Welcomes Magazine

The arrival of my September Alumnus, after it's being forwarded from my former station, has reminded me that I had better notify you of my change of address. I've been transferred from Havre Air Force Station, Mont., to Miles City Air Force Station, Mont.

I look forward to the monthly arrival of my Southern Alumnus and to the news it carries about SIU and my former classmates. I was able to visit the campus last summer while on leave. There have been quite a few changes made and some very nice new buildings added, but all in all it's still the same old Southern I left in '55 and it was very nice to be back, if only for a short time.

Keep up the good work on the Alumnus, and keep mine coming, as it's always more than welcome in my mailbox.

Liked the Cover

Pass the word on to whoever took the cover picture for the September issue of the Alumnus that in my amateur opinion it is a magnificent piece of photography. . .

We are in the process of building a new house (they planned to be in by October 1) at 10137 Reeds Rd., Overland Park, Kans.

Jim, '54, is still with IBM in the Kansas City, Mo., office. He's in love with his work and going great guns.

Editor's note: The cover on the September issue has caused many favorable comments, including one from the national office of the American Alumni Council. It was taken by Robert W. Stokes of Photographic Services.

A Busy Family

Enclosed is the first installment on our family (husband and wife) life membership in the Alumni Association, as well as a check for the Roscoe Pulliam Alumni Scholarship Fund.

Incidentally, would you please ask your circulation person to check the files. We keep getting Mrs. Earl Graves' Alumnus at our address. To my knowledge, there is only one Mrs. Graves at this address, but you all insist on sending me her mail. I'm sure she must have some feelings about this, particularly if she has paid her dues. I wrote you about this some time ago but to no avail. Please check into it.

Dr. Graves (ex '43) is teaching at the Wayne University Medical School in the Department of Psychiatry. He is an assistant clinical director at Detroit's Receiving Hospital, Department of Psychiatry, and has a private practice in psychiatry. I'm busy with family and extra curricular activities such as secretary of our Parent-Teachers Association, board member of the American Association of University Women and unit chairman of the League of Women Voters. Our two children, Christina and Jimmie, are in first grade and kindergarten respectively. They are very excited about the artificial moon and the other morning had an argument as to who would take to school a New York Times article on space travel. Incidentally, if you are interested in having an alumni group in the Detroit area organized, let me know the ins and outs, names, etc.

Could we have an article on what is being done in the art field, with Bernie Shryock back at work? I'd love to read what his imaginative mind is doing at Southern and what his "enabling" personality has accomplished in the field of art.

News From a Former Faculty Member

Well, here we are halfway around the world . . . We are living on the campus of the Iloilo School of Arts and Trades where the faculty and students built us a very nice house with all the American conveniences. My work is in ceramics and graphic arts.

Jonny and Marene attend Central Philippine University which is maintained by the American Baptist Mission Board. The missionaries here are wonderful people, and we enjoy their friendship. College standards are so far below ours that Jonny will probably go back to the States in the spring. . .

Mrs. Olson tutors two little American girls for two hours each morning. . .

We live on the seashore and enjoy the swimming and fishing. Sail boats are available for going from island to island.

Although English is the language of the schools, we have a hard time understanding each other many times. There are many native languages, so the Filipinos can't understand each other from province to province. The children are learning Visayan which is spoken here. . . It is hot during the day and the humidity is always 100%. Nights are pleasant. Rain is with us every day. When hurricane Agnes hit, I thought our windows would blow in. . .

We hope you'll all answer us.

First of all, I wish to thank you for sending me the September issue of the Southern Alumnus. I am especially happy to note my name in the "Keeping up with 1957" page and other news about friends whom I knew at Southern.

I am presently the liaison officer in the billing and renewal section of the Retirement and Special Plans Department of the Continental Assurance Company. I am also attending the evening division of the Graduate School of Business of Northwestern University, working toward the Master of Business Administration degree.

For your information, Mr. George Pong-Twan Wu, M.S. in the School of Business of 1956, is an accountant with the American Linen Supply Company in Chicago. His address is Apt. 18, 3 E. Huron St. . . .

On The Cover

One of the five teaching and research centers on the Experimental Farm at Southern Illinois University is the modern dairy center located one mile west of the campus. Opened last spring, it replaces the old dairy barn which stood so many years at the edge of McAndrew Stadium and which was torn down a few months ago.

Part of the dairy herd is shown on our cover as a part-time student worker supervises the cattle at the feeding bunk. The center includes living quarters for two part-time student helpers.

In addition to the regular dairy center building of concrete block which houses the judging arena for dairy shows put on by SIU students, as well as high school students, the center has two barns and a hay storage structure. There are also two milking parlors, with mechanical milkers, and a milk storage room.

The photograph was taken last spring while Robert Read of Raleigh was a student employee at the dairy center. Read was graduated from Southern last June with a Bachelor of Science in Agriculture degree.

Alumni Club News

Nearly 400 people have attended alumni meetings this fall. The meetings have ranged from the very informal picnic to the more formal dinner meeting. Parents of Southern students are often included and they too seem to enjoy getting to know more about the school which their sons and daughters are attending.

Greater and greater interest is being shown in these meetings and the club officers, as well as J. W. King, '51, field representative, and Bob Odaniell, '51, alumni secretary, are very encouraged.

The White County alumni held a picnic at Norris City Park on September 29, with 30 in attendance. Walter B. Young, Jr., ex '47, president of the club, was in charge. Announcement was made of a potluck dinner to be held in April. Watch for further details.

On October 6 the Macoupin County alumni had a picnic at Beaver Dam Park, with Fred Brenzel, '51, in charge. There was a short business session and plans were made for an April meeting.

Randolph County met October 10 at St. Mary's gym in Chester. L. V. Lipe, '38, '52, presided at a brief business session. Vincent Birchler, '45, '52, served as toastmaster. The program included talks by Dr. I. Clark Davis, '39, dean of men and acting director of student affairs, and Miss Mildred Schrotberger, dean of women. The two discussed some of the problems which face the SIU students, sometimes amusing the alumni with the funnier side of their problems.

In conjunction with the County Teachers Institute at Nashville, some 30 Washington County alumni met at the high school cafeteria to hear Leland "Doc" Lingle, '27, of the physical education department.

Chicago alumni enjoying family picnic at Mannheim Woods on September 15.

These lucky people won the "door" prizes at the White County alumni meeting. The winners and their loot (l. to r.): Mrs. Parvin Smith who won for herself and her husband, '29-2, '54-4, two tickets to an SIU football game; Mrs. E. H. Vaught (Darcy Ackerman, '45) and Walter B. Young, Jr., ex '47, won a box of prize southern Illinois apples; and Mrs. Raymond DeJarnett, '55, won a copy of Dean E. G. Lentz' book, Seventy-five Years in Retrospect.

Charles Boyer, ex '49, is retiring president of the club. His successor is Charles Auld, ex '41.

Springfield alumni met October 20 at New Berlin for a potluck dinner

The Armistice I Remember

by John W. Allen, '22

PERHAPS IT IS the nearness of Armistice Day that causes some of us to pause and scan two large bronze tablets in the foyer of the auditorium at Southern Illinois University. These tablets carry the names of those who had been students at Southern before serving in the armed forces during World War I. To many they are only columns of names. With some of us, however, the names there arouse many memories of those listed.

the first armistice

A GOOD HALF of the people now living in our nation had not been born when that first Armistice Day came on November 11, 1918. Older persons will recall the manner in which the people in their communities observed the day when the war ended. Our country had not seen a more spontaneous and general celebration. Bells were rung, guns were fired, whistles blew, women wept, men became almost hysterical, churches held services, papers issued extras, and parades were formed. Millions thus gave vent to their pent up feelings. While those "back home" were doing all this, what were men at the front doing?

I should like to reminisce a bit and tell of the activities of the group of which I was a member on that somewhat distant day, or rather, on the evening of that day. I was then a member of the Sixth Regiment of the U.S. Marines. In the several months preceding that night, our brigade had been severely mauled. For about two weeks preceding Armistice it had been on the front. On November 11, 1918, it was deployed over the hillsides near Beaumont, France, and was preparing to cross the Meuse River. In fact, some units had already crossed on a small pontoon foot bridge and had established a bridgehead. Only a few had crossed, however. Before it was time for the others to follow, the Armistice became effective. Such was our position when the day came to its close.

all quiet in camp

OUR PLATOON was in an apple orchard near the wreckage of some farm buildings. It was here that we were ordered to bivouac for the night. Using an apple tree for one anchor post, Albert Ullum of Akron, Ohio, Tom Greeley of Fayetteville, Pennsylvania, and I combined our equipment and set up a pup tent, using excelsior found among the wreckage of a nearby building as bedding. It was a comfortable camp we had.

Having pitched our tent, we decided to build a fire—the first one we had built at night for several weeks. This fire proved quite an attractive innovation. It was liberally stoked and the circle about it enlarged. Planks from the wreckage of a nearby barn were brought and laid upon the ground for seats. Forty or more men, a somewhat motley group, came to sit about our fire.

Was it a noisy or boisterous gathering? It was not. It was a very quiet and sober one. One fraught with mixed emotions. The play of light on the faces of those peering into the campfire remains a vivid picture. We relaxed and found that we were very tired. We sat about the fire and talked in quiet, hushed tones. One sentence was heard over and over. Slightly varied in expression, it always said, "It's all over now, and we can go home."

"How I wish Harper could be here tonight," one after another would quietly say, merely substituting such names as Olson, Stephens, Kirk, Wilson, Carponi or Kelley, the nickname by which the Russian boy with the unpronounceable name was known.

we would have scoffed

WE THAT SAT about the fire on the hillside overlooking the Meuse River that night were possessed of two basic thoughts. There was a calm happiness that came because we felt the war was ended. We now felt sure we were going home. The disagreeable task had been completed we thought, and we were going back to pick up the patterns of our lives where we had laid them down several months before. Those thoughts were the happy ones. Mingled with those thoughts, however, were the memories of our comrades who had not lived to reach that evening. Many of the absent ones had died gloriously for an ideal of peace and security for the world.

I do not believe it would have been good for anyone to have stood before our group and to have said, "Your comrades have died in vain. Out of this war will come the seeds of another one to be fought by your sons over this same now restful and peaceful countryside—a war that will make this one seem insignificant—a war fought with almost unbelievable brutalities and with implements more diabolical than any now known—a war revealing depths of depravity of which you now can scarcely conceive—a war knowing no law beyond the whims and caprice of a mad man."

We would have scoffed at such a statement. The entire world would have scoffed. No one would have believed it.

Millions of people over the world will pause for a moment at eleven o'clock on this Armistice Day while the thoughts of the older ones will go back to the first celebration.

Marion Allen, '34

MAKING valentines to send to her special little friends may have started Marion Allen, '34, on her successful Christmas card business.

In high school came the more serious yearly project of designing her own Noel cards. They were drawn, spattered, stencilled, speed-ball-penned, linoleum blocked and finally reproduced by commercial printers. Cranking battleship linoleum through an old clothes wringer, says Miss Allen, isn't exactly the easiest method of printing, but that is how a couple of her earlier designs were produced.

Her first orders for custom designed Christmas cards came from SIU professors, such as Ailene Carpenter, now deceased, and Dr. Vera L. Peacock, chairman of the foreign language department.

Following graduation from Southern, there were several years of teaching art at the grade and junior high level in Alton and Springfield. There were a couple of summer sessions of art study at the American Academy of Art in Chicago and with Ernest Thurn in Gloucester, Mass.

June of 1943 saw the beginning of a 27-month stint in the Marine Corps Womens Reserve—most of that time with the assignment of regimental artist for Schools Training Regiment and later the Specialist Training Regiment at Camp Lejeune, N.C. Somehow or other she inherited the job of writing the regimental news column for the camp's weekly newspaper.

Miss Allen's first Christmas card design to be produced and sold commercially was at Camp Lejeune where she received a $25 war bond as third prize in the camp's

AN ALUMNA

MAKING HER TALENTS PAY

Christmas card contest. The design was a night view of a section of the base showing the Protestant chapel and its Christmas creche.

"Oddly enough," she says, "both the first and second prize winners were too complicated and expensive to produce, so only my card was sold in the post exchange."

Following her discharge, she studied advertising design for a year at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn. She then went to Houston, Tex., to teach fashion illustration and costume design, this time on the college level. A year-round teaching schedule precluded additional training, except at night, so the University of Houston became the logical choice for graduate work in costume design. In June, 1953, she received the Master of Letters degree from that institution.

Again one of her college professors reactivated her interest in Christmas cards. Her graduate school counselor wanted Miss Allen to design a card for her. In 1953 the Allen-Little International Christmas Card Album came into being. Its eleven designs included some purchased from a third artist. In 1954 Miss Allen bought out her partner's interest and began producing the album in her own name. There are now 18 states, from California to New York, carrying the album with "M. Allen" screened on the front cover.

Actually, she says, the work is twofold. In addition to the album cards, there is the custom design work where cards are designed for specific individuals or business firms. When most people are enjoying the beach or vacationing at a summer resort, Miss Allen is wading knee-deep in Christmas cards. Whether album card or custom design, the aim is much the same. "For the young in spirit or the upholder of tradition, we like to help others say Merry Christmas in a fresh and different way, but still keep it in the spirit of Christmas."

Just about the craziest card she ever designed was for a family which delighted its friends with a design of its four French poodles pulling Santa's sleigh. When asked her most frantic problem, she has to admit that it's designing her own personal Christmas greeting, usually at the last minute!

Editor's note: If you want to know where her cards are available in your area, write Miss Allen at P.O. Box 6452, Houston 6, Tex., and she'll be glad to advise you.

Effects of the Atomic Bomb

by three SIU staff members who took part in recent operations at Nevada testing site

THREE Southern staff members took part in the Atomic Energy Commission's "Operation Plumbbob" held recently at the AEC testing grounds in Nevada. They were Dr. O. B. Young, director of cosmic ray and capacitor research, W. A. Howe, director of the physical plant, and Frank Bridges, assistant professor of health education. The operation was sponsored by the Federal Civil Defense Administration.

Dr. Young was one of 17 technicians known as the Civil Effects Tests Group. He was the delegate of the Illinois Civil Defense Corps.

Howe was selected by the U.S. Department of Public Health to check and record radiological fallout. He is a member of the United States Civil Defense Administration and holds the rank of sanitary engineer full grade in the U.S. Public Health Service.

Bridges, Civil Defense director in the Carbondale area, was invited to the testing site by the Illinois and National Civil Defense Administration.

Assigned to Project 36-5, Bridges was one of a group of 32 persons from 18 different states given a comprehensive course in communications and in radiological detection.

"The highlights of this two-week experience," said Mr. Bridges, "were the detonations of the two atomic blasts, Shasta and Doppler. Shasta was a sub-nominal bomb shot from a 500-foot tower and Doppler was another sub-nominal bomb shot from a balloon at 1500 feet. I found the monitoring of radiological fallout in the testing area also very interesting. Our group spent several days in the area monitoring fallout and communicating to our control groups. Having seen the atomic blasts, I now feel I am much better qualified to talk about them and I hope to spread a little information concerning the radiological detection program in particular."

More Respect and Less Fear

"After witnessing the atomic bomb tests in Nevada, I have a great deal more respect for the A-bomb and much less fear of it," said Howe. "The detonation," he continued, "was a fantastic and unbelievable spectacle, but I feel the newspapers have exaggerated the damage caused by fallout."

To receive an appreciable dose, he says, one would have to be in the area for a long time (at least three months) in a normal fallout area for serious damage to result, except in the immediate vicinity (25-50 miles) of the detonation. For a nominal bomb, there is relatively little fallout and decay begins at once. Within 48 hours those who have been removed from the area (25-50 mile radius) are returned to their jobs.

Mr. Howe did not try to minimize the destruction occurring in the immediate area. Fires result and the heat is very intense, he says. Fallout would, of course, be much more serious in a town than in a test site area because of the structures and materials which would be vaporized in the immediate vicinity of the bomb. "It was quite an experience—to see a steel tower standing 500 feet in the air one minute and watching it go up in vapor the next."

Effects of the Bomb

There are three effects from such bombs, says Dr. Young. They are shock wave, heat, and radioactive spread. The shock wave is the part of a bomb explosion that flattens buildings and topples pillars. The heat blast follows, causing fires in flammable materials quite a distance from "ground zero" or point of explosion. The radioactive spread is seldom if ever felt directly. Its harm comes later, in diseases, blisters and sometimes death.

Dr. Young strongly urges that everyone read Effects of Nuclear Weapons which can be obtained from the U.S. Government Printing Office in Washington, D.C., at a cost of only $2.00. The book not only explains the effects but gives many helpful suggestions for defense against the weapons. Dr. Young cited this example: If you are in an automobile when you see an A-bomb explode, you should quickly roll down the window, then lower your body in the car in order to protect yourself from flying glass caused by the shock wave. As soon as the shock wave is past, you should raise the windows in an effort to protect yourself against the heat which follows the shock wave. Rolling up the window also protects you from the radioactive fallout at a later time. Of course, the driver should take his automobile away from the bomb area if possible.

Describing the physiological effects of the small particles which are products of the explosion, Dr. Young said that instantaneously after the blast neutrons are destructive, but after 12 minutes they are not dangerous.

The alpha particles (helium nuclei) are heavier than the neutrons but even if they fall on the skin they will not go into the body and cause internal damage. But one should avoid eating or breathing the alpha emitters for they can get into the bloodstream and remain for a long time. Alpha emitters can also get from the bloodstream into the bone, where their effects are lingering. Unless you breathe or eat the emitters, alpha rays are not serious, but be careful not to get them in your eyes—protect the eyes with tight goggles or other suitable shields. A radiation gauge can be used to determine whether or not the air has radioactive content.

Continuing on the subject of physiological effects, Dr. Young said the beta rays (electrons) will go deeper and penetrate a vital organ, so it is obvious you will not want to wear clothing contaminated with a beta emitter. Being smaller, yet having higher speeds, beta rays can penetrate as much as 10 feet of air. These would penetrate flesh about two inches.

The gamma rays (which are electro-magnetic wave forms) have tremendous penetrating qualities, possessing more energy than X-rays. They will go clear through you. They damage the cells as they pass through and the extent of the damage, naturally, depends on the amount of energy the body absorbs from them.

We often hear bombs referred to as "dirty" or "clean." A dirty bomb is one which has by-products with long radioactive life. A recent example of such effect is the case of some cows in Britain which gave radioactive milk several days after radioactive dust fell upon their pastures. A clean bomb is just a blast with only immediate effects—not lasting ones. When asked the maximum dose one could stand, Dr. Young replied that lethal dose LD-50/30 is estimated to be about 450 roentgens. Fifty percent of the people receiving that amount would be dead within 30 days, and, in case of war, the other 50% would not necessarily be able to go out and fight.

Reluctantly realizing that this type of bomb might be used in warfare, Dr. Young pointed out that the federal government has not yet supported a large-scale shelter program with huge appropriations. He says this should be done if we are to prepare for atomic war, despite the rather severe tax burden which would result.

He says persistent efforts are being made to study effects of nuclear weapons—efforts which are not generally known. But, the population as a whole must become aware and alert. Secure information. Follow the directions of our Civil Defense organization in order to be prepared for all types of disasters—many other than warfare—such as floods, tornadoes, disease and epidemics.

People, Dr. Young says, should assume some of the responsibility for their own safety. There are many possible ways to prepare for an emergency, some of which are very economical. One suggestion he makes is that when you build a home, plan your utility room for a temporary shelter. A radiation meter should be available to test for radioactivity. Have a first aid kit, canned food and canned water, blankets and a portable battery-operated radio to receive news and instructions. The air should be filtered during the period that radioactive fallout is present. A handkerchief tied over the nose and mouth would be beneficial, too.

The simple things are the most practical. At this point he cited the instance of a man who removed his hat and beat off the radioactive dust from it so he would not lose his hair. Naturally, the man was careful where the dust went. A broom or brush can be used to remove the dirt or dust from clothing before entering the house. The men who work near the test sites tape the seams of their clothing in order that no dust will penetrate to their bodies. Even nominal bombs have elements that are harmful for years, so every precaution should be taken.

Considering future defenses, Dr. Young mentioned that as population increases, transportation problems become greater. We are a nation of great wealth and resources so it is foolish not to protect ourselves. We encourage attack by putting ourselves in the vulnerable position of being unprepared. Never conclude that you "can't do anything about contamination." Every community should have monitors with instruments of detection. Everyone can do something.

To the 17 persons in CETG, the primary concern of the experimentation was "the safety of people who might be in target areas, handling people in evacuation programs and preparedness," Young said. While the government and the army are primarily concerned with maintaining production of workers and effectiveness of combat groups, he feels concern for whole families without regular jobs—the mothers and children. After this month of observation he said, "These bombs are capable of destroying 50 to 75 million people, most of whom would be non-combatants."

TO CELEBRATE SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Phi Kappa Tau fraternity, colonized twenty-five years ago on the Southern campus as Chi Delta Chi, will celebrate its silver anniversary on December 7 and 8.

The jubilee committee has been very busy this fall and big plans have been made for the week-end celebration. There will be a banquet for the brotherhood on Saturday, December 7, at 6:00 P.M. in the University Cafeteria. Speakers will include Dr. David Kenney, present faculty adviser, and Jim Watt, president of the undergraduate chapter. Following the banquet, a reunion dance will be held for all alumni, actives and their wives or dates. Entertainment will be provided by a well-known band. There will also be a floor show.

During the jubilee festivities there will be an initiation for Chi Delta Chis into Phi Kappa Tau.

A souvenir booklet is being prepared which will contain a complete and detailed program of the celebration. In addition, the booklet will contain a history of the fraternity and a directory of the entire brotherhood.

Invitations have been sent to all alumni, national officers and special guests. Since the mailing list is continually changing, there has been difficulty in locating some of the alumni. If you have addresses of those not appearing on the mailing list, please send them to Jim Laughlin at the Phi Kappa Tau house in Carbondale. The undergraduate chapter is particularly anxious to have the address of its first president, Jim McGuire, who seems to be on the "lost" list.

Madison County alumni had a special treat October 21 when they met in the auditorium of former Shurtleff College, now the Alton Residence Center. At that time Dr. Eric Baber, director of the center, briefed them on what the center has been doing and outlined plans for the future. Dr. Baber followed his talk by taking the 73 alumni present on a tour of the campus. After the tour the group met at Horace Mann School for refreshments and a short business meeting. Special guests were Donald Bryant, '40, national president of the Alumni Association; Dr. David Kenney, '47, and Bill Hudgens, '48, both members of the Board of Directors of the Association; Dr. Guy Lambert, '33, past president of the Association and present ex officio member of the Board of Directors, and Bob Odaniell and J. # MAY BE A REAL FREE-FOR-ALL

by Bill Hollada, '51

With league favorite Central Michigan losing its first four games—one of them a conference battle against Illinois Normal—the Interstate loop race this year may turn out to be a real free-for-all.

Southern got off to a bad start, losing a hard-fought 23-13 decision to Western Illinois in the Salukis' initial circuit fray.

SIU split in its first two non-conference games, downing Austin Peay State College (Tenn.) 25-12, before losing to Arkansas State 13-6 in a game which ended in a brief fight between some players of the two teams.

After going through the opening three weeks of practice without many injuries, the Salukis were hit hard in the Arkansas State and Western Illinois contests.

Carver Shannon, Interstate Conference's outstanding player last year, received a head injury in the Arkansas State game, missing most of it and all of the Western Illinois tilt.

Richard Carpenter, freshman tackle from Centralia, was injured in the Western Illinois game and was sidelined for a few days. Others on the October injured list, to mention a few, were captain Marion Rushing, quarterback Dave Wheeler, tackle Bill Bock, guard James Lynch, and center John Abromovitch.

Charles Hamilton, Herrin, emerged from the opening games as the leading ball-carrier, while guard Willie Brown and Rushing did outstanding jobs in the line. Several substitutes, such as halfbacks Lane Jenkins and Tom Kilpatrick, guard Charles Steptoe, end Clyde Ross, and tackle Houston Antwine, performed well in relief roles and earned starting berths in late October.

SIU's oldest rivalry resumed here October 12 when Southern played host to Eastern Illinois in an Interstate Conference grid battle. SIU won to the tune of 27-6. It was the 39th encounter between the two clubs which began warfare back in 1913. Southern holds a 22-16 edge in the series. In 1945 the teams tied. Two 41-0 decisions (1915 and 1941) have been the most lop-sided SIU wins, while Eastern's most decisive victory was a 56-12 verdict in the series opener.

Illinois Normal's homecoming and school centennial was spoiled October 19 when the Salukis came from behind three times to win 28-21. The Salukis trailed 7-0, 14-7, and 21-14 before scoring twice in the last quarter for their third victory in five games. This put them 2-1 in IIAC play.

Kawal used two separate teams the first two quarters, then stuck with his first string most of the second half.

Carver Shannon scored three touchdowns and kicked two extra points. Tom Kilpatrick scored the tie-breaking touchdown on a 24-yard run at left end. Bill Norwood added the extra point for the 28-21 finish.

One of the best games of the season should be the Central Michigan clash at the SIU Homecoming November 9. Injuries and the flu were blamed for most of Central Michigan's opening losses and the Chippewas will really be out to make up for "lost time" when they tackle the Salukis in what could be one of SIU's best Homecoming games.

Following the game with Central, Southern hosts Northern Illinois November 16 in the final home game of the season and closes the year at Great Lakes Naval Training Station November 23.

LEADING THE CHEERS

Southern Sports Briefs

Southern has lost its biggest player—280-pound Charles Powers, Jerseyville, who suffered a broken bone in the foot in a recent scrimmage session. The freshman will be out for the season but plans to return next year.

More than 70 candidates turned out for the opening of basketball drills October 15. An exceptionally talented crop of freshmen turned out. Southern opens its season against North Dakota University there on December 6. Coach Lynn Holder is being assisted by Tom Millikin, a former SIU cage star, who joined the coaching staff this year.

* * * * *

The tennis term “doubles” took on a new meaning for Southern’s tennis player Doyle Glass, Peoria, when he became the father of twins on October 6. “What a doubles combination!” said the startled Glass after looking at his twin boys, who weighed in at five pounds, six ounces, and six pounds, eight ounces.

Scoring in the last two minutes of play, Eastern Illinois edged out Southern 12-7 in a junior-varsity game at Carbondale October 7.

CORN BOWL TEAM TO BE HOMECOMING GUESTS

Honor guests at the Homecoming game will be the 1947 Corn Bowl championship football team coached by Glenn (Abe) Martin. The team won the IIAC championship that year and topped off the season by winning the first annual Corn Bowl game at Bloomington on Thanksgiving Day. Charles Matthieu was captain of the team.

Agriculture at Southern

by Albert Meyer

Significant advancements in the agricultural program at Southern this year will underline 1957 as a time when several dreams and some years of planning bore fruit.

The new agriculture building is a $2,600,000 structure of pleasing and functional design. Opened this fall, for the first time adequate laboratory and classroom facilities are available for an agriculture program at SIU.

The Board of Trustees' approval for a plan creating three departments in Southern's School of Agriculture—Agricultural Industries, Animal Industries, and Plant Industries—was put into effect July 1, providing a framework for facilitating administration, offering a wider range of courses to meet students needs in modern agriculture, and improving research and area services programs.

A new Department of Forestry was authorized for the School of Agriculture by the SIU Board of Trustees at its October meeting. It will go into effect January 2. This action paves the way for setting up at SIU a four-year program leading to a Bachelor of Science in Agriculture degree with a major in forestry. No institution in Illinois heretofore has offered more than two years of the regular four-year program for a degree in forestry, making it necessary for forestry students to transfer to an out-of-state school to complete their training.

A modern dairy center for teaching and research purposes was completed on the experimental farm and occupied last spring. New centers for sheep, swine and beef cattle are under construction. A poultry center was activated in 1953.

Looking to the future, the Board of Trustees last summer authorized the School of Agriculture to make application to state and federal boards of vocational education for recognition as an institution for training approved vocational agriculture teachers, a function now limited to the Illinois land grant university. This application is now under consideration.

A significant milestone in advancing the University's agricultural teaching and research programs was the General Assembly's action in removing statute restrictions July 1, 1955, to permit granting a degree in agriculture. The first Bachelor of Science in Agriculture degrees were awarded by SIU in August, 1955. Recently the Board approved the Departments of Agricultural Industries, Animal Industries, and Plant Industries for offering graduate work toward a master's degree in agriculture.

The New Agriculture Building

Although some interior construction and equipment installation work still is underway, the School of Agriculture moved into its new building with the opening of

The new greenhouses for plant research and teaching

View of the corridor in the plant industries wing

New Student Week, September 18. The University's need for classroom space, and the fact that many classes for various departments had been scheduled in the building, made occupation imperative before opening of school.

The new building contains 26 spacious classrooms, nine agriculture student laboratories, a number of well-equipped research laboratories and offices for the agriculture faculty and the personnel of certain cooperating agencies, such as the Carbondale Forest Research Center of the U.S. Forest Service. The offices, laboratories and classrooms of the geography and geology departments also are temporarily located in the building. To make maximum use of the building from the beginning, the University has scheduled many classes from other departments in the "Ag" building. Consequently, nearly 100 classes are meeting there.

Facing west, the building is 544 feet long, with central and south wings extending eastward from the main section of the building. Except for the two-story central wing, the building is a one-story structure. The south wing and the south end of the main building contain the plant industries and forestry departments and related cooperating agencies. Dr. A. B. Caster is chairman of the plant industries department and acting chairman of forestry. The north end of the main building is devoted to the animal industries department, with Dr. Alex Reed as chairman.

The central wing houses administrative offices, an air-conditioned auditorium-exhibition hall, an attractive seminar-conference room and the agricultural industries department (agricultural engineering and agricultural economics). Dr. Walter J. Wills is chairman of this department.

Three greenhouses, each 25 x 100 feet, occupy the courtyard between the central and south wings. These will be used for teaching and research purposes in soils, crops, vegetables, fruits, floriculture, forestry, plant diseases and plant insect pests.

The auditorium will provide permanent seating for 250 persons and have a total capacity of 580. One section will normally be used as demonstration, teaching and exhibit area for livestock or farm machinery.

The building has been planned to adequately handle twice the present enrollment in agriculture, providing for future growth and enlarged programs in agriculture. About 265 students are enrolled in the school this fall, an increase over the 249 enrolled in the fall of 1956 and more than double the 1952 total.

A Glance at the Past

Agriculture has been a part of the educational program at Southern for 44 years, but only within the last decade has it taken on significant stature at SIU and in the area. This has resulted from enlarging the staff, adding new courses, encouraging experimental and research projects with emphasis on area application, promoting the region's agriculture by various area service activities, obtaining legislative release from restrictions on programs of the University and the School of Agriculture and gaining improved physical facilities—not only the buildings, but in larger land holdings for the experimental farms.

Soils laboratory, with Dr. Joseph Vavra, assistant professor of agriculture, in charge

One of the early administrative acts of the late Henry W. Shryock, upon becoming president of SIU in 1913, was to authorize Professor Renzo E. Muckelroy to organize a Department of Agriculture at Southern. The first part of the University's experimental farm was the 60-acre Simons farm, purchased in 1912, situated south of Harwood Avenue between Thompson Street and the Illinois Central Railroad. Much of that original area and additional acreage west of Thompson Street has been absorbed for campus building expansion. Since 1950, the holdings of farmland for the School of Agriculture's teaching and research purposes have grown from 300 to nearly 1500 acres.

The department remained a one- or two-man teaching unit from the time of its organization to 1946. Professor Muckelroy served as chairman until his retirement in 1945. Since 1950, when Dr. W. E. Keepper, now dean of the School of Agriculture, came to head the department, there has been rapid development in keeping with the general growth of the University. Steady addition of new faculty members with specialization in various fields of agriculture permitted expanding the teaching program by adding many technical courses to the basic work already in the curriculum. This development is an obvious need in adequately preparing students for careers in agriculture and related fields today when farming has become highly technical and scientific. The school now offers 55 courses in agriculture and has an administrative, research and teaching faculty of 26. Along with broadening subject matter offerings also has come increasing emphasis on area service activities and upon practical research and experimental work thought to have particular significance to southern Illinois agriculture.

A special effort to work cooperatively with the University of Illinois College of Agriculture and other agencies for the benefit of area farmers has led to joint operation of the Illinois Horticultural Experiment Station, fully activated at SIU in 1951; the Cooperative Agronomy Research Center, activated in 1954; and to joint research studies with the Carbondale Forest Research Center of the Central States Forest Experiment Station, U.S. Forest Service.

Thought to have special significance for the University's service to area agriculture has been a plan to establish a series of five test farms, each having a different kind or combination of farming enterprises, to serve as family farm management units aimed at being representative of Southern Illinois agriculture at its best. Two were activated before the end of 1956, although one of these still lacks 40 acres of land yet to be purchased. The third is expected to start operation by January 1, 1958. Activation of the other two will await acquisition of additional suitable land. Each is to be operated by a farm family under a special type of tenant agreement to stand by itself, yet serve a teaching and research purpose.

The rest of the University's farmland is classified as the experimental farms. These include the livestock and poultry centers, each having three or more farm-type buildings with facilities for field laboratory work, a feed preparation and mixing center in temporary quarters and a farm service center for storing, servicing and maintaining University farm machinery and for dispatching student labor used on the farms.

The Agriculture Club, a student organization at SIU, and a newly-organized Animal Science Club are groups serving the social and educational interests of agriculture students. These and the School of Agriculture keep out the welcome mat for their growing list of returning alumni. It has been the ardent support of SIU alumni and many Illinoisans that has made possible the substantial advancement of Southern's agricultural program.

Three seniors in agriculture watch Dr. W. G. Kammlade, Jr., professor of animal industry, prepare the ear of a white laboratory rabbit for an injection. The wooden rabbit-holding device has been placed on a stainless steel, adjustable demonstration table in one of the animal industries department research laboratories. The table is especially suited for animal surgery or dissection demonstrations.

NAMES MAKE NEWS

WOMAN OF DISTINCTION

She's Carbondale's 1957 Woman of Distinction, Mrs. J. W. Barrow. The former Lucy Patten was chosen by the local Business and Professional Women's Club and honored at the club's annual public affairs dinner held at the Elks Club on September 26.

Mrs. Barrow has served her community in many capacities. A long-time member of the Carbondale Public Library Board, she is now serving as secretary. She worked with planning committees for the new library building and has even served when needed as librarian.

A member of the Carbondale First Baptist Church since she was eight, she only recently resigned as a member of the Board of Deacons. For several years she was White Cross chairman for the Missionary Society and she still gives a mission program each year for the Women's Council of the church. Mrs. Barrow is a past president of the Women's Association of the church.

She is a member of the Carbondale Woman's Club and has been a member of the Community Concert Association since its formation.

A loyal alumna of Southern, class of 1898, she is a member of the SIU Foundation and has missed but one annual alumni dinner in many years. She and Dr. Barrow, also a member of the class of 1898, have always taken an active interest in anything connected with Southern Illinois University.

After her graduation from the tenth grade at Lincoln School she enrolled in classes at Normal. The youngest in her class, she was "too young" to sit in chapel at Normal Hall.

After graduation from Southern, she taught school at Pomona for $35 a month. Before she and Dr. Barrow were married in 1901, she taught in the Carbondale schools for two years. He decided to study medicine after they were married and, like a modern bride, she helped put him through school.

The Barrows have four children, eight grandchildren and three great grandchildren. They recently celebrated their 56th wedding anniversary. The Barrows now live in a house which she designed. It is in what used to be the backyard garden of the family home.

Mrs. Barrow's two daughters, Mrs. C. A. Jackson (Alice, '24-2) and Mrs. Leo Brown (Mary) were at the dinner and saw her honored by the business women of Carbondale. Mrs. Barrow received a large bouquet of red roses from her family, as well as a scroll and a corsage of white orchids from the club. The Barrows' two sons are James, who lives in Carbondale, and Jack, a 1949 graduate of SIU and a practicing physician in St. Louis.

Mrs. Julia Stearns McLafferty has moved from Long Beach, Calif., to 7805 N.E. Sandy Blvd., Apt. 9, Portland 13, Ore.

In September Winton Walkup, ex '16, traffic manager of the Illinois Central Railroad in Carbondale, received his lifetime pass. It was presented to him by W. A. Johnston, president of the IC, at the annual picnic at Madison Lake near Herrin. The pass was presented in recognition of 40 years of service. Mrs. Walkup is the former Helen Foley, ex '13.

1925

J. L. Montroy, ex '25, is in the insurance and real estate business in Chester.

1927

Roy Thomas Downen has moved from Indianapolis to 2217 Willow Rd., Evansville, Ind.

1928

Wendell Keith, former principal of the Grand Tower Grade School, has been appointed cashier of the First National Bank of Grand Tower.

1929

William Carruthers addressed the luncheon meeting of Carbondale League of Women Voters on September 28. Carruthers is past president of the Illinois Education Association and for 14 years was a member of its legislative committee. For three years he was chairman of that committee. He is superintendent of the Murphysboro city schools.

1931

Dr. Orville Alexander, chairman of the government department at SIU, addressed the luncheon of Carbondale League of Women Voters on September 28.

1934

Last summer Vernon A. Anderson of 506 E. Third, Pana, attended the University of California at Berkeley on a scholarship through the National Science Foundation. He took courses in physics, chemistry, biology and mathematics. His family accompanied him.

Paul J. Brown, ex '34, of Carbondale has been reappointed by Governor William G.

Stratton to the state real estate examining board.

Anne West, free lance writer from Carterville, was guest speaker for Carbondale's annual public affairs dinner sponsored by the local Business and Professional Women's Club September 26 at the Elks Club. Her subject, "A Writer's Affair with the Public," was very interesting. She discussed the life of a writer in relation to the public. She exploded some of the misconceptions people have about a writer being able to write "by inspiration" only—actually it's just plain hard work and involves a lot of research and traveling. Much of the work involved is only pleasant or funny in retrospect, she said. But Miss West agrees it's fun as well as work and she talked about the "chocolate eclair" days and compared them with the "mustard greens" days.

Loren E. Taylor, formerly of New Britain, Conn., has joined the SIU faculty and is working in the Department of Recreation and Outdoor Education.

1938

Joseph R. Dillinger, physicist at the University of Wisconsin, served as chairman of the fifth International Conference on Low Temperature Physics held at Madison this summer. A native of Carbondale, Dillinger visited his mother and sister this summer.

L. Goebel Patton of West Frankfort has been re-elected president of the South Seven Conference. Patton is city superintendent of schools.

Mrs. Dudley E. Warner (Marguerite Snyder) and her husband and two children, Dudley, Jr., 6, and Barbara Jane, 4, have moved from Virginia Beach, Va., to 811 Horsepen Rd., Richmond 26, Va. Mr. Warner is district manager for Westinghouse Appliance Sales Company.

1939

James Bridges, ex '39, is a science teacher in the junior high school at Jacksonville, Fla., where he and his wife live at 7117 Oakney Rd.

1940

Troy Sims, M.S., '55, is band director and vocal instructor at Crab Orchard. He was formerly with the Marion School District.

Mildred Marcia Smith received her Master of Science in Education degree from Southern on August 9.

Charles A. South has moved from Detroit, Mich., to 4900 Marine Dr., Chicago 40.

Virginia Meyer Allen received the Master of Science in Education degree from SIU on August 9.

C. F. Copple is a broker for Sun Realty Company and Best Insurance Agency, 5937 W. Florissant, St. Louis, Mo. Copple lives in Jennings, Mo., at 7149 Garesche.

James R. Allen received the Master of Science in Education degree from Southern on August 9.

Vesta Corzine Morgan received the Master of Science degree from SIU on August 9.

Captain Wallace W. Price, formerly of East St. Louis, is assigned to the G-4 (legislation) section at Fort Dix, N.J. He returned in July from a three-year tour of duty in France. A veteran of World War II, Captain Price served with the Army of Occupation in Europe and Japan and participated in the early campaigns of the Korean conflict. He holds a master's degree

SALES REPRESENTATIVE

Robert D. Willey, '38, is sales representative for American Airlines for the state of West Virginia. He is located in Charleston.

Willey's years of experience in all phases of air transportation have eminently qualified him for his assignment of helping the air traveler with his transportation and shipping problems.

Born in Alto Pass, Ill., Willey took post graduate work in business administration at the University of Illinois. He taught school in his native state before joining American in 1941. His positions with the company have been in New York City, Cleveland and Columbus, and his most recent assignment was as manager of the Reservation and City Ticket offices in Charleston.

from Virginia State College. His wife and two children, Sandra and Wallace W., Jr., are living at 3420 Hickory St., St. Louis, Mo.

Dick Cagle of Godfrey is claims manager for Millers Mutual Insurance Company.

Mrs. Leslie Meng (Verna Parini), ex '43 teaches second grade at Beach Park School in Waukegan. Her husband, '57, is auto shop teacher at North Chicago High School.

On August 9, George L. Reed received the Master of Science in Education degree from Southern.

Raymond L. Suggs, ex '43, is YMCA secretary in Lincoln, Neb. He is married and has two sons, David, 6, and Jeffrey, 2. The Suggs' Lincoln address is 2516 Kessler Blvd.

ATTENDS CONFERENCE IN COSTA RICA

On September 28, Dorothy Osborn, '55, flew from Decatur to Washington, D.C., and on the 30th continued her flight to Miami and then to Costa Rica.

Edwards County home adviser and 1956 International Farm Youth Exchange delegate to Costa Rica, she attended the second Latin American International Farm Youth Exchange Conference in Costa Rica from September 30 to October 12. The conference was held concurrently with the second Latin American Rural Youth Workshop which is sponsored by the International Cooperation Administration. Miss Osborn was the only U.S. representative at the IFYE Conference.

Miss Osborn was raised on a diversified farm in Montgomery County near Hillsboro. She was a 4-H Club member for 10 years and a junior 4-H Club leader. While in Costa Rica in 1956 she lived with 12 farm families and visited in many other homes, as well as schools, churches and industrial centers. Thus she was well qualified to represent the United States, for in addition to being a member of the board of the United States IFYE Alumni Conference, she is familiar with the culture of the host country and speaks Spanish.

The IFYE is a two-way exchange. Selected farm youth from the U.S. are sent to live and work with farm families in other countries for from four to six months, and farm youth from cooperating countries come here to live and work with our farm families. Begun in 1948, the exchange was carried on at first with a few European countries and now includes countries in Latin America, the Near and Far East, South Pacific and Africa. The project is dedicated to the belief that understanding is the foundation of world peace.

After their return, U.S. delegates devote considerable time to extending to others, through talks and other methods, the benefits of their experiences. Similarly, the incoming exchangees report on their experiences.

Miss Osborn was one of the first to receive a Roscoe Pulliam Alumni Scholarship at SIU. Anyone interested in hearing about her experiences should contact her at 511 East Fifth Street in Pana, Ill.

CO-AUTHOR OF NEW BOOK

Dr. Fred R. Cagle, professor of zoology and chairman of the University Department of Zoology at Tulane, is co-author of Vertebrates of the United States published recently by McGraw-Hill Book Company, Inc., of New York City. Dr. Cagle received the B.Ed. at SIU in '37 and the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Michigan. He has been director of museum and instructor of a general biology course for teachers at SIU. From 1943 to 1945 he was aviation physiologist in the Air Corps with the rank of captain. He has been at Tulane since 1945. Editor-in-chief of Copsia since 1956, he has also published more than 40 papers of his own dealing with the systematics and ecology of amphibians and reptiles and teaching problems, acquiring much of the basic data for the research during field investigations in the United States and Mexico. His most recent national assignment is director of a national conference of biological science editors sponsored by the American Institute of Biological Sciences and financed by the National Science Foundation. Professor Cagle is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a supporting member of the American Institute of Biological Sciences. He is also a member of the American Society of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists (former vice president, member editorial board and board of governors) and many other professional societies, including the American Society of Mammalogists and the Wildlife Society.

Southern Sketches

The Department of Music announces a series of seminars in composition, theory and pedagogy by Mlle. Nadia Boulanger from May 13 to May 27, 1958. A special four-day series for American composers and university and college teachers of music will be held from May 16 to 19 and will include the following: May 16-17, performance and discussion of compositions by student composers selected from American colleges and universities; May 18, all-Stravinsky program by Soulima Stravinsky, pianist, and Nell Tange-man, mezzo-soprano and professor of voice at SIU; May 19, seminars for college and university teachers of theory, composition and musicology. There is no fee for attendance at these meetings. For additional information, write Dr. Henry A. Bruinsma, chairman of the music department at Southern . . .

A class without students is an innovation at SIU. Only faculty members are enrolled in the course called "Problems of College Teaching." The teacher—Dr. James G. Umstadd, visiting professor at Southern and chairman of the Department of Curriculum and Instruction at the University of Texas. Purpose of the course is to help instructors, especially those teaching on the university level for the first time, to improve their techniques. An authority on secondary and higher education, Dr. Umstadd has taught at Harvard, Duke and the University of Southern California. He has been co-ordinator of the Texas Study of Secondary Education since 1942 and during World War II he was education chief of the American University at Biarritz, France . . .

A contest is now underway to select a distinctive uniform to be worn by Southern's student nurses. A year's free tuition in the Department of Nursing will be offered to the winning designer. Open to anyone in the nation except SIU employees, the contest places no limit on the number of drawings each participant may submit. However, all designs must be original and must be entered under the name of the designer. If the person who wins is not able to use the prize, he may choose the recipient, who must be an Illinois resident who will enter the nursing program within a year. Purpose of the contest is to find an attractive uniform suitable for both street and hospital wear in all seasons. January 15 is the deadline for entries, which should be mailed to the Department of Nursing at Southern . . .

A new research program in physical fitness at SIU is being directed by Dr. Jay A. Bender. For the past six years Dr. Bender has operated a physical testing laboratory in co-operation with Peoria industries and physicians. Prior to that he had been a physical education instructor at the University of Illinois before becoming an associate professor in physical education at Bradley University in 1952. He later relinquished his teaching position at Bradley to set up his laboratory. "By adding Dr. Bender to our staff we hope to become one of the leaders in the field of testing physical fitness and relating it to everyday living," said Dr. Edward J. Shea, chairman of men's physical education at Southern . . .

The newly-established Rehabilitation Institute at Southern has been awarded a $54,841 grant from the Office of Vocational Rehabilitation to be used for teaching and traineeship stipends in its graduate counseling program for the coming year. One of the largest grants of its kind ever given by the federal agency, the grant provides for 17 individual graduate study stipends worth $1600 and three others worth $2400, available to advanced students in rehabilitation counselor training. The stipends cover nine months of schooling . . .

Asian flu victims at Southern are being cared for in a temporary hospital opened October 17 at the Southern Acres campus ten miles east of Carbondale. Intended to provide accommodations for students who require nursing care for two or three days but who are not critically ill, the temporary quarters may be expanded to provide for as many as 80 students. Dr. Richard Lee, University physician, reported "flu" had affected some 1500 students during the fall term but that more than two-thirds of the cases had been mild and required only "self-care." Not all of these cases, of course, were Asian flu. Plenty of Asian flu vaccine is available at the University Health Service for students and faculty members who want to be inoculated. Because of the epidemic, classes at SIU were dismissed October 25 and 26.
