SIU Faculty Children

I am sorry that I was unable to attend the Champaign Area meeting due to a previous engagement. At the first area meeting Dean Robert Browne remarked that among those present were the "faculty children"—Katherine Colyer, Bob Browne, and J. T. Kirk.

My sisters, Mary Kirk '02 and Vida Kirk '02, and my brother, D. D. Kirk '06, spent the holidays with my family. Since the death of my wife, my sons, Thornton and Alfred, have continued to live with me at 1120 West Church Street, Champaign. My son, James C., and his family also live in Champaign as do my brother, his wife, children, and grandchildren. D. D. Kirk is a twin brother of B. L. Kirk '06.

Long-Range Planning

I am planning to attend my class reunion in 1962. Our 60th anniversary, if there are any of us left. Let's hope.

Pan American Friendship

Please receive my gratitude for sending me the bulletin which brings me very nice reveries of people and things of Southern. My family and friends are very finely impressed for your thoughtfulness in overcoming time and distance with friendship.

The Mail Goes Through

Your letter reached me here (Escondido, Calif.) a few days ago. As you can see by the envelope enclosed, it just did make it. I believe this is the first mail I ever received that had been damaged by fire enroute.

We have been spending a few months here in the same town where our son and family live. We have enjoyed seeing old friends in San Diego and surrounding territory. We expect to return to our home in Colorado Springs within a few days.

I am enclosing a check for another payment on my life membership. I hope that I can be there for Alumni Day this year. Forty years is a long time to be away from Southern and I'm wondering if anything will look familiar.

New Daughter, New Address

This is to report an important event and a change of address.

Of first importance is Kathleen Marie Richards, our third daughter, born November 16. She joins Dana, three, and Julianne, two.

Secondly, please send our bulletins from now on to 1049½ Seventeenth Street, Rock Island, Ill. Cleat is a redevelopment planner here and we find it a very nice place to live. We'd like to hear from any alumni who may be located in this area. And is there an alumni chapter near here?

We enjoy reading our Southern Alumnus—it's so nice to hear what our classmates are doing, and wonderful to read about the changes on campus since we've left, and to feel that we have a share in a school with such a future.

The Life of Shaw Since '55

Would you please send my alumni magazines to me at the Bittwell Apts., Apt. 606, Ft. Dodge, Ia.?

Just for the record, I'll recap my humble life since leaving (graduating) from Southern in 1955. The Army consumed the next two years—most of this time being spent in Boston, Mass., where I met, surprisingly enough, a few SIU alumni.

After being discharged from the service, I returned to the rigors of college life—receiving my M.S. degree in business administration in June of 1959.

Finally, after 25 years, I became a member of the nation's work force—my employer being Cargill, Inc., of Minneapolis, Minn. After five months in that city, I was transferred to my present "home," Ft. Dodge, Ia.

If any of my old friends would drop a line, a quick answer will be promptly and gladly returned.

The Martin boys—E. Dale Martin (center), freshman in Liberal Arts and Sciences from Stonefort, and Kelly G. Martin (right), freshman in Industrial Education and Applied Science, probably have one of the more interesting jobs on the Southern campus. They are part-time workers in the SIU Museum, under the supervision of Russell I. Peithman '56 (left), the museum's curator of exhibits. Here the two students are putting the finishing touches on a live snake exhibit.

Dale and Kelly are two of some 3,100 students who are earning part or all of their way through SIU. As one walks through the campus, he sees these students at work in many and various jobs—carrying mail, driving trucks, working in laboratories, checking library books, dusting and sweeping offices and classrooms, or laboring in offices over the vast amount of minutia that goes into the complicated operation of a large university.

The story of these students and of SIU's Student Work Program is told on pages four, five, and six, of this magazine, "They Labor While They Learn." It is directed in part to the high school senior who is academically capable and financially needy.

One of the most extensive programs of its kind in the country, the Student Work Program is part of the Search for Talent which is focused specifically at Southern at the talented student who should be in college but feels he can't afford a higher education. Now that education is within the realm of possibility for that student—if he has the necessary ambition and perseverance. With a loan, a scholarship or grant, summer employment; and a student job, he can go to college.
Winner of the first Flora Breniman Memorial Oratory Contest in February was Keith Sanders, Benton junior who will represent SIU in a statewide oratory contest later this year. Second and third prizes went to Robert Yuill, Herrin, and Herbert Fecker, Danville. The competition was established in honor of the late Mrs. Breniman, wife of Lester Breniman, associate professor of speech...

Winner of beauty and charm and crowned the 1960 Air Force ROTC Queen at Southern early last month was Connie McGinnis, marketing major and a sophomore from Pittsfield. She will preside over cadet wing functions during the coming year. Her court included Bonnie Meirink, Belleville; Phyllis McGill, Mt. Vernon; Barry Jo Wood, Granite City, and Rochelle Gerlach, Sparta. Ceremonies took place at the gala Military Ball.

Ten students in SIU’s Vocational Technical Institute program of practical nursing received caps in a ceremony at the VTI Auditorium January 31.

High TV Rating for Karson

"People and Politics," the popular program on KMOX-TV (Channel 4) featuring SIU political scientist Marc Karson, has been moved to a new time for wider participation. The 30-minute show was changed from 12:30 P.M. on Sundays to 1:30 P.M. on Saturdays after a survey showed a high percentage of viewers in favor of such a program. The public affairs production is a series of political discussions by Professor Karson to arouse interest in government, especially in the coming elections. In future programs he will cover political parties and bosses, social welfare legislation, voting, political action, congress, minority problems, and mass media and politics.

Elbert H. Hadley, SIU professor of chemistry, left March 1 for Kabul, Afghanistan, to lecture at the University of Kabul under a Smith-Mundt Fellowship for 1960. He was selected by the U. S. State Department and while abroad will lecture at other universities and research installations near Kabul. He also expects to help inaugurate a chemistry program in a new chemistry building at Kabul. He, his wife, and two teenage daughters will return in December. Before joining SIU, Professor Hadley was research chemist for DuPont.

One of four U.S. scientists invited to address the American Society of Zoologists next August during a day-long "refresher course" at Stillwater, Okla., is Mrs. Florence Foote, SIU research associate. Topic of the meeting will be metamorphic developments in animals. It is part of the annual meeting of the American Institute of Biological Sciences at Oklahoma State University. Mrs. Foote and her husband, Prof. Charles Foote, of the SIU Zoology Department, form a research team which for several years has been exploring sex differentiation and endocrine changes effected with laboratory-grown tissues.

Dates for Your Calendar

Here are several dates to jot down on the calendar—
April 9—annual spring conference of Southern Illinois School Press Association on SIU campus. Don Carter, executive director of The Newspaper Fund, Inc., will be featured speaker during the meeting of high school advisers and students.
April 21—Mrs. William Sauer, Murphysboro farm wife and mother of five, will be honored as “Southern Illinois Women’s Leader of the Year” for 1960 at the annual area Women’s Day program at Southern. She is being recognized for her work with Farm Bureau, Home Bureau, P-TA, church, and band parents group.
June 4 and 5—Second annual Family Outdoor Living Show in McAndrew Stadium will include exhibits, stunts, demonstrations, and a large variety of events. More about this later.

New Guild for Arts and Crafts

A new area promotion group has been organized and John W. Allen ’22-2 is president of it. This is the Southern Illinois Arts and Crafts Guild which has been founded to encourage area production and assist in marketing arts, crafts, and specialty items of this region. It also plans to sponsor institutes to develop skills and will try to correlate arts and crafts promotional activities of groups and individuals.

Two awards “in recognition of distinctive service to the advancement of agriculture at Southern Illinois University” were given February 25 to Stillman J. Stanard (left), Illinois director of agriculture, and Harold J. Hartley ’50 (center), assistant director of the commodity division of American Farm Bureau Federation, Chicago. Charles Nagreski (right), Macedonia, president of the Agriculture Student Council, made the presentations at the annual All-Agriculture Dinner.

Summer Session Dates

Official dates for the 1960 Summer Session are set for Monday, June 20, to Friday, August 12. Classes begin on Tuesday, June 21. Final examinations will be on August 10 and 11 with Commencement on Friday, August 12.

Two pre-session workshops also will be held. A week-long workshop for high school teachers of grades 10 through 12 will begin May 23. Entitled “Techniques and Methods of Classroom Instruction in English,” the course will be taught by Edward R. Gordon, director of teacher training for Yale Graduate School.

The second workshop, “Techniques and Methods of Classroom Instruction in English” for teachers for grades seven through nine begins June 13. No instructor has been named as yet.

In 11 years from 1948 to 1959 SIU resident enrollment jumped from 3,009 to 10,394.

Winter Enrollment Over Last Year

Total resident enrollment at SIU for the winter quarter is 10,658 students, an increase of 1,218 over the same period a year ago.

The figure exceeds original estimates and is unusual in that it does not reflect the customary enrollment decline between fall and winter terms. Southern’s record fall registration of 10,394 dropped by only 4.1 per cent, compared to the usual 5.3 per cent dip.

Alton-East St. Louis campus enrollment for winter totals 3,039, a decrease of only 310 from the fall quarter and more than 200 over the predicted count. The Carbondale campus figure, 7,619 exceeds last winter’s tally by 545 students.

Notable enrollment gains were made by the senior class, up 20 per cent over-all since last winter, and Carbondale campus graduate students, whose ranks swelled by almost 17 per cent from the 1959 winter term.

Other winter quarter totals not included in resident enrollment figures are 491 in extension classes, 3,797 registrations in adult non-credit courses since July 1, and 587 elementary and high school pupils at University School.

SIU Beauty Course for Southern Illinoisans

Ladies, you can learn the secrets of being beautiful without stirring out of your front room. That is, if you live in the southern Illinois area. It’s really very simple, and the teacher won’t know you’re sitting there with shiny nose, clips in your hair, and shaggy scuffs on your feet.

SIU is offering a 20-week course on beauty and grooming over WSIL-TV, Harrisburg, at 11:30 a.m. every Saturday morning. The program, “Reflections on Beauty,” started February 13. It is being offered by the Division of Technical and Adult Education.

Eleanor K. Mathis, co-ordinator of the cosmetology program at the Vocational Technical Institute, is the teacher, and Richard M. Uray, director of television programming at Southern, is producer-director.

Lectures covered during the 20 weeks include grooming problems from hair to properly fitted shoes, care of the skin, coordinated hair and hat styling, tips on correct carriage as well as hair conditioning, hair coloring, manicuring, makeup, etiquette, poise, personality, fashions, and the contents of a healthful diet.

Lessons are designed to be instructive and informative to professional beauticians as well as to the housewife or career woman interested in personal improvement and health-giving tips. With spring just around the corner here’s a good opportunity to bone up for final exams and the Easter parade.
They Labor While They Learn

The largest labor force in southern Illinois south of the East St. Louis industrial area is located on the SIU campus in Carbondale.

This is an unusual labor force in many respects. Practically all members are young—between the ages of 18 and 22. They are talented and ambitious, the hope and future of America, these college students who come from 41 states and also from 40 foreign countries. They belong to no union save the SIU student body...they don't strike for higher pay or more holidays or fringe benefits.

In this labor force are nearly 3,100 students working on and off campus. That's about 40 per cent of the student body.

According to Frank C. Adams, M.S. '51, director of the Student Work Office, 1,942 are participating in on-campus jobs ranging from research to bus boys. These students are earning on the average of $550 during this school year, working an average of 70 hours a month. This group represents about a six per cent increase over the 1,792 who worked on campus last year.

Off-campus on weekends and evenings 1,127 students are working in 212 communities in southern Illinois, also a slight increase over last year. In Carbondale alone 235 are working. This figure does not include those students working as baby sitters or at odd jobs, which last year provided part-time work for 612.

There always have been students working their way through school here at Southern—from its first days as a teachers' normal. But it was not until 1955-56 (when less than 900 were employed) that the present work program was expanded and revitalized with the SIU philosophy that "the academically capable, financially needy high school graduate should have the opportunity to develop his potentialities in an institution of higher learning."

Today it is part of the Search for Talent program that is sweeping the country and is being developed so extensively here at SIU. The Student Work Program works hand-in-hand with the Financial Assistance Office in seeking the talented and ambitious high school student who should be in college.

Because of the higher cost of education, more and more students are seeking employment. About 513 students are working their entire way through SIU. Most students need to supplement funds from home to meet the expenses of college education, which at Southern average between $1,000 and $1,200 per year.

Assisting Mr. Adams in the Student Work Office are his assistant director, Roland Keene '34; the supervisor, Mrs. Alice Phillips Rector '35, M.S. '47; and the assistant supervisor, Joseph D. Zimny '58.

The scope of their jobs is constantly broadening as they study, investigate, and report on the working student not only on this campus but also throughout the country. Their pri-
The primary purpose is to organize, maintain, direct, and supervise the Student Work Program at Southern. Jobs at the Student Work Office are listed in four categories—on-campus; off-campus for area employers; summer employment in camps, resorts, business, and industry; and certain co-operative work-study programs.

What kind of jobs come under these categories? They are many and certainly varied, ranging from typing to egg testing, from janitor work to weather forecasting. During the years have appeared calls for ice-skating instructor, barber (licensed), guitar instructor, church singer, and postal carrier.

Robert Lentz, Cairo, earned part of his way as a goose caller on weekends during the fall of the year. Ethel Beltz '59, Cobden, now Mrs. Joseph M. Burge of Washington, D.C., painted Yuletide scenes on store display windows during the Christmas holidays. These are a few of the more fascinating jobs.

Most of the jobs on-campus, however, are more routine and probably not as exciting or remunerative. Thirty-nine per cent of the student work staff on-campus are listed as clerical workers. Few if any offices do not have students filing, typing, and doing regular office chores.

For administrative and payroll purposes student jobs are grouped on campus into six classifications. The clerical group comes under Class III. In the first class are the instructional and research assistants, who must possess high academic achievement and some training or enough instruction from previous courses in order to do the job.

Class II are the technical and supervisory workers—and they include printers, photographers, projectionists, accountants, junior counselors. In Class IV are the service workers—maintenance workers, food service workers, janitors, farm workers, laundry workers, and laborers—the so-called unskilled labor. Many freshmen without previous experience or training start out in such jobs and progress up to the better jobs during upperclassmen years. Many of the service workers can work 100 hours a month and full-time during vacation periods.

The special worker class takes in those jobs requiring special skills and talents not included in other job classifications. In this group are the students (male) in the Saluki Patrol, supplement of the University Police, with special responsibilities for traffic, parking, and security control.

The sixth and last class is for the extra workers who are hired for special events, to assist with registration, to do jobs that come up once in awhile and for only a short time.

The Student Work Office also lists summer employment for those students who leave campus in June and want to earn money for the next school year. Last summer 207 students were assisted in finding jobs in camps, resorts, and industry. Thirty-five went to the Oconomowoc Cannery in Wisconsin; many got jobs at Little Grassy Lake in the Outdoor Camping and Recreation Program sponsored by SIU's Recreation and Outdoor Education Department. Many students, of course, find their...

There never is a lack of jobs in the dishwashing department at the SIU Cafeteria—and here John Shuman, Sullivan, is getting in a few swipes—or in the janitorial service throughout the campus. Ed Courtwright, Springfield, handles the waxing machine.

own summer employment at home or in other areas.

The SIU work program is considered unique in that students are registered for classes so that they will be free for a time block of two to four hours daily to work. These time blocks are for 8 A.M. to noon, 1 to 5 P.M., 5 to 9 P.M., and 10 A.M. to 2 P.M. Classes are arranged around a time block for the working student.

The route for student employment through the Student Work Office is via the application, interview, approval, and referral routine. All students who seek jobs must file an application and must have an interview before the Student Work Office can help him. Application blanks can be obtained directly from the work office or through the high school principal or guidance counselor.

Through the interview the counselor determines the applicant's need (and this is most important in the matter of priorities), his previous experience or talents, his academic potential, and provides the initial step in acquiring educational and practical experience. Another method of determining skills is through placement tests and, for those trained in clerical work, proficiency tests.

With the interview started a record for the applicant, and his application becomes a permanent item. On file is a complete account of the work program of the student. This becomes an important and vital feature when the Placement Service tries to match graduates with jobs.

The Student Work Office holds a total of 12,000 interviews and contacts with the students yearly. Through the interviews the staff performs a dual role—that of doing personnel work for the University and that of counseling the students.

In order to participate in the work program the student must have a work permit. And this he receives after the interviewer determines his financial need and capabilities. The student then takes the work permit to the sectioning center during registration and has classes arranged according to the time block assigned him.

On the Carbondale campus are 250 supervisors of student workers. Through these supervisors the Student Work Office has a listing of jobs available and type of work required. It is the supervisor who hires the student and not the Work Office. The Work Office attempts to match personnel with jobs and in finding qualified applicants gives them referral cards to introduce them to the supervisor. Perhaps only one or perhaps several applicants are referred to the supervisor for the same job, giving the supervisor a choice of prospects. By the same token the student has several possibilities for a job.

Aside from the financial benefits of a job, the student receives a dual education. Not only does he learn in the classroom but on the job as well. Foremost is the experience he gains—and that is vastly important when the new graduate is seeking his first big job. A good work record in the Student Work Office is a fine recommendation.

For the first two years a student is placed in almost any kind of work so that he will receive the financial help he needs. After that every possible effort is made to place him in the area of his major. Recent studies show that 56 per cent of the working seniors were employed in an area related to their academic majors.

Twice a year the Student Worker’s Training Program is offered for office workers. Here is a three-day short course in office procedure conducted by well-versed faculty and administrators. Information gleaned from the sessions never loses its value.

The experience of interviews, both in the Work Office and by the supervisors around campus, gives the student poise and confidence. Through these interviews and the tests students become more aware of their interests, their capabilities, their sense of direction.

The influence of good supervisors cannot be overrated. With excellent guidance the student acquires good work habits, a sense of responsibility for a job well done, maturity and a practical outlook, and appreciation of the employer-employee relationship.

An interesting and very important aspect of the Student Work Program is the academic achievement of the working student. On the Honors Day program last May 51 per cent of the awards given out went to students working on-campus.

Every study made by the Student Work Office so far shows that academically capable, financially needy working students not only exceed the achievement records of non-workers, but do so in each hourly category checked (the maximum being 120 hours per month). In general those students in the 60-80 hour per month range whose academic loads fell between 12 and 16 quarter hours had the best achievement.

One of the studies showed the University average to be 3.337 and the (Continued on page 14)
Placement Service Report

Fewer calls for teachers, higher salaries, and more demand for personnel in business and industry were significant in the annual report of SIU's Placement Service. Director Roye R. Bryant '28-2, '30, said there were 22 per cent fewer calls for teachers for both elementary and secondary positions than previously and that the average salary per cent of increase in teaching is "much smaller" than the per cent increase in the average salary for non-teachers. Meanwhile, "academic marks are becoming more meaningful in securing the better positions."

The report on 1959 graduates who tried for jobs through the Placement Office showed that requests for engineers lead the industrial outlook, and that needs are great for secretaries, physicists, mathematicians, and statisticians.

In comparing 1959 figures with statistics since 1952 it was discovered that "a smaller per cent of graduates took positions in the lower 31 counties of Illinois."

Last year 252 interviewers came to the SIU campus to recruit '59 graduates for teaching positions, 217 recruited for positions in business, agriculture, social work, and industry. These interviewers came from 13 states and the District of Columbia.

The average annual salary paid a Southern graduate with technical training entering business or industry was $5,514, and for non-technically trained graduates $4,848. This was 10 per cent higher than salaries of '58 graduates. The average '50 bachelor-degree elementary teacher got $4,173 (31 per cent more than in '58); secondary teachers with bachelor degrees got $4,181, a two per cent increase. Those with master degrees got $4,902 in elementary grades (two per cent increase) and secondary got $5,141, about an eight per cent increase.

Of the total graduates 46 per cent took positions in teaching, 21.8 in business and industry, 17.4 went on to graduate school, and seven per cent went into the armed forces.

Faculty Clubhouse Opens on Campus

A faculty club on the SIU campus at Carbondale at long last has become a reality. The clubhouse, located in the former Vogler home on South Thompson Street, held open house March 6 and is due to open April 1.

Last September a Faculty Center Board was elected and organized with the immediate task of studying the nature and operation of faculty clubs on other campuses. This it did and then proceeded with the job of locating and procuring facilities appropriate for the particular needs at Southern. When it was learned that the Vogler residence was available, the SIU Foundation purchased it for the purpose of leasing the property to the Faculty Club.

In the modern-style, two-story white stucco house will be dining rooms, game room, kitchen, snack bar, card room, formal and informal lounges. The entire center is air-conditioned and some of the furniture, drapes, and carpeting already in the structure have been purchased by the board. Television and hi-fi equipment also are included in the features of the club.

The faculty center idea has been mentioned for several years but no space could be obtained. Members of the faculty and administrative staff are eligible for membership.

Chairman of the present Faculty Center Board is R. Ralph Bedwell, director of the Small Business Institute. On the board are E. Claude Coleman, Robert Gallegly, Alexander R. MacMillan, Robert McMillan, Elizabeth I. Mullins, William E. O'Brien, Ferris S. Randall, and Jean Stehr.

No new buildings were constructed at Southern between 1928 and 1948 although enrollment tripled during that time.

MARCH, 1960
University Center - One Year Later

“Of a good beginning cometh a good end.”
Proverbs of John Heywood

With such a good beginning the one-year progress report on the construction of the $4,600,000 University Center on the SIU campus indicates a successful end. The largest single building presently under construction in southern Illinois, the center now is 30 per cent completed.

As of late February construction crews had placed all of the building foundations and had poured concrete for 98 per cent of the basement floor, 90 per cent of the ground floor, 65 per cent of the first floor, and 33 per cent of the second. A fourth of the massive structure's third floor has been formed and all of the basement walls have been poured.

The basement is enclosed and the first-floor slab completed so that craftsmen can work in all but the severest weather. With all structural steel already on the site, construction progress is "on schedule" for a projected completion date of June 13, 1961.

University Center is going up in two stages, the first of which is under contract now. This stage, being built by J. L. Simmons Company of Decatur, includes the entire building shell and finishing all but a few areas of the ground floor. This involves such facilities as a 500-seat cafeteria, 136-seat snack bar, general lounge, student organization offices, recreational center and an eight-lane bowling alley, check rooms, TV lounge, and private dining and meeting rooms.

In addition to a gallery lounge, administrative office, serving kitchen, check room, powder room, and other areas, the first-stage improvements on the second floor will include adjoining banquet halls to accommodate more than 950 couples. The halls will be separated by sliding folding doors, making them convertible to four separate units for multiple use or one huge ballroom and banquet hall.

Second and third-floors will be mostly unfinished in the first stage, except for a light and sound control and projection room for the entire building.

Final stage—to be completed when funds are available—will result in a campus social and service center for an expected enrollment of 15,000 students. It will include more lounges and meeting rooms, second and third floor hotel rooms, kitchens, an eight-lane addition to the bowling alley, a meditation room, and other quarters for special groups and services.

Funds available for first-stage construction came from precedent-setting matched loans of $2,300,000 from the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency and the State of Illinois. Price tag on the building itself, including roads, landscaping, sewer lines, etc., is $3,779,535. Remainder of available funds has been set aside for architectural engineering services, legal and administrative expenses, loan interest during construction, government inspections and audits, project contingencies, and furniture and furnishings.

SIU Architect Charles Pulley has asked the contractor to submit proposals for finishing some parts of the building originally planned for second stage—mainly a ballroom wing, private dining room, and basement recreation area. Money for this work would come from the contingency fund and a special University Center Building Fund which has been growing since 1956, when SIU students voted to increase their quarterly fees in order to get the building closer to reality.

Special features of the center, to cover 250,000 square feet after total completion, will be a fountain court entrance on the east (facing McAndrew Stadium), outdoor terraces facing Thompson Woods on the west, a control and information center at the juncture of ground-floor corridors, food preparation and distribution system adequate for 5,800 meals daily, provisions for closed-circuit radio, TV and music systems, sliding planters making it possible to overflow between the snack bar and cafeteria at peak periods of either one, a 1,200-ton air conditioning system (600 tons in the first stage, twice the size of that in the present Morris Library), and the use of ceramic tile, wood, marble, stone, enameled brick and other textures and colors inside and out.

Assisting Mr. Pulley are Joe Kirsch, architectural superintendent for the center, and Willard Hart, general superintendent of all construction on campus. Constructions crews average about 90 men now and will be increased to 125 for warm weather work.

For Southern's student body the building can't be finished too soon. In 1950, when campus enrollment was slightly over 3,100 students, a temporary student center was put together from two surplus Army barracks. Today more than twice that number (7,938) are using the same building.
Sports at Southern
by Bill Young '55

Southern Illinois University’s basketball team made its fifth appearance at the national tournament of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics March 7-12 in Kansas City, Mo., and was eliminated in its first game 75-71 by Oklahoma Baptist University. The Oklahoma team overcame a 10-point deficit to win in the closing minutes of the game.

The Salukis earned the right to represent NAIA District 20 (Illinois) with impressive wins over McKendree College 97-71 and North Central College 108-78 in the district playoffs at Naperville.

Charlie Vaughn rewrote Southern’s basketball record books faster than the chroniclers could get the pages off the press.

“Sweet” Charlie, jump shot artist without peer, in the Salukis’ 26 regular season games shattered eight scoring records—most of which he set last year in a fabulous freshman season. Now the honors have begun flooding in for the former Tamms ace.

United Press International named him honorable mention on their All-America team—one of the few sophomores in the select list. High-powered company among the honorable mentions included Larry Siegfried of Ohio State, Bobby Joe Mason of Bradley, and Governor Vaughn of Illinois.

For the second straight year Charlie was named to the NAIA District 20 (Illinois) all-star team. Vaughn led the district in scoring with 690 points. He was the only sophomore on the team; the others were all seniors.

As the Salukis compiled an 18-8 record in regular season and 9-3 in Interstate Conference to share the title with Western Illinois—the Salukis’ first basketball crown in 10 years—Vaughn set these records:

Field goals attempted in one game: 38 (he made 15). The old mark was 30 held by Charlie and Ray Rippelmeyer.

Free throws attempted: 18. The old record was 17 by Rippelmeyer.

Free throws scored: 15. Old record 14 by Seymour Bryson.

Most points in one game: 43. Old record 40 by Bryson.

Field goals attempted in one season: 638. Vaughn’s old mark 582.

Field goals scored in one season: 265. His old record 259.

Free throws scored in one season: 160. Old record 153 by Bryson.

Most points in one season: 690. Old record 620 by Vaughn.

The Salukis as a team also got into the record-breaking act. They notched the mark for most free throws scored in one game with 40 against Eastern Illinois, erasing the old record of 38. They also grabbed 73 rebounds against Eastern Illinois to top the previous high of 58.

The team also scored 542 free throws during the season to eclipse the old standard of 531. The Salukis also cornered 1,435 rebounds to rub out the 1,261 high recorded last season.

Coed in Linotype Course

Veteran printers, who view with a jaundiced eye the presence of women in their usually exclusive domain, take note. The first woman student at Southern to enroll in the linotype machine courses is "doing just as well as the boys in the class," reports her teacher, George C. Brown, assistant professor of printing.

Nancy Sue Weaver, senior journalism major from West Frankfort, is the coed who has invaded the backshop to learn the intricacies of printing machines. Although she felt that learning mechanical processes of these machines might put her at a disadvantage, she had little to worry on that score, according to Professor Brown.

The reason Nancy is taking backshop courses is to get a broader perspective of newspaper work. She believes, and rightly so, that most newsmen do not appreciate the backshop enough. "If the backshop is poor, a newspaper will be poor no matter how good the news staff might be. I believe that backshop work should be thought of on a more professional basis."

After graduation in June, Nancy plans to work for a year at a newspaper in a small southern Illinois town—because she likes the small-town atmosphere and the congeniality of its people. She hopes eventually to do journalistic mission work in foreign countries and has taken five religious courses at SIU. She believes an over-all knowledge of newspaper work is essential for staff members of missionary publications which have limited facilities and money.

Her fiancé, Stanley Mace, SIU anthropology student from Monticello, is interested in Biblical archaeology and wants to work in the Holy Land.

Alumni Day June 11

Alumni Day 1960 will be held on Saturday, June 11, with a full round of activities on the SIU campus in Carbondale. Highlights of the program are the traditional class reunions, Alumni Banquet, and the Alumni Achievement Awards.

Sixteen classes are slated for reunions, classes ending in zero and five, plus the class of '59. Foremost is the Class of 1885, celebrating its Diamond Jubilee. John E. Miller, East St. Louis, is the sole member of that class. Next in line is the Class of 1890 with its Seventieth Reunion. Mrs. Daniel W. Warren (Bertha Hull, 2), Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Mrs. Robert Bates (Mary Lansden, 2), Chicago are the two remaining members of that class.

The Alumni Banquet will be held Saturday evening in Woody Hall followed by the program and presentation of Alumni Achievement Awards, Alumni Association life certificates, and 50th anniversary alumni certificates at the University School Auditorium.

On Alumni Day morning the Legislative Council will meet. Campus bus tours will be held during the day and an Alumni Luncheon will take place at the University Cafeteria at noon.

Report on Alumni in May

A report on the alumni of American colleges and universities will appear in the May issue of the Southern Alumnus magazine.

This is the second special report to be printed by the Southern Alumnus, made by a group of alumni magazine editors now organized as Editorial Projects for Education. Last year's report concerning the college faculty was presented in frank discussion.

In this feature the alumni are spotlighted—as the people to whom educational institutions owe their reputations and on whom they must stake their future. Relationships, both real and potential, between alumni and their alma mater are examined—and how and why these relationships can be kindled and strengthened, to everyone's benefit.

This report will be read by more than three million alumni of nearly 350 institutions. Look for "The Alumnus/a" in the May Southern Alumnus.

This is the story of the newest member of the SIU Alumni Club Family—the Bond-Clinton Alumni Chapter which came into being February 17, the 36th club on the roster.

Last fall a call came into the Alumni Office from Charles E. Miller '50, M.S. '55, Trenton, superintendent of Wesclin Community Unit Schools. He reported a number of Southern alumni in that area were interested in forming an alumni group. Jay King '51, alumni field representative, arranged meetings to discuss the steps involved in such proceedings.

Mr. Miller had the assistance of three able men, all educators—Dean J. Delay '28-2, '41, M.S. '53, Greenville, Bond County superintendent of schools; Norbert J. Moorleghen '40, M.S. '50, Carlyle, Clinton County superintendent of schools; and Edbert J. Mueth, ex '55, assistant to Mr. Moorleghen.

Correspondence, phone calls, and meetings during the fall and winter months brought about the formal organizational meeting of alumni from Bond and Clinton counties. It was a
As president of the new Bond-Clinton Counties Alumni Chapter, Charles Miller (standing) hands copies of the Manual for Alumni Club Officers to his slate of officers and directors—from left, Secretary-Treasurer Verna Rees, Vice President Earl Gum, and Board Members Marie Graesser and Wilfred Netemeyer. Bill Meyer is the third board member.

A dinner meeting at Trenton House, a fine German restaurant in the community of Trenton. After a delicious roast beef dinner, Mr. Miller, as temporary chairman, called on the 23 alumni and their guests to introduce themselves. Mr. King then showed the color sound movie, "The Year of the Saluki."

Alumni Secretary Robert Odaniell '51 welcomed the Bond-Clinton Alumni Chapter into the fold and gave a brief talk about the alumni association. During the business session copies of a proposed constitution, submitted by the chairman of the constitutional committee, Mrs. Charles E. Miller (Alberta June Simms Miller, ex '49), were handed out.

The slate of officers, submitted by the chairman of the nominating committee, Mr. Mueth, was approved and elected by the chapter. First officers are President Charles E. Miller, Vice President Earl G. Gum '57, Tamaleo, and Secretary-Treasurer Verna Lou Rees '59, Carlyle. On the board of directors are Bill Meyer '58, Greenville; Wilfred E. Netemeyer, ex '59, Albers; and Marie Graesser '42, Trenton.

With such an excellent meeting the new club got off to a serious and enthusiastic start with the suggestion from Mr. Delay that all members work for the passage of the Illinois Universities Bond Issue in the November election to help Southern and all state-supported universities.

Two or three meetings a year were proposed by the club. The second meeting will take place this spring.

List of Spring Meetings

on-campus worker 3,414. Another showed the mean academic average of 1,792 on-campus workers to be 3,425, 874 off-campus workers 3,118, and 4,803 non-workers 3,346.

In its quest for the academically capable, financially needy students—and especially for the high school graduates who fall into this category—the SIU Student Work Office is issuing its first handbook in April. "The Counselor's Handbook—A Guide for High School Counselors to the Student Work Program of Southern Illinois University (Carbondale Campus)" is being published by the SIU General Publications Office. In it all aspects of the student work program are covered in detail.

The Work Office recommends that entering freshmen do not work their first term, if at all possible. However, if a job is absolutely necessary for his entrance into college, he should enter the summer term right after graduation from high school. This way he will receive complete orientation and more personal assistance, is more apt to get a job, and is more readily available for the fall jobs.

September is the busiest and most hectic time on campus. By starting in the summer the new student avoids many of the obstacles he would encounter in the fall.

Strongest suggestion made by the Work Office to high school seniors—APPLY AS EARLY AS POSSIBLE. That means this time of the year. Last spring 200 high school seniors were tested by the SIU Testing Service for clerical work.

The Student Work Office is located at 205 Harwood Avenue on the Carbondale campus. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8:30 a.m. to noon on Saturday. No appointment is needed for the first personal interview.

Because more and more alumni are joining the literary ranks, a new department has been added to the Southern Alumnus magazine. Alumni who are writing or editing are invited to send such news, and a picture, to the editor.

“Introductory and Publications Photography—A Guidebook with Laboratory Exercises” by C. William Horrell '42, SIU assistant professor of photography, and Robert A. Steffes, Long Beach State College, California. Published by Kenilworth Press, Glen Ellyn. This is believed to be the only photography text organized around actual test assignments containing work sheets which may be detached and handed to the instructor for correction.

The 8½ x 11-inch book is punched for use in a standard three-ring binder, designed primarily for classroom photography instruction but can be used for self-instruction. It is divided into two sections, an introductory course and a section on publications photography.

Most of the illustrations were made at SIU by Professor Horrell and students of the Department of Printing and Photography. The book was published last fall and already is used by six universities.

“A Flora of Southern Illinois” by Profs. Robert H. Mohlenbrock, Jr. '53, M.S. '54, and John W. Voigt, of the SIU Botany Department, and published by the SIU Press. The two men have spent a combined total of 15 years, traveling more than 30,000 miles, to study and collect plants of the area.

In the book they include 200 new plants not previously identified with this area; they also cite many specimens from other collections in the SIU Herbarium. The study area includes the 12 southern Illinois counties. The book has been prepared for anyone having an interest in the native flora of the region—especially to workers in conservation, wildlife, forestry, and agriculture.

“Understanding Labor Problems” by Dallas M. Young '36, associate professor of economics at Western Reserve University, Cleveland. Published by McGraw-Hill of New York as part of its Labor Management Series, the book presents professionally sound material on labor relations history, problems, and law.

Professor Young knows of what he speaks. A native of Christopher, his father is a hoisting engineer for an Illinois coal mine. In addition to teaching, Professor Young has served as arbiter for Associated Transport, Inc., Caterpillar Tractor Company, Pillsbury Mills, Inc., Inland Container Corporation, and for International Association of Machinists, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, and United Steelworkers of America.

This is the fourth article Mrs. Crenshaw has had in a national teachers’ magazine. In it she describes a household arts project of her eighth grade girls in which they projected themselves 20 years into the future, chose an imaginary family, and budgeted a $6,000 income.

The next best thing to taking a vacation is planning one. It's just what the doctor prescribes for those end-of-the-winter blues that ail you now. Anticipation will bring rejuvenation when you think of those lazy summer days on the shores of Little Grassy Lake, those sizzling steaks on the grill at the cook-out, the fun of hitting a bull's-eye on the archery range.

Here's the remedy in capsule form—
Third annual SIU Alumni Family Vacation Program will be held August 14 through August 27 at Little Grassy Lake. It's open to all members of the SIU Alumni Association.

What better way to treat everyone in your family to a happy and relaxing vacation! There's good fishing, swimming, boating, and loafing for Pop, no dishes or cooking for Mom, baby-sitting service for the toddlers, and plenty of recreation for the rest of the kiddies. Yes, it's a real vacation for the whole family. Come for one week, come for two! Reservations on a first come first served basis must be made by Friday, July 15.

1. For those who want to camp under the regular program—with everything furnished but linens—the rates remain the same as last year. For adults, $27.50; children 3 to 12, $22.50; children under 3, $12.50. All meals are included from Monday breakfast through Saturday breakfast. Cabins and aluminum-screened cabins are available.

For the "do-it-yourself" camper who likes to rough it, more or less, and has all of his own gear, two plans with special rates are offered—

2. For those who want to bring their own gear but wish to take their meals in the dining hall, the rate is $35 per couple per week, plus $13.75 per week for each additional member of the family.

3. For those who want to provide and cook their own food and bring their own equipment, the rate is $5 a week for the entire family for a site and participation in the recreational activities.

Little Grassy Lake is just 10 miles and 15 minutes southeast of Carbondale—a lovely spot for playing and relaxing. In conjunction with the SIU Department of Recreation and Outdoor Education a recreational program to suit every member of the family is offered. You can swim, hike, go boating, play baseball, volleyball, or horseshoes, use the rifle range, go horseback riding, practice archery, fish, study nature, join in group singing, go on cookouts, try your hand at handicraft—all under supervision of a full complement of trained counselors. A nurse is on duty.
