Reddick, Illinois

Just a brief note to let you know what's new with another alum.

This summer I finished my master's degree from the University of Illinois and 22 days later (Sept. 5) became the mother of a fine baby girl, Karen Lea. I am not teaching this year but my husband, Ralph, is still coaching at Reddick high school.

Mrs. Ralph Keller (Vera Bennett, '51)

Chicago, Ill.

I finally joined the long list of married men—married a Chicago girl last July 17. We are living on the northwest side.

What is new in Carbondale? I have been getting the bulletins and see where you are getting over 4000 students. Just where are you going to put them all? As for myself, I am in the last year of law school at John Marshall and will graduate in June.

Here is the rundown on the fellow alums I know in Chicago: Bill Burns is in Korea with the Second Division. He is still planning on finishing his Ph. D. when he returns. Bill Sheffield is married and working at Liquid Carbonic as assistant credit manager. Bill Fulton is no longer attending law school but is still working for the government.

That's enough for now.

I have just finished reading the Alumni News Bulletin and I want to say that I enjoy receiving each issue. Although the majority of the names and faces have changed since 1939, there are always a few that are familiar.

I am sorry that I could not return for homecoming. I found it necessary on Oct. 22 to submit to major surgery at Cole Hospital here in Champaign. However, I am recovering nicely and hope to be back at work soon. Since 1946 I have been (continued to inside back cover)

Southern's campus was probably more “dressed up” for Christmas this year than any previous year. Dominating the main campus was a large Christmas tree made entirely of colored lights. It was erected in front of Wheeler library. At the corner of Grand and Illinois streets a large Santa waved his greetings to passers-by. A sparkling Christmas tree twinkled its joyous message from the window of most every house near campus. SIU President and Mrs. D. W. Morris were snapped by our photographer, senior Kenneth Davis, readying their tree for the holidays.

Betty Greenleaf

Miss Greenleaf, assistant professor in the Office of Student Affairs, came to Southern in the fall of 1952.

She received a bachelor’s degree from DePauw University, master’s from the University of Wisconsin and D. Ed. from Indiana University. She has also attended Indiana State Teachers College and Purdue University.

Miss Greenleaf was active in Girl Scout work for many years and at one time served as assistant co-director of a city recreation program.

Stanley E. Harris

Harris, associate professor of geography and geology, is a 1940 graduate of Princeton University with the master’s and Ph. D. degrees from the State University of Iowa.

Before joining Southern’s faculty the fall of 1949, he was teaching at the University of Missouri.

He is the author of several articles appearing in professional journals.

"We're on our way toward providing future students of Southern Union with a permanent University Union building.

The inspired student who uttered these remarks is one of the many students on the campus who have worked diligently to make a permanent building possible. The latest action about which students, alumni and faculty members can be proud is the signing of a contract with the architectural firm of Burnham and Hammond, Inc., Chicago, to carry on a preliminary study of relationship of facilities and general costs involved in the total project of constructing a University Union.

This step is the outcome of much thinking, planning and action on the part of Southern's students and staff. No sooner had the present temporary Student Union been completed in March, 1955, than it was obvious that space and facilities were inadequate. The students found themselves with most of the facilities that exist in the Student Unions of larger universities. They had a game room, a soda fountain, a T.V. room, music room, conference room for meetings, organizational office space, libraries, and offices. However, these facilities were outgrown before they could really be put to use. The soda fountain area was too small, the lines for coffee, snacks and sandwiches were too long, and there wasn't space enough in the game room nor adequate seating space for students to lounge during study hour nor between classes. More groups began requesting space for weekend parties than could be accommodated.

Almost immediately a student committee began discussing and studying means by which a permanent Student Union could be provided for everyone. It was agreed that the first step was to set up a Student Union Building Fund to which groups and individuals could contribute. Following the lead of many schools, the students investigated the possibility of all students contributing to the building fund when they were in school. At the all-campus election in October, 1953, the students approved a referendum increasing their activity fee a dollar per term; this dollar to be placed in a Student Union Building Fund. Subsequently, this move was approved by the Student Council and the Board of Trustees of Southern Illinois University.

During the fall year a number of student groups have added to this fund—dances have been held, one group placed jars to collect the pennies from the cafeteria lines to go into the fund, the Student Union pledged the vending machine proceeds from a machine they were allowed to place in the Registrar's Office, and the proceeds from the Ugly Man contest at Spring Festival found its way into the Student Union Building Fund. During Greek Sing a collection was taken for the building fund. An activity which has proved both a service to the campus and source of revenue has been the Girls' Rally Activity Calendar which listed all major events of the school year with extra space for students to write in important dates. As a part of the Christmas Week assembly, December 16, Girls' Rally contributed $500 to the building fund, partly earned from the sales of these calendars and partly from the sales of mums at Homecoming.

The present Student Union at Southern, as it will be called when the campus, holds an important place in the total university program. The students at Southern have expressed the purpose of a Student Union program most clearly in giving the purpose of the Student Union Council which serves to govern the activities of the Student Union: "To further educational growth of Southern Illinois University students by sponsoring, expanding, integrating, and facilitating recreational, social, and cultural activities . . . ." A good student union program adds to the total educational program of a student body, helps to add to the student's total life on campus, helps to provide a well-rounded activities program and helps to bring together students, faculty, alumni and friends of the University.

A wide educational experience is provided for the students whose programs are in the Student Union committees and as staff workers in the Union. At Southern the responsibility of the Student Union program is in the hands of the Supervisor of Student Activities (Miss Betty Greenleaf) who is a member of the Student personnel office, the Office of Student Affairs. At present there is not only a Student Union on the main campus, but a Student Center has just recently been established at the Southern Acres campus. Directly responsible to the student workers in the Student Union on campus, and for working with some fifty students who comprise special meetings, a club room which can comfortably seat 40 people which is adjacent to a fully equipped kitchen, and lounge sections which may be reserved. During the past year over 600 special meetings and activities were scheduled in the Student Union by the Student Union committees is in the hands of the Student Union, Miss Martha Grissom. The Student Center at Southern Acres campus is under the direction of the Student Council for that campus and of the adviser to that Student Council, William "Pat" Randle. The committees try constantly to be aware of the physical needs of the buildings, to provide a program of activities, and to assist university groups in their activities.

During the past year the Student Union was probably one of the busiest places on campus. It provided space for various campus groups to have committee meetings, organizational meetings, and socials. The present Student Union has a conference room where groups may have special meetings, a club room which can comfortably seat 40 people which is adjacent to a fully equipped kitchen, and lounge sections which may be reserved. During the past year over 600 special meetings and activities were scheduled in the Student Union by the Student Union committees.

Many cultural activities are provided within the Union. A large section of one wing holds the Books for Living section. Here on open shelves are a wide variety of books, in addition to the Student Union's own collection. There is a music room for the Student Union to provide displays. The Student Union also has a French Department Display, Nutrition Week Display, and a student display for the various divisions of the armed forces. University classes have made use of the Union, actually having class in the conference room, and classes have used it as an extension of the television area for special programs. The Student Union has also had the honor of being part of the "A Night in London" series of programs.
The University Library now contains the nucleus for a regional map collection which will make available information and interpretations about Southern Illinois. The collection is the immediate result of a research project initiated under the auspices of the Graduate College two years ago.

The purpose of the map collection is to assemble in one place as much information about Southern Illinois as possible. Maps can better portray large quantities of basic data in a comprehensive fashion than any other known means. Furthermore interpretations of such data are readily and often very graphically portrayed on maps. The regional effort to develop Southern Illinois has here a reservoir of information on which to plan improvements.

Some professions and occupations, such as the geographer, geologist, agriculturalist, engineer and military man, railroader, barge pilot and market researcher, are well versed in the use of maps and sometimes air photos. Others use them occasionally but often are not aware of the maps which exist or of the value of their construction. The potential usefulness of maps, and especially air photographs, to city planning, industrial growth, and sociologic, economic and political studies only now is being realized. The collection has another and broader significance. Southern Illinois holds a uniquely strategic location in the United States. It is between North and South, East and West, geographically historically, politically, geologically, and biologically. Thus, an extensive collection of maps in such a critical area would have significance to research studies on a national as well as regional scale.

Map Types

Maps covering all fields of endeavor are being assembled, ranging from base maps showing natural features and civil boundaries—to maps showing cultural features such as roads and mineral deposits, industries and mines—to more abstract matters such as labor conditions, old age assistance, health conditions and religious affiliations. To date, some 1500 maps have been received. Although this is an excellent start, it can be considered only a nucleus, for many vital maps have yet to be obtained. Historic and out-of-date maps are conspicuous by their absence. Nevertheless, the collection is now broad enough and detailed enough to be useful.

It is planned to extend the collection into the fourth dimension—time. We know Southern Illinois has changed greatly in the past 100 years. We should have maps which show what it was like then or at any other time in history. Furthermore, we know that changes are continually being made. Records of these changes must be kept in the form of new maps published periodically. Thus, the collection itself must be dynamic—ever incorporating new maps to keep it up-to-date and to reach back into the past.

The classification which has been adopted in organizing the collection is that recently adopted by the Library of Congress in Washington, D. C. The basic classification is by area and secondarily, by subject. Thus, materials will be grouped together by county and city, secondarily, by subject. Eventually a cross-filed index will be prepared.

(2) Railroads, including a detailed map of the Alton and Southern Railroad passenger traffic. The overlapping permits stereo (3-D) examination. Air photographs are a research tool of ever increasing significance. They show the land as it is of a particular date. Thus, comparisons with the air photos taken in the late 1930's reveal the many changes in man's use of the land which took place in Southern Illinois in little more than a decade. Another series of air photographs will be taken in about 10 years.

Preparation

The map collection grew out of the repeated annoyance at being unable to supply requested maps from the collections of the Department of Geography and Geology and an awareness of the value of maps to the University's effort to be of service to its area. President D. W. Morris gave active encouragement in the initial stage of the project—writing letters to the heads of state departments and giving the support of the University administration. A Graduate College research grant made possible the investigations into the feasibility of developing a regional collection.

The principal factors which were considered might be summarized as follows:

1. What sorts of maps should be included in the collection?
2. Where would such maps be obtained?
3. What maps, if any, were already available which might form the nucleus of a regional collection?
5. Where should it and where could it be housed?
6. What department or division might ultimately be responsible for assembling, maintaining, and servicing the collection?
7. What would be the cost involved?

Some of these factors were rather definitely answered before the research grant was made. Maps are published by the tens of thousands annually. The University Library now has another and broader significance for research studies on a national as well as regional scale.
Business
Looks
To Southern
For Qualified
Personnel

Today, many companies are receiving a guiding hand from graduates of Southern Illinois University. Throughout the country SIU alumni are serving in interesting and varied fields of business and industry.

Several companies consistently interview and hire graduates and former students of Southern. One of the outstanding examples of SIU alumni placement is with The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, one of the largest ordinary life insurance companies in the world. Currently employed with this company are 14 of Southern's alumni.

Donald L. Bryant, '40, is agency manager at St. Louis, Mo. Gerald Fugate, '49, is district manager at Joliet, Ill. Other alumni serving the company as district managers are: Henry R. Wasmer, Jr., ex '42, at Murphysboro, Ill., and Thomas A. Young, ex '49, at Olney, Ill. Working as field assistants with the company are: Arthur Halfar, '49, Effingham, Ill., and Roger E. Spear, '48, Carbondale. Representatives of the company include alumni: Kifton K. Dillow, '48, Kankakee, Ill.; Samuel L. Endicott, '48, Carmi, Ill.; Howard J. Rice, ex '40, Carterville, Ill.; Waldo McDonald, '43, Chester, Ill.; Don Enlow, '51, Herrin, Ill.; Leland Elliott, ex '28, Mt. Vernon, Ill.; H. Walton Holifield, ex '31, Brookport, Ill., and Clarence Kirchhoefer, '32, Jacksonville, Ill.

One of the outstanding local examples of SIU alumni placement is with the General Motors Acceptance Corporation. This organization, with branches throughout the world, offers to legally franchised GM dealers a wholesale and retail financing service. The Carbondale branch serves the needs of General Motors dealers and their customers in the 13 southernmost counties in Illinois.

Alumni currently employed with the Carbondale branch include: Robert D. Huff, '49, as a district representative; Joseph A. Nieman, '50, as chief clerk, supervising the entire accounting operation; Mrs. Mary Maschoff (Holland), '50, discount and rebate clerk; and Mrs. Joanne White (Gee), '53, sectional stenographer.

Bowyer Honored By English Teachers

Miss Emma Bowyer, former chairman of the SIU English department, was selected as the outstanding English teacher in the area by the Southern Illinois Association of English Teachers at their annual fall meeting on campus October 29.

Miss Bowyer joined the SIU faculty in 1912. She served as chairman of the English department from 1926 until her retirement in 1947.

Connell Named Purchasing Agent

William V. Connell, accountant, cost engineer and industrial buyer, has been named purchasing agent at Southern. He assumed his new duties on November 16.

Cornelia Beach, purchasing agent since 1943 when SIU was a teacher's college, will continue her present duties with the title of assistant director of purchases.

Connell came to Southern last August as a senior accountant, after two years as buyer for F. H. McGraw and Co., prime contractors for the atomic energy plant at Paducah.

Connell holds a bachelor of science degree in accounting from the University of Illinois. He is a native of Mounds.

WILLARD ELECTED

Charles Willard, supervisor of English in the University training school, is the newly-elected president of the Illinois Association of Teachers of English.

Willard had previously served the organization as vice president and program chairman.

SIU GETS $10,000 GIFT FROM REEF

The Southern Illinois University Foundation has been given a $10,000 gift from the estate of the late Mrs. Leah M. Reef of Carbondale.

Edward V. Miles, SIU business manager and treasurer of the Foundation, stated that the money had been turned over by Elmer Tuegel, executor of Mrs. Reef's estate for a Leah M. Reef Memorial Scholarship.

Mrs. Reef, who died last December, was president of the Carbondale Public Library board of trustees from 1922 until 1952. She gave more than $50,000 in cash and property to the library.

Miles said the executive committee of the Foundation and the University's Scholarships and Loans Committee had agreed on a plan whereby the $10,000 would be placed in an endowment fund, Boatman Resigns Chairmanship

Ralph H. Boatman, resigned as acting chairman of Southern's health education department the first of December to accept the position of director of health education with Chicago and Cook County Tuberculosis Institute.

Boatman recently received his doctorate in public health education from the University of North Carolina. He earned his bachelor's degree from Southern in 1943. Boatman first served on the SIU faculty in 1947-48. In 1951 he returned to the campus as acting chairman of the health education department. He is a member of several educational public health organizations and committees.

The Chicago and Cook County Tuberculosis Institute which Boatman directs is the largest voluntary health agency in the U. S.
Tudor Elected To Board Of NCCJ

Dr. William J. Tudor, associate director of Area Services at Southern Illinois University, was elected as a member of the national board of directors of the National Conference of Christmas and Jews, last November.

Re-elected national co-chairman of the board were: Benson Ford, vice president of Ford Motor Company; James F. Twohy, West Coast industrialist, and Roger W. Strauss, chairman of the American Smelting and Refining Co.

Tudor came to Southern in 1948 from Iowa State College. In 1951 he served as a research consultant with the Near East Foundation in Greece and lectured at the Superior School of Agriculture at Athens under a Fulbright professorship.

Tudor is active in many civic organizations. He is president of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce and the Shrine Club, board member of Southern Illinois, Inc., and the area YMCA, and leadership training committee chairman of the Egyptian Council of Boy Scouts.

Tudor was a speaker at the regional meeting of the NCCJ on Nov. 30 in East St. Louis.

School Named For Clyde V. Winkler

Clyde V. Winkler, '29, will have a new school in Carbondale named in his honor. The "Winkler School" was selected recently by the Carbondale Elementary Board of Education as the name of the new West Freeman street elementary school.

Winkler has been superintendent of the elementary schools of Carbondale since 1948. From 1930 to '48 he served the Cicero (Ill.) schools as principal, assistant superintendent, business manager and then superintendent.

Winkler holds a master's degree from the University of Michigan and has done additional work at the University of Chi-

CAMPUS CHATTER

The villainous suitcase is losing its power over Southern students. In fact, students who go home on week-ends don't affect the success of week-end social activities at all.

Week-end events scheduled with Betty Greenleaf, Supervisor of Student Activities, have doubled from the 1952-53 period to the 1953-54 school year. Greatest activity increases were in social groups scheduling week-end parties and in religious groups with week-end functions.

Comparatively new week-end events include the Pan-Hellenic and Inter-Fraternity Council workshops and dances and the Independent Student Association's faculty-student basketball game.

Taffy pulling, tree decorating, caroling, and Santa Claus were highlights of the fourth annual Christmas week—December 10-16.

Events included the "Winter Wonderland" semi-formal dance, the APO charity dance, two basketball games, the annual production of "The Messiah," and an all-school assembly. As part of the assembly, Dr. Morris read the Biblical Christmas story.

The bi-annual Career Conference will be held on January 27. For the first time, the conference will convene for only one day.

School spirit took a turn for the better when the Air Force R.O.T.C. formed a special cheering section—cow bells, placards, and all—at the Southern-Washington University football game November 13. A record number of parents turned out for the show and in observance of the fifth annual Parents’ Day.

Shirley B. Wall, Anna, and Donald Gibbs, Farmersville, are the 1954-55 Mr. and Miss Freshman of SIU. Miss Wall is a kindergarten primary major and Gibbs is in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

"Club Hispano Americano" is the Spanish Club's new name after reorganization. Members plan to learn customs, songs, and dances of the Spanish speaking countries.

Students voted to increase their activity fee $1 per term recently so that they will receive an increase from $80 to approximately $200 per year in their hospitalization fund. The increase takes effect spring quarter.

Boys at Anthony Hall had a Christmas party for their dates after the basketball game, December 10, and a dinner before the Christmas dance on December 11.

The entire ROTC cadet corps will vote for Queen. The winner will be crowned at the Military Ball on the night of Jan. 28.

The Ralph Marterie orchestra will be featured in a concert on campus on January 6. The event is sponsored by Delta Sigma Epsilon sorority and Delta Epsilon Chi fraternity.
Future Plans For Little Grassy Lake Camp Outlined

A broad master plan for year-round outdoor education in science, fine arts, and physical education at Little Grassy Lake has been approved by the SIU Board of Trustees.

Details have been worked out on a proposed 12-year development plan providing a supplementary educational facility on 540 acres around the Lake, about eight miles east of Carbondale. SIU students and grade and high school youngsters of the University School, Southern's teacher training laboratory, would be among those benefitting from the program.

In addition to offering academic courses, camping and recreation to college students and those in the University School, the camp would give educational training and physical and mental therapy for handicapped children of Southern Illinois.

Some 400 acres of the land involved in the program is already owned by the University. The remainder is under lease from the Fish and Wildlife Service, and other property of the federal agency would be used by SIU for research projects in conservation.

The ambitious 12-year program, prepared by Drs. Ross Merrick and William Reroeburg, would be built from a pilot camp that has been in operation by the University at Little Grassy Lake since 1949. Southern Illinois youngsters are invited there during the summer months and SIU student teachers receive training in outdoor education and counseling.

The broadened program calls for a fine arts camp with provisions for training in art, music, speech and dramatics, along with physical and recreational training. It will afford opportunities for special training in conservation education, such as facilities for wildlife refuge, bird sanctuaries, botanical gardens, arboretums, nature trails, aquariums, lakeside laboratories for fish research, and experimental hatcheries for fish and wildlife.

Construction during the first 12 years would include a dining building and lodge, cabins for students and camp directors, and health building, beach, road, and water line, all of which would be within the area under lease from the Fish and Wildlife Service.

College and high school students studying music and dramatics would eventually be enabled to stay at the camp for varying periods, devoting about five to six hours a day to instruction in these fields and two to three hours to recreation. Short courses, refresher courses and workshops would be offered and students would present outdoor pageants, concerts and other entertainment for the general public at the camp site.

For the University School children, the camp would be a regular part of the school curriculum for at least one week per grade school year for grades three through 12.

Handicapped children would be given camping experience, and opportunity to take part in games, sports, and nature studies while receiving therapy for mental and physical defects. Adult recreation programs and workshops for practicing teachers, musicians and artists are also planned.

Campers would be given work experience in such things as improvement of the camp area, firefighting and fire prevention, reforestation, soil conservation, and fish and wildlife management. Recreational activities would include hiking, camp-outs, swimming, boating, skating, skiing, archery, hunting and fishing, woodcrafts and camp-fire programs.

Each summer three to four million children attend summer camps, the master plan for the camp stated, but most of these groups are centered around recreation, sport, religion or some other special interest. These programs offer no substitute, the report said, for a well-planned, well-supervised school camp program teaching subjects best suited for an outdoor education laboratory.

"That our youth often does not use its leisure time constructively is evidenced by the fact that many agencies providing outdoor recreation must spend huge sums of money for repairs, replacements and maintenance caused by vandalism or improper use and appreciation of our natural resources," the report continued.

Home Economics Alumnae Meet

Among those attending were: Betty Abercrombie, ex '48; Ruth Adams, ex '50; Betty Ahlf '51; Mrs. Leona (Newhouse) Barr, 54; Iantha Brown, '54; Bertha Burgess, '46; Mrs. Nellie (Todd) Claxton, '50; Ruby Craft, '26; Mrs. Lucille (Ellis) Craddock, '42; Mrs. Joyce (Sturm) Crouse, '54; Mrs. Nancy (Ely) Dial, '52; Ella Eblin, '50; Mrs. Janice (Robbins) Elliott, '53; Mrs. Ruth (Henderson) Free, '54; Mrs. Nola (McElroy) Harris, '49; Mildred Hart, '53; Mrs. Jane (Swofford) Hedley, '46; Doris Huff, '51; Norma Jones, '52; Jane Kenny, '52; Mrs. Violet (Hartman) Keuker, '51; Mrs. Barbara (Brach) Knob, '52; Pat Miller, '53; Violet Moore, '53; Mrs. Vesta (Corzine) Morgan, '42; Mrs. Yvonne (Latting) Neunlist, '32; Mrs. Betty Parker, '53; Rosalie Reese, '53; Mrs. Sue (Rich) Ridley, '51; Mrs. Beulah (Simpson) Roberts, '54; Marguerite Robinson, '34; Mrs. Marjorie (Risley) Smith, '52; Verna Sohn, '52; Amelia Stallings, '54; Mrs. Alma (Fulkerson) Todd, '46; Mrs. Eleanor (Cable) Trimp, '52; Mrs. Blanche (Dollins) Weaver, '24; and Myrna Valentin, '54.

REPRESENTS SIU

Director of employee and public relations for the Fairbanks Morse company, Beloit, Patrick was one of the representatives of more than 200 American universities and colleges attending the inauguration.

Bedell Named Institute Head

Robert Ralph Bedwell, manager of the education department of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, became head of the new Small Business Institute at Southern on December 1.

The Institute was established to stimulate training of students interested in going into business for themselves in Southern Illinois; to provide technical advice on small business operations, and to establish effective contacts between the businessman and the professional staff of SIU.

The director was formerly assistant dean of the College of Commerce at DePaul University, Chicago. He served with the state Chamber of Commerce the past three years, working with Illinois businessmen to promote sound educational programs in schools.

Bedwell explained that three committees would be made part of the organizational setup of the new SIU agency:

1. The Council of Small Business will be composed of representatives of business, industry, banking, labor, law, agriculture and education who will cooperate with regional, civic and community groups in aiding development and financing of small business operations. This committee will have Dr. George H. Hand, SIU vice president in charge of business affairs as chairman.

2. A technical advisory committee consisting of area specialists whose services might be sought to advise businessmen in such fields as production, sales and advertising, tax structures, etc.

3. An informal faculty committee will be expected to contribute to the instructional research or educational service programs of the Institute.

The Institute will carry out a program of research, instruction and educational service. Among the most important research will be studies of the factors responsible for the success or failure of business firms in Southern Illinois, and surveys of opportunities for manufacturing, marketing and service in terms of the need or the overabundance of certain types of enterprises.

SOUTHERN ALUMNUS
SPORTS NEWS

Southern wrapped up the 1954 football season by landing four berths on the Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference all-star teams.

Cliff Johnson, senior guard from Cairo, was named to the second team and Wayne Williams, junior end from Du Quoin, Joe Kalla, Chicago senior guard, and Capt. Jack Schneider, junior halfback from Glen Carbon, won honorable mention places.

The Salukis closed the playing season with a 17-19 loss to Western Illinois, giving Southern a 2-7 record for the year.

The Salukis closed the playing season with a 17-19 loss to Western Illinois, giving Southern a 2-7 record for the year.

As all-conference listings were being compiled, a scurry of rear echelon activity prepared the winterized Salukis for battle on three fronts: basketball, wrestling, and for the first time in the history of the University, swimming.

With an array of sharp-shooting freshman on hand, Coach Lynn Holder began his ninth basketball season at Southern with fewer misgivings than the loss five of the first seven men would indicate. Larry Whitlock, member of Mt. Vernon's state high school champs last year, Marion Rushing, defensive star of Pinckneyville's third place team in the state tourney, and Gus Doss, former East St. Louis center before entering service four years ago, possess more than average experience and height for rookies.

Three straight non-conference losses were marked up before an 86-point tide caught Illinois Normal's 71 points for the Salukis first victory. A tough 18-game road is ahead, but if Whitlock and Doss, currently one and two in the scoring race, keep up their pace Coach Holder may lose his worries instead of his hair.

Coach Jim Wilkinson's mat crew, with some of the toughest freshmen crew in history, has the brightest look of the winter teams. Five lettermen plus a full team of hardened freshmen give the Salukis a better than average chance of finishing at the top of the IIAC heap.

Southern hoped to make a sports splash in another field—a splash of the genuine variety. For the first time in the history of Southern Illinois University a swimming team carried the Maroon and White school colors.

Coach Ed Shea, chairman of Southern's men's physical education department and All-American swimmer himself, launched the Salukis in the Missouri School of Mines pool and came up on the short end of a close 53-31 contest.

The freshmen dominated squad is working at terrific pace in preparation for the remaining five meets on the schedule.

Local fans will see SIU's newest athletic team in action Jan. 14 when they open the home season against Illinois Normal in Southern's new 75-foot pool.

Lack of team experience is compensated by that of Coach Ed Shea, chairman of the SIU men's physical education department. While still in high school he was National YMCA backstroke champion and a candidate for the U. S. Olympic team.

At Springfield, Mass., College, Shea captained the swimming team and was New England intercollegiate and AAU backstroke champion and record holder. He received All-American mention and was named to the All-East squad.

In a nine year period as coach at Emory University, his teams compiled a record of 386 individual championships, including 16 national, 123 sectional, 68 state, and 179 city titles. In the same period his squads won three consecutive international championship meets, 19 consecutive sectional team titles, and an assortment of 42 team crowns.

Shea earned the titles of “Mr. Swimming” and “father of swimming” in the South through his guidance and promotion of the sport in that area. He has been instrumental in a number of national swimming rule changes as a member of the National AAU Swimming committee, the All-American selection committee, and the NCAA committee on the development of standards for swimming pool construction. He served as associate coach of the 1948 U. S. Olympic team.

After the home opener with Illinois Normal, the Salukis will entertain Missouri School of Mines Jan. 27 in the SIU pool. February 12 Southern will travel to Peoria for a meet with the Braves of Bradley University. The next port of call for the splasher will be Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 25 for a meeting with Vanderbilt University. The Salukis will close out the first swimming season Mar. 25, meeting St. Louis University at home.

Herman T. Reiling, ’15, does not share that common American confusion in the filing of tax forms — taxes are his business. He is a leading authority on income tax accounting and the Assistant Chief Counsel of the Internal Revenue Service at Washington, D.C.

He has been associated with the Office of Chief Counsel at the Internal Revenue Service since 1935. Since the war, his job has included handling peace-time work in respect of government contracts and technical aspects of special tax relief provisions. He is in charge of one division which handles litigation in collecting delinquent taxes and another division which reviews tax refunds in excess of $100,000.

Reiling’s connection with federal taxation dates back to 1922 when he began law practice in Chicago, specializing in federal taxation. At that time there were very few tax lawyers. Now, by virtue of age, he is close to being the dean of tax attorneys.

While practicing law in Chicago, Reiling edited the Commerce Clearing House Federal Tax Service for two years. For seven years he edited a bi-monthly tax bulletin for Commerce Clearing House; studied accounting at the Y. M. C. A. Central College; and taught federal tax law at Loyola University College of Law. Before attaining his present position in the Office of Chief Counsel, he served as Principal Attorney, Assistant Head of Legislation and Regulations Division, and Special Assistant to the Chief Counsel.

He has helped to draft three revenue acts. In 1939 he assisted in drafting legislation to expedite the national defense and assisted in getting the first large defense contracts under way. During the defense and war periods, he served as Internal Revenue representative to co-operate with the defense agencies and handle and expedite all tax matters respecting government contracts, war facilities, renegotiation, contract terminations, and conversion to peace-time operations.

Reiling has written many articles on federal and state taxation. A recent article, Developing a Law of Income Taxation in “Taxes — The Tax Magazine,” July 1954, received wide acclaim at law schools and from judges and tax experts throughout the country. It is being used at certain law schools as a guide in tax research.

At SIU Reiling was a member of the Socratic society, debating forum (he says he can’t remember winning any arguments, but he did filibuster one meeting with an extended speech on neckties), dramatic club, band, choral society, and Y. M. C. A. After graduation, he taught two years in the public schools in White and Pulaski counties before joining the Army. He was graduated from the University of Chicago law school.

Mrs. Mabel Slack Shelton, ex '23, has achieved the ideal of which many college women dream—a successful combining of housekeeping, motherhood, and a career. She has a son and four grandchildren; her husband, Ira, '23, is superintendent of the Koppers Wood Preserving Plant in Texarkana, Tex.; and she is a successful author.

"Preacher's Wife," her first book, was published in 1953. She is now working on another novel as well as a children's book. Aside from novel writing, Mrs. Shelton has been free-lancing for 25 years. Since her first article was published in the "New Century Leader," her stories, articles, poems, and serials have appeared in more than 50 publications.

Much of her work is drawn from personal experience. She sings in her church choir, and this resulted in articles to music magazines. One of her serials was based on her newspaper experience. (She did newspaper work before free-lancing.) Another serial grew out of a summer vacation on Petit Jean Mountain in Arkansas. The rearing of her son provided her with material for many articles to child-care magazines. Her work has appeared in such national magazines as "The Christian Home," "Everywoman's," "Life Today," "Wee Wisdom," "Story Parade," and others. She has sold short stories to syndicates and how-to articles to magazines for writers.

Mrs. Shelton's work can regularly be read in The Christian Science Monitor." Her articles for this publication cover a variety of subjects and include a series of story-articles which have been running for four years about persons of the Amish faith. She has written for practically all of the religious publications of the U. S. Navy. He is now with the staff of the Bernard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital, St. Louis, Mo. Louis P. Shannon, '29, probably hesitates and meditates before he tells his wife that he'll be home for dinner — he may be several states away by dinnertime.

During his five years as a public relations employee of E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company, Shannon's duties have involved much speech-making. In one typical month he has addressed groups in New York, Wisconsin, New Jersey, West Virginia, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Maryland, Virginia, and Pennsylvania.

During the first three years of Shannon's public relations work for du Pont his principal activity was making speeches. For the last two years, he has continued to fulfill speaking engagements along with managerial responsibilities. Last week Shannon's appointment as Manager of the Public Relations department of the Extension Division of du Pont became effective. His office directs the work of three district offices (in addition to the Wilmington office), located in Chicago, Memphis, and San Francisco.

At SIU Shannon was on the football squad, basketball cheerleader, in the forum debating society, the Socratic literary society, and Sigma Alpha Pi social fraternity.

Following college, he entered the field of education. "My school teaching experience served as a splendid background for my later work in industry," he writes. "My richest experience came when I was poorest. In 1933-35, I taught biology and geometry at the Johnston City (Ill.) high school. The school district was 'broke' and we were paid in non-cashable school warrants. We didn't have money, but we had esprit de corps sparked by our principal, John Lester Buford."

Shannon had received his master's degree from the University of Florida before he joined du Pont in 1942. With that company he worked as a training supervisor in Joliet, Ill., (high explosives manufacture); Oak Ridge, Tenn., (atomic fission); and Richland, Wash., (atomic fission). Before his transfer to the home office in Wilmington, Del., he was employed at plants in Charleston, W. Va., and Orange, Tex., both are engaged in nylon production.

Shannon's experiences at Oak Ridge and Richland are especially interesting. He says, "Most of our personnel at Oak Ridge had been required under security regulations to literally disappear from their home communities. The only information their wives had was that mail should be addressed to a certain post office at Knoxville, Tenn. Even that information was for her use only."

"When people were trained at Oak Ridge," he continues, "we moved them on to the gigantic Hanford Engineer Works being built in a veritable desert in southeast Washington. Hanford was not one plant, but half a dozen scattered widely. Every problem encountered at Oak Ridge existed at Hanford on a stupendous scale. Again, the personnel problems were almost as massive as the technical ones. Construction men were always threatening to write their congressmen because they thought we were wasting concrete making walls so very thick (we couldn't tell them even the 'what' of radiation let along the 'why')."

"In 1949," he writes, "I was drafted by the Public Relations department and have worked in that field ever since. My answer to the frequently posed question, 'Why did you give up teaching?' is 'I never have!' My current assignment is the most challenging of all."

Mrs. Shannon is the former Helen Spindler of Edwardsville, Ill. The Shannons have two sons — Louis, Jr., a graduate of the University of Delaware, and Dick, who is 13. Their home address is 271 Dallam Road, Newark, Del.

John A. Lewis, '31, and his family don't just dream of exotic vacations in the Caribbean Islands or South America. They live in Puerto Rico now and have traveled and lived in South America.

Lewis is manager of the construction and inspection branch of the Public Works Department, Bureau of Yards and Docks, in the 10th Naval district. Headquarters of the district are in New York Naval District. The district covers all U.S. naval bases in the Caribbean area from Cuba to Trinidad. Since construction work amounting to several million dollars is completed each year, Lewis spends much time away from headquarters.

After graduation from SIU, Lewis taught seven years. He left the teaching profession to enter the field of engineering in 1933. His last three years of teaching were as superintendent of public schools in Raymond, Ill.

He has taken engineering courses at the Illinois Institute of Technology, Jefferson College, and Texas A. and M. Lewis' first engineering position was with the United States Navy. After this, he worked with the Illinois state highway department until 1941.

Some of Lewis' positions in recent years include: area engineer for the E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company on the construction of the $1,000,000,000 Savannah River project for the Atomic Energy Commission; chief engineer for the Colombian Petroleum Co. in Colombia, South America; project manager of construction and district manager of the health and sanitation department in the rubber area of Bolivia for the Institute of Inter-American Affairs; and research engineer for the engineering experiment station of the A. and M. College of Texas, College Station, Texas.

Mrs. Lewis is the former Bes sie Smith, '27. They have two daughters, Carol, who is married and living in Oregon, and Karen, a sophomore at the University of Puerto Rico.

"While all of my work has been enjoyable," Lewis writes, "the most interesting was in South America. All members of my family liked living in both Colombia and Bolivia. Bolivia is a very picturesque country. While there, it was my opportunity to be able to travel extensively over the country and to make several trips into Brazil on business. We have been able to visit most of the countries in South America and now we are able to visit many of the islands of the Caribbean."

Their home address is San Partricio, H 18 B, San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Fulfilling their parents’ fondest hopes that someday their sons “might be president” are C. R. Sattgast, ’21, Carl C. Bracy, ex ’31, and Harold Graves, ’33. All are now college presidents.

Dr. Sattgast is president of the Bemidji State Teachers College, Bemidji, Minn. Dr. Bracy was recently inaugurated president of the Mount Union College, Alliance, Ohio; and Dr. Graves is president of the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Berkeley, Calif.

The presidency of the Bemidji College is the last in a series of educational steps which began when Dr. Sattgast was a rural teacher in Illinois. He was superintendent of schools in Richfield, Kan.; a faculty member of the teachers college in Greeley, Colo.; president of the Sioux Falls College, Sioux Falls, S. D.; and in 1938 he became president of the Bemidji State Teachers College.

Since leaving SIU in 1922, he received his bachelor's degree in '23, the master's in '26, and the Ph. D. in '39.

As a student at Southern, Dr. Sattgast was a member of the Socratic society, the agriculture club, the YWCA, business manager of the "Egyptian," and a member of the college boxing team.

As a major in World War II, Dr. Sattgast served in military government in England, France, Germany, Austria, and Italy. He was awarded the Polina Restituta granted by the president of Poland for the discovery and return of the State Archives of Poland which were plundered by the Nazis during the war. He was also appointed to the Warsaw Academy of Science for the restoration of the University of Warsaw library which was similarly plundered. Dr. Sattgast writes that both the State Archives of Poland and the University of Warsaw library were found in the same castle at Bruck Zel-Am-See in Austria.

Since Dr. Sattgast took the presidency of the Bemidji college, the college has been extensively re-equipped and reorganized. Major physical plant expansion includes construction of the college gymnasium, athletic field, stadium, library, laboratory school and dormitory.

Dr. Bracy served as a public school teacher, pastor in the Methodist Church, and head of two other colleges prior to becoming president of Mt. Union College last June.

After leaving SIU, Dr. Bracy received the A. B. degree (magna cum laude) from McKendree College in '36. He completed work for the Th. M. degree from the Fliff school of theology in '40. He received an honorary D. D. degree from McKendree college in '45.

From '31-'36, Dr. Bracy taught in elementary schools in Cambria, Royalton, and Herrin, Ill. In later years he served as associate pastor, the Wesley Foundation, First Methodist church, Greeley, Colo., and as pastor of the First Methodist church, Faulkton, S. D. From 1941-45 he was pastor of the First Methodist church of Madison, S. D. He returned to Illinois in '45, becoming president of McKendree college. In 1949 he was named Chancellor of Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln, Neb., and served in that position until his appointment to Mount Union.

Mrs. Bracy is the former Ermal Elaine Hacker of Herrin, Ill. They have three children; Marvin, 16; Carla, 12, and Brenda, 10.

Dr. Bracy is past president of the Nebraska Association of Church Colleges and is currently Vice President, North-East Ohio Conference Board of Education.

Dr. Graves became president of the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary in '52. The school has been owned and operated by the Southern Baptist convention since 1950. It is one of five seminaries for graduate training of ministers, missionaries, directors of religious education and music, and student workers. The present annual student body consists of 275 students from 30 states. Six foreign countries and 90 colleges are represented in their undergraduate training.

At SIU Dr. Graves was a member of the Socratic literary society, band, orchestra, the McDowell club, A Cappella Choir, Kappa Phi Kappa, and pre-med club.

After graduation, he was associated with government projects as a purchasing agent for one year. He then entered the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville in '34. In '37 he received the Th. M. degree and in '40, the Th. D. From '36 until '52, when he became president of the seminary, Dr. Graves was pastor of churches in Kentucky, Indiana, and Oklahoma.

Mrs. Graves is the former Frieda Kommer, '33. They have two children, Nancy and Harold, Jr. Their home address is 874 Contra Costa, Berkeley 7, Calif.

Dr Graves is a brother of alumni Allen Graves, '35; James H. Graves, ex '43; and Mrs. Rachel Graves Bodah, 34.

Carolyn Reed, '54, was looking at the usual campus landmarks last January—Old Main, University school, and Wheeler library. This year she is seeing the Himalaya mountains at sunrise and walking narrow Indian streets.

She is teaching at a school in India located in the foothills of the Himalaya mountains with a 'beautiful view of the Dun Valley and the Ganges and Jumna rivers.' Before reaching India, Miss Reed visited New York, London, Paris, Geneva, Rome, and Beirut.

The trip resulted from her father's appointment to teach for two years at the Allahabad Agricultural Institute in Allahabad, India. Dr. Alex Reed is on leave of absence from the SIU agricultural department. His appointment is one of several which the University of Illinois has made under an agreement with the Foreign Operations Administration in Washington, D.C., providing a sisterhood arrangement between the Allahabad Agricultural Institute and the University.

Dr. Reed took his family to India with him. His teen-age daughter, Sylvia, is enrolled in the Woodstock school where Carolyn teaches. The school is located 160 miles north of Delhi.

About the school, Carolyn writes, 'It is a boarding school and consists of four dormitories and a classroom building, spread up and down the hillside. We are 7000 feet up on the plains side of one of the "foothills" of the Himalayas.'

'There are 21 nationalities represented among the students,' she continues. 'Most of them are children of missionaries or diplomatic personnel. American students predominate, but there are also quite a few Indians and Chinese, who plan to attend American universities. The class work and extra-curricular program are very American although we also offer the Cambridge Examination course.'

Miss Reed says that she teaches English and does some supervisory work in the dormitory. She plans to be at the school one or possibly two years. The school year stretches from March through November to avoid the cold winter months.

She mentions conditions which are different from those in the states. 'There is no central heating system, so all the hot water has to be carried in buckets by the room bearers. I also have a sweeper who keeps my room clean, and a dhobi who does my laundry. This is quite a process—beating the clothes on rocks, so that buttons never last more than two weeks, and drying them in the sun—we all have goat tracks on our sheets.'

Several experiences of Indian life and scenery are especially vivid. Miss Reed writes, 'The first night in Allahabad we were shown around by the city by one of the students at the Institute. There was a festival in progress, and we went around to several homes to see exhibits constructed for the festival. We walked through narrow, smelly streets, stepping over cows asleep on the sidewalks.'

After going to the Woodstock school, Carolyn became better acquainted with beautiful Indian scenery. 'During our autumn vacation on the first day after the monsoons,' she writes, 'I hiked eight miles to Rajpur. This was a memorable day because it was the beginning of beautiful weather, because the scenery was gorgeous, and because the people we met were so interesting.'

"But my biggest thrill so far," she says, "was the staff sunrise breakfast. We got up at 4 a.m. in order to be at the top of the hill before sunrise. As we got to the top we could see the gray outline of the high mountains—the 'snows'—above and beyond our own range. Then the sun came up, turning the peaks pink and gold and finally a glistening white. We could see many well-known peaks, at least five of which were over 20,000 feet. We could see Nanda Devi, 25,600 feet high and about 120 miles away.'

Miss Reed can be contacted c/o Dr. Alex Reed, Agricultural Institute, U.P., Allahabad, India.

WANTED: STUDENT UNION

for groups to attend the summer opera and various musicals.

The Student Union is used by all on campus—students, faculty, alumni, staff, and friends of the University. It is a meeting place, a place to get a quick snack, to watch television, to pick up a magazine or book to read, to relax over a noon bridge, pinochle or chess game, or a place just to sit and visit. It is a recreational center for campus. It gives a common meeting place for all students.

Students, faculty, alumni, and friends will be anxious to know the results of the study made by the planning committee. “What did we do before we had a Student Union?” is the cry often heard at Southern and with it, “Oh, for more space!”

On October 23 the president of the Student Council, a member of the Student Union Planning Committee, and Dean I. Clark Davis, Acting Director of Student Affairs, presented to the Alumni Board of Directors the plans to begin a preliminary study of the needs for a University Union. The Thursday before the Student Council had authorized Edward V. Miles, Jr., Business Manager, to release the money from the building fund to be used to hire an architectural firm to direct a preliminary study. The Alumni Board of Directors voiced their approval of the action taken by the students and expressed their interest in the project by naming three of their board members to work with the study committee. Those members appointed were: Mrs. Mabel Pulliam, Aubrey J. Holmes, and Warren Gladders.

The completion of a University Union Building on the campus of Southern Illinois University will be a gala occasion — one in which all alumni will be proud. Your enthusiastic support in planning and carrying out this project is needed.

Editor’s Note: When definite plans for the new Student Union Building have been formulated, a general solicitation of the alumni body will be conducted in order to supplement the Student Union Building Fund.

COLLECTOR OF MAPS

The library seemed the logical repository of such a collection as the focus of reference materials. Furthermore, the new library building will have a map room where the collection can be handsomely housed, serviced and maintained.

Thus the research need lay primarily in determining the availability of maps relating to Southern Illinois. We set out to compile a list of map sources. Sources were divided into public agencies (local, state and federal), industrial and business, and private. A card file was prepared so that we could maintain a permanent record of our contacts with each organization. Form letters were sent out explaining the nature and purpose of the proposed collection and requesting information about the availability of maps published. It had not been our intention to obtain maps in the initial stages of the study, but many were sent to us or offered to us immediately.

The response to our letters was gratifying. Many replies expressed real interest in the collection. The U. S. Public Roads Commission sent one of the few remaining copies of one of their old base maps of Illinois roads with the statement that certainly one belonged in our regional collection. A number of individuals volunteered photostats of maps in their personal possession.
BUSINESS LOOKS TO SIU

Another company consistently hiring Southern grads is the Illinois Farm Supply company, a farmer's cooperative wholesale organization. It serves as the regional manufacturing, purchasing, and supplying organization for its Farm Bureau-type cooperative member companies.

W. W. Whitlock, '47, is director of research and quality control for this company. A native of Mt. Vernon, Whitlock joined the company in '48 as director of safety and was later personnel director. He received his present position by appointment in July, '53.

James E. Seymour, '47, is chief chemist in research in charge of Illinois Farm Supply company's research laboratory at Collinsville. Notable among his findings is the use of surfactants in the manufacture of fertilizer. He is a native of Benton.

Frank J. Feigel, '53, is an accountant in the Controller's division. He is a resident of Chicago.

A. O. Grossmann, ex '27, has been manager of the Henry Service company in Cambridge since 1941. L. C. Borger, ex '40, is manager of the Grundy Service company in Morris. Borger was an accountant before joining the company.

Eight SIU alums are employed by International Business Machines Corporation, which manufactures products including electronic and electric accounting, statistical, computing and time recording and indicating equipment as well as electric typewriters. These products are distributed through 189 sales offices throughout the nation. Alums working for the company include: Carl E. Butler, '51, as customer engineer in Detroit; Glenn H. Dunn, ex '48, as customer engineer in St. Louis; Charles C. Francis, '50, as senior sales representative in East St. Louis; Lloyd A. Rains, '46, as customer engineer in St. Louis; William R. Staudacher, '49 as acting instructor, Endicott factory; John C. Tibbetts, ex '48, as customer engineer in Los Angeles; Verley R. Tullis, ex '35, as field supervisor of customer engineering in Toledo Ohio; and B. N. Carr, '50, as applied science representative in Kansas City, Mo.

McDonnell Aircraft Corporation, St. Louis, only recently hired two '54 grads, Joseph Davie and Robert H. Jones, for the Airplane Engineering division. Other Southern grads with McDonnell are Earl B. Robb, '52, in the Airplane Engineering division; Miss Doris M. Cox, '48, secretary to the Chief Technical Engineer; William McCabe, '53, in the Airplane Engineering division; and Charles Elliott, '51, in the Missiles Engineer division.

McDonnell Aircraft Corporation was founded and exists for the purpose of developing high performance aircraft.

Thus, Southern's alumni are reaching into more and more fields that are of increasing importance to their communities and their country.

Royer R. Bryant, placements director, reported 23 per cent more vacancies in business, industry and social work during the year ending October 1. More than 300 employers called at the placement office to personally interview job candidates.
