TRUSTEES APPROVE OPERATING BUDGET

SOUTHERN ASKS $10,606,317 FOR NEXT BUDGET YEAR

The University's proposed budget request of $10,606,317 for operating expenses during the 1951-52 biennium was approved by the Board of Trustees at its regular November meeting.

Included in the total amount requested for the operating budget of the arts, normal Assembly are funds to operate the University at its normal rate of growth and additional funds that will be needed to maintain the more recently established programs. The budget for buildings has not been prepared as yet.

"As a result of past help of the General Assembly and the Governor of Illinois," Dr. Delyte W. Morris, University president, declared, "Southern is making definite progress toward establishing a well-rounded program of instruction, research, and area services. The purpose behind this request, therefore, is continued "to care for this program during the full two years of the biennium, 1951-52, to consolidate certain gains already made, and to implement a small number of recently established activities for which there is present demand in the area."

Bud grid is CLASSIFIED

The increases in the budget request are divided into four classifications. They include: statutory increase, increases necessary to maintain and develop the present established program, recent established institutional income, and increases necessary to strengthen the service programs to Southern Illinois.

In increase in statutory appropriation requests amount to $6,884. This amount covers the employees statutory increases for the operations of the University Retirement System of Illinois.

The major portion of the increase is requested to pay the salaries of the existing staff, salaries of necessary new faculty, and salaries of necessary new staff at the university. To support this portion of the University's program, an increase of $2,651,950 is being requested.

Among the University's varied activities are a number of auxiliary enterprises which have an incoming regulating state authorizations. The money can be spent. S. L. G. E. indicates that the income of these agencies will increase $20,000 during the next two years.

The fourth classification includes four of the University's recently established programs which are primarily designed as service programs to Southern Illinois. The Vocational Technical Institute, the program of economic research, the Dave, and the University's work in horticulture, dairying, and poultry raising, and communications, are among the programs in this classification. The trustees recommend the request for increases to convert to these projects additional funds from $51,718.

"Although the request would appear to be quite liberal in comparison with the requests for the present biennium," President Morris concluded, "effect, only allow for a conservative development of our program. Because of rising costs of operation," he added, "the appropriation is to provide a basis for future years, to hold the line on its well established programs, and to maintain, strengthen, and add to other activities. The request for increases to the University's budget is a reflection of the projects which have more and more financial support the interest in the projects which have more and more financial support the interest in these activities."

The Alumni Director Speaks

By Wayne N. Mann

"The Alumni Association of S. I. U. is approaching a new dawn." These words are spoken by W. W. Van deveer at the last Alumni Board meeting.

What such a comment are as follows:

First, the expansion of the University program under the administration of Dr. W. W. Morris is going to be reflected in the extension of alumni services for the association.

Second, the current Board has a realistic point of view toward the immediate plans and future needs. Third, techniques for building a better program have been provided the new director.

Alumni Board and function in the taking of community movies to combat the movement of young people from the area of Southern Illinois. In effect, the census has pointed out that the area is gradually dying. Some of the counties have lost as much as thirty-three per cent of their population in the last ten years. Compare this with the total national loss, which is figured in this area.

To counteract this situation, the Alumni Association, in representing the University, must take immediate action. Sociological movies taken in these communities can do much to help point out the situation by servicing the area and rendering the University favorable publicity.

Third, the Alumni Association must interpret the aims and functions of the University to the alumni of the school with the future plans of the University. A Magna Unit, which is in effect a small portable display featuring the utilization of these ideas should be allowed to grow, and another technique in this area is the publication of a quarterly magazine which will be sent to bona fide members in the area.

These are some of the immediate plans. Utilization of these ideas should be accomplished within the next five years.

If we are to reach this new dawn in the Alumni Association it means 20,000 paid members in the Association. The immediate plan is to increase the alumni clubs in continued support of the institution will accomplish these ends.

The small choruses of about 35 pieces called for in the score of the "Messiah" will be composed of members of the Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra which is also under the direction of Dr. Kenner.

First performed in Dublin, Ireland, the "Messiah" is Handel's best known and revered of his operas, and to today it has retained its original grandeur and spirit that has made it famous throughout the world.

Shoe Leather Was a Commuter's Problem In 1915

Back in 1915, a Southern student lived in Buckeydike and daily made the pilgrimage to Southern. He walked and hitched rides on farm wagons and buggies, but he got there. In spite of all the hardships, he missed only two days of school in his four years of college.

Sound unusual? Well, indeed it was. Willbur H. Fishman recently called his days at Southern. He never attended a day of high school, but did come direct to S.I.U. to grade school. A member of Southern's first manual training class in 1915, he recalled that his instructor was Elwood C. Peterson, the first faculty member to be appointed for the new University. Mr. Fishman taught school one year in Nebraska and four years in--Iowa, where he received his bachelor's degree in agriculture at the University of Illinois in 1922.

After graduation, he went into business in Cherokee, Iowa, where he has married and reared two children.

One of his sons, Dr. Harlow J. Fishman, is a practicing physi- cian in Cherokee, Iowa. Another son, Paul A., is a fireman on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad at Sioux Falls, South Dakota. His daughter, Mrs. Wayne Mann, is now living in Cherokee, where her husband is engaged in the livestock business.

Mr. Fishman, who recently visited the Southern campus, has been associated with the University in several positions during his years in business. Mr. Fishman took his present position as postmaster of Cherokee in 1934. He likes civic and organizational work, and hasn't missed a meeting of the Rotary club in the past 13 years.

A member of the University Alumni Association, Mr. Fishman is a member of the Orange Mound Alumni Club, sponsored by the Alumni Services, is now organizing Alumni Clubs in Jacksonville, Illinois, and expects to be working effectively by the first day of the summer term. He says that states he believes, communities have any of the sound ideas organized by this time.

A Missouri Alumni Club is also being planned. At the present time, 250 alumni living in Missouri.

Athletic Committee

Adopts New Scheduling Motion

A motion that Southern not schedule games where team members could not play because of "race, creed, nationality, or religion" has been unanimously approved by Southern's athletic committee, headed by Dr. William Turner.

The "ma"—brought up following a recent game with Arkansas State in which four Negro team members did not play because Arkansas State officials advised against it because of the race feeling in that area.

Exact wording of the motion is: "That the Athletic Committee of this institution not schedule games with schools or in competition with other teams whose members would not be able to participate because of race, creed, nationality, or religion, as that the personnel of the squad be determined solely by the opinions of skill as long as the player meets the eligibility prerequisites, including scholastic requirements."
The Teachers College
Transition Years

Southern became a recognized State Teachers College when it was granted a charter as Class-A College by the American Association of Teachers Colleges. It was fully accredited as a degree-granting college in 1908 as a part of the eleven-year period.

In the case of Southern a clear-cut distinction between normal school and teachers college is difficult to define because of the gradual nature of the change. Both were distinctively teacher training institutions but differed chiefly in the matter of recognition.

The Normal stood apart, unique in a system of higher education. A vocational and professionally technical school, it was not recognized in the liberal arts tradition. It granted diplomas and certification, not degrees. Its graduates had difficulty in transferring credits to the liberal arts and professional schools.

And yet the board of trustees had all the authority legally to grant degrees of whatever kind. At least in one instance it authorized the conferring of an honorary degree, that of Master of Arts, upon Professor Granville Foster on his retirement from the faculty in 1883. Earned bachelor's degrees were subsequently conferred upon other members of the faculty.

The general assembly of Illinois (1897) gave specific authority to the Southern to grant Bachelor of Education degrees. In conformity with this permissive authorization Southern added two years to the course of study and placed all requirements for any who might seek to qualify for a degree. The demand for the so-called degree courses was slight and not at all to the advantage of the school. The annual commencement of 1922 gave formal recognition for the first time to four degree graduates. The Southern teacher college development Southern's relationship with the University of Illinois was improved. A limited recognition of Southern's right to bestow degrees was procured. Southern amounting to no more than a four-year course was elevated to the status of a liberal degree. The credits accepted, however, were only the sex years in the junior and one year of Southern's curriculum but it was accorded credit on the rank of a Junior College.

Southern was not any more liberal than many other good high schools developing rapidly. It was, however, in the forefront of those schools which was increased and courses were offered to pre-service teachers. The celebration of Southern's first quarterly century in the commencement week of 1899 was a fitting climax of the Normal school. The twentieth, not the abrupt close, of that important pioneering era.

Appropriately enough the elaborate program of that celebration included the provision of a separate building for the Model School as an important step in the evolution of the training school. This was the second major achievement of the Parkinson administration when a small building, exceptional for its time, was dedicated January 25, 1913, and named the Altgeld Building in honor of Dr. Robert Altgeld.

The training school now took a new direction as a highly organized unit of the Normal, preparation for which had been most capably carried forward by Superintendent Jacob Taylor Ellin. Mr. Ellis was just at the threshold of a brilliant career when his death occurred in the summer of 1906.

Under his successors, Superintendents H. E. Harwood and C. M. Elliott, a staff of critic teachers was assisted by the class president, assembled under the leadership of the board who had much to do with securing the approval of the Lindley Scholarship Bill. This law, passed by the 44th General Assembly (1880), paved the way for four years free instruction for a high school graduate of the eighth grade graduate of each town. Since no pledge to teach was required of recipients of these scholarships, the Normal was able to attract students who were not held to the teacher training curriculum.

The Lindley law, therefore, had the immediate effect of stimulating high school within the Normal to provide the necessary non-professional academic training for these students. Thus the University and the high school became not merely a feature of the Model School, but an important institution in itself.

In the decade 1900-1910 Southern became an important teaching institution. Its Library in honor of Judge S. P. H. Brown was endowed, the services of its president and the board of the schools, gave direction to this institution of superintendents of the area for this improved situation was a means of recruitment of students.

The passing of the old Normal School is fully indicated by the annual conferences held to pervert to completion by President the leaders of superintendents. The topic for discussion at its meeting in 1907 was, "Some Proposed School Legislation," a striking contrast to 1824 as it was not as yet a school among yesterday among students. After four or five years of professional, the schools, gave direction to this conference served well to identify the school more effective, not only to the area but to the entire States of Illinois, Southern's threshold of a brilliant career.

Alexander Named Government Head By Board of Trustees

Dr. Ovville Alexander, former director of the Alumni Services and a member of the government department since 1926, was appointed to the chairmanship of the government department at the regular monthly meeting of the University Board of Trustees.

Mr. Alexander has given outstanding service to the University throughout the years through his valuable work on the university's legislative programs. He has been instrumental in gaining significant legislation affecting the University. The appointment of the separate Board of Trustees, the bill changing Southern Illinois' name, and the bill creating the alumni services group were all in charge of his direction of the university.

In addition to Dr. Alexander's charge of assignment, the Board approved four permanent appointments to the faculty: 23 term appointments, and 12 changes in rank or title.

The permanent appointments include Jacob Gower Bach as instructor in education, effective Jan. 29, 1951. Of the 23 term appointments, Dr. Alexander noted that the Board had approved four permanent appointments to the faculty: 23 term appointments, and 12 changes in rank or title.

Mrs. Evalee McGee was appointed executive assistant in education, his master's degree and completed the separate Board of Trustees.

In addition to Dr. Alexander's appointment of the alumni services group, the Board had approved the appointment of the separate Board of Trustees, the bill changing Southern Illinois' name, and the bill creating the alumni services group.

Other term appointments include Silly N. Carver, assistant professor in the Department of Education; Cyril F. Everett, assistant professor in English; and Russell Lee Bush, instructor in education.

Cross Country Team Wins Championship

Coach Leland P. (Doc) Lingle's fall harriers reached the zenith of cross country endeavors November 11 at Mt. Pleasant, Michigan, when they came through the fall's first week in the event at 1:59.4, placing second this season. For Phil Coleman, son of Dr. E. C. Coleman of the department, it was the peak he had long anticipated. During this season, Coleman has won first place in every dual meet the Maroons have entered and already holds the cross country aggregation which won him first place in the state meet last year. This fact, added to the excellent running times which Coleman has turned in, only adds to the accomplishments of Southern's cross-country team.

Capt. Ray Palmer, head coach of the SIU football team, recently was notified by Capt. Charles E. F. Bishop, assistant director of Marine Corps Reserve, that Capt. Ray Palmer would be given command of a Marine Corps Reserve unit upon his return to school this fall. He is to take his physical prior to assuming his coaching duties at Southern.
