New Year's in Hong Kong

I am now enjoying the life of an officer aboard the USS Maddox. We are in Hawaii for a few weeks. Be heading for Japan and neighboring countries in a few days. Looks like I'll be celebrating New Year's in Hong Kong.

If possible send the alumni magazines by air mail. I'll pay the extra price if you inform me as to the amount. It's good to get news now, not history later. Sayonara.

Here, There, and Everywhere

I noted in a recent Southern Alumnus where some boy was having trouble keeping up with where his mail should be sent.

I thought at the time that if we had listed all of our addresses with you, our file would be extensive. My wife, the former Joan Peters, and I graduated in 1951, according to the record. Our home addresses were Carbondale and Effingham, but in the ensuing 10 years we have lived at the following places—Junction City, Kansas; Austin, Texas; Old Ocean, Texas; Golconda, Illinois; San Anselmo, California; Anchorage, Alaska; Meadville, Pennsylvania; Chicago, Illinois; Mt. Freedom, New Jersey; and now Sangli, India. I would hate to see what a piece of mail would look like after being forwarded on that kind of a trip.

We still enjoy reading about what is happening at SIU even though it is a far cry from the 2,000 students in 1951 to the 10,000 in 1961. Does this constitute any kind of a record in college growth?

We will look forward to seeing Southern on our next trip back. When does the engineering college begin? Keep up the good work.

Out of the Past

(Burnett H. Shryock, dean of the School of Fine Arts, received a letter some time ago from Guy Winfrey, who attended Southern in the mid-90s. It was so delightful a letter that Dean Shryock wanted to share it with the Alumni Office.)

I did indeed attend Southern, although it was then called Southern Illinois Normal University. But to establish that fact would redound neither to your credit nor mine. After about two years I had accumulated enough bad marks that I departed by request—not as a result of poor grades but because of a certain hell-raising tendency.

So, as I say, your credit would not be enhanced for harboring me even that long, nor mine for my inglorious exit. But to establish the approximate time, which I cannot give exactly, I supposedly studied these subjects under: mathematics, Sam Harwood; chemistry, Davis; English, Martha Buck, Brownlee; history, Inez Green; German and Latin, Allen; physical education, Whittington; geography, ?. May have history and geography reversed. It's a long time!

I had no course under your respected father, but I do seem to remember after these 60-odd years, something under Prof. Kirk—or maybe it is just a memory of his beautiful daughter, Vida, whom I admired very much!

So, as I say—no kudos to either of us. That statement should have been left out of the blurb on the jacket of "Snare." There was enough fiction included that a fact or two could have been omitted.

I do not think my parents ever knew the facts of my severance from Southern, for Dr. Parkinson, who was president at the time, visited us, on my parents’ ranch, for several days and no reference to it was ever made. For which I mentally chalked up some nice marks for the good doctor. This was, of course, several years later.

I have from time to time needed some hospitalization and being eligible as a Californian of many years, I was admitted here, where we have an excellent institution with excellent quarters, good doctors and pretty nurses. Being on a salt-free diet, any menu would be distasteful, so I’ll just say the others like the food. And being just about 10 miles from home with liberty available almost anytime, I’m practically home.

I am relieved to hear that you have read "A Snare of Vintage" and survived. Some of it isn’t so hot!

On the Cover

Homecoming 1961 has been filed away, the 40th in the annals of SIU history. Students have settled down once more to the serious job of books and studies. Memories of a fun-packed weekend still linger with the alumni as they go about their work.

Theme of the annual celebration October 19–21 was “Broadway Beat.” The Homecoming story is told in part by the pictures on the cover—

The Coronation of Homecoming Queen Jane Crucius, senior music student from El Paso, on Thursday evening in Shryock Auditorium amidst pomp and ceremony—with Sue Easterday, Metropolis; Joan Shepley, Joliet; Mary Jo Oldham, Shavneetown; and Kathy Whitelock, Metropolis, in her court, and Sandra Busse, Arlington Heights, and Rosemarie Garavalia, Harrisburg, as her attendants. Sandra Keller ’61 came from California to crown her successor—

The Homecoming Parade down University Avenue Saturday morning with some 12,000 spectators lining the parade route. Theta Xi, Sigma Sigma Sigma, Bowyer Hall, and the Young Republicans Club were the float and stunt winners. The University Band was in the lead with almost 30 high school bands following behind to add music, color, and fanfare to the procession. Two youngsters found an ideal vantage point atop a car—

At the big Homecoming Game between Southern and Eastern Illinois State University, the Salukis ran away with a 33-6 victory. Over 13,000 fans watched outstanding play by Ron Winter, Amos Bullocks, Carl Kimbrel, Bob Hight, and Jim Martin—and fisticuffs just before the end of the first half when nearly all the players were involved and play was stopped for about five minutes. The rest of the game was played without incident—

Enrollment

Despite a housing shortage and tightened entrance requirements, SIU's resident enrollment has jumped more than nine and one-half per cent over last fall to a record total of 14,628 students. Referring to the final totals for the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses, Registrar Robert McGrath called the increase "amazing" in view of restrictions.

The increase came almost entirely at the Carbondale Campus, where enrollment reached 10,311, more than 1,280 above last fall’s total. Mr. McGrath said upwards of 1,000 students did not complete registration after being admitted and that "while many may be multiple admission cases, it would seem in order to say that some did not register for lack of housing." An earlier survey had showed that some 700 students had to delay registration until winter because they ranked in the lower third of their high school classes.

Enrollment at the Edwardsville Campus (the Southwestern centers at East St. Louis and Alton) is 4,317, only a slight increase from last fall. The freshman class—hit hardest by housing and entrance requirements—grew by only 1.7 per cent, but its 5,064 students make it by far the largest student classification.

On the Carbondale Campus, the College of Education continues to top all academic units with 2,760 students, followed by the College of Liberal Arts and Science's enrollment of 2,416. The Graduate School, steadily rising in recent years, is firmly entrenched in third place with 1,110 students.

Included in the Carbondale Campus total are 670 freshmen and sophomores at the Vocational-Technical Institute at Southern Acres. Extension class registration was not complete early in October, but it was expected to fall short of last year's figure of 695 because of fewer course offerings. Registration in non-credit adult education classes from July 1 through October 4 was 1,639, running 267 ahead of the same period a year ago.

Freshmen Scholastically High

The largest freshman class in SIU history may also be one of the smartest, according to preliminary surveys.

Acting Director of Admissions Wilbur Venerable says that 74 per cent of more than 3,000 high school students admitted this fall ranked in the upper half of their graduating classes. The survey showed that 13 per cent of the students ranked in the top 10 per cent in high school and another 488 freshmen were in the top 20 per cent.

Tightened entrance requirements in effect this fall are credited for the significant upward trend in new student scholarship. High school graduates in the lower third of their classes are denied fall term admission unless they can pass a stiff series of examinations.

Some 700 new students turned away for this reason may reapply for admittance in the winter term.

Backing up Mr. Venerable's study is a preliminary report prepared by Counseling and Testing Coordinator Jack Graham for the National Merit Scholarship Commission. It shows that 2,095 students who filled out his questionnaire, 273 carried "A" averages in high school and 622 were "B" to "B plus" students.

"It would appear that 20 per cent of the incoming students scored above the national 75th percentile on entrance tests," Mr. Graham said. A full report on the freshman class is to be submitted later.

He also stated that a large number of potential transfer students were denied admission because they could not satisfy stiffened requirements. Approximately 240 lower-third freshmen have been accepted on probation after passing the special tests.

Freshmen Scholastically High

The 10,000th student enrolled at the Carbondale Campus this fall was a baseball "bonus baby" from Danville.

Steve Kelly, 20-year-old pitcher who has played in the Kansas City Athletics' farm system for the last three seasons, completed registration as a freshman and joined the record-breaking tide of students which hit the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses.

A major in physical education, Steve is married and has a three-month-old daughter. He and his family are living at Southern Hills, University apartments for married students.

This year he played for Lewiston, Idaho, a class "B" team in the Athletics' organization. Next season he will report to Kansas City's Triple-A club in Honolulu.

Escalator Still Going Up

SOUTHERN ALUMNUS
Myrl Alexander, who becomes director of the Crime Study Center in December, visited the site of the new federal prison under construction near Marion, which he helped design as assistant director of U. S. Bureau of Prisons.

SIU's New Crime Study Center

December 1 Myrl E. Alexander will take up his duties as director of SIU's new Center for the Study of Delinquency, Crime and Corrections.

As assistant director of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons in Washington, D.C., he had visited the campus last spring for a conference concerned with the need for a university-directed program in the correctional field. State and federal crime and correctional authorities met with University officials and faculty. The establishment of the center was the direct outgrowth of the discussions.

The Crime Study Center was approved by the Board of Trustees at its June meeting. Its functions were listed as fourfold—(1) training students and others for careers in correction and crime control; (2) providing conference and institute facilities for administrators in fields of criminal justice; (3) conducting and encouraging theoretical and applied research in delinquency, crime, and correction; and (4) providing advisory service to regional and national agencies requesting it. It will be the only center of its kind for study and research on the entire field of prison management and prisoner rehabilitation. In seeking and disseminating information and promoting research, it is hoped to set up one of the most complete libraries of this nature in the world.

SIU was selected as a natural base for the center since it is located in the geographical center of the nation's correctional institutions. The new federal prison under construction at Marion has been planned in great part by Mr. Alexander. He is largely responsible for creating the concept of a "research prison institution" and for designing the Marion prison in particular. One of the principal reasons for locating the experimental institution in southern Illinois was its nearness to SIU.

A large minimum-security penal farm is to be located near Vienna. A major state penitentiary is operated at Menard, and there is an Illinois Penal Farm at Vandalia. The University is within 100 miles of a future prison population of more than 5,000 inmates. It also is within reach of similar institutions in Kentucky and has cooperated in a number of studies with Anna State Hospital and Illinois Security Hospital at Chester.

The proximity of the Southwestern Illinois Campus to the St. Louis urban complex makes it ideal for services and studies dealing primarily with delinquency control and prevention, and probation and parole work.

Mr. Alexander, a 30-year veteran with the Bureau of Prisons, is recognized as a top national authority on penal administration. He has been assistant director in charge of its field operations since 1947. He has held executive assignments at the federal penitentiaries at Atlanta, Ga., and Lewisburg, Pa., served as warden of the Federal Correctional Institution in Danbury, Conn., and was chief of prisons in the Office of Military Government for Germany.

He is the author of the book, "Jail Administration," which was published in 1957, and has written numerous articles for professional publications. Mr. Alexander holds a doctor of law degree from Manchester College in Indiana.

He will be a full professor of sociology. His staff will be composed of instructors from the Departments of Sociology, Psychology, Rehabilitation, and other related fields, who will serve part-time with the center. Professors and lecturers from other institutions will be visiting teachers.

Two members of the social studies faculty at the Edwardsville Campus have been named to take part in the program. Elliott Rudwick is author of a book which will be published soon on the problems of probation and parole. Hyman H. Frankel, now on leave in Washington to the National Council on Crime and Delinquency, will return to SIU January 1.

Three graduate sociology students also will assist in the program—Walter Drew, Chester, Menard sociologist for two years; Albert Baughner '61, Carbondale; and Herb G. Naugle '60, Murphysboro.

One of the strongest proponents of an SIU-based correctional program at the preliminary meeting last spring was Joseph Lohman, former Illinois state treasurer and now dean of the School of Criminology at the University of California. He said, "There are not in the entire United States enough university resources to deal with the correction problem in one state. Southern's could be a formidable program in exploring the entire system of criminal justice."

National Camp Moves to Little Grassy

The national camp of the Outdoor Education Association, located on the Delaware River near Matamoras, Pa., last month moved to a 2,000-acre tract on Little Grassy Lake.

Lloyd B. Sharp, executive director of the association and now a professor at Southern, supervised the move involving facilities for the Pole Bridge Camp for Children and the association's national camp for adult leadership training. For many years the two camps shared a heavily wooded 750-acre tract without charge on the estate of William E. Palmer, who was a director of the association for 20 years.

At Little Grassy the transplanted children's camp will be known as the National Camp for Youth Leadership. It is located on the east shore of the lake, opposite the SIU Camp, about 10 miles from the Carbondale campus.

Moved from Pennsylvania were some 15 tons of equipment, including five Conestoga wagons, teepees and other shelters accommodating 75 to 100 persons, and a rare library of outdoor education materials.

A pioneer in the outdoor education movement, Professor Sharp was appointed to the faculty after several visits over an eight-year period as a consultant and visiting professor. He moved the association headquarters from New York to Carbondale in July of 1960, when he was appointed to the SIU Department of Recreation and Outdoor Education.

He said the programs of the Pole Bridge Camp and the National Camp would be expanded in southern Illinois, where they would be conducted on University property and could borrow upon University faculty and resources.

Tests, Tests, and More Tests --

More than 16,000 persons took written tests conducted by the Counseling and Testing Center during 1960–61, and the center graded about 80,000 tests for the University and area schools.

These included various proficiency tests, college entrance and scholarship examinations, and tests taken by adults to qualify for high school diplomas.

Coordinator Jack W. Graham also reports that more than 1,000 students with academic, vocational, and personal problems came to the center for help, and that 272 high schools invited SIU representatives to assist in pre-college counseling programs.

The center makes a counselor available at all times to the campus population of over 10,000 students. Mr. Graham says the purpose of the counseling service is "to provide a permissive atmosphere where students will feel free to express their feelings, their hopes, aspirations, and ideals, as well as their fears, apprehensions, and inadequacies."

Approved in 1954 by the American Board of Professional Standards in Vocational Counseling, the center has been granted continued endorsement by the board.

Research projects undertaken during 1960–61 included studies of students at various levels of academic progress, with specific emphasis on characteristics of the entering student, the sophomore, and graduate student.

Staff members of the center include William Gerler, associate coordinator; Thomas C. Oliver '58, M.A. '60, supervisor of testing; and Paul Engsberg, pre-college counseling. Mr. Graham has been coordinator since 1951.
Meet the Visiting Professors

A. Craig Baird comes from the State University of Iowa. Since 1925, when he joined its faculty, he has contributed significantly to the growth of speech as a separate discipline in colleges and universities. Many of the doctoral candidates whom he has advised went on to become chairmen of university speech departments. He is the author of nine books and many articles. Since 1937 he has been editor of the annual volume, Representational American Speeches.

One of the three women visiting professors is Mrs. Fannie R. Shaftel, who is instructing in the teaching of social studies in the elementary school. She is a member of the faculty of the School of Education at Stanford University. A leader in the field of teaching social studies on an elementary school level, she particularly emphasizes the teaching of American ideals. Two of the techniques she has used widely and has studied extensively are sociodrama and role-playing.

Another returnee on the program is Luis Baralt, professor, philosopher, playwright, and translator. On campus he is dividing his time between the departments of Foreign Language and Philosophy. Before the recent political upheaval in Cuba, Professor Baralt was very active in stimulating the culture of Cuba and furthering inter-American relations. He was able to promote cultural growth as professor and dean of faculty at the University of Havana and under-secretary and public secretary of public instruction of Cuba.

From Howard College in Birmingham, Ala., where he is director of the journalism department and public relations, comes Alonzo Myers. He is visiting professor of journalism, teaching courses in the various kinds of newspaper writing—news, feature, and editorial. His special interests are the history and literature of journalism, laws governing communications, and news writing.

The second woman who is a visiting professor is Laura Thompson, one of the nation’s leading anthropologists. She has had wide experience in the South Pacific, with Indian tribes of North and Central America, in Iceland, and in Europe. She has served in research with museums and governmental agencies and has been a visiting professor at the University of North Carolina, Pennsylvania State College, and Utah State University. This year at Southern she is conducting a seminar in Cultural Ecology in Oceania and offering courses in social anthropology, cultural background of education, and anthropology and modern life.

As a teacher, administrator, author, and public accountant, E. J. Fijeld brings valuable experience as visiting professor in the Department of Accounting. He is teaching auditing and accounting principles. From 1931 until his retirement in 1957, he served in several positions with the City College of New York. He was chairman of the accounting department until 1956, when he was named associate dean of graduate studies. He has maintained a limited CPA practice since 1923.

Alonzo F. Myers is well known on the Carbondale and Southwestern Illinois campuses. He has been a visiting professor at both, and he made the survey of educational needs in Madison and St. Clair counties which led to the subsequent development of residence centers at East St. Louis and Alton. He has been affiliated with New York University since 1956, serving as professor of education and chairman of the department of the National Education Association in 1947–48, a lecturer at Yale two years, and in 1959 recipient of the Great Teacher Award of the Alumni Federation of New York University.

In the spring C. E. Wylie will be visiting professor in the Department of Animal Industries. During his 45 years with the University of Tennessee, he was responsible for the development and growth of its dairy department. He was the first and only chairman until his retirement last year. His special interests are dairy science and public relations in agriculture and in these fields he has written 40 technical bulletins, reports, and articles and 65 popular magazine articles and reports. He will teach courses in feeds and feeding here.

Freeman Glenn Macomber, associate provost at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, has experience at all levels of education. Recently he has conducted studies in large group teaching. Among his latest publications are "Psychological Factors in Education," "Teaching in the Modern Secondary School," and "Principles of Teaching in the Elementary School." Here on campus he is offering courses in high school curriculum, school administration, and teaching at college and university level.

Visiting Professor of Sociology in the Division of Area Services is Raymond E. Wakeley, professor emeritus of sociology at Iowa State University. His studies of population change and migration have gained him renown as a rural sociologist. His career in education began as a county agent for the Agricultu­ral Extension Service of Pennsylvania State University. He will study the 1960 census figures for southern Illinois and conduct research in ecology and demography for the Division of Area Services.

Courses in business organization and management will be offered in the Department of Management by Visiting Prof. Karl E. Leib, professor emeritus of the University of Iowa. While at Iowa, he was professor of commerce and head of the department of labor and management. He holds a doctor of jurisprudence from Stanford University. His major interests include administrative relations, business organization and administration, evaluation and development of industry, and national economic planning.

A husband and wife have come from England to be visiting professors—David and Mary Niddrie. Mr. Niddrie is an exchange professor with Prof. Robert Harper, chairman of the SIU Department of Geography. Prof­essor Niddrie, from Manchester University, spent the summer at the University of Puerto Rico and on tour in the Caribbean as far south as Venezuela. He is offering courses in physical geography, the geography of Africa and of the Caribbean, and geomorphology.

Mrs. Niddrie is visiting professor of French in the De­partment of Foreign Languages. Native of England, she holds degrees from Natal University of South Africa. Since 1951 she has been head of the French department and senior modern languages teacher in the Eccles Gram­mar School in Manchester.
University Book Store
Has New Home in University Center

New home of the University Book Store is located on the ground floor of University Center.

and Ramelle Collie, junior in elementary education from Cape Girardeau, Mo., browse through the well-stocked shelves in the book section.

Manager J. Carl Trobaugh '48

The University Book Store has found a permanent home and settled down to serving the thousands of students, faculty, staff, and visitors on campus. Just inside the north entrance of University Center, in the northeast corner of the ground floor, the store occupies attractive, well-lighted, and modern quarters.

Just about anytime you visit the store, you'll find customers browsing through the thousands of books on the racks and shelves or making purchases of toothpaste, pencils, greeting cards, or souvenirs. But at the be-ingning of a term, it's a beehive of activity with scarcely room to turn as students clamor for necessary supplies.

Manager of the University Book Store is genial Joseph Carl Trobaugh
'48. He grew up with the store, starting as a student in 1937 when it was located in Room 103 in Parkinson Laboratory. In 1942 he became manager. In 1957 the book store was moved to the barracks structure adjoining Wheeler Hall.

Mr. Trobaugh's father is just a stone's throw away, operating a tiny food store in the east end of the School of Business barracks.

Assisting Mr. Trobaugh is Mrs. Lloyd L. Patheal (Naomi Reid Patheal '58), who joined the staff in July after serving as librarian of Carbondale Community High School.
A lot of time, energy, and patience goes into the planning and preparation of Homecoming house decorations and parade floats. Here are pictures of the Bowyer Hall coeds hard at work on their house decorations, "Dial 'M' for Murder," which won first place in the women's singles category.
are Leland (Doc) Lingle '21-27, who hasn't missed a single celebration since the first was inaugurated in 1921, and Glenn (Abe) Martin '32, who has attended every one since his first in 1929.

The weatherman did not cooperate as well as he might have, sending raw dreary weather for the weekend after weeks of sunny crisp days. But the gaiety and bright atmosphere of the campus dispelled any gloom or sagging spirits.

The Homecoming program opened Wednesday night with the traditional pep rally and bonfire on the south end of the campus. Several students and a police dog had stood guard to prevent any premature conflagration.

House decorations competition was won by Tau Kappa Epsilon, Brown and Steagall Halls, College View Dorm, and Bowyer Hall from among the 30 entries.

The Homecoming Play, Tennessee Williams' "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," opened the theater season with a powerful and emotion-packed performance. For the first time in the theater department's history, all seats for the eight performances were sold. All 1,100 season tickets also are sold.

The Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra also opened its season with the annual Homecoming Concert on Saturday night under the direction of Carmine Ficocelli. Violinist Carroll Glenn, wife of pianist Eugene List, was guest artist.

Coffees and receptions were held all during Homecoming Day by various schools, departments, and organizations.

A sumptuous and decorative buffet luncheon was served in the University Ballroom Saturday before the game.

All was not play during the weekend. Meetings were held by the Alumni Association Board of Directors with President John Lester Bu ford '24-28 presiding, and by the SIU Foundation Board of Trustees, President Charles S. Mayfield '39 presiding.

Winner of first place in the men's floats category in the Homecoming parade was Theta Xi's "Showboat."

Delta Chi's "Anything Goes" won second place in the men's single division for Homecoming house decorations.

On Sunday the Student Christian Foundation dedicated its new building on South Illinois Avenue. The modern wood and glass structure is the first of two units of the foundation.

Registering in University Center the morning of Homecoming were Mr. and Mrs. Ira W. Shelton '23-2 (Mabel Slack, ex '23), of Troy, Ohio.

Mrs. A. R. MacMillan (at far left) pours for guests Virginia Herren, Springfield; Blanche Wonnell, Carbondale; Sylvia Revak, Carbondale; and Pam Klein, Collinsville, at the Dames Club tea Homecoming afternoon.

At left are Leland (Doc) Lingle '21-2, '27, and popular comedian Dick Gregory, ex '56, snapped at the Homecoming game. Doc has attended every one of the 40 SIU homecomings and is a former track coach of Dick Gregory, who took time out from a St. Louis appearance at the Crystal Palace to attend.
Although shutout victims of a rugged Drake eleven in their second outing of the year, Southern's Saluki grid-ders appear to be well on the way to another standout campaign in their third season under Coach Carmen Piccone.

The Salukis, who lost only to Bowling Green and Ohio University during a record-breaking 1960 season, have picked right up where they left off despite being handicapped by several costly early-season injuries. Displaying improved defensive strength, the Salukis blanked Missouri Mines 44-0 in their opener before losing a 7-0 decision to Drake. Another whitewash job, this one 18-0 over Central Michigan, followed prior to a record-smashing 35-6 triumph over Northern Illinois. The win over NIU's Huskies was Southern's 12th straight in Interstate Conference competition which have been collected over a three-year period. After dropping the first two league contests in 1959, Piccone's first at the helm, the Salukis bounced back to win their next four. A perfect loop record extended the streak to 10 last season, and two this fall in their first two outings enabled Southern to post the coveted mark.

An 8-2 record is difficult to improve upon, but Piccone and his chief aides, Bob Franz and Harry Shay, are hopeful of equalling it, or perhaps even bettering it. The November 18 battle with Bowling Green shapes up as one of the biggest grid attractions ever to be held in McAndrew Stadium. The Falcons, extended two years ago in their first meeting with Southern, won handily last fall, but have much respect for the Salukis. Their 1960 offensive ace, Bernie Casey, was big gun for this year's College All-Stars and admitted to Houston Antwine, former SIU star lineman and also a member of the All-Star squad, that his teammates suffered their worst physical beating at the hands of the Salukis. However, the Salukis themselves are becoming somewhat concerned with their rapidly-growing injury list. First Ron Winter, varsity quarterback, was sidelined for three weeks with a dislocated shoulder. Then Shaun Hawthorne, first-string center, was forced to call it quits because of recurring head injuries. Next serious casualty was Capt. Paul Brostrom, who also was ordered to drop the sport due to a head injury. Now Frank Imperiale, who replaced Brostrom, may be lost for the remainder of the campaign.

With Winter and Bullocks in the backfield, the Salukis possess fine power and poise. Winter, who missed the Drake game, has looked exceptionally sharp in his few appearances this season and rocked Northern Illinois with a 43-yard first-down pass play which many felt was the turning point in what could have been a nip-and-tuck contest.

With several sophomores coming through in fine fashion, however, and veterans in the line continuing their splendid performances of a year ago, Southern's success has been largely a team effort. Bullocks has been the offensive workhorse, just as he was a year ago when he gained 996 yards in 184 carries with the ball. This season after four games he had collected 372 yards in 78 trips for a 4.8 average.

Charles Lerch, Clarkboro, N.J., senior halfback, has picked up 230 yards for a 5.0 average, the same as Winter, although the latter had carried only 13 times. Dennis Harley, Peoria junior, has a 5.3 average; Charles Hamilton, Herrin junior, a 4.5 mark; and Jerry Frerick, St. Louis sophomore, a 4.0 average. As a team the Salukis hold a wide margin over their opponents. After four games they had gained 1,016 yards rushing to their opponents' 375, held a 293 to 203 passing edge, and an 82 to 39 advantage in first downs.

And, the first half of SIU's 1961 schedule was expected to be tougher than the second half, with the lone exception of Bowling Green, which just this summer was promoted to "major" football status by the Football Writers Association of America.

Southern's cross country team, paced by several holdovers from last year's undefeated squad and aided by the addition of Jim Dupree, Pompano Beach, Fla., is anticipating another fine season under the direction of Coach Lew Hartzog.

Although nosed out in their first meet of the fall season by the University of Kansas, Hartzog was generally well pleased with the Salukis' efforts and feels his outfit will have little difficulty in successfully defending its Interstate Conference title.

In losing to Kansas by a meager five points, Dupree was third; Joe Thomas, Uniontown, Pa., fourth; John Flamer, Yonkers, N.Y., sixth; Lee King, Pleasant Plains, seventh; and Mike Brazier, Moro, eleventh.

Missouri also participated in the same meet and finished a poor third.

Double Treat for Football Fans This Fall

Football fans have received a double treat at McAndrew Stadium this fall. Not only have they watched Coach Carmen Piccone's husky squad perform in winning style but they also have been treated to Band Director Donald Canedy's 135 Marching Salukis' "New Concept" in musical entertainment.

Unlike anything seen or heard in marching bands anywhere, the Marching Salukis have caused comment far and wide. They've been viewed by the nation, appearing on television hookup via NBC and CBS October 15 with other bands at the Chicago Bears-Baltimore Colts professional football game in Chicago. They presented such a fine program on TV that the Illinois House of Representatives, during a special session of the General Assembly, passed a resolution commending them. Representative Ralph Stevenson, of Moline, introduced the resolution.

The "new sound," which was introduced in part last year, is built strongly on jazz rhythms. A group of new instruments has been added, including specially-constructed percussion carts containing tuned bongos, snares, and xylophones. New arrangements have been done by Glen Daum, senior music major from Centralia.

The "new look" features three different colored uniforms. The woodwinds wear black jackets, the brasses red and the percussionists Wallace plaid. The dinner jackets sport shawl collars. All wear black tuxedo trousers and black Hombergs.

One of the numbers in the new repertoire is "Saluki Men," a fight song written by Director Canedy and Pete Brown, of Information Service.

Fifth Year for Alumni Awards

Alumni Day 1962 will mark the fifth year for presentation of SIU Alumni Achievement Awards. Since the first group of alumni were so honored in 1958, 21 men have been chosen. They include Dr. Bennett Y. Alvis '08-2, Dr. Percival Bailey '12, Dr. James W. Barrow '08-2, Dr. Eugene M. Bricker, ex '30, Dr. Leo J. Brown '32, Richard G. Browne '19-2, Robert B. Browne '13-2, '18, Donald L. Bryant '40, John Lester Buford '24-2, '28, Warren Gladders, ex '37, Robert Hamilton '22-2, Gen. John R. Hodge, ex '14, Aubrey J. Holmes '35, Dean E. E. While Southern has many distinguished alumni, only a few are singled out each year for recognition and tribute. Who these people are is up to members of the Alumni Association primarily. They nominate the alumni to be honored. Deadline for these nominations is February 15.

Although only men have received the awards thus far, both men and women are eligible for nomination. Alumni—men and women—are recognized for two kinds of service—for achievement in the business or professional world and for service to the University, to the Alumni Association, or both. Any alumnus or former student, with the exception of the present faculty and Board of Trustees and the current president of the association, can be nominated.

Start thinking now of your nominations. Send in as complete a biographical sketch of them as you can by February 15 to Robert Odaniell, Alumni Office, Carbondale.

Alumni Achievement Award citations and keys are presented to the winners at the Alumni Banquet on Alumni Day June 9.

Almost "Queen For A Day"

Mrs. Delbert Daschner (Roberta Jane Atkins '52), Martinton, one day last spring was almost "queen for a day." She was one of four final candidates on Jack Bailey's "Queen for a Day" TV program when it appeared in Chicago and was viewed over Channel Seven.

From over 5,000 women who attended the show at the Uptown Theater in Chicago, Mrs. Daschner was one of 21 "possible queens" selected for appearance on the show because of the wishes they submitted on their tickets. Little did Mrs. Daschner dream she would appear on the show when she applied for admission tickets at her grocery store.

On her ticket she wrote her "wish" in verse form—a wish for a registered Hereford bull for their farm to help raise the price of their calves and supplement their crop income. From the 21 names selected, a panel of the cast chose four names and from the four who appeared as the royal court, a queen was named.

Although she was not selected as queen that day, Mrs. Daschner received many prizes, a great thrill from the experience, and a lot of fun. She got an orchid, a food slicer, a mixerette, a hair dryer, some blouses, and tickets for the flower and garden show at McCormick Place. Visits, phone calls, and cards and letters by the score arrived at the Daschner farm after "Mama" became a TV celebrity.

And she received top rating from her five children—Arla, Danny, Barbie, Laurie, and Kenny. After they saw her on television, they put her right up there on top with Captain Kangaroo and Bugs Bunny, about as high as any TV personality can get.

The Transportation Problem

Parking permits were issued this fall to over 1,750 faculty and staff members and 2,506 students to park in some 1,750 parking spaces in 25 campus lots. Decals in blue, red, silver, and green indicate type of parking permit and parking lot sign posts are painted in the various colors to indicate who can park there. The ruling banning student cars on campus still is in effect with only graduate students, married students, commuters, and special cases being excepted. Gates have been installed across Harwood Avenue and at the northeast corner of University Center to block streets from automobile traffic because of the increasing pedestrian traffic. The Security Office is offering a voluntary bicycle registration system to help protect the increasing number of bicycles on campus...

The student bus service inaugurated last year to provide transportation to students living a great distance from campus again is offered this year. Students, faculty, and staff members presenting University identification can ride for a dime. Last year the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce co-sponsored the service with the Student Council and helped subsidize it the first quarter. Since then the council alone has sponsored it.

Saluki Patrol at SWIC

Four students at the East St. Louis Center and three at the Alton Center comprise the new Saluki Patrol at the Southwestern Illinois Campus. They assist in parking lots, provide information to visitors, issue guest parking permits, check SIU vehicles for needed service, check on outside lights, signs, and ground conditions in general and insure that entrances to buildings and grounds are open on schedule... The Alton campus held its Homecoming the week of October 29 with a pep rally, dance, and Halloween parade.
