LECTIO DIVINA: A CALL FOR SALAH & POETIC BEING

Abstract:
I reflect back on the ARTS Pre-Conference 2017 of the Canadian Society for Studies in Education. It was a day full of non-linear knowledge exchanges, conversations, creations, contemplation and arts-based activities. Collaborators dwelled in, engaged, and emerged together spiritually, poetically, and musically to rekindle their learning, coexistence and mystical understandings. I was in my fasting state with dry mouth, hungry stomach, and thirsty soul combined with contemplative sessions, plus my scholarly and poetic inspirations in the flesh. It was purely an epoch of unbridled spirit tenderly wrapped in creative and contemplative ways of being present in the moment, with the flawless beauty of a flute in the backdrop. I stood in a single corner of a square room. I began my Lectio Divina. I entered Salah. I reached contemplation through praying poetically.

Bio:
Momina Khan is a mother, poet, and researcher who recently received a PhD in Education in 2018 from the University of Saskatchewan, Canada. In life and scholarship, as a mother and woman of color she engages in constructing counter stories through interweaving narrative and poetry. The narratives of her experiences from immigration to citizenship, from multiculturalism to eurocentrism, from parent involvement to parent engagement, and from a racialized mother to a researcher are narratives of gaps, silences, and exclusions shaped in the bumping places children and families experience in schools. She strives to re-conceptualize the dominant aspects of mandated curriculum by decentering the eurocentric perspective, knowledge and content. She challenges curriculum makers, educators and teachers that there are alternative perspectives of knowing worthy of inclusion. Her work & poetry invites and entices schools and educators to become leaders in eradicating barriers to racialized students’ sense of self, sense of hybridity, sense of belonging, and sense of citizenhood.

Figure 1: Before I bow: the prayer mat [Khan, digital photograph]
ARTS Pre-Conference CSSE 2017

May 2017 ARTS Pre-Conference at Ryerson University in the city of Toronto, Ontario, where my first ever footsteps were carved on Canadian soil. My steps and status as an immigrant to Canada inscribed a new chapter of life history written on pieces of myself and soul.

Nomadic bodies bodies in philharmonic momentum the scent of age upon pages as we cross and write a cosmos of complex mobilities and interconnections in the throes of space, place, time diaspora dallies into daily lives & moments split-cell into senses of orientation dinner for two: the home & the host understanding and outlasting kingdom of ties handcrafted filigree within & across national & international borders kinship ties, telephonic relations home in the heart or in the heat fractured families geographically dispersed homes, habitats sounds on the move in the sweet grass morphing into momentous velvet images nostalgic living the fringes and frontiers of intersection ideas, philosophies relations, bonds humanities, civilizations histories & identities of I self-understanding sleep belonging is coming and going beyond the boundaries (dis)location, (re)location exit there enter here interweaving the lexicon of travel dualistic (dis)positions, (re)positions bifocality of daily rhythms and encounters competing loyalties & realities extangle of local and global experiences disrupting and unwrapping the familiar re-doing the spine of being, belonging dual citizenship dual nationality dual identity traveling & transcending the topographical borderlands of place and pace sociocultural, historical, political economical, communal, temporal ontological, geographical (inter)subjective and (inter)sectional (inter)mediate and (inter)dependent dimensions - a new birth

The preconference day brought back all those faded memories to the forefront, my youngest son’s birth at Toronto East General Hospital away from our families, my husband’s first job at Toronto Pearson Airport as a qualified doctor, my pushing of a four-seat second hand stroller filled with my four babies, my eldest daughter’s first day at kindergarten without any knowledge of the English language, our frequent trips to Goodwill stores, our constant conversion of dollars into rupees, our shopping for discounted clothes and toys for the kids, the excitement on our kids’ faces when swinging on the swings in public parks, our first apartment on the third floor of the Cosburn Avenue building, and many more.

ARTS... renovates
the illusion of memory both past and present overlapping the gap tension & restoration
the absolute difficult befalls
the
absolute possible
ARTS-Day Rhythm: Ramadan Begins

An Arts Pre-conference day, full of conversation, creation, contemplation, non-linear knowledge exchanges and arts-based activities. The first formal fast, Ramadan’s beginning. Ramadan, the most sacred month for Muslims in the Islamic religion. Muslims all around the world observe strict fasting from dawn to dusk for thirty days. Fasting in Islamic faith is a physically and spiritually uplifting experience of self-reflection, self-restraint, and self-purification in order to attain divine-consciousness. In my fasting state combined with contemplative sessions, plus my scholarly and poetic inspirations in the flesh, it was purely an epoch of unbridled spirit tenderly wrapped in creative ways of being present in the moment, with the flawless beauty of a flute in the backdrop.

As the elevator door opened, there was a kitchen right in front of my eyes at the heart of the space. I put my bag and laptop at one of the tables organized for the collaborators. The space began to feel full as more and more collaborators entered. The kitchen and food were at an arm’s length distance. Everyone mingled and munched together. Some of them knew each other as reflected through their comfort level. I did not know any one: I was not a poet, I was not a scholar, I was not an expert, I was not white, I could not eat food, I could not shake hands, and I could not explain what I was feeling. A young female participant brought her hand forward and greeted me with a lovely smile. She also had an accent; my anxiousness began to turn into ease. I was sitting on a couch smiling and chatting through my eyes. They were eating, and I did not want to disturb them.

The euphoric sound of the flute called for reunion, direction, and duration. With every note that it hit, we journeyed to an unknown activity within a known space. The flute became everyone’s reliable friend and finest guide physically for the day and spiritually for ever.

ARTS …. the collapse of the distinction eternal love between flute and food flute mutates into food a mighty melody whistling nutrition for my soul
food morphs into flute an immortal tune crooning nourishment
for my body
it fills me bit by bit
my hungered soul
my dry mouth
my vacuumed stomach
throughout the day
today
&
everyday unfolding
silence
begins to sing
like a flute
in the air and hunger begins to blaze like food
on the flame

Favourite Quotation

We, as the conference collaborators, were asked to bring a favorite short quote or short poem as part of a Lectio Divina process together. Jalaluddin Rumi who was a 13th Century Sufi mystic and Persian poet is a great inspiration for me. In my Urdu school textbooks and among my family members who read his poetry aloud when making references, I grew up with him. I did not know why I picked particularly this quote; perhaps my vision and intention subconsciously mapped a series of intense concepts found within it.

"Observe the wonders as they occur around you. Don’t claim them. Feel the artistry moving through and be silent. Don’t grieve. Anything you lose comes round in another form." (Rumi,n.d-a)

I observed the following tiers enclosed within this quote:
1. Observe the wonders
   I see wonders in places, faces, people, symbols, things, thoughts, landscapes, and the universe. I keep wondering and pondering till I become part of that wonder. I align my curiosity to intense gazing.

   I reach poetry through the incidental and accidental “wander for wonders.”

   (Leggo, 2003, p.12)

2. What occurs around you
   I see everything breathing, moving, colliding and vibrating: the rhythms, actions, experiences, life, breaths, heartbeats, nature, water, bodies, sight, blood, day and night. I align my heartbeat with movements.

   I reach poetry through motion, rhythm and location.

3. Don’t claim them
   I see the ugly game of dichotomous claim: the claim of knowing, beliefs, expertise, legitimacy, entitlement, authority, and supremacy. As poet Leonard Cohen (1993) advises, “Forget your perfect offering. There is a crack in everything. That’s how the light gets through” (p. 373). What I know is not all, what others know could be a call. I commit to rise through enlightenment rather than sink into entitlement. I align my knowing with unlearning.

   I reach poetry through imaginative and elevated thoughts.

4. Feel the artistry
   I see and feel the artistry in metaphors. From a particle of dust to a star shining in the sky and in between is all abounding in metaphors. I align the sprinkled dust particles on the earth and the scattered stars in the heavens to “hear the melodies of [my] temperature” (Barba, 1995, p.162), the tunes of my eternal spirit and musicality of my internal silence. I align specks on earth with stars in heaven.

   I reach poetry through divine and metaphorical understandings.

5. Moving through
   I see a crack in everything as there is no such thing as walls of cement, and between those cracks, wonder, imagination, knowing, understanding and experience travel and leave traces of light in their wake. I align rupture with refill.

   I reach poetry through transition and in-betweenness.

6. Be silent
   I sit in silence to feel the eternal pull, gravity anchoring me to the ground further and farther to the core—more silence. I hear, see, touch, and feel silence and confront imposed compliance. I enter a liberating space where I move to action (Fels, 2002) to unmute my voice and to confirm my presence. I align loud silence with quiet noise.

   I reach poetry through inner voice and wide-open words.

7. Don’t grieve
   I see gain and loss as natural and ordinary phenomena of our humanly life experiences. As a result, the emotions of grief and happiness accompany us. Grieving upon losing something or someone from our life is an inevitable process, but our reactions and responses towards grieving play a central role in this venture. Sustained grieving can turn into suffering while contained grieving can turn into healing. “Pain is inevitable. Suffering is optional” (Murakami, n.d). I align my wound with nonlinear life and the “renewal that washed upon my soul” (Rajabali, 2017, p. 53).

I reach poetry through the broken and bandaged pieces of life.

8. Anything you lose comes round in another form

I see that giving, not receiving, is a reward. Giving is receiving. I lose myself in humility, I receive tranquility. I lose myself in care (for others), I receive self repair. I lose myself in prayer, I receive miracles.

I reach poetry through losing myself in the humming of birds and words.

People of Metaphor

We, the people of intuition not institutionalism the people of metaphors not literalism the people of conception not commercialism the people of spirituality not secularism the people of mother earth not capitalism the people of magnificence not narcissism the people of consecration not consumerism the people of evolution not materialism the people of sacredness not fundamentalism the people of imagination not pragmatism the people of soul-full-ness slit from isms

We, sans isms, sans time-frames, sans leakages we, a bloc of hoping humans texture becomes us the cartographer’s wrought in flesh, bones and blood muting & mapping & marrying desires of the corporeal body released from pollution and dissected imitations redemption
a mystical puzzle to find the sojourning soul filling the metrics of life may be 60, 70, 80
or perhaps ninety from end to end

five times a day

1,2,3,4,5 (×) 30 (×) 12

turning & returning & yearning backward, forward inward, outward upward, downward horizontally, vertically falling        rising        dipping       dropping       moving       leaning imagining            reciting             merging                       bowing               kneeling earthing                                 centering                               grounding an interminable journey trodden primrose path towards mystery

searching for ichor

Lectio Divina: Process and Progress Together

As part of contemplative practice, collaborators were sent a three-page introduction to the Lectio Divina practice to read prior to the day of our assembly. I was hearing about Lectio Divina for the first time, and read the lines and links, words and keywords written in the introduction text carefully and contemplatively. I could understand and feel it clearly, and although I had heard about it for the first time, it was not my first encounter with it.
Lectio Divina is a contemplative path into reflection on a text—either Biblical or contemporary (Mesner, Bickel & Walsh, 2015, p. 20). It is “a form of devotional reading in which we allow God to ‘read’ us and respond to our deepest desire. . . . [it is] slow, deliberate, meditative reading in which we allow the words to penetrate our heart and question our spirit” (Nouwen, Christensen, & Laird as cited in Mesner et. al, 2015, p. 20). According to (Mesner et. al, 2015), “traditionally, the process involves reading (lectio), meditation (meditatio), prayer (oratio), and contemplation (contemplatio)” (p. 20).

The found poem below is extracted from (Mesner et. al, 2015, pp. 20-21) asserted stages of Lectio Divina and (Paintner’s, 2010, pp. 12-13) steps that are stated in brackets.

Reading 1: Lectio ("settling and shimmering") We invite you to sit with the text in silence and to simply let it sink in.

Reading 2: Meditatio ("savoring and stirring") What word/phrase or aspect of the image stands out to you? Try to let this word/phrase or aspect of the image simply emerge organically.

Reading 3: Oratio ("slowing and stilling") What is particularly evocative or resonant to you in this text?

Reading 4: Contemplatio ("summoning and serving") What is a call to action that you hear in this text?

Lectio Divina has roots in both ancient Jewish Haggadah and Christian Benedictine traditions. It continues to evolve and to be applied in a wide range of spiritual traditions beyond the Judeo-Christian (Mesner et. al, 2015, p. 20). As a Muslim woman following and practicing the third mono theistic religion of the world, Islam, I extend Lectio Divina beyond the Judeo-Christian tradition by focusing on Salah (prayer five times a day). Lectio Divina involves specific and contemplative readings of text and scripture, however my verbal recitation of the Quranic text which I read with inner eye and reflect on while praying my Salah, is the way in which I practice Lectio Divina. Since the day I began incorporating it more and more into my Salah practices, my intent for Salah, recitation of verses, movements of prayer, contemplation, attentiveness, and spiritual connection to God took a new direction. I began not to focus on what and how I am praying, rather what prayer is doing to me and giving me. I begin to eliminate my sense of self right from the moment I enter Salah. I let the prayer seek and speak, conceive and receive, bond and respond to my intentions, utterances, movements, motions, and rhizomatic connections. It takes me to the aporetic space of silence where I become vigilant to listen to and engage with reverberations echoing what lies beyond and in-between Salah and the Creator. This led me to a new kind of careful hearing, peace, affirmation, animation, and the total removal of self from my physical body in order to feel my bonding and belonging to the eternal source. I began to pray poetically, and Salah became my own daily Lectio Divina. I interweave a Judeo-Christian-Muslim perspective on Lectio Divina which is encircled in the process, movements, manifestation and lifespan.
Lectio Divina: Judeo-Christian-Muslim

1. Lectio
   - Niyah
   - Entering
   - whilst
   - Reading
   - Child

2. Meditatio
   - Qiyam
   - Centering
   - whilst
   - Pondering
   - Youth

3. Oratio
   - Ruku
   - Kneeling
   - whilst
   - Responding
   - Adult

4. Comtemplatio
   - Sujood
   - Feeling
   - whilst
   - Attending
   - Elder

5. Eximo
   - Salaam
   - Rising
   - whilst
   - Submitting
   - Ageless

Food for Thought, Flute for Soul

Noon. The flute whistles once again. Food for the stomach, and food for the soul, my Zuhr (noon) Salah began in a quiet corner on a hungry stomach. I stood in a single corner of a square room: therapeutic and therapoetic space. I began my Lectio Divina. I entered Salah.

Salah is an Arabic word meaning, bowing, worship, prayer. Salah is the obligatory Muslim prayer, performed five times each day by Muslims. A “prayer is the highest form, the supreme act of creative imagination” (Corbin, 1969, p. 248) by unveiling of negligence from the soul to restore purification and enlightenment. Prayer is a “theophanic imagination” and poetic manifestation of light, “which determines a relationship between Creator and creature, imply the unity of their being (because it is impossible to conceive of any being extrinsic to absolute being)” (p. 246). Prayer is the divine epiphany manifesting a “theopathic union between divine Compassion and human passion” in which “divine solitude and human solitude: each delivers the other by joining itself to the other” (p.254).

when He shows himself to me, my whole being is vision when He speaks to me in secret, my whole being is hearing when He guides me to a pathway, my whole being is movement when He whispers to me in silence, my whole being is prayer when He nudges into my spirit, my whole being is renewal

Creative imagination in the service of creative prayer through deep concentration and manifestation of divine unity regulates movements for the celebration of prayer and behind all movements and manifestations is the perfect spirit, the spirit of repair, renewal and wisdom (Corbin, 1969; Khan, 1994).

Times Five a Day

who says my five is a number I + IV no more
VI - I is none
boundless addition sudden deletion flimsy abstraction curt subtraction to be alive
to strive & thrive
the cure of the fall to rise in a papered fall love without death the sun and the moon visible gears invisible invisible nears visible it’s a suave encounter a carapace
of you and me
of soul breathing in earth Allahu Akbar, God
in the seven seas
in the seven skies in everything low & high poetic, meditative, contemplative religio-spiritual it’s a true call a Prayer
my daily lectio divina reciting with poetry superior, sensorial, symmetry listening to the melody of my soul speaking to movement body abounding from dawn to dusk
dusk to twilight night kiss and kneel pry open the core Creator and creature capsule of self & soul Five is infinity five is Fajar, dawn five is Zuhr, afternoon five is Asar, evening five is Maghrib, dusk five is Isha, night

the eternal love between a celestial pair sun and moon
makes me begin

\ Fajar – the dawn Silent lullaby lay warm in night’s comprise the moon is rebirthing to bestow somewhere else a sheen in the cosmos veiled sky, serenity at its crux faded stars: grey and blue preparing to revel in a musical silence a birthing sun
holding a pallet
the hue of realization opaque mindfulness
ready to paint a paradise for the eyes piercing the darkness enlightening soul hearing the melody that ears cannot celestial tune to the earth of earths quietude and stillness night dew meant to cling to the soil sweet vapours rise from the earth glorious rise restorative remembrance of all truths
Prayer is superior than sleep

I step on the prayer mat
I enter Fajar salah
  Allahu Akbar
    Standing
    Kneeling
    Kissing
the ground
  God’s truth is beauty

٠. ZUHR – the afternoon the sun charioteers the day radiant heat hastening to give abundant light and love amidst the verdant blinds righting the rays Ascending
movement, motion, moisture voices and choices the sound of weighty winds a coterie of creatures rhythm in the curve of trees beauty in the bow of flowering petals spinning wheels on the highway thinking, feeling, feeding, doing speaking, listening, trusting busy mind, busy body

I step on the prayer mat
I enter Zuhr salah
  Allahu Akbar
    Standing
    Kneeling
Kissing
the ground
God’s power is immortal movement

٧. ASAR – the evening the sun sinks low behind the bend of life sculpted radiance in a divine setting gold splashes everywhere the commotion begins to repose chirp metamorphoses into whisper home is the beginning and end fluttering of day’s delight winding down
the falling light
neither vivid nor dark in the middle of transitory time in a state of losing day, time, light
moments, movements
descending time is limited and so is our worldly stay

I step on the prayer mat
I enter Asar salah
Allahu Akbar
Standing
Kneeling
Kissing
the ground
God’s glory is absolute

٨. MAGRIB – the dusk
On the brink
the sun sojourns into night and fading light luminosity growing dimmer painting veins of indigo sapient strokes of most blended colours on the canvas of today shuttering close coming to rest
calm simplicity
a moment of change and chance the gifts and guises of today

I step on the prayer mat
I enter Maghrib salah

Allahu Akbar
Standing
Kneeling
Kissing
the ground
God’s might is eternal

* ISHA – the night *
the moon rolls in mirth silvery & heavenly light crooning a little symphony to the squealing stars in the dark dripping in tranquility listening to my heart speaking to my mind stroking my conscience deeming my wonders knowing my deepest yearnings seeking my inner divine nature permeating into my being descending to the depth of my innermost core agony bequeaths depth ecstasy endows height I see the light

I step on the prayer mat
I enter Isha salah

Allahu Akbar

Standing
Kneeling
Kissing
the ground

God’s in me and so it shall be

.....

I begin in prayer
I end in prayer
I am born with & in prayer
I will die
with & in prayer
I see a pattern my day keeps evolving & revolving with & in a circle and so too
does my salah

Allahu Akbar

*I enter
&
re-enter*
Sacred Salah
Bismillah Ar-Rahman Ar-Raheem

in the name of Allah I begin in harmony with Divine Presence
the most gracious
the most merciful ruby rug oriented on a line with the Qiblah holy house in the desert standing in humility in the direction of the Kaaba in Mecca reacquainting myself with the earth beneath my feet on the verge of motion rhythm repetition submission

I enter Salah

*The LECTIO NIYYAH

raised hands

instruments of prayer touching the soft of the ear the foundation resides in the entry of my heart intention is a tapered door on the holy house in a state of personal divine service I intend to pray without ceasing the act of gazing, uttering, hearing listening with my passionate ears I reach concentration

Allahu Akbar

*The MEDITATIO QIYAM

overlapped hands

lowering my eyes & head overlapped hands on my chest standing upright leaps in faith as lips read & read pondering upon, dissecting quietness Centering
unveiling my consciousness now entering peace the words are with my eyes feeling with my heart, my mind, my soul

Allahu Akbar
*The ORATIO

RUČUK

Kneeling

grasping my knees sincerity and humility to God humility is in God I bow down and complete submission showing reverence solely to my Creator real emancipation sits in unconditional devotion effusion of being created being creative being my dissociated self from this world and the hereafter only God’s word and God’s presence hearing Allah’s word within my soul…
an intimate dialogue you made me me so I could be me I am grateful
when the heart is alight in trust
&
He surely responds
Allahu Akbar

*The CONTEMPLATIO

SUJOOD

I prostrate hands and forehead deep into the earth of earths I feel the highest degree of obedience and servitude I place on the earth the loftiest part of my body in the presence of the Omnipotent Authority I feel You, I came to the world from the dust

&
I will again return to the soil to be back with you I belong to You
I am blessed weeping inside out and outside in lamentations are saving me from the clutches of sins an utter wordless contemplation in a divine mirror seeing infinite in finite form divine voice vibrating unity of divinity-humanity I feel His tender love and transforming embrace I raise my head Resurrection, the Day of Judgment I will rise up from the ‘dust of my tomb’ and be summoned without end Allahu Akbar
ascending descending transcending

*The EXIMO SALAAM

I exit
I depart
in two/into parts turning right
my right shoulder first Salam
turning left my left shoulder second Salam
a mount of sanctity peace & security
mercy & blessings
be upon you salutation
the recording angels my deed sheets re-turning to the thoroughfare of being & body transcending Transcendence Manifesto

I intend yet my prayer seeks I begin yet my prayer enters I view yet my prayer reads I recite yet my prayer speaks I utter yet my prayer reveals I stand yet my prayer ascends I move yet my prayer journeys I bow yet my prayer submits I perform yet my prayer fulfills I feel yet my prayer touches I focus yet my prayer deliberates I realize yet my prayer enlightens I sense yet my prayer meditates I face yet my prayer encounters I cease yet my prayer captures I ground yet my prayer heals I finish yet my prayer completes I rise yet my prayer transcends I accomplish yet my prayer conquers

Prayer _______ re (occurrence) re (formation)

Creator’s Creative Creation

What does contemplation mean?

Contemplation, neither a clever engagement nor a crystallized awareness, is “being present- in the moment” and an attentiveness and openness to what is “not yet known” (Walsh, Bickel, & Leggo, 2015, p.1). It is a “momentary glimpse into another world” where “the moon stays bright when it doesn’t avoid the night” (Rumi, n.d-b), such a “glimpse has the potential of rewriting the world” (Fels, 2002, p. 5). It is by solely living on the “edge of chaos” (Taylor & Saarinen, 1994, p. 9), where there is something more than what we experience with our senses.

Reborn
deep down in the ocean I can’t hear
I initiate and practice contemplation by distrust ing what I already know and believe, by rejecting entitlement, by repressing quest for certitude, by actively stepping into the threatening and unfamiliar, by consciously seeking beauty in broken things, by recognizing haze in light, by finding light in chaos, by accepting messy moments, by feeling peace in clutter, by losing self to uncertainty, by deliberately giving up liberty, by spreading my being flat on the surface of lucid evidences. Finally, by evading my caged body, becoming a formless being, releasing the spiritual person from ready-made testimonies and allowing my flowing breath to fall into a choking beat, I reach “contemplative states of [super]consciousness that include a witnessing aspect” (Walsh & Bai as cited in Guiney Yallop, 2016, p. 285). I witness collision, interconnectedness and interdependence of body, mind and soul by “suspend[ing] assumptions” and “purposefully delay[ing] conclusions” (Wiebe, 2016 as cited in Sameshima, Miyakawa, & Lockett, 2017, p.48). In witnessing the “collision of light and life” (Keshavaraz, 2006, p.112), I experience the mergence and emergence of the “infinite relational resonance” (Neilsen Glenn, 2010, p.6). I intuit the loss of my sense of rational self in the sea of divine love, I synch self and soul with relativity and feel recomposed. I begin to comprehend the melody of relativity of my body, mind, heart, soul, people, and the world in which I exist. I intend and begin to think rhythmically, pray mystically, and “live poetically” (Leggo, 2005). I engage in being an interbeing, and I exist with energy. The paroxysm of prayer, mysterious sign of recognition, “the beat and the pulse of the heart, the inhaling of the breath” (Khan, 1994, p.74), the exhaling of the words and verses, and the synergy and symbiosis of the creature and creator, drifts me toward “the perpetual and elusive process of [being], [interbeing] [and] becoming” (Gide, 1970, p. 197). This quality of self-awareness and heightened reflexivity expands and extends the boundaries of my being and interbeing to live well for existence and coexistence through “working towards the cessation of suffering for all beings” (Sameshima, et. al, 2017, p.49). My contemplative exercises of Salah move upwards and downwards and inwards and outwards; they run in lightness and darkness, and echo in silence and noise; they emanate an uncertain but peaceful awareness-mindfulness. In attuning to this seamless unity of the moment and movement of my spiritual flight, I become indifferent to earthly affairs through experiencing both the “unification of will and feeling, and unification of [divine] essence” (Corbin, 1969, p. 109).

Contemplation galvanizes a unification of epiphanic moment, theophanic imagination, divine response, mystical rhythm, and eternal benevolence. I had always searched for contemplation in quietness, stillness, shadow and shade and with a high attentiveness to run away from both inner and outer noises, but my repeated Salah practices taught me that contemplation is a melody of an action not peace. Contemplation is an act of being in a “state of perpetual ascension” (Corbin, 1969, p. 206) where ascending movement of renewed and recurrent creation never ceases. By juxtaposing my inner noise to outer roars, I hear the ultimate sound – no vibration.

Notes

1Sufi cited in Corbin, 1969, p. 251.
3Corbin, 1969, p. 283.

References

