIU-C. Last year's 3-8 record kept the losing tradition intact. New Mexico State has had only one winning record in its last 15 seasons.

First-year Coach Fred Zechman probably sticks out like a sore thumb at New Mexico State. For the past four years Zechman was quarterback and receiver coach at Ohio State. During that period Ohio State went 37-16, won the Big 10 twice, finished second in the Big 10 twice and went to four bowl games.

What is he doing at New Mexico State?

"I'm trying to install a winning attitude here," Zechman said. "People here are used to losing."

Zechman, though, said he has not quite succeeded in installing a winning attitude at the losing tradition-rich university.

"That type of thing doesn't happen overnight," Zechman said. "So far, I've seen some positive things, but I've also seen some negative things."

It has been an up-and-down season for New Mexico State, and the Aggies have not been able to put together good back-to-back games.

After beating Louisiana Tech 15-7 to even its record at 1-1, New Mexico State lost 49-3 to North Texas State, ranked No. 5 this week in the I-AA poll, and 31-10 to New Mexico.

The Aggies came back to beat Iowa State, 24-17, but then lost to perennial Missouri Valley Conference power Tulsa, 24-10. New Mexico State then picked on winless Drake for a 42-23 victory, but lost the next time out to Texas-Arlington, 28-7.

How does Zechman see his inconsistent squad playing the Salukis Saturday?

"Very carefully," Zechman said. "Anytime that you're going up against a No. 1 team, you have to be very careful."

Redbirds picked as conference favorites

By David Wilhelm
Staff Writer

If being on its home course will be an advantage, the women's cross country team will probably make a run for the top Saturday when SIU-C plays host for the second Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference Championships.

GCAC coaches have tabbed defending champion Illinois State as the favorite again this year. The Redbirds were a near unanimous choice by the coaches. Last year's runner-up, Wichita State, is picked to finish in that position again. Drake, Southwest Missouri and Western Illinois round out the coaches' top five picks.

The Salukis are picked for a sixth-place tie with Indiana State and Northern Iowa. Eastern Illinois and Bradley are picked ninth and 10th.

Individually, the coaches picked Wichita State's Susie Hammock and Illinois State's Sara Schumacher as favorites. Hammock has turned in the three fastest times in the conference this season, running mostly on 3-mile courses. Schumacher was consistently timed among the fastest in the GCAC.

Other runners selected by the coaches as possible top five finishers are Sara Yeager, Wichita State; Lisa Einheuser,

Harriers facing tough race for MVC crown

If the men's cross country team is going to win its fourth consecutive Missouri Valley Conference Championship, another strong performance will be demanded of Coach Bill Cornell's club.

The Salukis will compete against rival conference teams Saturday at the Newman Golf Course in Peoria. The 5-mile race begins at 11 a.m.

Cornell said his team is "fit and ready to go." His top three men, Chris Bunyan, Eddie Wedderburn and Mike Keane, are healthy and will be counted on Saturday.

Cornell sees his major threats coming from Illinois State and Bradley.

"I haven't seen Illinois State," Cornell said. "but I know they have a lot of talented runners who ran track last spring. They are a definite threat. Bradley has been making good progress all season. They ran at the Intercollegiate, tying with Illinois for second."

Illinois State Coach John Coughlan sees Saturday's meet as a two-team race between his Redbirds and the Salukis.

"There's no question that Southern Illinois is the prohibitive favorite," Coughlan said. "They are rated sixth in the Harrier poll. Their top three runners in a meet of this size are very important. They could go one, two and three in the meet. It will be a two-team race between us and Southern, but Southern is the clear-cut favorite."

Though Coughlan considers Bradley a strong team, he doesn't believe they have the capabilities of topping the Salukis or the Redbirds.

"They have the best shot at third," Coughlan said, "but it will be a distant third. The top
