A Dedication

This issue of the Southern Alumnus is dedicated to the late Mrs. Julia J. Neely, beloved SIU faculty member, who will long be remembered by Southern students, past and present.
A Memoir of Julia Jonah Neely

(Preface by Dr. W. B. Schneider, English department chairman)

A quarter century ago Julia Jonah Neely began her teaching at Southern. Hundreds on the faculty and thousands among the students became her friends and will remember her vividly and gladly while they live. She in her turn remembered them, in great numbers, and in an unfruitful correspondence such as one seldom comes upon. Now Mrs. Neely is gone, and in time those who knew her will be gone, but what she meant and taught to those who knew her will be here a long time. Wherever among those she once taught a hard-driven teacher finds time for one more chore, one more committee, one more meeting; wherever experience and sympathy take time to befriend the newcomer or encourage the timid; and wherever the quietly liberal mind works against narrowness and prejudice—there will be a part of the immortality of Julia Neely.

By Frances Barbour

It was our first year at Washington University that I met Julia Jonah. She sat next to me in Roland Usher’s history — a wisp of a girl, silvery blonde, with enormous, dreamy blue eyes. And although she was extremely shy, we soon got acquainted, for Professor Usher’s class gave us plenty to talk about. From that time on, our lives ran along oddly parallel courses.

Julie became a real personage on the Washington University campus. Quite suddenly, toward the middle of her first semester, people became aware of her when her entry won first place in a University song contest; and it was not long before she sloughed off her timidity and was scurrying about in quest of news stories for “Student Life.” In her senior year the women of the campus conferred on her the greatest honor in their gift — membership in Mortar Board. Besides all this, Julie was always an honor student.

THEN FOR a time our paths diverged, for we went out separate ways to teach — she to Greenville, Illinois, and I to Carbondale Community High and then to California. But I could tell from Julie’s letters during those years that the interest and energy that she had applied to campus affairs had been transferred to teaching. We met again in 1923 at Washington University, where I was managing the office of the Extension Division. She had returned to get her Master’s degree.

In 1925, when I came to Southern, Julie was teaching in Mount Vernon, Illinois. Mount Vernon was near enough for an interchange of week-end visits, and on one of these visits I took her to meet President Shryock. The result was that she joined the Southern faculty in 1926, and here our parallel courses continued until her death on October 12th this year.

The readers of the Alumnus will not need to be told about Mrs. Neely’s college teaching or her work as a dramatic coach. It is enough to say that she is remembered with deep affection by all her students. Her colleagues will agree, I believe, that it was a continuous mystery to them how one could direct so much personal interest to so many students and how such an intense emotional drive never flagged. In the English office she was always good company; again we wondered that she had interest and affection left for us, when so much was expended on her students, and still more that these forces extended beyond us to the whole campus, and beyond the campus to all the people she had ever known. Contacts which could not be kept alive in the flesh were refreshed by correspondence. Long after people with an ordinary amount of energy were asleep, she was writing letter after letter, note after note, and wrapping up gifts to send to sick people or to commemorate anniversaries that most of us forget.

TRAVEL WAS in Julie’s blood. Her father, who was for years Chief Engineer and Vice President of the Frisco Railroad, saw to it that the family covered the United States on vacation trips, and he frequently took them to his native New Brunswick in Canada and one summer to Alaska. Then in the fall of 1930 Julie set forth with Miss Marjorie Shank and me for Europe; Miss Shank was to return at Christmas, but Julie and I were to spend the year at King’s College, University of London. The English college year is very nicely arranged for the travel of foreign students, with a five- or six-week vacation at Christmas and again in the spring. We used the time to advantage, visiting Germany, Switzerland, France, Italy, Scotland, and Ireland as well as exploring England rather thoroughly. Julie’s interest in the theatre took her frequently to New York, and in 1948 she and Miss Vera Peacock spent five weeks in Mexico. As you would suppose, traveling with Julie was an adventure; she was always good-humored, come what might, and ever alert to the interesting and the amusing.

In 1936 Miss Jonah resigned her position to marry Mr. Charles Neely, also of the Southern faculty. Then after Mr. Neely’s death in March of 1937, Mrs. Neely was asked to return to her former position. During the following year she devoted much energy to the publication of Mr. Neely’s book “Tales and Songs of Southern A Memoir of Julia Jonah Neely (Continued on page 14)
Members of the State of Missouri Alumni club enjoyed a recent dinner in the Colonial Room of the Melbourne Hotel, St. Louis. Approximately 47 attended the meeting. At Homecoming the club chartered a bus to attend the festivities and became the first SIU alumni club to attend Homecoming as a group.

OUR ALUMNI CLUBS

Members of the Washington, D.C. alumni club met Sunday, Oct. 12, for an all-day outing at Fort Washington Park, Md. About 32 active alumni attended, plus 25 even more active children.

At a 6:30 p.m. dinner meeting of Wayne County alumni Oct. 23, Mr. Murrel Loy, 1936, was elected president. Other officers elected were: vice-president, Mr. John F. Samford, 1924-2; secretary, Mrs. Kenneth Langford (Jeanne Dulaney ex-1941).

Fairfield Community high school was the scene of the affair, which also featured group singing, special music by a boys' quintet, and an address by Dr. William Tudor, associate director of Area Services at SIU.

The newly-elected officers were introduced to the 40 guests attending by Mr. Merle Bright, 1944, outgoing president of the club.

SOUTHERN ALUMNUS
A Tribute

Congratulations on your outstanding showing in the 1952 AAC Alumni Magazine contest! You can certainly be proud of the recognition which you received.

Since Pine Manor Junior College has been without an alumnae publication for several years, it has been dropped from the mailing list of most alumni publications. Now, I hope to again begin a regular alumnae quarterly, and I am anxious to receive the "top notch" publications of AAC members. Could my name be added to your exchange list?

Sincerely yours,

Luella McCalla,
Secretary, Alumnae Association
Pine Manor Junior College,
Wellesley, Mass.

*The Southern Alumnus magazine, under the editorship of Mrs. Maxine Blackman, recently won a National American Alumni Council award for excellence in faculty news coverage.—Ed.

Justifiable Pride

Editor:

My Southern heart beat with joy when I saw the enclosed story in the paper (about the winning of a Lion Oil scholarship by Miss Gertrude Burkhalter, SIU graduate—see story below.)

Miss Burkhalter's winning the scholarship would be a newsworthy item anywhere but especially so in the South . . . I'm almost as proud of Fred's company for offering such scholarships as I am of a Southern graduate for winning one.

Sincerely,

Wanda Kiel Applegath, 1943
(Mrs. Fred Applegath)
El Dorado, Ark.

*May we add our congratulations to those of Mrs. Applegath.—Ed.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARDED TO SOUTHERN GRADUATE

Miss Gertrude Burkhalter, 1951, Negro high school teacher at Piney Woods, Miss., was recently awarded a $1,200 scholarship as winner of an essay contest for high school teachers sponsored by the Lion Oil Co., of El Dorado, Ark.

As a result of winning the scholarship, Miss Burkhalter has returned to the SIU campus, where she is doing graduate work in guidance and special education.

A HAPPY HOMECOMING

The Queen reigned and the sun shone at Southern’s 30th annual Homecoming, Oct. 30-Nov. 1, and both added their share of sparkle and gaiety to the scene. This year’s queen was Miss Audrey Mayer, senior from St. Louis, Mo. Her court consisted of Mitzi Cagle, Nancy Rains, Pat Neague, Helen Nance, and attendants Dixie Rast and Pat Miller. Alumni coming from the area and nearby states were in gay spirits. And so was Old Man Weather, for not a drop of rain fell during the festivities, which included the annual play, the big parade, the grid game, and all kinds of alumni reunions and meetings. The Homecoming dance, with music by Ralph Marterie and his orchestra, climaxed a perfect weekend.

At the game Bob Odaniell presented an American flag to Miss Audrey Mayer, 1952 Queen, on behalf of the Washington, D. C. Alumni Club. The flag had been flown over the capitol for one day as a special tribute.

After the game, President and Mrs. D. W. Morris were hosts to all Southern alumni at a reception at their home. Here punch is served by Mrs. Lois Nelson, secretary in the president's office, to (left to right) Ray Dodge, ex-1917, Clinton, Iowa; Mrs. Paul Young, nee Mary Boos, 1926, and Mr. Young, of Glendale, Mo.; William Carruthers, Alumni Association president, and Guy Karraker, President of SIU's Board of Trustees.

Alums who roomed together at Harwood Hall met for a reunion breakfast at the home of Dean Emeritus E. G. Lentz Saturday morning. As shown above, Dean Lentz (right) presented I. Clark Davis, dean of men, a check establishing the Harwood Hall Memorial Loan Fund for needy students. Viewing the presentation are, from left to right—F. G. Warren, SIU professor of education; John Perenchio, 1943; Julius Swayne, 1947, MS-1949; David Stanhouse, 1947 and Claude Pyle, 1942.

Winning Class A float in the Homecoming parade was Chi Delta Chi fraternity's "Streetcar Named Desire." Slogan for the float was "Southern Desires Victory."

Second place, Class A float, Industrial Education club.

Delta Sigma Epsilon, stunt, "Washington Bear or Bare?"
Members of Little Theatre staged "First Lady" as the annual Homecoming play Friday night, Oct. 31. Cast for the play, a satire on Washington politics, included Phyllis Owen, Dave Alverson and Darwin Payne.

Receiving honors in the Homecoming house decoration contest was Theta Xi fraternity, which won first in Class A, men's division, with their version of "Homecoming productions."

Mr. Alumnus Goes To Homecoming

"Like most antiques, I can't be on my feet very much," said Mr. Samuel A. Hubbard, class of 1893. Nevertheless he hopped on the bus with 39 other Missouri Alumni club members and came back for homecoming.

And he didn't want to "stay put" after he got here either. Cane in hand, he viewed the parade and the football game, and took a stroll around campus to see what changes had occurred in his absence. It has been rumored that he even managed to get to the dance Saturday night before returning home.

Mr. Hubbard, who is married and has four children, is a St. Louisan, and lives at 5656 Waterman. Although retired, he is still quite active and never misses a meeting of the Missouri Alumni club.

Because of his loyalty and spirit in true "Southern style," we've given him the title of "Mr. Alumnus," for he is indeed an able representative of Southern alumni everywhere.

With a cane in his hand and a twinkle in his eye, Mr. Hubbard steps off the bus.

He clutches his "coke" tensely, as a close play on the football field gets his undivided attention.

On his tour of the campus, he stops by the old fountain to reminisce a bit.

At the football game, he takes a seat in the bleachers with his fellow alumni from Missouri.
Queen For A Year

And then what? After a brief reign as Homecoming Queen, most of Southern’s royal coeds have become housewives or teachers—or both.

Where do “old” Homecoming Queens go when they leave Southern? After their swift ascent to royalty, do they go on to be Powers models, Miss Americas, or movie stars? To the contrary, Alumni records show that the majority of them thus far have settled down to the relatively conventional but nevertheless necessary duties of housewife, teacher, welfare worker, and a miscellany of others.

Southern had its first official Homecoming in 1922, but for several years did not choose a queen to reign over the festivities. However, a forerunner of the Homecoming Queen contest developed in 1925, when both a King and a Queen were chosen to rule the campus during a spring festival.

And the 1925 King and Queen are both still living in Carbondale today. King Leland P. (Doc) Lingle, who received his B. Ed. in 1927, is now track and cross-country coach at SIU and resides at 424 West Jackson street, with his wife (Dorothy Furr 1928) and family.

Mrs. Rolland E. Bridges, Jr., 609 West Oak street, was Edna Hampton, 1926, when she was crowned “Queen of the May.” Mrs. Bridges is now a housewife, and wife of a Carbondale grocery store owner.

Queen in 1928

A few years later, a full-fledged Homecoming Queen was chosen, and in 1928 Miss Dorothy Benner, of Anna, was the lucky gal. Miss Benner also stayed “close to home,” married Marvin Muckelroy, 1930, and became a Carbondale housewife and mother, still finding time to teach for a while at Alto Pass Consolidated school. The Muckelroys now live at 409 West Main street, Carbondale.

In 1929, Miss Benner relinquished her crown to coed Mildred Whiteside (Pfahler), who received her degree in 1931. The later widowed Mrs. Pfahler was awarded a master’s degree in social work from Washington University, St. Louis, in 1950, and is now employed as a supervisor in the Child Welfare division of the Department of Public Welfare, in Bloomington. Her Bloomington address is 412½ East Chestnut street.

Alums and students who attended Southern’s 1935 Homecoming saw Miss Jane Burns crowned queen. Miss Burns, ex-1936, later became Mrs. Robert W. Swain, and now resides with her husband and children at 7057 Pershing, University City, Mo. Swain, ex-1935, is employed as entertainment director for the Chase, Park Plaza and Forest Park hotels in St. Louis.

Reigning Queen at SIU’s 15th annual Homecoming in 1936 was Betty Vick, now the widow of the late Carl Avis. Mrs. Avis, 1937, is the mother of a son, Don Michael Avis, and is residing at 507 Market street, Marion.

California has claimed 1937’s Queen, Edithe L. Hudgens, who entered the teaching field after graduation in 1940. During World War II, she served in the Army Signal Corps as an inspector of radio and electronics equipment, and then married William G. Bourne III, a member of the Johns-Manville Sales Corp. in San Francisco, Calif. The Bournes' address is 218B West 36th street, San Mateo, Calif.

Ex-Queen Travels

After leaving "home" in 1939, Guinna Cotter, 1938 Queen, has traveled far and wide in her role as an air corps officer's wife. Living first in Carterville, then in St. Louis, Mo., Salina, Kan., Westover Field, Mass., and Washington, D. C., Guinna and husband, Maj. James Russell Boren, 1939, have finally landed at Offutt Air Force Base, Omaha, Nebr., where Boren is at headquarters of the Strategic Air Command.

Not to be out-distanced, Pat Mercer (Nelson) 1942, has been hopping to and fro from Yale University to Europe to Champaign during the past several years. Pat, who made her bid to royalty in 1941, taught public health at the U. of I. last year. Her husband, Dr. John Robert Nelson, is an author and instructor in religion at Champaign.

Christopher Junior high school had a lady band director back in 1947, when Ailene Kauzlarich (Sheffer), sporting a brand new SIU sheepskin, took over the baton. 1946 Homecoming Queen Ailene soon married Don Shelter, 1946, and the couple are now living in Princeton, where Don is head basketball coach and assistant football coach at the high school.

Teaches Kindergarten

A recent letter from Erma Douglas (Turner), 1948 Queen, reveals, "I was married Dec. 22, 1951, to Charles A. Turner, who works for the U. of I. Extension service . . . I still teach kindergarten in Hillsboro." Erma will be remembered as one of the Anthony Hall girls.

If you happen to be shopping in St. Louis and find yourself at Famous-Barr, you might stop by the advertising department to see Doris Wade, who is employed as a copywriter. Doris, whose classmates named her Homecoming Queen in 1950, now resides at 738 Belt avenue, St. Louis.

The question "Where is Southern's 1951 Queen?" is an easy one. . . . and you don't have to look any further than Anthony Hall to find the answer—Miss Patricia Taylor. Pat was a junior when chosen Queen, and is completing her studies this year, with a major in physics.

This June Pat will join the ever-increasing number of Southern alumnae who have been honored for their charm and beauty by the title of "Homecoming Queen."
THE UNIVERSITY

Increase Faculty

Southern's board of trustees recently approved the addition of 27 persons to the university staff. The appointments, most of them to faculty status, include:

Dr. William C. Westberg, of Rosseter, Pa., as professor of psychology; Dr. F. Earle Lyman, of Saginaw, Mich., as associate professor of English; Fred Warner Roth, assistant professor of agriculture; Dan Schneider, Chicago, instructor of English replacing the late Mrs. Julia Neely;

Albert C. Mudgett, instructor in industrial education; Miss Mildred Schrothberger, assistant dean of women, acting dean of women, and instructor in the Office of Student Affairs; Roy E. Bond, Vocational-Technical institute staff;

Raymond Schultz, of Florida, Ill., radio and television instructor at Vocational-Technical institute; Frank Eugene Vaughan, Vocational-Technical instructor in business education.

Miss Betty J. Burkhardt, of Chicago, is a new research assistant in the biological research laboratory, and Maurice Gerstein, of New York, is a half-time biological research assistant.

New AF ROTC staff members include Capt. Thomas A. DuBois and Capt. Russell E. Oakes, who both hold the rank of assistant professor in air science and tactics.

Frank Jos. ph Dusek, of Fairmont City, has been appointed as auditor and ex-custive assistant in the business office, and Mrs. Louise Morehouse has been approved as executive assistant and administrative assistant to the Board of Trustees.

Several limited term appointments were also made. Dr. Howard S. Gordman, formerly with Ford Foundation, was named as a lecturer in economics. Dr. James A. Hall, of St. Louis, former director of field study at George Washington University, has assumed the position of lecturer in education.

In the philosophy department, Dr. Robert T. Harris, formerly a University of Utah faculty member, has taken a position as lecturer, and in the department of government, Dr. Marian Elizabeth Ridgeway, of the University of Illinois faculty, is a visiting assistant professor.

Dr. Anna Carol Fultz, formerly chairman of the home economics department at Florida State University, is lecturer in home economics. Robert Eric Franz, a graduate of Tulane University, is assistant football coach.

The board also approved the appointment of Miss Edna M. Griffin, of Cleveland, Ohio, as lecturer in music; Dodd Vernon, former director of Public Relations at Union College, as lecturer in journalism; Rolland P. Schlieve, who has a master's degree from the University of Wisconsin, as lecturer at the audio-visual aids service; D. O. Rettinger, formerly with the State Department of Conservation, as research assistant in SIU's Wildlife Management Research project; and Jo Ann Eglen, SIU graduate, as assistant supervisor in the division of Area Services.

Atomic Exhibit

Atomic footprints, artificial lightning, split uranium atoms, Geiger counters and an atomic furnace temporarily gave Southern's gym the appearance of an atomic energy project Oct. 18-22.

The occasion was the showing of a vast atomic energy exhibit, sponsored jointly by the Division of University extension, the National University extension association, the Atomic Energy commission and the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies.

Shown for the first time in the Southern Illinois area, the exhibit contained more than 30 authoritative sections on various phases of atomic energy, all interesting, eye-catching and understandable to the non-scientist, according to James Cannon, of the extension staff.

Also, using the familiar comic strip technique, the exhibit presented some of the basic facts of atomic energy, including explanations of the parts of an atom, the content of hydrogen and helium atoms, the size of atoms, the uranium isotopes and Einstein's equation.

Pomp and Circumstance

The pomp and pageantry of Italy in Leonardo da Vinci's time is being portrayed at an SIU festival celebrating the 550th anniversary of da Vinci's birth. During the past two weeks in November, both floors of the Allyn building have been filled with an exhibit of the discoveries, inventions, drawings and paintings of the greatest mind of the 16th century.

Motion pictures, records and mannequins reflect the atmosphere and setting of the period, while da Vinci's accomplishments are represented by models of his inventions, a human skeleton showing anatomical discoveries, and a color facsimile of the painting "The Last Supper," among others.

Five sets of exhibits of the works of da Vinci have been sent out for display at Southern Illinois high schools.

MUM'S THE WORD

With the heavy demand for chrysanthemums to wear at the recent Homecoming grid game, William Marberry, assistant professor of botany, could have racked up a nice, tidy profit.

For Marberry, as keeper of SIU greenhouses, has charge of nearly 2,000 mums which have been featured during November at the university's s. cond annual Mum Show.

Although the mums were "for show" and not for sale, opening of the Mum Show coincided with Southern's Homecoming festivities Nov. 1.

Southern's chrysanthemum collection has been underway for four years and now includes over 100 varieties. Blossoms vary in size from tiny blooms 1 ss than an inch in diameter to giants nearly 12 inches across. Colors range from white through shades of yellow, orange, pink, bronze and orchid.

At least 10 varieties in the collection have been originated by the University of Illinois, and others have been acquired from Garfield Park, Chicago; the St. Louis Park district (Jewel Box) and Shaw's Garden.
Christmas Present

“We like to think of 'The Messiah' as our Christmas gift to the people of Southern Illinois,” said Dr. Maurits Kesnar, chairman of Southern's music department and director of the Handel oratorio, which will be presented at SIU's Shryock auditorium Dec. 14, and at Mt. Vernon Dec. 15.

This year's 'Messiah,' the seventh annual performance under Dr. Kesnar's direction, will feature four soloists, a choir of more than 200 Southern Illinoisans, and a miniature orchestra with members chosen from the Southern Illinois Symphony orchestra.

Although the same soloists and orchestra will be used for both performances, a separate choir, composed of Mt. Vernon area residents, will be featured at the Mt. Vernon presentation.

Guest soloists this year are Miss Kay Fuller, soprano and noted radio performer; Miss Dorothy Clark, alto, a professor of voice at the University of Illinois who has appeared as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra; Charles McCool, tenor from Chicago; and James W. McEnery, bass from Chicago, who has sung "The Messiah" in universities throughout the Midwest and Canada.

Among the members of the choir and orchestra are many alumni of Southern, whose musical talents contribute much to the success of the annual performance.

Prominent Performers

Recent guests on campus were two nationally-known artists of the music world who gave concerts at Shryock auditorium.

Miss Ethel Smith, famous organist whose recordings are among the best sellers, presented a program of semi-classical selections and modern American music Oct. 23. Her appearance was made possible through the university Entertainment and Lectures committee, which brings a variety of prominent people to the campus each year.

Those attending the first Community Concert of the season in October heard Miss Eleanor Steber, Metropolitan Opera soprano, sing selections by Wagner, Debussy, Strauss, Thomson, Ravel and other composers of serious music.

Miss Steber, who has sung with every major symphony orchestra across the country, is regularly heard as soloist on the "Voice of Firestone" radio program and recently won first place as the woman singer most regularly heard on the air in Musical America's fourth annual radio poll of serious music.

The next Community Concert scheduled at Southern will be held Jan. 20, when Nicoli and Joanna Graudan, a husband and wife cello and piano duo, will perform.

Miss Mildred Dilling, world's foremost concert harpist, will present the third concert of the year Feb. 16, and a Festival of Gershwin Music on March 4 will bring the season to a close. Appearing in the Gershwin concert will be a concert orchestra conducted by Lorin Maazel, pianist Jesus Maria Sanroma, soprano Carolyn Long, and baritone Theodore Uppman.

Cadets To Choose Queen

Southern's AF ROTC is planning its second annual military ball Dec. 5, to be highlighted by the crowning of a new Queen of the ROTC.

Miss Jo Rushing, first military queen at SIU, was crowned at last year's ball, and holds the rank of Honorary Colonel of Cadets. Miss Rushing, a sophomore from Chester, reviewed the cadets last year with the Commanding Officers during the all-cadet reviews held weekly, and also attended an Arnold Air Society banquet at Scott Field, where she and advanced cadets met General Harper, for whom the squadron was named.

It is the duty of the military queen to preside at all major AF ROTC events.

This year, ten girls selected by the entire student group will be reviewed by members of the Arnold Air Society, who will select five girls as finalists. These five will be voted on by the AF ROTC cadets to determine their choice for Queen.

Bigger and Better

Stirring, martial music is always considered very much a part of university football games, at Southern and elsewhere around the nation.

The proper spirit is provided at SIU games this year by the largest marching band in the history of the school.

According to Phillip Olsson, band director, every uniform, with the exception of some odd sizes, has been put to use to equip the 79 members of the group. If enough uniforms were available, 92 students would be marching in the band.

New equipment, received last year, has made possible the band's record size. Growth of the band may be judged by comparing it with the band of 1924, which numbered 31 members.

First organization of a band at Southern was made back in 1915 by Mr. Glen C. Bainum.

This year marks Mr. Olsson's fourth as director of the organization, which is composed of students from 49 communities and includes 27 women and 52 men. In addition, there are six majorettes and a drum major.

Indication of the band's growth in name and number was a recent invitation to participate in the Cotton Carnival at Memphis, Tenn. Nothing definite has been decided, but if the band can make the trip, it will be the first time Southern has been represented at an observance of this type.
From Foreign Lands

Twenty-four foreign students represent a total of six continents and 11 countries on campus this year.

Several of these students are in the United States on the student exchange plan for university study in various fields, with 10 doing graduate work and five enrolled as freshmen.

Almost every major religion in the world is represented in their religious beliefs, which include Hindu, Moslem, Greek Orthodox, Catholic, Episcopalian, and Protestant.

Jordan has the largest representation at SIU with seven students: Rajai Atalla, a junior majoring in chemistry; Nabeel Mashni, a junior in business administration; Samir Hadda, a graduate student in microbiology; Richard Patterson, Ali Shukeir, Fahmi Dahdah and Faiz Daqqaq, all majoring in pre-English.

From Iraq come Salem Al-Jaryan and Sami Jaryan, who are brothers, and Saad Jaber. Sami and Saad are government students, while Salem is studying American agriculture.

A young lady who bears the name of a famous Queen of France is the only European in the group. Marie Antoinette Untereiner, a graduate student in English, teaches French and German conversation in the foreign language department.

Einenmann Abrahams, who is doing graduate work in government, is the lone representative of Africa.

Central and South America are quite well represented on Southern's campus with five students. Jose Ibrahim and Juan Calle have come from Guatemala to study microbiology, along with their next-door neighbor, Elba Munuz, of Honduras. South Americans Victor Moya-Mendez, of Peru, and Nessim Arditi, a Rotary scholar from Paraguay, are doing graduate work in educational administration and economics, respectively.

Another student from south of the border is Roberto Hernandez, of Mexico, a graduate student in chemistry.

Delip Biswas, graduate assistant in history, hails from India.

The distinction of being the only foreign student from an island belongs to Dorothy Asako Tonai, whose home is Hawaii. Dorothy is majoring in elementary education.

This year, Southern's foreign students, some of whom are pictured above, number 24. They come from such widely separated places as Hawaii, South America, and France.

Suicide By Proxy

The dread wail of an ambulance siren pierced the serenity of a Monday night on Southern's campus. The mercy car screeched to a halt in front of Old Science building, where a crowd was quickly gathering. All eyes were fixed on the tower, to which a lone figure was clinging.

Then a body fell to the earth with a sickening thud and a group of Sigma Pi fraternity men rushed forward to place the limp form on a stretcher and into the waiting ambulance.

But, the lone figure was still clinging to the tower top! Then, Earl Cohen, freshman from St. Louis, climbed down from his perch to explain, "I couldn't go to the Sigma Pi dance and hear Singleton Palmer's band tomorrow night, so I didn't want to live."

And with the revelation of the Sigma Pi's stunt to publicize their dance, the case of the deceased dummy came to a close.

BALL-BOHRAD POTTERY SHOW IN NEW YORK

One of New York's largest art galleries, the Associated American Artists, was the scene of a three-week pottery show recently by F. Carleton Ball, internationally-known potter on the SIU art staff, and Aaron Bohrad, pottery decorator and former art staff member.

In Ball's first joint show in a metropolitan area, hundreds of pieces of his pottery, some without decorations and some with decorations by Bohrad, were exhibited.

Bohrad is now artist in residence at the University of Wisconsin.

A Memoir...

Professional ambition and desire for intellectual refreshment were strong in Mrs. Neely. The year 1939-40 she spent in the graduate school of New York University, and there was a summer at the University of Michigan. For one or two years also she attended Saturday classes at St. Louis University. But whether she was definitely enrolled in courses or not, she was constantly alive to new publications in her field as well as to new literature in general.

Julia Jonah Neely was a native of Illinois, born in Marine, August 26, 1897. Her fifty-five years were crammed fuller of living than are most four-score spans. She especially loved people, and her death is truly mourned by the thousands who were her friends.
Salukis Lose To Bears
19-14 At Homecoming

Before a Homecoming crowd of 5,500, Southern's Salukis went down to a 19-14 defeat at the hands of the Washington University Bears, sparked by Ted Dunn, Washington fullback who scored all three touchdowns for the Bears.

The Salukis led 7-0 until late in the second quarter on the strength of a 75-yard touchdown run by Bob Ems, playing his last game before induction. But before halftime, Dunn had racked up two touchdowns to give the Bears a 13-7 lead.

In the third quarter, Dunn again carried the pigskin for a touchdown making the score 19-7. Then, on his 25-yard line, Southern's Joe Huske threw a long pass to VanderPluym, who ran the final 40 yards to complete a 75-yard scoring play. The kick for the extra point was good, and the score read 19-14.

After that, neither team had another serious scoring chance.

Game statistics show that SIU made only four first downs compared to 16 for Washington, gained 117 yards rushing to the Bears' 228, and made 109 yards passing to 132 for the opponents.

The victory was Washington's first on the road since 1949 and gave the Bears a 3-3 season's record compared to 2-4 for Southern.

Scores of Saluki games thus far are: wins—from Illinois Normal, 27-20; from Eastern, 22-7; losses—to Southeast Missouri, 20-0; to Northern, 21-7; and to Central Michigan, 55-7.

Southern had two more games this season, both at home, with Western Illinois on Nov. 7, and Michigan Normal Nov. 15.

The End For Ems

With the recent Homecoming game, the football season ended for Bob Ems, leading Saluki ball carrier and scorer. Ems reported Nov. 5 for induction into the armed forces.

A 5'11", 200-pound junior from Fisher, he has scored six of SIU's 11 touchdowns this year and six of its nine extra points for a total of 42 points. Ems' loss had a very telling effect on Southern's conference chances. With two more conference games to play, SIU had a record of 2-2.

Glenn (Abe) Martin, Saluki baseball coach, will miss Ems, too. Ems was on the IIAC all-conference baseball squad, and played right field for Martin's league-winning team last spring.

In recognition of his service to Southern, Ems was presented a going-away gift during ceremonies at the Homecoming game.

The season officially opens Dec. 6, with a home game against Evansville, Ind.

Expanding Viewpoint
Southern Adds Dormitory, Science Building; Plans Others

The same old buildings are still there—Old Main, Wheeler Library, Anthony Hall, Old Science—and if a former student drove in at Southern's main gate and began the swing around circle drive, he might mentally close his eyes and imagine himself back in school again, with all the old familiar landmarks.

However, a little north of the gym, he would be quickly jolted back to reality when his car plowed into the heap of broken concrete which is all that's left of the drive's exit.

The exit was eliminated to make way for one of Southern's many new projects, the relocation of a portion of Highway 51. A new four-lane strip now cuts through the tennis courts to the heating plant, rejoining the old pavement near the city lake road south of Carbondale.

The project, which is being completed now, will bypass the sharp bends in the highway, one at the old exit gate and one near the Baptist Foundation, and help to reduce traffic hazards caused by constant student traffic across campus.

At present, the drive has been torn away only as far as the gym, but eventually it will be torn back as far as Anthony Hall, making the main campus entrance on Harwood avenue.

And although all of the old buildings are still standing and in use, many new and modern buildings are in either construction or planning stages, and will someday alleviate the shortage of classroom space and lack of facilities.

Major Steps

First major steps in expansion were the new physical plant and the new university training school, which was formally opened Nov. 16, 1951. The university school, with its ultra-functional equipment, plays a vital part in the proper training of both student teachers and their pupils.

Construction of the industrial education and physical education wings of the training school is now approximately 40 per cent complete. The industrial ed section is to be finished by Dec. 1, 1953, while the physical education building should be ready for use in March, 1953.

Three other building projects are now under construction as Southern grows in size and stature. Work on the new women's dormitory, located just west of the Canteen, is about 60 per cent complete. Although unforeseen shortages of materials have caused delays, completion date for the entire building.
The university training school, completed in 1951, (foreground) and a 420-bed women's dormitory, now under construction, are both a part of SIU's long-range expansion program.

including the cafeteria annex, has been tentatively set for April 1, 1953.

The new 422-bed residence for women will be a self-liquidating dormitory. State appropriations for capital improvements are being used as far as possible in financing the original construction so that indebtedness will be kept at a minimum. A federal housing and home finance agency loan of $1,100,000 to SIU, announced in Washington Sept 15, will cover the final half of completion costs, supplementing state funds of $1,018,832 appropriated for capital improvement and released for the dorm.

Federal Aid
Total estimated cost of the structure, including furnishings and landscaping, is $2,118,831.72. A substantial saving in interest charges will be realized through the federal loan, according to Dr. George H. Hand, executive assistant to President Delyte W. Morris.

Loans are payable only from the net revenues of the residence hall, which will operate under the same system as the other university dormitories, with expenditures not being allowed to exceed income.

Another project nearing completion is Service Shop No. 2, north of the power plant, which will serve as a garage and repair shop for the university's cars, trucks and other vehicles. The building should be ready for use in the very near future.

The needs of would-be botanists, zoologists and biologists at Southern will be handled quite efficiently upon completion of the new life science building directly east of the veterans housing project on Chautauqua street.

Already more than 55 per cent done, the science structure should be finished by July 15, 1953. Contractors are planning to have the building partially ready for use at the beginning of the next school year in September. Since most of the outside work has been completed, it will be possible for the builders to work on the inside during the winter months.

An animal house at the rear of the life science building will be completed at a later date, pending another appropriation from the state legislature.

Plans are also underway for the new SIU Library, which will be located behind the cafeteria, but actual construction is dependent upon the 1953-55 budget.

At present, Southern's, long-range building program includes more than 40 projects, including new buildings and other capital improvements. With the completion of all the projects, SIU will have attained its full physical stature as a university. Credit for its excellent progress toward that goal can be given to far-seeing and capable leaders.
Miss West Went West
Southern alumna gains fame in field of free-lance writing

If you happen to be thumbing through a copy of Mademoiselle, The Saturday Evening Post, or Ford Times during the next month or so, you might very easily find an article in each by Miss Anne West, SIU alumna and free-lance writer from Carterville.

Since she left Southern in 1935, Anne has authored over 200 fiction stories and an uncountable number of non-fiction articles in 75 magazines in the United States, Canada, Australia, England and France.

Notable among the magazines carrying her articles are Holiday, American, Good Housekeeping, Family Circle and Woman's Day.

"Our Little House Had Friends," for Mademoiselle; "The Big Boil — Burgoo," for the Saturday Evening Post; and a story on National Folk Camp, for Ford Times, are her most recent contributions, scheduled for release in the next few weeks.

"Burgoo," by the way, is not, as you may be thinking, a secret weapon or one of baby's first words. It's a type of soup cooked continuously for two days during soup festival time by the people of Winchester, Ill. As a result of covering the story, Anne even brought some of the stuff back with her and threatens to throw a real, live "burgoo" party to try it out.

Active Coed

While a coed at Southern, Miss West was called by the prim and proper name of Elizabeth, not Anne, which is her middle name. "In fact," she said ruefully, "my classmates probably wouldn't even recognize me as Anne."

At any rate, Elizabeth or Anne — take your choice — managed to collect quite a few honors during her college career. An interest in dramatics led her to become president of Little Theatre and an actress in such plays as "The Swan," "Arms and the Man," and "All's Fair."

In addition, she was president of Zetetic literary society, a member of the School Council and Mu Tau Pi, journalism fraternity.

"I'm sure that I didn't know then that I wanted to write," declared Anne, but even so she displayed a talent for saying the right things at the right time that resulted in being chosen associate editor of The Egyptian, campus newspaper.

Armed with a B. A. degree from SIU, and majors in French and English, Anne set out to become a "school-ma'am" and spent one year teaching "everything imaginable" at Marion high school. In her spare time, she did a lot of pinch-hitting for newspapers.

Then, a hasty appendectomy gave impetus to her writing career. The city editor at the Marion Republican was rushed to the hospital for an operation, and Anne was rushed to the paper office to take over.

Chooses Career

After that, having had a taste of journalism, she decided to make writing her career, and enrolled in journalism at the University of Missouri for the fall semester of 1936.

Her days at "Mizzou" were short-lived however, for that year was the year of the terrible Ohio river flood, and the Cairo Evening Citizen, hard-pressed to give adequate flood coverage with a small staff, asked Anne to come to work as a full-time reporter.

At Cairo, the energetic Miss West, looking around for something to do in her spare time, discovered the world of free-lance writing. At first she wrote articles for trade journals on a variety of subjects ranging from men's clothing (under a man's name) to butcher shops.

Meanwhile, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jett West, moved to Springfield, where Mr. West was a traveling auditor for Peabody Coal Co. Anne soon joined them, taking a job with the Springfield Journal, and continued writing for trade journals and small magazines with increasing success.

"When I found that I was making more money at night than I was at the newspaper during the day, I decided it was time to go out on my own," said Anne.

And so, Miss West went West.

Staying at the art colony of Taos, N. M., and gathering story material, she met by chance two New England girls who became her closest friends—one a research physicist and the other a cabinet maker.

The three lived together at Taos, and later moved to Rockport, Mass., where they bought a snug little house formerly owned by an Olympic skier and his mother. Their adventures there became the subject of Anne's recent story, "Our Little House Had Friends."

The death of her father brought Anne back to Carterville, where she has established headquarters at a rustic log cabin adjoining the family home.

At the cabin she has the peace and quiet she likes for her work. When she feels a story coming on, "things just sort of boil up inside" and are put down in black and white. As a matter of discipline, she always makes herself finish a story, even if she gets halfway through it and decides she doesn't like it.

Literary Skeleton

There's a skeleton in her literary closet which she is rather reluctant to reveal. Once, on a dare, she submitted a novelette to Modern Romance magazine, feeling confident that it would be rejected. Much to her surprise and dismay, it was accepted and published under the lurid title, "Her Secret—I Told It," accompanied, of course, by appropriate art.

When she first began writing, she

RETURNS FROM GERMANY

Dr. Eugene Fair, Dean of the College of Education and professor of education and history at Southern from 1945 to 1949, is back in the United States after serving as Senior Cultural Officer in the Public Affairs section of the U. S. Consulate General, Frankfurt, Germany.

Before going to a new assignment as Cultural Officer at the American Embassy to the Philippine Republic in January, 1953, Fair will spend several weeks in consultations at the State Department, Washington, D. C.

While in Germany, Dr. Fair took an active part in the reorganization of the educational system of Land Hesse, which, due to its pioneer work in school reform and free tuition, became known as the most progressive German state with respect to education. He played a major role in the establishment of the "Schuldorf Bergstrasse" near Darmstadt. This educational establishment is the first consolidated, unified, major school system in Germany.

Dr. Fair will be accompanied to Manila by his wife and two youngest sons, Erik Robert, 6, and Scott Richard, 2, who were also with him in Germany. An elder son, Allan Cooper, 19, and a daughter, Mary Linda, 15, are studying in the United States.

TEACHES IN FRANCE

Boys attending school at Chaumont, France, this year are learning to speak English under the direction of a Southern alumnus, Ted Beardsley, of Haverstown, Pa.

Ted, a June, 1952, graduate of SIU, was recently awarded a teaching-study assistantship given by the International Institute of Education at Paris, France, and sailed from New York City on the USS Queen Elizabeth in September to assume his position as teacher of English conversation at a Chaumont "Lycee," a combination boys high school and junior college.

His expenses overseas are being paid by the Fulbright Institute, of New York, through which auspices his scholarship was granted. He is required to teach 12 hours per week and enroll in one class at the teachers' college in Chaumont, which is about 150 miles east of Paris.

While in Europe, Ted wants to spend much of his free time traveling and plans to visit Rome and Spain and other points of interest before returning to the United States in July, 1953.

DOCTOR ON HORSEBACK

The death of Dr. JOHN JACOB RENDLEMAN, ex-1880, on Oct. 11 in Cairo, marked the passing of one of Southern’s oldest alumni. Dr. Rendleman, who was born July 15, 1863, at Makanda, attended SIU until 1880 and then taught school near his old home before beginning his formal education in the study of medicine.

In 1885, he was graduated from the School of Medicine at the University of Tennessee and received a gold medal for excellence in surgery. He received a degree from Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia in 1886 and was a classmate of the famous physician, Dr. Chevalier Jackson, who invented the bronroscope.

For the next three years, Dr. Rendleman practiced medicine as a country doctor in the hills of Southern Illinois, making his calls on horseback and carrying his medicine in saddle bags.

In May, 1889, he decided to make his home in Cairo, and practiced there for the next 63 years, closing his office March 1 of this year.

He was married in 1889 to Viola Vosburgh Cundiff, who preceded him in death in 1942. The couple had two daughters, Ruth Rendleman, who died in 1936, and Mrs. Adele Rendleman Grieve, who survives.

Dr. Rendleman also took post-graduate courses at poly-clinic and post-graduate schools in New York, and at Mayo’s in Rochester, Minn. He was on the staff of St. Mary’s Hospital in Cairo, and the Missouri Pacific Hospital in St. Louis, and surgeon for the New York Central, G. M. and O., and Missouri Pacific railroads.

During the Spanish American War, he was commissioned a Major to serve as surgeon, and he also served as an examining physician during both World War I and II.

Dr. Rendleman was a member of the Alexander County Medical Society, the American College of Surgeons, the American Medical Association, the Sons of the American Revolution and the Fifty Year Club of Illinois.

The doctor, whose family migrated from North Carolina to Southern Illinois in 1817, was honored two years ago at the University of Tennessee as its oldest living graduate.

After funeral services at Cairo, interment was made at Woodlawn Cemetery, New York City. N. Y.

Found and Lost

What’s in a name? The Alumni Office is finding that there is more to it than appears on the surface.

Some time ago, in an issue of the Alumnus, the name of Alfred D. Ozment, D-1922, was listed among the ranks of straying alumni. And not very long after that, the office received an anonymous note, signed merely “a reader of News Bulletin,” bringing the glad news that Mr. Ozment “has been teaching in high school for over 20 years . . . resides at 635 North 62nd Street, East St. Louis, Ill.”

And so the lost was found, and he assumed his rightful place on the alumni mailing list, receiving invitations to various alumni events and copies of the Alumnus. Until . . .

From East St. Louis came a letter from a Mrs. A. D. Ozment, 635 North 62nd street, which read as follows: “Will you please stop sending this man’s mail to my home. Nobody by that name lives here! My husband’s name is A. D. Ozment. We are not interested in your Alumni Association. Will be happy if you will take care of this matter. Thank you.”

We’re speechless. All we can do is go back to our original plea—please help us find this straying alumnus.

About Alumni

In the speech at Columbia University this year, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands expressed her conception of the roll university alumni play in society. We think it so appropriate and to-the-point that we would like to reprint it here.

"To be a student at a university means to have lived in a very small, but very democratic community. This is the very best school for the free development of all a person is worth, in mind and character, under constant comparison of his qualities with those of all the other students. Well-trained and imbued with this practical experience of democracy, the alumni thus enter society. It is up to them to spread the vitality of this experience wherever they go.

"Knowledge opens the way to prominent places in human society. It does this for the individual as well as for the group, for the nation as well as for the group of nations. The bearer of knowledge has to fulfill more demands and carries greater responsibility. He has to stand face to face with the truth."

Association Board Meets

Along with alumni reunions and organizational meetings, Homecoming was also the occasion of the regular meeting of the Board of Directors of Southern’s Alumni Association, Saturday, Nov. 1, at 9 a.m.

The meeting, held in the Board of Trustees office, was called to order by the president, Mr. William Carruthers.

Members present were: Mr. Carruthers, president; Mr. Warren Gladders, vice-president; Mrs. John Lewis, secretary-treasurer; and Directors Dr. Clyde Brooks, Mr. Troy Hawkins, Mr. Geoffrey Hughes, Mr. Aubrey Holmes, Mr. R. S. Muckelroy, Mrs. Mabel Pulliam, Mr. William Price, and Mr. W. B. Valentine.

Directors not present were: Dr. Robert Browne, Mrs. B. Y. Alvis, Mr. Guy Gladson and Mr. Lowell Roberts, ex-officio.

Also attending the meeting were Dr. Charles Tenney, administrative assistant to the president of the University, and Bob Odaniell, acting alumni director. Mr. Odaniell introduced to the Alumni Board the new Alumni Recorder, Mrs. Margaret Lane, and Publications Editor, Virginia Miller.

The minutes of the previous meeting were approved as submitted.

Revise Statutes

First subject to be considered by the Directors at this meeting was the revision of the University Statutes concerning the Alumni Association. A letter from the Committee on the Study and Recommendations of University Procedures was presented by its chairman, Dr. Charles Tenney.

This letter offered a choice of two titles: The Alumni Office or The Office of Alumni Records and Services. Mr. Valentine moved that we accept the shorter title, Mr. Muckelroy seconded the motion, and it was passed.

The Directors then discussed the functions of the Alumni Office and considered the phrasing of Dr. Tenney’s proposed amendments.

It was decided that the parenthetical phrases, as listed in Sections 2, 6, and 7, which make it possible for the alumni themselves to determine whether the Alumni Office is to perform certain services for them, were definitely advantageous to us, and, after a motion by Mr. Gladders and a second from Mrs. Pulliam, it was voted to accept them.

Mr. Hughes moved to send a note to President Morris, recommending the adoption of the University Statutes with the revisions as stated. Dr. Brooks seconded and it carried.

The second item to be considered was the Proposed Constitution and By-Laws for the Alumni Association. Going through their copies, step by step, the Directors discussed each article and a few changes were made.

It was agreed that in the preamble the following past names of the University be included in the parenthesis along with Southern Illinois Normal University: Southern Illinois Teachers College and Southern Illinois State Normal University.

Change Constitution

Two changes were made in the body of the Constitution.

First, in section 3, page 3, line 6, the word shall was changed to may, and the sentence now reads—‘The Board of Directors MAY also include, as an ex-officio non-voting member, a representative named by the president of the University.’

The second change was made in section 6, page 5, paragraph 2, line 1, where the word shall was changed to may as follows—‘The president of the University annually MAY designate a member of the University staff as his representative and as an ex-officio member of the board without vote.’

The motion for both changes was made by Mr. Price, seconded by Mr. Gladders, voted and passed.

Then President Carruthers appointed a sub-committee to Dr. Robert Browne’s committee, to consider problems pertaining to the Proposed Constitution and to submit a final draft at the next meeting. Members of the sub-committee are: Dr. Brooks; chairman; Mr. Hughes, Mr. Gladders, and Mrs. Lewis.

Mr. Muckelroy spoke to the Directors about the possibility of the Alumni Association encouraging more athletes and fine students to come to Southern.

Athletic Committee

As a result of Mr. Muckelroy’s talk, President Carruthers appointed a committee to cooperate with the athletic department to assist them in influencing better athletes to come to Southern. This committee consists of Mr. Muckelroy, Mr. Price and Mr. Valentine.

The question of family memberships was discussed, and it was moved by Mr. Price, seconded by Dr. Brooks, and voted to charge $3 per year for a family membership, effective this meeting.

The meeting was then adjourned.
