Financial Aid Requested For Student Nurses

Scholarships and loan funds are among the greasing needs of the University so that young women interested in studying nursing may participate in the three-year course which will be offered at Southern next September.

The nature of the nursing program makes it impossible for the student nurses to work part time, and the minimum expenses for each student will be $98.50 for each person enrolled.

Designed to increase the supply of nurses, this program will help meet possible mobilization demands in the event the nursing profession cannot possibly achieve its goals without additional funds.

As President D. W. Morris points out, "In order that Southern may contribute to the pool of our nation's nurses, the training of nurses, there must be the assurance of financial assistance to a number of young women anxious to enroll but unable to pay their way in full."

Student nurses will spend 36 weeks each year, half of their time before being assigned to hospitals where some of the costs of room and board will be provided in exchange for their services. However, they will have the opportunity to incidentals such as registration fees, and the board of education in student organizations, and travel expenses.

Scholarships of $500, payable at the beginning of the school year, will help a student meet most expenses for the first year. A major grant of $3,000, payable at the beginning of the first year, will make it possible for the student to meet her third year's expenses and also have a small monthly allowance while training in hospitals. Smaller amounts would be used to assist young women who have some funds available but still need assistance.

Civic and social groups are being invited by the University to participate in establishing these essential scholarships and loan funds.

Pre-Student Teaching Day Inaugurated

Every student teacher at Southern Illinois who plans an attempt to learn what is expected of him as a student teacher at the pre-student-teaching day on March 25, sponsored by Charles D. Neal, Director of Teacher Training.

This was the first program of its kind, and it will be continued indefinitely. The committee had a chance to ask questions about the kind of work he is about to do in their student teaching.

The students also learned from Roye Bryant, Director of the Placement Service, the techniques of job interviewing, and each student conferred with advisors concerning the special problems in major and minor fields of study last year.

Construction On Women's Dormitory to Begin in April

Construction of a dormitory that will house 425 girls may begin the last of April in the present location of the Student Center, according to Dr. Charles D. Tenney, administrator as assistant to the president.

The Student Center will then open and function until construction work makes it impossible. According to the "Plan," stated Miss Leah Farr, dean of women, Southern Illinois Parsons noted that the center could be vacated in a month. The new student center, located in the space vacated by the hallways now under construction, without present plans. The music annex, student guidance and information has been torn down to make room for the dormitory.

The student dormitory will be built in a T shape around a court on the first and second floors. Each room and kitchen will be attached to one section of the building. Rear entrance doors will be to be found on the ground floor. French doors open onto individual recreation rooms onto terraces. Four laundries, four hair washing rooms and two storage rooms are located on the ground floor.

Hairwashing rooms complete with hair dryers, lounges, lobbies, post office, and directors living quarters will be found on the first floor.

Second floor contains rooms for students. All student rooms are furnished with built-in metal bunks, a dressing table, a wardrobe, mirror, dresser, bed, desk, chair, and some occupant, full-length mirror, will be built at the end of the hall on the second floor.

The dormitory will be ready for occupancy in two or three years, according to University officials.

SCHWINN AND CLARK TAKE HONORS AT SPEECH MEET

First place honors for oratory, in both the men's and women's division, of the Illinois Inter-Collegiate Speech Contest, went to the Southern Illinois College at Carbondale, according to Miss Doris Schwitzen, senior from Du Quoin, who received first place in the women's original oratory with her composition "Something of a Man," a defense of John L. Lewis, as a point of a minor's daughter.

Boy L. Clark, a junior from Carbondale who entered speech competition for the first time this year, won the first place award in the "macro's original oratory," Clark's composition is entitled "No Means Oblige," and is a discussion of the two problems from a different angle. His oration emphasizes the monetary racial prejudice.

TOM DUNOCH, senior on the Southern Illinois University football team, was selected from the entries by the student faculty committee with final selection to be taken by the Board of Trustees.

Send name suggestions for the gym to the Egyptian, student. The committee emphasized that they are looking for names not using the name of the student. Alumni should also keep in mind that the gym will become a student and professional home, and will be open to all students.

New Library Included In Building Budget

The Budget Commission of the State of Illinois, composed of members of the House and of the Senate, met in the beginning of May to recommend an operating budget of $8,600,000 for Southern for the biennium of 1951-53.

This represents a cut of $1,000,000 from the previous year's request of $9,600,000 for operating.

It appears that the Budget Commission will approve a budget request of $3,300,000, and the remaining $3,300,000 will be used for construction of new buildings, general campus improvement, professional fees involved in the design of new buildings and for additional land purchased.

The budget request as recommended by the Budget Commission will be submitted to Governor Adlai Stevenson for his consideration. If approved by Governor, it will be incorporated into the governor's message to the state legislature.

State Legislators Visit Campus

Members of the state Senate and House composed of educational institutions were invited to attend the campus tour.

Area legislators who accompanied the committee members were Representative William J. Crisenberry, Carlinville; Representative Harry Clifford, West Frankfort; Representative Robert Young, Hurst; Representative Harry McClelland, West Frankfort; Representative John E. Hammock, Pinckneyville, and Representative John E. Hammock, Pinckneyville.

Museum Collections New Available To Public Schools

Historical manuscripts, collections, various models, and dioramas are now being made available to the elementary and secondary schools in Southern Illinois through a newly instituted educational loan service of the museum at SIU.

Unija showing pioneer life, natural science items as well as artifacts, and pictures showing workmanship and activities of the cultures of Indians once present in Southern Illinois are included in the exhibits.

In addition, preserved specimens of common types of snakes, lizards, turtles, and mounted birds can be obtained for study.

The teaching aids may be borrowed for periods of two weeks without charge, according to John W. L. Clark, director of the museum. He requests, however, that arrangements be made as far in advance as possible.

A $5 prize will be given for the winning name, which will be selected from the entries by the student faculty committee with final action to be taken by the Board of Trustees.

DECADE continued with diminishing church support; Ewing and Creal Dickinson Colleges gave up the struggle. All Southern Illinois—Norton and Herrin especially—looked to Southern as their only fully liveable college round the region, the Southern Illinois Teachers Association which had promoted the establishment of the Normal had long been its principal meeting place and the campus facilities were more than ready to any other educational enterprise beyond its primary obligation as a teacher education school.

Many seemingly unrelated factors had conspired to make it adaptable to rapidly changing conditions.

The Extension Division in the Pulliam administrative setup included more than the offering of off-campus credit courses. It became the administrative arm of a wide range of activities, with its eye upon the larger community. The Extension Division, with its director, Dr. W. T. Abbott, designed the growth of a highly important community service. The Extension Division began with ten full-time assistant instructors and fifty-five part-time instructors, and for the first thirty years took some forty requests for courses. Under Dr. Pulliam's supervision the Extension Division became a self-help agency, living costs reduced, and student efficiency increased. The Extension Division was not a formally organized unit of the University, but it flourished, with the growth of the University, and to its dean, Dr. Pulliam, was in large measure due the University's ability to make itself effective outside the campus. It was as Southern's instrument of extension for many years to come.

After Flight From Russians

The quiet life as a student at Southern is a vivid contrast to the past seven years of fear, tragedy, and suffering for the Russians that is in a part of the turbulent past of Veroncia Burgess from Latvia.

She tells of wandering homeless from one place to another within her own country shortly after World War II began in 1939. When the Russians took possession of her native Latvia in 1944, she escaped to Poland with her young son, Mars. In Poland she went through one bombing after another, always keeping but a step or so ahead of the invaders.

"In order to leave a town it was necessary to go to the station and get on a train (if you had enough money) or half what you were in other institutions. Why should such a thing happen to their children?" She was out that the question now insisted on calling for answer. The institution continued to do its full share of providing more trained teachers if it felt an obligation to provide training for their students who could not afford to go elsewhere.

The orated for the union's status for southern high schools in Illinois and received so little students' support. Nothing has been more to unity and enlist all interests of the region since the days of the initial movement, seventy years earlier, for the establishment of the first Southern Normal. But unlike that first effort of unity, it fortunately has become a continuing force which augers well for the future of a regional union.

Southern Illinois Incorporated, with its progressive and influential membership, was in the forefront of the many organizations, civic, social, educational, fraternal, or other, which brought together in a chamber of commerce promotion.

Peter and the Wolf

Presented at Southern

Prokofiev's popular "Peter and the Wolf" was presented by the Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra in its third concert of the current school year March 27.

The orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Maurits Kesnar, in the presence of University students and musicians from throughout southern Illinois. It was an historic event for the University orchestra to participate in the symphony orchestra of the Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra.

Dr. Archibald McLeod, associate professor of music, narrated the adventures of Peter and his friend the owl on page 8 of the program.
MAROON BASEBALLERS WIN FOUR IN TRIP SOUTH

Southern's baseball team, which was blessed with the opportunity to play six pre-season contests in the south during the spring vacation, took advantage of that opportunity to rack up four victories in their week's jaunt. Coach Glenn (Abe) Martin was very much pleased with the team's performance, inasmuch as it is yet early in the season, and the competition was of a high caliber.

Tom Millikin, high scoring catcher for the Maroons, named the most valuable player of the three games. Millikin was selected in a meeting of the Southern basketball squad early last month.

It was a surprise to no one when Millikin was announced the winner of the award. He also named a clutch player, John J. Coleman, second baseman, as well as being named the most valuable player in the Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Tom's great all-around play was by far the most impressive thing about the Maroons this year. Not only did he break the all-time Southern scoring record, but he also established himself as a great team man and a tremendous team leader. Under the boards he was a force.

There was some difficulty in nominating the all-opponent team. The Maroons could not decide whom they wanted as the center post, but Tom Katsimpalis, Eastern State, finally won over Washington University's George Smith.

Scotty Staggell was the only unanimous choice. The entire squad thought that the most valuable place in the Kansas City tournament deserved a berth on the squad. Staggell averaged 28 points and was selected in the Maroons against two opponents. In his slump that was slightly below his national leading pace for the season.

Bob Barnett of Evansville was named to the other forward post with Don Glover, Eastern State, Don Campbell, Normal, and Tom Ray, St. Louis, at the guards. They should not be deferred. Maroon basketball is not 100 per cent. Thompson is the team's No. 1 pivoter, and Campbell the No. 1 weapon. Staggell can be used as an outfielder and a pinch hitter. Katsimpalis is your all-time baseman, and a hustler-extraordinary besides being a good bunter.

In all, the Maroons have 26 games scheduled for the spring, and if their spring vacation performance is any indication, the team will point toward a spectacular season.

ART MENENDEZ, BASEBALL’S BUNDLE OF JOY

By Jim Kalbmann

If you’d see Abe Martin smiling during a baseball game and especially while the Maroons are taking infield practice, chances is he’s being spared at the antiseptic reality of his fireball shortstop and, most of all, is having fun. In the old school, a pepper-pot of a baseball player who never walks—he runs.

Martin is a junior this year, and he’s earning his second baseball medal. Last year, at East St. Louis high school, Art earned two let­ters in baseball, though he weighed only 135 pounds. He was string shortstop and field general of Southwestern Louisiana.

Among other contributions to the betterment of the sport were the invention of the adjustable starting blocks and the rubber rimmed discus.

GOLF TEAM WILL DEPEND ON ROCKIES

Golf Coach Lynn C. Hohler has announced an eight match spring season and indicated his intention to compete in the conference meet at the conclusion of the season. The Two teams, Oskaloosa and Missouri Valley, are expected to give the Maroons their stiffest competition in the conference contest.

Captain Jim Wison of Mt. Vernon is the only returning lettermate from last year. All the boys returned to the team except Dick Leight, who did not enter the Maroons this year. Two of the Maroons, Bob Barnett and Darrell Thompson have been named to the Southern basketball squad.

The team holds daily practices at Jackson country club and will practice against some of the best teams in the St. Louis area.

Bresnahan, who served the University of Iowa longer than any other man, was introduced into the university in 1921 and within two years was placed as head coach of the track team.

The guiding hand of Bresnahan swept to two Big Ten titles in 1926 and 1927, and extended the long reign of Bresnahan the incomparable spirit, and his incomparable spirit, and his incomparable spirit.
