Budget woes 'significant', lower lid seen on enrollment

By Bonnie Gamble
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Late applicants to SIU next fall may have no better luck than did their counterparts this year, as University administrators are predicting that budget problems will necessitate still another enrollment cutback.

"We've got significant problems," President Brandt said Wednesday. Both Brandt and Frank Horton, vice president for academic affairs and research, have said that an enrollment cutback is a definite possibility.

Brandt blames budget recommendations from the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) for the possible cutback. At present, the IBHE does not consider enrollment as a basis for budgeting. SIU is receiving funds for only 19,000 students instead of the present enrollment of 22,119, Brandt said. All tuition money goes to the state, but the state only returns tuition for 19,000 students.

SIU's operating budget for this year is about $71.5 million, an increase of about $5.5 million over last year's budget. Most of the $5.5 million was to cover inflation.

Campaign numbers game diverted

Ford, Carter ethics brought to question

By Dick Barnes
Associated Press Writer

Questions about President Ford's old campaign money and golf outings and about Jimmy Carter's foreign travel expenses swirled through the presidential election chase Wednesday.

In a flurry of developments that broke the campaign pattern of statistical gunfire on the issues.

Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter said President Ford should go before the news media to discuss reports that the Watergate special prosecutor is investigating what happened to contributions made by two unions to Ford's past congressional campaigning.

Ford's press secretary said "hell, no" it isn't the President's lifestyle to let lobbyists pay for his vacations and golf games. But he promised to release at an unspecified date the results of a records search aimed at finding out who paid when Ford played golf from 1965 to 1973.

Carter acknowledged that foreign governments had picked up some of the costs of trips he took abroad as Georgia governor when he was trying to drum up trade for the state. Carter said the trips were strictly business, and he distinguished them from acceptance of free golfing vacations.

Two large companies said Ford had played each of their courses once as the guest of a company official between four and eight years ago.

Carter offered his suggestion of a Ford news conference during his own first formal news conference in almost two weeks as he wound up a two-day rest stop at his Plains, Ga., home.

Carter said the best way for Ford to clear up the matter about the Watergate special prosecutor is for him to "have a frank discussion with the American people through the news media, which so far he has failed to do."

The former Georgia governor said he did not want to be interpreted as having assumed "that there's any substance to the allegations. I have no way to know that."

Carter said special prosecutor Charles Ruff should make public a full report on the investigation when it is finished, regardless of whether that is before or after the Nov. 2 election.

Ruff has repeatedly declined comment on the probe, which reportedly centers around whether Ford converted campaign funds to his own use through a local Republican party organization in Michigan while he was in the House.

The separate matter of golf games came up recently when William Whyte, a lobbyist for U.S. Steel Corp., said Ford, a longtime personal friend, had taken three golfing trips at company expense in New Jersey and stayed twice in a company-owned house near Disney World in Florida while he was a congressman.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Tuesday that Ford had played on courses owned by three other companies before he became vice president.

Nessen said Wednesday the President has ordered his records searched to see what can be learned about golf games he played during his last eight years as a congressman and House Republican leader.

Elvis to appear in Arena concert

By Michael P. Mullen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Elvis Presley has been making news of one sort or another ever since Ed Sullivan introduced him to a record-size TV audience on Sept. 9, 1956.

And he's making news in Carbondale now. Joel Preston, assistant Arena manager, announced Wednesday that Presley has been booked for a concert in the Arena on Oct. 27 at 8:30 p.m.

Ticket prices for Elvis' Carbondale appearance are $7.50, $10 and $12.50, and will be sold only by mail order. Orders will be filled by the order of the earliest postmark. There are no discounts, and all persons entering the building that night will be required to have a ticket, Preston said.

"We recognize that some of these policies for this show are departures from our standard procedures," Acting Arena Manager Jim Abel said, "but when a performer of Presley's stature wants to play in the Arena, you pretty much have to accept his terms."

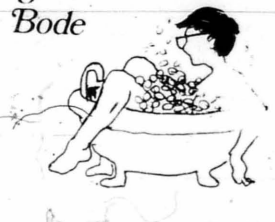

Mail orders should include the following information: the number and price of tickets desired, check or money order made out to the Arena in the correct amount, and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Orders should be addressed to: Elvis Tickets, Arena Manager, Carbondale, Ill. 62901.

If tickets at the prices ordered are no longer available when the order is processed, the next best available tickets will be substituted, and the customer will receive a University refund check for the difference in price.

Comptroller criticizes Walker's bond sale plan

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Gov. Daniel Walker's plan to sell $435 million in general obligation bonds this fiscal year isn't prudent and should be scaled down, Comptroller George Lindberg said Wednesday. The state sold $450 million in bonds last fiscal year and planned sales for fiscal 1977 are $435 million, he said.

"If the state sells another $435 million in 1977, it will have committed $88 million in two years for debt service that otherwise could have been used in 1978 for school aid and other state programs," he said. Debt service is money which must be set aside annually to repay the principal and interest on bonds throughout their 25-year life.

In his monthly financial report, Lindberg said debt service costs for bonds sold last year is $45 million. He said the fiscal 1976 sales were nearly double the record amount for a single year, which was $250 million sold in fiscal 1973.

Suspect sought in Quincy factory bombing

QUINCY (AP)—Warrants were issued Wednesday charging a Quincy man with murder and arson in a factory bombing which killed an Army bomb squad sergeant and injured a state arson investigator. The suspect, Robert Motley, 38, was being sought by Adams County authorities.

State's Atty. Bob Bier refused to discuss the reasons for naming Motley, but he said the "man was never an employee" of Quincy Compressor Plant. Several bombs exploded at the plant Monday night and one went off Tuesday morning, killing Sgt. Maj. Kenneth R. Foster, 45, of Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo. Injured was Ernie Arenz, 52, of Beardstown. Bond for Motley was set at $250,000.

UAW, International Harvester reach agreement

By The Associated Press

With a United Auto Workers union contract expiration deadline less than 24 hours away, Caterpillar Tractor Co. and International Harvester Co. agreed Wednesday to a day-to-day extension while Deere and Co. continues central bargaining talks. International Harvester Co. agreed to the same extension Tuesday. UAW employees in all Harvester and Caterpillar plants will continue working beyond midnight Thursday, with any lockout or strike being preceded by a three-day notice. Deere, meanwhile, this year's strike target of the construction and agricultural implement industry, continues meeting with union leaders in Moline.

The UAW has announced it will not extend the Deere contract, and that if no agreement is reached the union's 27,000 employees in six states will go out on strike. Caterpillar and the UAW, meeting in Peoria, agreed to suspend further talks on the central contract until the Deere bargaining is settled. A contract in Moline would set a pattern to be followed at least generally by Harvester and Caterpillar, affecting a total of about 110,000 UAW workers.

Simon talks to miners about black lung bill

CINCINNATI (AP)—The United Mine Workers Union (UMW) must end its dissentation if improved laws for sufferers of black lung disease are to be passed, Paul Simon, D-Ill., warned the union's convention Wednesday. "We can yet rescue something in this session," Simon said of a bill to grant automatic disability benefits to black lung sufferers with 25 to 30 years in the mines.

But the Congressman warned 1,900 mine officials that some House members are using dissentation that marked the 10-day UMW convention as a reason for not acting on black lung legislation. Simon urged automatic benefits for miners inflicted with the disease and improved mine safety enforcement by transferring enforcement from the Department of Interior to the Department of Labor.

Teachers' union endorses White, Scott

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The state's largest teachers' union announced Wednesday its endorsement of a Democrat for secretary of state and of Republicans for attorney general and comptroller in the fall elections. The Illinois Education Association said it was supporting Democrat Alan Dixon for secretary of state, incumbent Republican William Scott for attorney general and incumbent Republican George Lindberg for comptroller.

Woody Lee, IEA president said the choices were "the only ones that could be made given the present political atmosphere regarding education and teachers." He said the IEA would announce its endorsement of a gubernatorial ticket on Oct. 9. The union says it has 65,000 members.

Agricultural director closes own grain elevator

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—State Agriculture Director Robert Williams has closed a grain elevator which he and two of his brothers own while state auditors determine if the elevator is able to pay the money it owes to grain producers, it was disclosed Wednesday. Officials of the department confirmed that the director took the action on Friday after a published report that his brother, Larry, who manages the elevator, lost $8 million speculating in grain futures.

SIU student Mark Harris, 23, Socialist Workers Party (SWP) candidate for the University of Illinois Board of Trustees, wants to see free college education and a guaranteed job upon graduation for all students.

Harris, the Young Socialist Alliance candidate for student government president in 1974, and one of the three SWP candidates for the board, said funds for these programs should come from elimination of the $100 billion defense budget.

Harris said "I don't believe a cent should be spent on it," because the money goes to prop up dictatorships in Korea, Iran, Chile and southern Africa.

Another source of funding for education, Harris believes, could come from elimination of interest payments on government bonds, which he termed "welfare to the rich."

He said about $36 billion was paid out in interest last year on bonds, ninety per cent of which are owned by two per cent of the people. "These payments should be stopped and the funds used to provide the people's basic needs," Harris said.

Harris said the cost of higher education went up 34 per cent from 1965 to 1973. He said federal funding doubled during this period, but he stressed that federal funding went down 6 per cent in 1974. Because of inflation, the real value of student loans is now only one-half of the 1973 level, Harris said.

Other provisions of his platform include student-faculty control over educational policies and priorities, the end of all university ties to the military and business and free abortion on demand at university health services.

Harris said last week's presidential debate showed that the Democrats and Republicans agree on the ABC's. "They are both against abortion, busing and for cut-backs."

He said both candidates have supported a bill to cut off federal funding for abortions. Harris said this means only that the poor will be denied the right to abortions because the rich can afford to pay for their own.

Harris said the Equal Rights Amendment is one of the most important issues in the state. But he points to the struggles over ratification as a good example of political games.

He said, "Almost every major political figure has endorsed the ERA but it still hasn't passed. If Mayor Daley wanted it, it would have been passed a long time ago."

Harris said he believes people are becoming radicalized, that the country has not returned to the apathy of the 1950's. "The apathy of the 1950's was based on a belief, a trust in government. Today people want change. They are fed up, disgusted, but they don't see what they can do about it," he said.

Harris expects to draw support from students, working people, women, blacks and other minorities.

'Clean car' bill vetoed; override attempt fails

By Donald M. Rothberg
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress failed Wednesday to override President Ford's veto of a bill authorizing $100 million for research to develop automobiles that would pollute less and burn less fuel.

The House overrode the veto, but the Senate fell 10 votes short of the necessary two-thirds majority.

The vote to override in the House was 293 to 102, 29 more than two-thirds. The vote in the Senate was 41 to 35.

Supporters of the bill argued that private industry was not doing enough to develop pollution-free, energy-efficient automobiles.

In his veto message Ford said the proposed research "would unnecessarily duplicate existing authorities and extend into areas private industry is best equipped to pursue."

The President said the energy Research and Development Administration and the Department of Transportation already are sponsoring research programs and that new ones "would provide no commensurate benefit for the taxpayers who must pay for this program."

Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, arguing for overriding the veto, said the bill "supplements but neither supplants nor duplicates" current efforts by private industry.

Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., argued the bill was "an unnecessary, ridiculous duplication of effort."

Ford has vetoed 58 bills since he became President. Eleven vetoes have been overridden.

Congress voted 12 days ago to override his veto of a measure for research in the field.

In the House, Rep. Mike McCormack, D-Wash., said an improvement of one mile per gallon in automobile fuel efficiency would save 400,000 barrels of oil per day, or $1.6 billion worth per year.

The measure would have authorized a five-year program to develop advanced automobile propulsion systems, other components and integrated test vehicles.

tickets, and we want to handle the situation as fairly as possible." Preston said. "I can only suggest that everyone fill out their orders carefully, and double check them before they send them in. An error in an order could make the difference in getting tickets and not getting them. Orders with errors will be sent back to the customer. Time will not permit us to track down each problem and solve it."

In order to permit as many people to see the show as possible, extra seats behind the stage have been added to the Arena's normal north-end Focus 9 stage set-up.

Since the Elvis show "flies" their sound—all speakers and electronics are suspended above the stage—seats normally blocked by speakers will also be sold. All $7.50 seats are these type, and will be marked "behind the stage." The total number of tickets available is about 10,200.

Joe Dakin

GOP bid for statehouse would give C'dale voice

By Steve Hahn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale is the most populous town in the 58th Legislative District, but no members of the Illinois House call it home. Joe Dakin hopes to change that.

Dakin, a Carbondale city councilman, is a Republican running for one of the three seats from this district. His Democratic opponents are Bruce Richmond of Murphysboro and Vincent Bircbier of Chester.

Because of the cumulative voting system used in this state, Ralph Dunn of Du Quoin is in effect, a Republican opponent of Dakin's.

Each party nominates two candidates for the three seats. Voters have three votes to cast.

The cumulative system allows all three votes to be cast for one candidate, 1 1/2 votes for each of two candidates or one vote each for three candidates.

Dakin, an assistant professor in the School of Technical Careers and a former police chief, said in an interview last week that he classifies himself as a "middle-of-the-roader"—a moderate and a man of common sense. He calls himself "an individual not lead by special interests."

While many of Dakin's political views can generally be classified as "moderate," his stands do not easily fit any label.

He supports the decriminalization of marijuana and the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment, but he opposes abortion except when the mother's life is threatened by the pregnancy. He favors the death penalty if it is administered in a nondiscriminatory manner. He said he favors a constitutional amendment banning abortions.

One of Dakin's main interests is crime and the judicial structure.

"I don't think judges are doing their jobs," he said. "They don't work 40 hours a week. Let's get them off the golf courses."

He favors mandatory jail sentences for such crimes as the use of a handgun while committing a crime but he is against handgun control because he feels even the strictest gun laws are unworkable.

Dakin is a commissioner of the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, chairman of the 27-county Southern Illinois Criminal Justice Planning Committee.

He said he favors the death penalty for multiple murders, premeditated murder and the murder of a police officer.

Dakin agrees with many that the state is having financial problems. Instead of supporting a tax increase, he favors taking a new look at a state reorganization plan drawn up by the last Republican governor, Richard Ogilvie. The report, called "Beyond Bureaucracy," describes an "efficient" method of running state government.

Dakin said he does not know what programs could be cut if Illinois were to go broke, but he said, "There's bound to be fat." One of the state-funded programs he feels should not be cut is education.

Dakin said he would cosponsor a bill to outlaw double-dipping—the process in which a person holds two public jobs—support a constitutional amendment giving citizens the power to propose laws by initiative petition and to enact or reject them in a statewide election, and would support the exclusion of legislators for voting when they have a "significant" financial conflict of interest.

Dakin also said he would try to do something about what he calls "a bad business climate" in the state. He said he favors using private enterprise over the creation of government jobs.

Former student found innocent in drug case

By H. B. Koplowitz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A former SIU student charged in March with the illegal manufacture of phenylcyclidine (PCP) has been found innocent.

In a jury trial before Judge Richard Richman at the Jackson County Courthouse in Murphysboro, Thomas J. Kondo, 24, trailer 83 Carbondale Mobile Homes, was acquitted after the prosecution failed to link Kondo to traces of PCP found in an SIU chemistry lab last winter.

The charge stemmed from an incident that occurred at 2 a.m. Jan. 7 in the chemistry lab of the Neckers Building.

Kondo, who was then a graduate student in chemistry, was discovered by two SIU Security Policemen in the lab during Christmas break, according to Larry Rippe, assistant state's attorney. Kondo told the police he worked for Gerard Smith, a chemistry professor, and showed them a pass that allowed him access to the building.

Rippe said the police called Smith who said Kondo had permission to use the lab but that he was supposed to be in the building at such a late hour.

The officers also saw several pieces of laboratory equipment and asked Kondo what they were for. Kondo said he did not know.

After Kondo left the lab, the officers re-entered the building and discovered that Kondo had disassembled the equipment and put it away Rippe said. The officers found traces of a white powder on the floor where the

Check Cashing Policies

I tried to cash a check on an out-of-town bank at a store in the University Mall. The salesclerk demanded a show of a credit card (any) before she would accept the check. I do not have any credit cards, so I could not make the purchase. Is this policy fair?—A Student

Of 15 Carbondale businesses contacted about their policies on checks, most said they require two forms of identification for persons writing checks on out-of-town banks. One of the identification forms must be a driver's license or, in the case of student's, a student ID card. The other form may be a credit card, but insurance cards, etc., may also be acceptable. None of the businesses surveyed, including the one where you say you tried to cash a check, said they require a credit card identification. Perhaps the clerk misunderstood her employer's policy.

A Property Purchase Problem

After being assured by a realty representative that everything was in working order, my husband and I bought a house in Carbondale. We were in town for about an hour in August to see the house. We know it needed some repairs, but the electricity was off and we did not learn until a few weeks later, when we moved from Springfield, about defective electrical wiring and faulty plumbing. We complained to the realtor four or five times before they ever sent a plumber. Also, the statement that the mechanical equipment was in working order was not included in our contract. Is there anything we can do?—S.M.

A representative of the realtor explained that it took two weeks for the plumber to get to S.M.'s house because Carbondale has a shortage of plumbers and they have heavy workloads. The plumber declined to give an estimate of costs of repairs needed, which S.M. said include inoperable washer and dryer outlets, a cracked toilet bowl and resulting water damage to the floor, and replacement of a drain and the pipes. The plumber did, according to S.M., unstop a clogged bathtub drain.

The realtor's assurances about the working order of the plumbing and wiring apparently were verbal and were not included in a legally binding written contract.

Attorney Jonah Goldsmith told a Consumer Action Center representative that this is a case of "caveat emptor," or "buyer beware"—unless S.M. can prove fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the realtor.

Auto Repairs Under Warranty

My wife and I bought a 1976 Plymouth Volare from Chester Plymouth, Chester, Ill. An oil leak prompted us to take the car to Chester for repairs. The dealer wanted to epoxy a cracked cylinder block to stop the oil leakage. We do not want an epoxy job, because of the temporary nature of such a repair, versus the seriousness of the problem. We want nothing less than replacement of the vehicle as described in a 90-day full dealer warranty and a one-year Plymouth warranty. We feel that a minimum acceptable alternative would be replacement of defective factory parts by a reputable service mechanic.—R. and D.M.

Since R. and D.M. filed their complaint with the Consumer Action Center, they reached agreement with the Chester dealer and a Chrysler Corp. Service Department representative to have the engine repaired by the epoxy method. Bob Smith, of Hollywood, Mo., the service representative, said "the type of oil leak is the major decision factor" in selecting the repair method. He explained that some types of leaks can be repaired successfully by a Chrysler-approved epoxy procedure, which he recommended in this case. Smith contacted the Chester dealer and Chrysler's district manager to speed the repair of R. and D.M.'s car.

The dealer, R. and D.M. have subsequently reported, also corrected a number of other problems with the car, including "a loose front fender, sprung and dented trunk, missing cigarette lighter, noisy brakes and disconnected hood release."

The case illustrates, perhaps, that such problems can be satisfactorily worked out between car dealers and car buyers—with some persistence and patience.

equipment had been and on a funnel and filter papers in a waste basket.

The officers sent the powder to the crime lab in DeSoto where it was analyzed as PCP.

Kondo was stopped for not having a license plate on his car by one of the officers who had followed him after he left the lab. The policeman discovered a disassembled revolver in Kondo's pocket, Rippe said. He was then charged with illegal use of a weapon.

The charge of illegal use of a weapon, filed in Williamson County, where Kondo is on probation on another charge ruled that since the handgun was disassembled, Kondo was not in violation of the law.

At the trial on the charge of illegal manufacture of a controlled substance, last week Kondo testified that he was in the lab to clean his gun and had no knowledge of what the tools that had the PCP on them were doing there. He said that part of his job at the lab was to clean up and that therefore, it was not unusual for him to put the equipment away after the officers had left the first time.

Kondo's lawyer Tony Armstrong, also brought out in the cross-examination of a crime lab officer that it takes several days to make PCP, and that therefore, the time Kondo was in the lab was not sufficient to manufacture the substance.

The jury deliberated 45 minutes before arriving at a verdict of innocent.

Kondo said he's happy with the decision and hoped his acquittal would make it easier for him to find a job.

Bolles' avengers: Wish them luck

By Jeff Schwartz
Student Writer

Don Bolles, investigative reporter for the Arizona Republic, was never a household name. He never wrote a best-selling book and Robert Redford never made a movie on his career. Before he was fatally injured by a remote-control bomb planted under his car on June 2, Bolles was known primarily known to his Arizona press colleagues, mobsters, the crooked politicians he investigated and to the public that shared his concern about corruption he saw worming its way through the growing sunbelt state.

The day he was murdered, Bolles had agreed to get information from a tipster on a land fraud story. A cautious reporter who normally insisted on designating a meeting place, Bolles this time did not, nor did he travel as he often did with another reporter as a backup.

This month, four months after Bolles' death, a unique journalistic S.W.A.T. force assembled in Phoenix, Arizona to finish his investigation of the state's rampant corruption. The reporters represent more than a dozen newspapers across the country and none of them can remember any combined investigative effort as this one. The team will work on a series of articles to be published concurrently by all the reporter's papers and then made available, free, to any other that wants it.

Newsday's Robert W. Greene, an investigative superstar, heads the group. Greene has been given at least two months to work on the investigation by Newsday. However, the other reporters will have anywhere from only a few days to a month at the most.

Bolles' murder was the first of an investigative reporter in 40 years. His death represents a brutal and undeniable challenge to the freedom of the press. The journalistic S.W.A.T. team is setting a precedent by pooling the talents of a band of reporters in reaction to the entire case. Perhaps a full-time investigative force should be formed to give this precedent a fair chance.

A free press cannot buckle under to threats and violence and still live up to its name. The attack on Bolles was a murderous attempt to silence expression, block information and cover up what may be a conspiracy to bilk or harm the public. In a case as serious as this one, the journalistic profession should call for a full-time, full-scale effort to protect itself and the people it serves—and then arrange it.

Ping-pong, studying don't mix at Center

It seems that some people at SIU feel that studying and ping-pong can both be done in the same room. I don't! I had the unpleasant experience, along with at least a half dozen other students, this past weekend of trying to study on the 4th floor of the Student Center. The 4th floor is sometimes a very good place to study, the lighting is good, there are plenty of tables and chairs, and it is quiet—unless someone wants to play ping-pong. Have you ever tried to study while people are playing ping-pong right next to you? It's very difficult, if not impossible. I do not want the ping-pong area in the Student Center to be eliminated, but merely separated from the study area. There is plenty of room for both.

Many students cannot study at home for many reasons such as their roommates are too noisy or it's too hot or too cold, etc. The library, for many people, is unacceptable due to the many distractions and the general atmosphere. Also, it is very crowded at times.

The next choice would have to be the Student Center. There is very limited study area available in the Student Center, which in my opinion should be changed. There are general areas, such as the carpeted south section of the cafeteria, which lie dormant three-fourths of the time. Certainly, it would cost SIU a little money to keep it open. I think they can afford it.

Look at your fee statement, you pay $20 per semester for the Student Center. There are 2 semesters during the normal school year which implies $40 per year times 23,000 students equals $920,000 per year. I think we can afford to open up a few more study lounges with that.

Student questions Graduate Council vote

In the meeting of the Graduate Council of September 2, this body passed a resolution to change the grade of INC for graduate course work so that the grade reverts to an E after two years or upon graduation. This motion was seconded by Robert Fancher, a graduate student in philosophy.

It is my opinion that this resolution is in the best interests of neither the graduate students nor the faculty of this University and I intend to petition the Graduate Council for a reconsideration of its decision.

However, I would like to request that Mr. Fancher explain the theory of representation upon which he considers himself to be a graduate student representative of the Graduate Council. Where is his constituency?

In an impromptu survey of 40 graduate students, only 1 of them supported this resolution. Granted that this is not an extensive survey, I feel that it does indicate that perhaps Mr. Fancher does not have the support of his supposed constituency.

Again, I would like to request that Mr. Fancher make a public statement of whom he considers himself to represent and what was the basis for his decision to second this motion.

Pamela Kay Haughawout
Graduate Student
Business Administration

Editor's Note: Robert Fancher replies:

Technically, the constituency of any Graduate Council member is the Graduate Faculty. Nowhere in the Graduate Student Council constitution or the Graduate School operating paper are student members of the Graduate Council designated as anything other than members of that "agent for the Graduate Faculty" which the Graduate Council constitutes.

The Graduate Student Council elects student members of the Graduate Council, though. Since the constituency of the GSC is the graduate student body, only people vitally concerned with the educational welfare and responsibilities of graduate students are likely to be elected. I, for one, consider myself a representative for student welfare and responsibilities, though not constitutionally bound to do so.

The "theory of representation" on which I work is that used for members of deliberative bodies in all large democratic communities: A deliberative body must make many judgments and decisions and carry on many intricate and protracted considerations. Popular referenda on all these are pragmatically impossible. Thus, members are elected to the body who are believed to have the intellectual and ethical maturity and the sympathetic concern to execute well the responsibilities of the body. These members then try to exercise these traits.

As for my reasons for the action in question, these are much too long and complex and far too numerous for exposition in these confines. Ms. Haughawout, or anyone else with a legitimate concern, may contact me at any time for my reasons.

Menard editor rebuts Rep. Dunn attack

An open letter to Rep. Ralph Dunn:

Ralph Dunn, R-DuQuoin, comments in the Randolph County Herald Tribune on Aug. 12, regarding the Menard Prison administration's alleged "gross mismanagement" of an alleged $911,000 inmate compensation fund area, in themselves, either a gross exaggeration or a gross misinterpretation on his part.

Of the $911,000 which Mr. Dunn speaks, less than $300,000 is actually allotted to pay inmates for work performed.

Mr. Dunn speaks of "gross mismanagement" citing the fact that inmates were being paid in advance for work not performed or while in disciplinary segregation for three days doing no work at all. Should Mr. Dunn, who is a frequent critic of Menard, actually come to the prison and check his facts, he would probably quit his job out of sheer embarrassment.

There are over 2,000 inmates at Menard. Nearly half of them have no job. There is nothing for them to do. These men are paid $8 per month. This amounts to $.27 per day for each man.

The men with jobs are paid anywhere between $8 and $03 per month. At most, this amounts to $1 per day for each man. Many of these higher paying jobs fall under the pay system of the industries program, which actually saves the state millions of dollars each year in the manufacturing of concrete products, clothing, bedding, tobacco products, etc., and in the general maintenance of the prison itself. In essence, the men actually work for the state on a pay scale of $1 per day—a practice that Abraham Lincoln supposedly outlawed years ago.

Tax-money watchdog Dunn gives the impression in the article that the inmate compensation program was designed to assist inmates in support of their families, while they are in prison sentences.

Oh, good god, Mr. Dunn! For your information, the state does not even furnish inmates with toilet articles necessary to cleanliness and good health. Such items as tooth-brushes, combs, toothpaste, razor blades, etc., must be purchased by inmates at near-street prices at the commissary. And generally, without such frills as shampoo or underarm deodorant, these articles cost more than $8 per month.

To add to this frustration, the state has now seen fit to take state-made cigarettes, which are made by inmates and were once free, and sell them to inmates at $1.19 per pack.

Even without "gross mismanagement," an inmate would be hard pressed to send any of his $.27 a day home to assist his family, if indeed he was crass enough to insult their intelligence by waiting to do so in the first place.

Prisons and their management are, as Mr. Dunn stated, "a clean waste of taxpayer's money." However, if he is sincerely interested in finding the why and wherefore of the waste, let him be fair and factual about it and not use the lives of 2,000 inmates to fake the public out and further his own image on the political scene.

Menard Times editor

Editor's Note: Rep. Dunn was contacted two weeks ago and said he would be sending a reply. To date, however, nothing has been received from his office.

Black American studies worthwhile

By Linda Reed
Student Writer

Civil-rights strategist Bayard Rustin was perhaps uninformed or misinformed, but certainly wrong when he was quoted in Newsweek as saying "Black studies was hoax. It made black people feel good, instead of filling their minds with something useful."

Three primary factors prove that black studies is not only useful, but necessary in the educational system.

The objectives of the Black American Studies (BAS) program verify that its organizers had intellectual, academic growth, and scholarly usefulness in mind when they devised the program. The objectives suggest that BAS organizers intended to encourage research, community service, career opportunities and the study of the achievements of blacks.

According to an article by N.A. Ford in Current History, the more than 200 objectives for the approximately 200 organized programs in BAS can be grouped into six categories:

—To provide for black students a feeling of personal identity, pride and worth.

—To offer a systematic study of the origin and experiences of blacks; their history, living conditions, philosophies, social values, artistic expressions among other achievements, and the effects of their relations with other peoples.

—To do research in and provide services to the black community and its organizations by jointly identifying and analyzing its problems, offering consultation, and establishing service channels into the community from the diverse resources of the college or university.

—To radically reform American education by attacking its basic racist assumptions and making it truly democratic and relevant to the current needs of the black and white students.

—To prepare students for career opportunities, including the professions.

—To encourage and actively develop intellectual growth and broad scholarly interests in students affiliated with the program.

The impact of BAS programs proves that these objectives have been accomplished.

Walter G. Robinson, director of BAS at SIU, said "the BAS program has made institutions very sensitive to the omissions the educational system has had of BAS at the State University of New York at Cortland, feel that present efforts to provide courses and programs in black studies should not only be continued, but should be expanded as rapidly as possible.

Another important factor is student response to BAS. For example, one student, a BAS minor at SIU, said she thinks BAS is useful because it informs students about the black experience. "Blacks have been ignorant about themselves for so long," she said. "It is time they wake up to their situation."

After taking courses in Afro-American history, literature and music at the college level, one would agree that BAS is useful not only because it is informative and relevant, but because it also gives black students a sense of pride and dignity in knowing that their forefathers were a great force in building this country.

It is certainly not wrong to inform black students that Gwendolyn Brooks, a black woman, is poet laureate of Illinois. It is not wrong to make black students aware that the contributions of blacks in every professional field and discipline has helped pave the way for blacks in those fields now.

Contrary to Rustin's comment, the hoax lies not in having BAS, but in denying institutions the opportunity to develop BAS and develop it to its fullest potential. This is deceiving because it gives students, particularly blacks, the impression that the black man had little if anything to do with building the foundation of this country.

For those Americans who take pride in calling themselves Americans because they feel this country is one of the greatest in the world, it is necessary to realize that this country is great in large part because of the blood, sweat, tears, efforts and contributions of the black man.

Viewpoint

through the years." The educational system, Robinson said, previously has been teaching on the basis that America is made up only on the input of white America, with no account of other groups.

Consequently, Robinson said the BAS program points out that students were being miseducated because they would leave an institution with a lack of understanding and knowledge of the full spectrum of the system.

In addition, there are those who believe that BAS has had such a significant impact that programs should be expanded.

Campaign litter could backfire on candidate

By Michael P. Mullen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Politicians use a variety of media to advertise their candidacy. They buy time on television, newspaper ads, radio spots and generally try to make sure their message gets through to the electorate.

Often they buy billboard space and sometimes their more fervid supporters erect signs and placards on their own property proclaiming the merits of their candidates.

All these methods are as American as the political process itself, and in a free society these methods are mandatory to insure the populace is informed on the issues and personalities involved.

But occasionally a candidate's organization is overzealous in its attempt to bring their man's campaign to the people. They feel that no place is off limits to their campaign propaganda and also believe it is their inherent right to plaster every telephone pole, fence post and roadside tree with signs and placards. Tastefully erected signs in someone's yard, and even the most garish campaign broadsides, when used within the limits of the law, are not offensive.

However, it is offensive when a campaign organization decides to senselessly mutilate our natural environment to promote their candidate.

Commentary

The campaign organization of Peter, Prineas falls into that category. The blame cannot be laid on Prineas, because in the heat of a political campaign, the candidate does not have the time to keep a close watch on what his workers are doing.

The Prineas organization's tasteless erection of signs urging the election of its candidate in a National Wildlife preserve merits a note of denunciation. Nailing signs to trees along a highway is not a proper way to attract votes.

This senseless action by the Prineas organization reflects directly on the candidate, even though he may not be directly responsible.

These signs, especially those located on Spillway Road in western Williamson County, are a needless eyesore. The hectic pace of day to day life is bad enough; why does the political process have to encroach on our scenic and tranquil park land.

People visit these areas to get away from the hassles of their daily existence, not to be reminded of them. Apparently the Prineas organization thinks that people take to the hinterlands to gain some insight on the merits of Mr. Prineas' campaign.

In a way, the Prineas organization may be right. If the organization's use of public lands for political promotion is an indication of how Mr. Prineas will conduct himself if elected, the signs will have served a useful purpose.

Mr. Prineas is urged to have his organization remove these signs before environmental disregard is attributed to him.

Plains women cooking for Carter funds

By Lawrence Knutson
Associated Press Writer

PLAINS, Ga. (AP)—The women of Jimmy Carter's home town are using country cooking as the lure for what may be the Carter campaign's biggest fund-raiser, a million dollar supper in the Georgia pines for the Democratic National Committee.

While the presidential nominee rested at home in preparation for a new campaign swing through Buffalo, Boston, Nashville, Pittsburgh and Portland, Maine, his neighbors bustled about organizing their pollock supper next Saturday night.

They expect to feed up to 600 persons, at least 200 of whom will have donated or raised $5,000 each.

Carter, read newspaper accounts of his recent campaigning in Texas, California, Oregon and Indiana. He also received the first staff briefing book for his Oct. 6 debate on foreign policy with President Ford.

Carter aides have described the first debate last Thursday as a sort of watershed for their campaign—an end to the "road testing" of issues, as one put it. They say that from now on the candidate will concentrate on broader themes than he used in the primaries, such as the need for trust in government and for strong leadership which Carter contends is lacking in the Ford administration.

But the aides conceded that concern about poor crowd reaction and news stories saying the Carter campaign lacked focus were additional reasons for the shift in emphasis.

Southern housewives from Plains, Sumter County and nearby areas began to plan for a dinner which will include the obligatory southern fried chicken and also baked ham, turkey and dressing, chicken pie, sweet potatoes, deviled eggs, salads of many descriptions and dozens of desserts ranging from pecan pie to banana pudding.

"There will be one table with nothing but pickles and relishes," said Maxine Reese, a Carter staff member and lifelong Plains resident who is organizing the largest social event in this tiny village's history.

"They want to come to Plains and eat Plains food and that's what we're going to give them," she said.

The food won't be fussy or fancy, she added. "But you know, we haven't had a restaurant here until just after Jimmy won the nomination, so we do know how to cook Plains, Ga., style."

The paying guests have been invited by the Democratic National Committee to see the candidate's now-famous home town of 683, to eat supper and to leave $5,000 in the party's coffers.

The site will be "the pond house," a small modern summer house in a grove of pine trees beside a pond that is often used by the candidate's mother, Lillian Carter.

"We expect to raise $1 million," said Reese. "We're not all upset about it. We're just going about our everyday business and we'll have supper ready when they get here."

Reese was asked what kind of people will be coming to dinner.

She smiled and answered in one word: "Rich."

KING OF HEARTS

In an isolated surreal pocket of World War I, the British send Alan Bates into a highly unlikely, tiny French town to discover a bomb. The townspeople have fled and the inmates of the local asylum have taken their place. The resulting interaction gives us some of the most enchanting sequences on film. When the reality of the retraining armies breaks the bubble and the inmates have returned to the asylum, we can really share Bates' confusion about which people are really insane. In our opinion, KING OF HEARTS is a rare treat, funny and sad at the same time.

This wacky, beautiful film has awakened, become a giant, and turned the movie world upside down.

There is one reason for this phenomenon: people love the King.

Spillway bridge work may end in November

Michael P. Mullen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Construction work on the bridge at the Crab Orchard Lake spillway in western Williamson County should be completed in late November.

"We're completely replacing the old structure," Bill Gayer, assistant superintendent of highways for Williamson County said Monday. "The hardest part of the construction is over and barring complications, the new bridge will be open in late November."

The new structure will be longer and wider than the old bridge, and will utilize precast and poured-in-place concrete, Gayer said.

The old bridge, constructed of wood timbers and planks, was 145 feet long and 21 feet wide, he said. The new bridge will be 170 feet long and 31 feet wide.

Superior Structures of Marion is doing the construction on the job for a contracted cost of over $168,000 Gayer said. The job is funded in part by federal, state and county governments.

"Everything's going smoothly. We planned the construction for the fall to coincide with the least amount of water in the creek," Gayer said. "It's been a pretty dry summer, and the low water in the lake has allowed us to get most of the difficult work done quickly and without problems."

Construction began about two weeks ago with the removal of the old bridge.

"The cost of building a detour at the spillway would be astronomical," Gayer said, "even if we could have gotten permission from the federal people." The federal government owns the land surrounding the bridge and spillway.

"There are a number of alternate routes to Carbondale, and the only complaints we've had so far have come from people who didn't know where they were," Gayer said.

Gayer suggested that residents south and east of the construction site use Dogwood Lane or take Little Grassy Road to Giant City Blacktop to get to and from Carbondale.

Unlike U.S., Soviet stamp prices stable

By Tom Kent
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP)—While the cost of mailing a letter has risen in the United States from 3 cents to 13 cents since World War II, the price of a first class stamp in the Soviet Union has remained for all those years at 4 kopeks, or 5 cents at the current official exchange rate.
In addition to that, the Soviet post office claims it isn't losing money. The U.S. Postal Service lost nearly a billion dollars in the 1975 fiscal year.

But the Soviet balance sheet benefits from government ownership of the air and rail lines that carry the mail and from much lower salaries for postal workers. A mailman here is said to earn the equivalent of $105 a month as opposed to more than $14,000 a year an American letter carrier makes. The average factory worker's wage in the Soviet Union is $195 a month.

The Soviet post office refused to grant an interview to talk about the postal service, so no official claim is available about the quality of postal worker performance. One Soviet source said the average Soviet post office employe is 2 1/2 times less efficient than his American counterpart, largely because of a lack of automation.

Test mailings by The Associated Press found it takes only two or three days for ordinary letters to travel from Leningrad to Moscow, a distance of about 430 miles.

But letters can take up to five to seven days to travel about 800 miles from the Crimea on the Black Sea to Moscow.

Letters traveling across the United States can be delivered in two or three days.

In major cities, the mail carrier, often an old woman, comes seven days a week. Service includes same-day delivery of newspapers and usually 24-hour delivery of letters sent within city limits.

Thompson stops staged commercial

By T. Lee Hughes
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson said Wednesday he has ordered withdrawal of a television commercial that shows him being questioned by patrons at a Chicago supermarket, some of whom are actually volunteer workers for his campaign.

Thompson said he has told his campaign manager to have the widely-used commercial taken off the air, saying "We don't need any staged commercials in the Thompson campaign."

Thompson was questioned about the controversial campaign commercial at a news conference called to discuss his proposals for reform of the state's Medicaid program.

The commercial was one of a series that show Thompson spontaneously answering questions from citizens at a variety of locations, he said.

He said he noticed the campaign volunteers among the crowd of about 20 persons when he arrived at the supermarket to film the commercial.

Highlights of day set for parents

Activities ranging from a three-hour "Buffalo Tro" steak cookout to a professional basketball exhibition game have been slated for SIU's annual Parent's Day Saturday Oct. 2.

Honored guests for the entire affair will be Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Potter of LaSalle, parents of Sherry Potter, an junior in physical education. Their name came up as the winner in a drawing to select Parents of the Day—a couple to be the symbol for parents of all students at the University.

A reception and registration program will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Student Center Gallery Lounge. It will include information handouts, ticket sales booth for the Chicago Bulls—Atlanta Hawks basketball game that night and the Buffalo Tro in the afternoon and evening, an exhibit by photographer Robert Stokes, and entertainment.

Open houses are schedule throughout the day at campus residence hall, Small Group Housing, and WIDB, a student-operated radio station.

Student cut rates available at show

Special student matinees have been set for "Billy Budd" by Louis Coxé and Robert Chapman, the first production of the Loretto-Hilton Theatre season in St. Louis, Mo.

"Billy Budd," the passionate epic of justice and the sea is taken from the American classic novel by Herman Melville and will run from Oct. 15 to Nov. 12. Student performances are scheduled for Oct. 26, Nov. 2, 9, 10, and 11 with curtain at 11 a.m.

The matinee program includes a special teacher's handbook sent two weeks before the performance and one complimentary chaperone ticket added to each 20 student tickets ordered.

Backstage tours are available by appointment after some student performances. Tours take approximately 30 minutes and may accommodate no less than 20 or more than 60 people per tour guide. The assistance of the Missouri State Council allows the Loretto-Hilton to charge only $2 per ticket.

Interested school groups should call Madeleine Tress at (314) 961-6458 at extension 253 for further information and arrangements.

Carter's book not best, does offer some hints

By Mike Gussauls
Student Writer

Yes, Mr. Carter, in your own words, why not the best?—instead of this autobiography filled with the usual parade of meaningless phrases, trite observations, and typical campaign promises that have marched over the American landscape for the past two hundred years.

Meaningless phrase number one: "As my visits to the different sates continued, I became more and more convinced of the inherent greatness of our country"; number two: "Can our government be competent?"; number three: "Our political leaders have simply underestimated the innate quality and character of our people."

It seems that Carter is the person underestimating the American people's ability to see a contrived campaign slogan when they hear one.

"Why not the Best?" fails to strike me as anything fresh in terms of literary themes, although it is well-written—perhaps too well-written.

I highly suspect that a ghost-writer was haunting Plains, Georgia when Carter was writing this book. But since ghosts are invisible, who can prove it?

Carter's imagination is as fertile as the Georgia peanut fields in which the story takes root.

In describing his boyhood, Carter creates several Lincolnnesque images of himself. They include chopping wood, walking miles for a book and doing difficult manual labor on his father's peanut farm.

And although his reminiscing does sound a bit phony and forced, it does make for entertaining reading. One example is a story Carter tells about an argument between his sister Gloria and himself. He ends the fight by taking a BB gun and shooting her in the rear end.

The next 50 pages fly by like leaves on a windy autumn day, and Carter appears as a midshipman attending the Naval Academy at Annapolis under the instruction of Navy Admiral Hyman Rickover.

The rest of the chapters recount the time from Carter's initiation into politics up to his present campaign attempts to prove why he is the best possible choice in the 1976 election.

In a chapter entitled "Our International Neighbors," Carter intelligently compiles his observations of foreign governments, their successes and failures and points out how he would incorporate some of their practices into American government.

For example, in England, Carter viewed the interrogation of the Cabinet ministers in the House of Commons; he suggests a similar process for our government. Members of the Cabinet would appear before joint sessions of Congress to answer written and verbal questions, preferably with live television coverage for the whole nation to view.

Ideas like these make "Why Not the Best?" interesting reading material. For the book helps the reader insight into what Carter plans to do if elected.

Folk festival scheduled

A rocking chair contest, an ankle turning contest and goose plucking, in addition to a country music show, are expected to attract the most attention at the fifth annual Southern Illinois Folk Festival set for Oct. 1 through 3 at the DuQuoin State Fair.

Rocking chair contestants will begin rocking Friday night and with the exception of certain designated breaks, will give the opportunity to rock until they can no more.

An ankle turning contest, in which entrants are hidden behind a sheet, except for the exposed ankles, will decide who is entitled to the "sexiest ankle" award.

Last year, when more than 50,000 people attended the festival, goose plucking ranked as one of the most popular attractions. "They don't kill the goose," Marilyn Phillips, president of the festival, stressed. Since this is the only festival of this type in southern Illinois, several schools schedule field trips, and some 6,000 students are expected to attend Friday.

Cow milking demonstrations are popular with youngsters who learn how cream is separated from milk and churned into butter. Students are allowed to help in the cream-making process.

One of the main attractions at this year's festival will be the Big Lake Country Jamboree show Friday at 7 p.m. with the well-know Osborne Brothers and Grandpa Jones. Also included in the show to be staged in the main grandstand will be the Gordons and the gang from the Big Lake Country Jamboree.

Sunday a queen will be chosen, and since the festival is attuned to the turn of the century, the queen will compete in old-fashioned swimming suits and dresses that would have been fashionable in 1900. Every craftsman and exhibitor at the festival will be attired in turn-of-the-century apparel for the three-day event.

SIU student is semi-finalist choice in 1976 'Miss Wheelchair' pageant

SIU student Eilyn Boyd was selected as one of the 10 semi-finalists in the 1976 Miss Wheelchair America Pageant held in Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 22 through 25.

A junior in therapeutic recreation, Boyd was selected Miss Wheelchair Illinois June 26.

Boyd competed against contestants from 30 states plus Washington D.C., the Dominican Republic and Puerto Rico. Judging criteria for the pageant were personal accomplishment, personality and appearance.

As Miss Wheelchair Illinois, Boyd is involved in promoting the goals and accomplishments of the physically disabled, and has made both television and radio appearances in the Southern Illinois area.

Boyd is also active in sports. She won three gold and one silver medal at the Olympiad for the Physically Disabled held During August in Toronto. She earned three gold medals with world record times.

The 23-year-old said she had four days to do things in Columbus. She said, "I knew one other contestant—she was from Virginia—who was on the Olympic team with me. It was kind of neat to go out there and know at least one other person."

The contestants went through five judging sessions, and then the top 10 were chosen. After a final judging session, Beverly Marie Chapman of Florida was chosen Miss Wheelchair America.

Boyd works full-time for the Easter Seal Society of Southern Illinois.

HALF FLAGS

NEW YORK (AP)—Manager Billy Martin of the Yankees won't be happy until he gets his team into their first World Series since 1964. They seem a cinch to win the American League East but must beat the AL West, probably Kansas City, to face the NL in October.

Paper birds stop real ones from hitting high-rises

CHICAGO (AP)—All right, you highrise dwellers, get out the scissors, cut out hawks and owls and paste them in your windows. It's supposed to keep migrating birds from killing themselves.

The suggestion was made Wednesday by Dr. William Beecher, director of the Chicago Academy of Sciences.

He noted that the peak of the bird migration season has arrived in Chicago and already a few hundred warblers, white-throated sparrows and thrushes have been killed crashing into windows of the taller buildings.

Woodpeckers and flickers now have joined the southward migration stream that ends in November, he said.

High school heroin ring in Chicago cracked by cops posing as students

CHICAGO (AP)—Youthful-looking policemen posing as students at South Side high schools have cracked a ring selling heroin to children and teenagers, officials said Wednesday.

Twenty-two persons were indicted and arrest warrants have been issued for 29 more in connection with heavy heroin traffic at DuSable, Phillips and Julian high schools, police said.

State's Atty. Bernard Carey said the number of alleged drug dealers was the largest ever charged in one investigation.

"We found that little kids were serving as runners," said Ronald Kelly, director of the police youth division. "They were recruited as apprentice pushers who got to keep $2 for every $10 bag of heroin sold. Of course, they also were being made into apprentice junkies. One boy in the 7th grade had a $60-a-day heroin habit."

He said drugs also were being sold openly around several South Side elementary schools.

When the indictments were handed down by a Cook County grand jury Monday but suppressed to give time for arrests, 30 plainclothes youth offices hit the streets in unmarked cars confiscated from previous drug raids.

"None of the pushers we arrested are users themselves," said Kelly.

Strip mine reclamation uses Chicago's sludge

By Daniel Conlidge
Student Writer

Because of a combined effort by four SIU Departments, the U.S. Forest Service and the Chicago Sanitary District, a 192 acre tract of the Palzo Strip Mine near Harrisburg is now being reclaimed using sewage sludge.

The key element in the reclamation, which started Jan. 1, is the use of sewage sludge shipped from Chicago. The transportation of the material on the Illinois Central Railroad is financed by the Chicago Sanitary District.

The U.S. Forest service which owns the land is doing the reclamation with the help of the SIU Forestry, Botany, Geology, and Plant and Soil Science Departments. SIU is working on 36 acres of the land.

According to the written objectives of the SIU project, each department has a certain number of work teams headed by a faculty member. Each team has specific tasks in the project.

John Bauer, graduate student in plant and soil science, said the sludge is spread over the soil six to ten inches thick. The sludge lowers the high acid levels of the old soil and makes vegetation possible. The vegetation in turn controls runoff of the high acid soil which has polluted the watershed, Bauer said.

Bauer is a member of the plant and soil science team and is completing his graduate work studying the sludge's effect on ground vegetation at Palzo.

Bauer said one of the points being explored in the SIU research is the concentration of toxic metals in vegetation growing in the sludge.

The plant and soil science department has planted several kinds of grasses to find which ones absorb low levels of the toxins since grass releases the metals directly in the food chain.

The forestry Department has planted several kinds of trees to find which ones absorb high levels of the toxins. "Since trees store these toxic metals in the woody portion of the plant there is in many cases little released to the foodchain," said Paul Roth, associated forestry professor.

The geology department has been studying the sludge's relation to the weathering of the high-acid soil, said William Hood, associate geology professor.

According to Walter Sundberg, assistant botany professor his department is studying various fungi to determine which ones effectively carry on decomposition, a vital part of the cycle of the new soil.

Health agency: smallpox's end could be near

By Dorian Falk
Associated Press Writer

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—Seven persons in remote Ethiopian desert villages are the only persons in the world known to have smallpox, and they may be the last, the World Health Organization has said. Only nine years ago the disease killed two million.

Officials of the organization — WHO — said the last case of the disease should be over in two months. Then, if no new breakouts occur in two years' time, WHO will declare the plague officially eradicated, ending a massive worldwide campaign it began in 1967.

Medical laboratories throughout the world have already begun to destroy stocks of small pox virus, used to make vaccine, to prevent an accidental revival.

The last seven victims are in three villages isolated in the desert region of Bale, some 200 miles south of Addis Ababa, WHO said. Hardly any one travels there, and the disease has not spread. The experts are confident it will not do so in its dying stages.

Experience has shown that once eradicated the disease does not reappear. But to make sure, WHO will conduct an extensive surveillance, including a house-to-house search in the three villages.

Smallpox is caused by a virus that is transmitted only by direct contact among persons. Before modern medicine brought it under control, waves of the plague swept through whole continents, decimating populations and leaving survivors marked with ugly pockmarks and sometimes blind.

There is still no known treatment for the disease.

The goal of all the departments according to their objectives is to provide a healthy and environmentally acceptable ecosystem for the Palzo area.

Gubernatorial candidates tell Medicaid plan

Plans for revisions of the state's Medicaid program, which provides medical care for the needy, have been announced by both the Democratic and Republican candidates for governor.

Republican James R. Thompson Wednesday presented a four-point program in Springfield which he said would curb Medicaid fraud. Thompson also said one of the first things he would do if elected would be to fire James S. Trainor, director of the Illinois Department of Public Aid.

Democrat Michael J. Howlett said Tuesday night in a Waukegan speech that he will, if elected, appoint a committee to help restructure the Medicaid payment program.

Howlett said the program is running "out of control" and that it should be moved out of the public aid department.

Thompson said his proposal to fire Trainor "is not an anti-Trainor statement" but a reflection of his view that the program cannot be reformed without new people in the department.

His four-point proposal for Medicaid reform calls for:

- Creation of a computerized information system to keep records on all Medicaid clients as well as all dispensers of medical services.

- Establishment of a "vendor liaison" program, which would advise the department on how to uncover Medicaid fraud.

- Creation of an office of Medicaid investigations to investigate fraudulent claims.

- Creation of a "traveling record book" in which dispensers of medical services would record the date, nature and cost of services.

Thompson said federal funds have been available since 1971 to establish a computerized system, such as the one he proposes, but that the public aid department has not taken advantage of either the money or the federal expertise available in this area.

Daley says Carter 'in slump'

CHICAGO (AP)—Mayor Richard J. Daley said Wednesday he thinks Jimmy Carter is in a slump, but added, "you never run from a friend when he's in a slump or in trouble or anything else. That's the time you redouble your efforts."

Daley said the Democratic presidential nominee "was a great fella in spring training, but now that the league has started, he's in a slump." The mayor credited the Christian Science Monitor for the baseball metaphor describing the status of Carter's campaign.

Nevertheless, said Daley, "We're going to carry Illinois for Jimmy Carter."

Scientists search for clues of America's first inhabitants

By Warren Leary
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Scientists have begun what they call the most intensive quest in history to find artifacts and bones of the first North Americans, the tribes of hunting peoples that emigrated from Asia over a Bering Sea land bridge thousands of years ago.

The three-year project, focusing on eight digging sites in Alaska and one in Canada's Yukon, was announced Tuesday by the National Geographic Society and National Park Service. Each will contribute $300,000 to dig up the lost American history.

Archaeologists, anthropologists, geologists, paleontologists and other scientists are being recruited in this hunt for early man. Scientists said that to date the Soviet Union has done more work on the Siberian travels of these early migrants than Americans have.

Two University of Alaska scientists already engaged in the project, Drs. William R. Powers and Russell D. Guthrie, told a news briefing that their work this summer at one site already has produced promising results.

They found tools and animal bones in charred remains of campfires that have been dated about 12,000 years old. The dig, called Dry Creek, is located about 75 miles south of Fairbanks. The tools and artifacts were made from stone and bone, they said.

Dr. William Irving of the University of Toronto, working at a site at Old Crow in the Yukon, said he made a rare find this past summer—the jawbone and tooth from an early man.

Irving said the jawbone isn't officially dated yet, but preliminary evidence suggests it's probably more than 20,000 years old.

"If the bone is 20,000 or more years old, it would be one of the oldest direct artifacts of man found in northern America," Irving said. Some of the tool fossils found at Old Crow date back more than 25,000 years, he added.

"The specific aim of this project is to get a full picture of what life was like then and hopefully to find other sites and fossils," Guthrie said.

Dr. Robert E. Ackerman of Washington State University said that as early as 30,000 to 50,000 years ago, people started to drift across the bridge, probably following animal herds. In fact, early man probably had no idea he was going to a new continent.

"We think it was slow process of migration," he said.

Salukis' No. 1 woman golfer used to be No. 1 men's golfer

By Dave Heun
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Some of the men golfers at Alleghany County High School in Covington, Va. resented Sandy Lemon, SIU's top woman golfer, when Lemon was a senior there last year.

The reason for their resentment was the fact that Lemon was the No. 1 golfer on the team. There is no woman's golf team at Alleghany, so Lemon competed with the men.

"When I beat the guys, they felt real bad," said Lemon, a freshman, who chose SIU over four other universities that offered her scholarships. "Some would say, 'Gosh, we gotta play with a girl, she'll just slow us up,' and then they would resent it when I beat them."

Lemon said the years she spent playing with the men really helped her game, because the men's tees are longer than the women's.

In 1974 Lemon was runner-up in the Virginia Junior Tournament, and in 1975 she won the State Amateur tournament in the first flight. Lemon explained that there were eight flights, categorized by the golfers talent. There was a championship flight, too, and Lemon was involved in a sudden death playoff with six other golfers in the championship flight. She was beat on the first hole, then went on to win the first flight.

Lemon, a physical education major, averages around 78 for 18 holes, and said that her long game (driving) was her biggest asset. "I have to work on my putting," she said. "It's hard to get used to the greens because they are all faster than the ones we practice on at Crab Orchard."

Being brought up in a family of golfers made it easy for Lemon to get involved in the game. Her brother is the No. 1 golfer at Virginia Tech, and her parents play often.

"I've been playing since I was eight years old," she said.

Lemon said she is used to the mountains in Virginia, and it seems difficult to golf in the Midwest.

"The wind and weather are real handicaps, especially up north where I haven't golfed much," she said. "We go to Michigan State next weekend (Oct. 8-9) and it'll probably be freezing up there."

"It's tough to play in the cold, because your clothing can hinder your swing," she added.

Lemon said the weather was bothering her last weekend when her score shot up to 89 at Western Illinois, for the state championship.

"Miss Blaha (golf coach Sandy) really helps you to become more consistent by stressing certain parts of the game," she said. "We practice from 4:30 to 7 p.m. every night. The only bad thing is that I miss dinner." Lemon lives in Neely Hall, where dinner is served until 6:30.

"We have a real young team," Lemon said, "and in the next couple years we'll get the experience needed to be real good."

"I'm glad I picked SIU. I really like the campus and the people here," she said.

Lemon's interest in sports does not stop with golf. She is planning on trying out for the women's basketball team.

She earned letters in five sports last year in Virginia — golf, basketball, track, volleyball and gymnastics.

SIU would lead The Valley, but...

The Salukis would be sitting atop The Valley standings this week if they were competing for the Valley championship this season. Instead, with SIU and Indiana State out of the running, West Texas and New Mexico share first place. Preseason favorite Tulsa has yet to play a conference team.

In Valley games last Saturday, Tulsa faced Southwest Conference power Arkansas, and beat them three to one—in field goals, that is.

The final score was 9-3 as all points in the contest came on field goals. It was a brutal defensive game, and Tulsa, now 3-1, will move up in the national spotlight as they hope for a post season bowl bid.

In other Valley games, Lamar, the Salukis opponent Saturday, beat New Mexico 21-17, Colorado State whipped Wichita State 24-3, Dayton beat Indiana State 20-14, and former Valley member Louisville beat Drake 37-24 in a battle of the winless.

In this week's games, the only conference game pits New Mexico against Tulsa. New Mexico was picked to finish third in The Valley, and has lost two straight after winning their first two games.

In non-conference games, Drake faces Colorado, Akron is at Indiana State, West Texas plays Texas-Arlington, and Wichita goes against Louisville.

Coed passing: illegal use of hands

CHAMPAIGN (AP) — Passing should be confined to the football field and not take place in the stands where coeds are being picked up bodily and passed overhead by the rows of seats, says the University of Illinois Athletic Association.

People passing at football games have reached a dangerous level this season because coeds are being raced from the bottom to the top rows, Carol McHugh, president of Delta Zeta Sorority said Wednesday.

Susan Dempsey, a trim, 115-pounder, says she was passed and that "it was frightening. I'd look down and see a bunch of hands ready to grab me and bounce me up to the next row."

Miss McHugh said her house supports requests mailed to all fraternities and sororities on the campus by Richard Tamburo, assistant director of the athletic association, that people passing be stopped.

"We want it stopped before someone really gets hurt," said Tamburo.

Miss McHugh, a senior from Mundelein, said people passing is sort of traditional at Illinois football games, but "it now is getting out of hand because of the races."

She thinks fraternities have scouts at the games, picking out logical coeds for a passing race. "They can either be girls who don't weigh much or heavier ones — as long as the weight factor is about the same," said Miss McHugh.

"The race starts when a group of fellows sitting behind a coed suddenly picks her up and begins bouncing her — like a sack of potatoes — over their heads to the next row. And up she goes, maybe 75 rows," said Miss McHugh.

"Someone could get hurt, either the one being bounced by falling on the concrete, or falling on somebody else. And these girls are not volunteers for this. They are picked at random. As many as 20 are being passed a game."

SIU, Lamar -two teams trying to rebuild

By Rick Korch

Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

1-10 last year, and 2-1 this year.
1-9-1 last year, and 2-1 this year.

Sound familiar? The teams with those two records, Lamar and SIU, will face each other at McAndrew Stadium Saturday. Kickoff is 1:30 p.m.

Last year, Lamar beat SIU 30-10 in the Salukis final game, although many players felt SIU had the better team. But this year, things are different for both teams.

SIU Coach Rey Dempsey's counterpart on the Cardinals is first-year Coach Bob Frederick, who was an assistant coach last year at Lamar and so far, he has done a good job turning the team around.

"We're coming along, about like I expected us to," Frederick said Wednesday. "We have a real young team with a lot of freshmen and sophomores." There are only two seniors starting on Lamar's offense.

"They're making a lot of big mistakes, but that always happens to inexperienced players," Frederick said. "I know we'll win some more games, but we'll lose some, too."

Frederick is trying to build his team comparable to the way Dempsey is trying to build the Salukis—taking it one week at a time, and not shooting for everything the first year.

"We're thinking about next year, too," he said.

Lamar will have a new starting quarterback, senior Bobby Flores, who replaced Frederick's son Chris in the Cardinals 21-17 win over New Mexico State last week.

"Flores has more experience, and he handled the position well last week," Frederick said. Flores played about half of the game, but has played only about a full game all year. He started 20 games in his first three years.

"He's coming off a knee operation and missed spring practice," Frederick said, while adding that he wouldn't hesitate to replace Flores with his son if needed.

Last year's rushing attack gained only 1,180 yards, but is improved this year, although the whole team has only 21 yards more than the Salukis' Andre Herrera in rushing.

"They look a lot better this year," Frederick said, "because the offensive line is in better shape than last year. There's no great deal of experience on the line, but they're working hard."

Frederick, did say, however, that he was not pleased with his team's passing attack.

"We haven't been in the position to throw very much, and there's been a lot of dropped balls. I'd like to be in the position to be able to dictate when to pass; rather than the other team's defense dictate it for me."

Overall, he said he is happy with his defense.

"I'm happy with the way we've made the big plays, and we've been tough when we had to be, but the defense is still inconsistent," Frederick said, while adding that New Mexico State controlled that ball 13 minutes in one quarter last week.

Lamar's defense had done the job with its scoring, however. So far, they have scored three touchdowns, two on interceptions, and one on a blocked field goal. SIU has yet to do so, even once.

The Cardinal defense is headed by Donald Davis and Matt Burnett, the tackles, both who are highly regarded.

"I wouldn't trade our two tackles for any two tackles in the state of Texas," Frederick said, showing the two player's value to the team.

The Cardinals only loss was to Northeast Louisiana, 16-6 in their second game.

"We probably played better in that game than any other," Frederick said. "But they just beat us."

Frederick has seen films of all three SIU games and said he is "quite impressed" with the Salukis.

"I think that McNeese caught Southern before they were ready," he said, referring to SIU's 38-0 loss. "But it's a credit to Dempsey for doing an outstanding job."

"And the job Herrera has done speaks highly of the whole offense."

Herrera sixth best rusher

After last week's action, Saluki tailback Andre Herrera is ranked sixth in the country in rushing, behind Heisman Trophy candidates Ricky Bell of Southern Cal, and Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh. Herrera also leads The Valley in rushing. In three games, he has 390 yards in 75 carries, an average of 5.2 yards per carry.

In other Valley statistics released Wednesday, Herrera is fourth in total offense, quarterback Bob Collins is sixth in passing, Steve Mick is fourth in punting with an average of 38.3 in three punts.

In other statistics, SIU is fourth in rushing offense and sixth in passing offense, which places SIU last in total offense in The Valley. The Salukis are fifth in scoring, with a 16 point average in three games.

In other statistics, Joe Hage is third in punt returns (5.0 average), Kevin House is fourth in kickoff returns (19.2 average), and Ken Seaman is tied for fourth in kick scoring with 14 points on six extra points, and two field goals. He hasn't missed a kick all year.

In team statistics, SIU is fourth in rushing offense and sixth in passing offense, which places SIU last in total offense in The Valley. The Salukis are fifth in scoring, with a 16 point average in three games.

Although SIU ranks near the bottom in the statistics, they are second in overall standings, with their 2-1 record.

Mark Rigazio, first baseman of the Pulloutfits softball team, stretches for the ball, but Vet's Club No. 1 pitcher Jim Fischer beats the throw. The Vet's went on to win and advance to Thursday's quarterfinal games. The intramural championship game will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday on field No. 4, east of the SIU Arena. (Staff photo by Linda Henson)

Men's intramural softball moves into quarterfinals

By Jim Misunas
Student Writer

Quarterfinals in SIU's men's 12-inch softball playoffs will be played Thursday at 4 and 5 p.m. at the fields east of the Arena. Friday's semifinals are at 4 and 5 p.m., while Saturday's final game will start at 10 a.m.

Al Lery, graduate assistant in charge of softball, named several teams with chances to still win the meet. Lery said, "The Waiters and the Dugout have both been playing real good ball. They both have well balanced teams.

"Pulloutfits have a chance if continue hitting the ball while Legal Eagles have a real experienced team that plays well. Both frat teams, Phi Sigma Kappa and Sigma Tau Gamma both seem to play well when the playoffs start." Other possible contenders are the Bombers and Schwartz Street.

"The Waiters and the Dugout are the favorites," Lery said. "But the other teams could upset them."

In Tuesday's games, six teams won by ten or more runs. Eric McFall and David Crow led Vets Club I to their win while Phil Strieker's home run highlighted Pierce Olympians victory.

Pulloutfits shellacked Chester Molesters 21-5 as Scott Picco and Dale Carruthers both had three hits.

Glen Watson tossed a four hitter to lead Knights S. R. T. to an easy win and Schwartz Street won 21-11 after trailing 10-4 to Freeway Flyers. Filet Dellama beat Boomer II as Scott Snell collected three hits.

In Tuesday's closest games, Sigma Tau Gamma scored five runs in the eighth inning to upset Kappa Alpha Psi 13-12, and Tom Niemczak's two home runs led Waiters to a 7-5 win over Ballbusters.

In Wednesday's games, the Waiters dropped the Knights S.R.T., and Filet Dellama defeated Schwartz Street. The Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity beat the Pierce Olympians, while Vet's Club No. 1 took care of the Pulloutfits. The Bombers advanced by defeating the Buschleaguers, and the Dugout knocked off Wright Brothers. Phi Sigma Kappa defeated Wizz-U's and the Legal Eagles beat the Demon Bowlers.

Don't forget, 1976 is a rebuilding year

So far this year I haven't written one word in this column concerning the attempted renaissance of the SIU football programs. Now, three weeks into the season, perhaps it's time to come out of the closet, so to speak.

SIU has now won two games in a row, and people are jumping on the bandwagon with almost the same intensity with which they were ridiculing the program a year ago.

In their haste to ride with a winner, people shouldn't forget the spectre of new Head Coach Rey Dempsey, at the start of the season, warning time and again, "This will be a rebuilding year. It will take more than one year to turn this program around."

Granted, SIU has won two in a row for the first time since 1971, but care should be taken to avoid premature and false optimism. The Dempsey era is still in its infancy, the rebuilding program has just begun. If too much is expected too soon, a possible string of losses later this season could unfairly bring the wrath of the student body down on Dempsey.

The Dougout

By Doug Dorris
Assistant Sports Editor

Dempsey should be allowed the luxury of a few losses.

I'm not suggesting that the first two wins were flukes, and that SIU will drop their next eight games. Winds of change are sweeping across McAndrew Stadium, and the football program has started on the road to respectability. But it takes more than two wins to transform SIU into an Ohio State.

Richard "call-me-Itchy" Jones, SIU Head Baseball Coach with a winning percentage at SIU hovering around .800, has said he believes a coach's role is sometimes exaggerated in the press; that a coach can only put a player on the field. The player has to perform. In other words, Jones feels his players are the reason for SIU's baseball success.

Well, I disagree. The main reason for SIU's baseball success is Itchy Jones. There are plenty of college baseball players, there is only one Itchy Jones. Woody Hayes made the Ohio State football program, not the other way around.

If SIU reverses its field in college football, Rey Dempsey will be the single most important factor. Gale Sayers will help, but his influence will be slight when compared to Dempsey's.

Campus opinion regarded Dempsey as almost a miracle worker following Saturday's win over West Texas State. Dempsey is a workaholic who has gained tremendous respect from people within the athletic administration, from Gale Sayers down to the Saluki mascot dogs. I have never heard anyone in the athletic department criticize the man in my job as a sports reporter.

Dempsey seems to be the Moses SIU has been waiting for to lead its football program from the wilderness. But remember, even Moses took 40 years.

Now, could somebody help me down from this soapbox?
