The amount approved, $2,383,472, shows an increase of $416,566 over last year's total appropriation of $2,969,906. The increase in the current appropriation was necessary to cover increased operation costs of instruction, research, libraries, general administration and general expense.

The appropriation is divided into two classifications, educational operations and auxiliary enterprises. Educational operations receive the major portion of the appropriation which is $3,040,472, and auxiliary enterprises will receive $245,000. Auxiliary enterprises include the University Bookstore, Cafeteria, Canteen, Veterans Housing Project, and the women's dormitory.

Morris Calls Southern Unique University

"Southern should not develop simply along the traditional lines adopted by other institutions of higher learning, because it is unique among universities in the United States," University President D. W. Morris told the Springfield Area alumni group at their annual meeting in May.

In explaining this uniqueness President Morris pointed out that all Southern alumni should think of their school as serving the state—rather than the southern thirty-one counties. He also emphasized that this purpose could best be served by concentrating the energies within the southern counties.

Fields in which such a specialization would be aiding in elevating the overall level in Southern Illinois now may be extended to all areas where the alma mater is located.

An allied field in which Southern should, and is, concentrating its efforts is that of the African-American population. As Dr. Morris pointed out, the enrollment of our students in the University's school of education has increased 5 per cent while the total enrollment of extension classes has increased 33 per cent in the last year.

Projected departments for Southern's campus which will be created if the African-American education needs are alleviated include: journalism, social work, and industrial education.

Dr. Morris praised the newly formed Council of 100, which is dedicated to study the educational needs of the area and to attempt to do something to meet those needs. He said, "It is not that this group is a University council, state only four of the 100 are Southern alumni, faculty, the best deciding, but they are dedicated to helping the University meet the needs of the people so that they might improve our state."
SYNOPSIS: Southern Illinois University, a four-year public coeducational institution, was chartered in 1869 and moved to its present site on March 9, 1870, by an act of the General Assembly. The university's first president, Dr. Robert Allyn, was appointed by the board, which consisted of five trustees elected by the citizens of Williamson County. Delayed by the Civil War, the building was completed in 1872, and it was dedicated with little deviation from the first plans, with the building was ready to become widespread.

Many normal schools, organized and taught usually by two entering local teachers, were established to understand the courses and pedagogy to qualify teachers. For a half-century such schools throughout Southern Illinois constituted a popular competition to the Normal's summer school. The faculty minutes conceal nothing but a source of pride in filling hand and skill in the preparation of future teachers. Dr. Allyn's memoirs continue to be as a guide to devoted disciples.

The fifty-three who registered for the first summer institute included teachers seeking qualification for the law, to be admitted to the bar, and to the ministry after Master of Arts in Delsarte. When oratorical training and the curriculum planning and building were the sources of Southern Illinois Normal University. Students attended classes in the second session (1872) only under Dr. Allyn, in the absence of policies and procedures.

Basketball:

A Resume of Sports

A resume of the year's athletic results finds Southern on the short end of the count in each sport with the exception of track in which the Maroons tied for the league championship. For the fourth time in the last five years they have been headliners in basketball.

Football proved rather disheartening with seven consecutive defeats but two late season victories provided a bit of optimism for next fall.

Cross country was up to par as usual but not quite of championship caliber. This coming fall should be one for the havers with everyone back from last year plus a host of newcomers who will be available.

Basketball again proved to be the number one sport as Lynne Holzer's chargers racked up 21 wins with 27 starters and gained a tie for the league honors. However, five letter winners will be lost via graduation and help will be needed by some of the younger boys if the Holzer men are to continue their marvelous record of recent years.

Wrestling proved very successful in its first year and even bigger things are expected next year with all but one of the grapplers scheduled to return for more schooling. The grand and strong men compiled a 5 won and 3 lost mark with one match ending in a tie.

Baseball was the big sport of the spring season as the Maroons finished 14 of 21 contests. It was also the best season ever on the diamond as the Marthmen finished second in the league standing.

Previous winners of the trophy which was inaugurated in 1946 are Sam Milosevich, 1946; Quentin Stimson, 1947; Joe Hughes, 1949; and Harold Hartery, 1946.

During his senior season, Colborn, who doubles as senior class president, was an all-conference end in football and ranked sixth in the nation on passing. In addition to his football prowess, he was also a regular member of the Maroon rag squad that copped co-championship honors in the I.L.A.C.

During his tenure with the Maroons and White, he was the recipient of four football and four basketball letters and was named to the all-conference team on seven different occasions. His only miss was during his junior year in basketball when he was forced to sit out most of the season with a broken leg.

Joe Hughes, senior of West Frankfort, is the new assistant manager of the team and Des Plaines high school for next fall.

An outstanding all-around athlete for Southern, Joe will teach driver's training and physical education at the suburban Chicago high school.

Bob Colborn of Filer was named by his teammates as the outstanding athlete of the year for the school year just completed.

A senior, Colborn was presented the Henry Hinckley Memorial Award named in honor of Henry Hinckley, a former Maroon athlete who was killed during the war.

Those receiving baseball awards at banquet included: Charlie Goss, Hoopeston; Bill Duncan, Herrin; Bill Wiltin, Fairfield; Chuck Thate, Chicago; Ernie Holder's charges racked up 21 wins with 27 starters and gained a tie for the league honors. However, five letter winners will be lost via graduation and help will be needed by some of the younger boys if the Holzer men are to continue their marvelous record of recent years.
