Repeat Performance

We have certainly enjoyed the past three seasons of camping at Little Grassy. Both of us and our two boys, Barkley and Mark, consider it a great privilege and a lot of fun. You can count on us again this summer.

Recognition to Teachers

When we graduated in 1897 no degrees were given but since some normal schools in the East gave the degree Ped. D. to their graduates after they had taught successfully for a number of years, some thought that the Southern Illinois University after being empowered to grant degrees would honor their graduates.

Graduates who have devoted many years to teaching would appreciate some recognition. Then too there are, no doubt, some who have Masters Degrees in Education who could offer many years of teaching in lieu of further courses leading to a Doctor’s Degree in Education.

In my own case I was admitted to the Graduate School of the University of Illinois after I had received the degree A.B. from Eureka College in 1900. I received a Life State Certificate by examination from the State Superintendent of Public Instruction in 1907. My A.M. in Education and History was secured in 1911. I was granted the degree Litt. D. by Iowa Christian College in 1918. I took additional graduate work in Education, in History and in English from the University of Illinois. I taught forty-seven years in the public schools before I retired. I was Principal of a Township High, Superintendent of Schools and a Professor in a State Teachers College. I hold the Honorary Degree Ph.D. which I was granted by Burton Seminary in 1956.

An Esteemed Honor

... I am pleased that I can come to accept an Alumni Achievement Award on June 9 and that Mrs. Wells can accompany me. The award is an important and esteemed honor that I shall always treasure. The keystone of this miracle is, of course, the spark which Southern struck for me when I was young. We all stand on the shoulders of those who have pointed the way. In sharing this new glory with the others, one regrets only his own shortcomings.

... I want to add a word of appreciation of the Alumni Association and of Southern Illinois University. The growth and stature of both fill me with pride.

Disapproves of Administration

I hesitated to renew my membership as I don’t like the way the University is run but I like my old gang of 1915. Now they are hiring egghead Ph.D.’s that dote on crazy testing, counseling by busybodies, and a minus system of eliminating students.

What we need down there is a faculty of devoted teachers.

World Voyage Interrupted

After 45,000 miles in Iceland, the Arctic, and Europe, I’m home. I had planned to encircle the globe; however, complications set in in Denmark.

I finished the Scandinavian countries (filming) and then down into Germany, Switzerland, and Austria. I completed quite a film on Grossglockner in Austria. Climbed all 13,500 feet of it. Spent three weeks in the Austrian Alps filming and climbing.

I had to return then to Sweden on business, and it was on my way back that I met with my wonderful fatal accident in Denmark. I met a wonderful Danish girl, this was in September, and on January 10 she took my name in marriage. She was a hostess for Scandinavian Airlines and resided in Copenhagen.

We just returned to this country two weeks ago, thereby interrupting my world voyage and squelching rumors concerning my bachelorhood. We will make our home in St. Petersburg.

The four Alumni Achievement Award winners—from left, Prof. Lemen J. Wells '26-2, '27, Miss Mary E. Entsminger '13-2, John W. Allen '22-2, and Prof. Earl Young Smith '21-2, '23—beamed proudly and happily as they read their citations and received congratulations from those attending the Alumni Banquet June 9.

Professor Wells came from the University of Minnesota Medical School in St. Paul, his second trip to campus since graduation, to be cited for his work in anatomy as a teacher, researcher, and writer. He has held Guggenheim, Carnegie, Fulbright, and National Institutes of Health fellowships.

Miss Entsminger, who moved back to Carbondale recently after a few years in Florida, was recognized for her many years of devoted service to the association and as a teacher and supervisor in University School for 35 years. She is the first alumna to receive an achievement award.

Mr. Allen, “Mr. Southern Illinois” to countless people, was honored for his numerous achievements in Illinois history and journalism. An everlasting curiosity about things and places and people keeps him ever young.

Professor Young is noted for his work in the field of poultry breeding. As associate professor of poultry husbandry and a researcher in turkey breeding at New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell, he developed a new and improved breed of turkey, the Empire White turkey. Professor Young did not bring along any of his prize turkeys, having traveled from his home in Maitland, Fla.

Citations and pins were presented the four winners at the banquet. Their names have been added to the roster of 21 other alumni who have been selected for honors for professional achievement or service to the University and the association during the five years of the program.
Scientist-Writer Named LAS Dean

Dean Piper

On July 1 Henry Dan Piper became dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, ending a five-year search for a successor to T. W. Abbott, retired dean and professor of chemistry. Dean Piper also is professor of English.

A 44-year-old native of Haskell, N. J., the new dean comes from California Institute of Technology, where he was professor of English and American studies and member of the faculty 10 years.

His is an interesting and varied background combining science and the humanities. He is a former research chemist, industrial consultant, and author of works on novelist F. Scott Fitzgerald.

Dean Piper holds a bachelor's degree in chemistry from Princeton and a Ph.D. in American studies from University of Pennsylvania. He has taught at Columbia University, worked as a research supervisor in high explosives for du Pont, and served as special assistant to the director of the atomic energy project at Oak Ridge, Tenn., writing the administrative history of atomic research operations for the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission.

In 1953 he taught in France on a Fulbright professorship and in 1957 was a Guggenheim Fellow. He has been a consultant to Technical Communications, Inc., of Los Angeles and developed communications procedures for Shell Oil Company and Union Oil Company.

Dean Piper is author of "F. Scott Fitzgerald: A Candid Portrait," and has completed a study of Fitzgerald which now is in press. He also is working on a drama collection and an edition of the manuscript of "The Great Gatsby" for publication.

With the appointment of Dean Piper, Talbert W. Abbott will achieve permanent retirement. He had planned to retire last fall after 17 years as Liberal Arts and Sciences dean and 33 years as a faculty member but stayed on as acting dean until a successor was appointed. He also had served as acting dean of academic affairs before the appointment of William McKeefery as dean.

Accreditation Received

A school and a department have recently received accreditation.

The School of Business has been granted membership in the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business, an organization of top collegiate schools of business in the nation. To be accepted by the AACSB a school must have high quality instruction in course work covering seven areas—accounting, business law, finance, marketing, statistics, economics, and management.

The Department of Psychology has received accreditation from the American Psychological Association. The accreditation covers all instructional areas of the department but was granted basically for its clinical psychology program.

Commencement at Two SIU Campuses

On a lovely June evening 1,180 students—SIU’s largest graduating class to date—received degrees in McAndrew Stadium on the Carbondale Campus. It also was Southern’s first televised commencement, the first remote live telecast by WSIU-TV.

Henry Allen Moe, president of the Guggenheim Memorial Foundation of New York, was the speaker. He advised “let quality be your watchword, let quality be your motto, let quality be emblazoned on your coat of arms . . . . The main point is quality—quality of intellectual effort, quality of what is accomplished, quality of the intellectual product.”

Dr. Moe, father of Christian Moe, assistant dean of the School of Communications, added a bright note on the platform in his red wool gown of the Doctor of Civil Law of the University of Oxford in England.

He was awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters as was Douglas Bush, professor of English literature at Harvard and distinguished writer. Ross V. Randolph, warden of Menard Penitentiary and nationally recognized correctional administrator, received a distinguished service award.

Commencement at the Edwardsville Campus was June 14 with 218 bachelor degrees being conferred by President Morris. Ceremonies were held in a natural amphitheater near the central academic core of the campus.

Speaker was John Schwada, dean of faculties of the University of Missouri, who spoke on the growing excellence of the training and the faculty offered today by colleges.

During the afternoon of the Carbondale Commencement two cornerstone laying ceremonies were held—for the College of Education Building and for the Physical Education and Military Training Building.

Research, Instruction, Administration Served by

Data Processing and Computing Center

Where once dishes clattered and the pungent smell of cooking permeated the air, now the hum of machines and the language of statistics is heard in the old cafeteria on the Carbondale Campus.

This is the home of the Data Processing and Computing Center, which came into being last summer with the combining of Statistical Services and the Computer Center. Work was started immediately on renovating the cafeteria and in March the center officially opened its doors.

Director of the center is John W. Hamblen, an old hand at organizing such programs, for he set up electronic data processing centers at the University of Kentucky and Oklahoma State University. Assisting him are two men who worked with the two former segments—Philip J. Cochrane, once research associate in charge of Statistical Services and now manager of the data processing division, and William F. Blose, once a research assistant in charge of the computer center and now manager of the computing division. On the Edwardsville Campus Paul R. Tarpey is in charge of its center.

Three Functions of Center

The Data Processing and Computing Center has three functions—to serve research, instructional, and operational needs of the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses. Its projects are so numerous and so varied that probably few people, on and off campus, realize the major role it plays in university life.

Because the University is a big business and growing bigger every day, the center is able to perform many operational functions quickly and efficiently. Streamlining administrative operations is a prime project of the center's research and development program.

Right now the center is working on next fall's registration, probably the biggest job on its schedule. Then there are payrolls to compute, mailing lists to be made, campus directory to be issued, plus any number of routine chores such as vouchers for the chief accountant, reports for the housing office and campus telephone service.

In the instructional phase, courses are offered by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (Department of Mathematics teaches programming for digital computers, numerical analysis, probability, multivariate analysis, statistical inference), the School of Technology (Department of Applied Science has courses in electronics and in communications and Department of Industrial Education offers a course in electronic systems), and the School of Business (Department of Accounting teaches accounting systems and electronic data processing in business, Department of Economics teaches mathematical economics, and Department of Management teaches programming for digital computers and administrative management).

Where administrative operations and instruction are the meat and potatoes on the menu, the research phase is the dessert, the highlight of the meal. Research, performed by faculty and graduate students, falls into several categories—non-supported research, campus-supported research, and off campus-supported research.

Variety of Research Studies

Subjects of research projects cover a wide range—for example, for the Climatology Laboratory, the climate of southern Illinois; for the Cooperative Forestry Research Center, white oak growth study; for University School, reading interests and habits of 12th graders; for Mississippi Valley Investigations, phytosocial Wabash River flora. Calculations for such studies, which used to take months, even years, of drawn-out, tedious work, now, with the computer, might take only a few hours, days, or months.

There is no charge for use of the center’s facilities in connection with independent and university-sponsored research which is supported by funds in regular budget appropriations. However, a regulatory or service department serving agencies or individuals outside the university is expected to pay for the center’s services, particularly when the work is more of a record-keeping nature than research.

And what of these miracle machines, the heart of the Data Processing and Computing Center? The personnel talk glibly of the 1401, the 1620, the old 650. These numbers refer to the International Business Machine electronic data processing machines which SIU rents.

The 1401 is equipped with 8,000 positions of core storage, six magnetic tape units, an 800-card per minute reader, and a 600-line per minute printer. The six magnetic tape reels, each capable of memorizing and storing some five million characters on each of its 2,400-foot reels, can store the same amount of information that required 75,000 cards of the punch card system of the 650 machine. The tapes solve the card handling problem of a card system.

The 1620 computer has 40,000 positions of storage, punched card input/output, and can solve problems four times faster than the 650. It performs more complex work, opening new research possibilities in many specialized areas.
These machines replace the “old 650,” which was installed in 1958. This largely obsolete machine read 200 cards per minute, had a capacity of 2,000 ten-digit numbers, and was a vacuum-tube machine.

Edwardsville Center

A 1401 card system also is located on the Edwardsville Campus. It, along with the Carbondale machines, would cost $630,000 to purchase. The University rents them from IBM under their 60 per cent educational allowance program for use for research and instruction—or less than half the cost to commercial users. In order to qualify for this program, the machines must be used for at least 88 hours per month for unsponsored research and instruction. Fully transistorized, the new machines require less power and air conditioning than would be needed for comparable vacuum-tube machines.

Because of the work load of the center, frequent gratis users of the machines for research purposes are expected to learn how to operate them. Individual instruction and short courses are given to faculty and graduate students. Often the machines are used during the nighttime hours, on weekends, and on holidays. A schedule must be followed in order that all work can be accomplished.

Visitors, Users Welcome

The esprit de corps of the staff of 44 at Carbondale and nine at Edwardsville is shown in the eagerness to serve and please, the pride in the center. Visitors receive a friendly welcome and an interesting tour of the plant.

Because electronic machines can only solve problems when information is submitted in workable order, data must be compiled and programs written. This is the first step in computer calculation. Two classes of carefully selected high school students from Carbondale, Mt. Vernon, and Herrin have been taught programming in Saturday classes during the past year by William Blose.

It is the feeling of the center that within the next five years electronic data processing machines will become so much a part of daily living that all college graduates should have some knowledge of their uses and capabilities. There is no escaping automation.

The present setup at the Data Processing and Computing Center is but the intermediate step toward a larger and more complete system necessary to handle the ever-increasing administrative needs of both campuses—in addition to the research and instructional demands. This means the addition of the IBM 7040 by 1965. Meanwhile, at the Edwardsville Campus, a data preparatory division and a computing division will be added during 1963-64.

Director Hamblen foresees the day when lightning-quick computers with their enormous faculties of memorizing and retrieving information can “utilize the complete resources of the University in terms of staff time and space to build a master class schedule, according to the needs of the student body.” He feels that the center at Southern can provide some pioneer-
Here is a pictorial review of Alumni Day 1962 held June 9 on the Carbondale Campus. Activities were divided between Muckelroy Auditorium in the Agriculture Building, where the Legislative Council met for the first time, and University Center, where Alumni Day was held for the second time.

An even 50 classes were represented at the Legislative Council meeting, from the Class of 1895 to the Class of 1961. Representatives heard reports of the several committees of the Alumni Board of Directors. President J. L. Buford '24-28, presided.

Members of the Golden Reunion Class of 1912 received 50-year certificates and new life members of the Alumni Association received life membership certificates at the President's luncheon in the University Center Ballroom.

Miss Marjorie Lawrence, former New York Metropolitan Opera star and now SIU research professor of music, delayed leaving campus to appear on the banquet program. President D. W. Morris, who had just returned the evening before from a world tour, reported on the university for 1961-1962.

Irish English Instructor

“Great Teacher” for 1962

A redhaired Irish lecturer in the Department of English is the “Great Teacher” for 1962. For Thomas E. Cassidy, member of the faculty since 1958, this is a spring he long will remember.

At the Spring Festival in May he was named “Most Popular Faculty Member” by the students. Then when he was nominated “Great Teacher” for 1962 by alumni and graduating seniors and selected for the honor, he said his “cup runneth over.”

Native of Kings Park, L.I., N.Y., Mr. Cassidy received bachelor and master degrees from the University of Notre Dame. He has done doctoral work at Harvard and Columbia. Before he came to Southern, he taught at St. John’s in Minnesota, Wisconsin State College at Whitewater, Notre Dame, and Fordham University.

During World War II he enlisted as a private in the U.S. Army in 1942 and was discharged in 1946 as a major. He served with the Third Armored Division in Europe and was decorated by the United States, British, French, and Belgium governments.

A Dedicated Teacher

There is little doubt that Mr. Cassidy loves teaching, teaching English, and people.

When asked about his organizational affiliations, he admitted he was not a “joiner”—he guessed he was just too busy teaching to join groups. This love for teaching was evident to the people who nominated him—

Mr. Cassidy, in my opinion, is the example after which I, as a new teacher, would want to pattern my life. To him teaching is “life” and this fact is quite obvious in his class. Therefore, I recommend him for this award not only because he is the greatest teacher I have ever known but the greatest man also.

Mr. Cassidy is deserving of the Great Teacher Award not only for his more than capable and adequate work in the classroom; but also for his excellent service to students, both individual and groups, outside of class.

Always ready to give a helping hand in class or out of class. A true teacher who has the student interest at heart.

Fabulous instructor. Has entire class in his hands. Very interesting and makes you want to learn more.

He loves his teaching subject. Here at Carbondale he has classes in English composition and grammar, fiction, and introduction to drama—and especially enjoys the drama course. Another great interest is his class of prisoners at Menard Penitentiary, which he has had since 1959. He also has taught extension classes in Anna-Jonesboro, Flora, and Mt. Vernon.

Tom Cassidy loves people. He served as faculty adviser to the Student Council from 1959 to 1961, as resident adviser to Tau Kappa Epsilon from 1959 to 1961, and as residence halls council adviser during 1961-62.

SOUTHERN ALUMNUS
A Lifetime for Learning

by David T. Kenney ’47, M.S. ’48, Assistant Dean, Graduate School; Chairman, SIU Alumni Board of Directors Continuing Education Committee

The magnitude of adult illiteracy in the United States was revealed this year when study by a committee of the U. S. Congress found nearly 12 million adult Americans to be illiterate by definition. That number have not finished six grades of schooling or are unable to read or write in English.

Such a disclosure is a shocking indictment of the performance in education of a democracy which has professed since its establishment to be devoted to the ideal of learning. Awareness of the extent of the problem has increased interest in the Congress and among state governing bodies in new programs designed to reduce illiteracy among adults.

But the training of illiterates does not represent the only kind of formal education for grownups in which interest is currently growing in the United States. Continuing education of already well-trained adults is becoming increasingly important in a dynamic, technological society—both for the development and perfection of previously acquired skills and for the mastery of new areas of learning, of importance for vocational or recreational purposes.

We can be sure that none of the graduates or former students of Southern Illinois University are numbered among the 12 million adult illiterates in the United States today, but we can also be equally certain that there is a vast need for continuing education among the alumni of SIU.

It is to this need for continuing education among its actual and potential members that the SIU Alumni Association has decided to give an increased attention. During the academic year just ended its board of directors formed a Continuing Education Committee. Its calibre is indicated by inclusion among its membership of such persons as George T. Wilkins, state superintendent of public instruction; Bert Casper, well-known southern Illinois school administrator; and William J. Tudor, director of the SIU Division of Area Services.

After study of the problems and possibilities of adult education among SIU alumni, the committee recommended, and the board approved, a program aimed at stimulating greater interest and participation by alumni in the educational program of the University.

Continuing education of adults beyond the usual student experience is currently conducted by the University through its Divisions of Extension, and Technical and Adult Education. Both Dean Raymond Dey of the former and Dean Ernest J. Simon of the latter have expressed keen interest in the Alumni Association plan aimed at increasing alumni participation in their programs. Both have an enthusiastic appreciation of the impact which organized alumni may come to have on the scheduling of courses—of all kinds—in the continuing education field offered by Southern.

The possibilities are almost limitless.

At the request or suggestion of individuals or groups of alumni, in county, area, or professional or vocational units, the University will consider the scheduling of a great variety of offerings. The range is great—from the single lecture or program without academic credit through the one- or two-day conference, the workshop and short course, and the 10- to 12-week non-credit course meeting once each week, to the full 16-week extension-type course carrying graduate or undergraduate credit.

Such work might be in the most ancient academic tradition, or might be expressly designed to help alumni meet and solve contemporary problems of any sort—professional, vocational, semi-technical, technical, political and economic, or social and recreational. Regular staff or special staff, as well as distinguished and visiting professors, might be used in the presentation of such offerings.

And programs or courses might be presented on the campus, or wherever in the world alumni need and interest, and University resources, can be combined to make them possible. Radio or television, as well as face-to-face contact, might be made the medium for such instruction.

Such services by universities to their alumni and other interested persons are, of course, not new in this country. As one example, Tulane University of New Orleans has offered in recent years such opportunities as one-day programs on “The Labor-Management Act of 1959” and “Mineral and Tidelands Law” through its School of Law;

An attractive 10-game schedule, an abundance of high-quality returning lettermen, and Coach Carmen Piccone's eagerness toward facing six new opponents promise to provide an interesting season for SIU football fans this fall.

The Salukis open their season with three straight road games before playing three in a row at home and winding up with alternating Saturday afternoon dates in McAndrew Stadium. Opening against Texas A. & I., Southern meets Drake and Central Michigan prior to its home inaugural October 13 when Hillsdale, a highly-regarded small college, provides the opposition.

17 At Bowling Green, Ohio
24 North Texas State, 1:30 P.M.

Lincoln University of Jefferson City, Mo., will call here the following week for the second annual Shrine game with Homecoming activities highlighting the weekend of October 26-28 when Illinois State Normal University invades.

The Salukis travel to Northern Michigan the following week with Fort Campbell, a top-ranking service team which is expected to be led by several former collegiate stars, scheduled to play here November 10. Southern then meets tough Bowling Green on the Falcons' field November 17 and closes against North Texas State the following Saturday in McAndrew Stadium.

Both Texas opponents, Hillsdale, Lincoln, Northern Michigan, and Fort Campbell are newcomers on Southern's card as Piccone's squad will be the University's first athletic team to face an "independent" schedule. (SIU's withdrawal from the Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference became effective June 30.)

Despite losing a pair of the finest backs ever to perform for Southern, Piccone is hopeful of finding adequate replacements for Ron Winter and Amos Bullocks and is depending upon a tougher defense to make up for any possible weakness.

Only two teams—Western Illinois and Bowling Green—were able to score as many as three touchdowns against the Salukis a year ago, but the 1962 outfit has given every indication it will be even better. A bevy of big linemen assure good strength at the guard and tackle positions while four veteran ends, including team captain Charles O'Neil, also are returning from last year's club.

Six Lettermen for Halfback

Piccone also has six lettermen battling for halfback positions as well as a pair of veterans at each the quarterback and fullback spots.

"It's going to be a real tough season," Piccone said, "but I'm sure we'll be able to provide good competition for all of our opponents as long as the boys maintain the same spirit they displayed in spring drills. Without a doubt, our spring practice this year was the best I have ever seen at Southern and this was due almost entirely to the highly competitive battles being waged for first-team positions," he added.

Win Nine IIAC Titles

Winning nine of the 10 championships for the second straight year, Southern completed its 13-year tenure in the IIAC this spring by capturing baseball, track, and tennis titles.

Saluki football, cross country, basketball, swimming, wrestling, and gymnastics teams claimed six straight crowns earlier in the school year and only a third place in the golf championships prevented the unprecedented 10-sport sweep.

Coach Glenn (Abe) Martin's baseballers won three straight games at Eastern Michigan in the season's final series to assure themselves of a fifth straight pennant. They had little difficulty, however, operating efficiently behind the steady pitching of Larry Tucker and Harry Gurley. Tucker led league pitchers with a 6-0 record while Gurley posted the top earned-run average of .846 while winning four and losing one.

Leading hitters during Southern's 17-8 season included Glen Bischof with 17 hits in 43 times at bat for a .395 average, Dave Leonard (27-89-.303), Mel Patton (34-113-.301), and Duke Sutton (37-125-.296). Bob Hardcastle led the team in runs scored with 27 and Mike Pratte posted the most impressive fielding percentage. Mel Patton equalled his perfect 1.000 figure in handling 43 chances, 114 fewer than the sophomore catcher.

Trackmen Run Away with Meet

Coach Lew Hartzog's track team easily dominated the conference meet by winning eight of the 15 events. Bill Cornell established a new league record in the mile run (4:11.3), Jim Dupree in the 880-yard run (1:52.6), and Jim Gualdoni in the broad jump...
(24'1") while Ed Houston (440, 47.9), Bob Green (120-yard high hurdles, 14.7), Sam Silas (discus, 14'7\(\frac{21}{2}\")'), Jerry Eskoff (javelin, 201'9\(\frac{1}{4}\")'), and the mile relay team (3:17.5) accounted for the other firsts.

Cornell, Dupree, Brian Turner, and John Saunders also enjoyed tremendous seasons on the major track circuit by winning relay events at the Kansas, Drake, and California Relays as well as a pair of seconds at the Texas Relays. Their time of 9:41.1 in the distance medley event set a new California meet record by more than eight seconds and their 7:22.3 effort in the two-mile relay event was second in the nation for the season.

Golfers Win 15 of 19

Coach Lynn Holder’s golfers turned in another top-notch campaign, winning 15 of 19 matches with Jim Place, a sophomore, and Gene Carello, a junior, providing the leadership. Place finished the season with a 16-2-1 record while Carello had a 13-5-1 mark. The latter, however, finished ahead of Place in the league meet as he tied for third.

Francisco (Pacho) Castillo and John Geremich, a pair of classy tennis stars, turned in identical 15-3 seasons this spring to lead Coach Dick LeFevre’s group. Despite superb efforts of Castillo and Geremich, however, the Salukis finished with a 7-9 overall record as they competed against many of the finest teams in the country, including Lamar Tech, Oklahoma State, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Ohio State, Northwestern, Cincinnati, Notre Dame, and Western Michigan.

Mel Patton, sophomore outfielder from Belleville, has signed with the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team and has been assigned to its Winnipeg, Canada, Class C team. He was named to the IIAC all-conference squad for the second straight year.

Hartman New Basketball Coach

Jack Hartman, Southern’s new basketball coach, has assumed his duties here and already is anxious for the 1962-63 season to get underway.

Hartman, who led Coffeyville (Kan.) Junior College to a national championship this past season, is replacing Harry Gallatin and promises to provide an interesting brand of basketball for Saluki fans.

Classifying himself as a “coach who likes to minimize mistakes with a sound defense and a controlled-type offense,” Hartman, nevertheless, admitted that his Coffeyville teams were equally as well known for their fast-break tactics.

“We averaged 77 points a game this past season,” he said, “and could have run up much larger scores against many opponents.” On its way to the national title, Coffeyville posted a perfect 32-0 record which resulted in Hartman being selected as “National Junior College Coach of the Year.”

A graduate of Oklahoma State University, Hartman was an outstanding football and basketball player and won numerous honors. Following his collegiate career he played one season of professional football before entering the coaching ranks.
Marjorie Lawrence Directs Opera Workshop in Thrilling Production

While Giuseppe Verdi's spectacular opera "Aida" was an appropriate production for the "Little Egypt" region of southern Illinois, still it was an ambitious undertaking for the SIU Opera Workshop.

Under the inspiring and capable direction of Miss Marjorie Lawrence, research professor of music and former New York Metropolitan Opera star, the opera came to life on the cramped stage of Shryock Auditorium and thrilled an overflow audience at the two performances.

Complete with a triumphal procession through the auditorium, a cast that numbered over 150, the two Saluki mascots, the grand opera was that in every sense of the word. Miss Lawrence sang the role of Amneris, the Egyptian princess. Carmine Ficocelli did a masterful job in conducting the orchestra.

Charles Zoeckler and Mrs. Eelin Harrison of the Department of Theater had charge of set design and costumes. The sets were built at the Vocational-Technical Institute under the supervision of Harold Osborn. Mrs. Jane Daqqaq was choreographer and Robert Kingsbury chorus master.

There was standing room only for both performances. One campus policeman remarked that no basketball game had ever drawn a larger crowd.
One of the magnificent settings of the opera. This is the Triumphal March scene.

Conductor Ficocelli relaxes between acts.

Part of the crowd that jammed Shryock Auditorium for two performances.

Duet by Joe Thomas, Jr. and Ruth Adele Batts, in the roles of Amonasro and Aida.

At left, an enthusiastic hug for Miss Lawrence. Below, rainy finale of a brilliant production—Miss Lawrence awaits her car.

Phone Calls Bring Pledges of $1,822

To say the first fund-raising telephone campaign by an SIU alumni club was successful is putting it mildly. The Jackson County Alumni Chapter tried this new method for soliciting contributions from its members for the Alumni Association’s scholarship program early in April and was pleasantly surprised to have $1,822 pledged.

When the club held its annual spring meeting at University Center May 10, a check for $1,294 was presented by President William N. Huffman. Total contributions now stand at $1,529.50.

Some 50 people manned the battery of telephones at a special setup in the subterranean reaches of University Center. On three consecutive evenings they made about 1,363 calls in the three towns of Carbondale, Murphysboro, and DeSoto. Jackson County alumni outside of these towns were contacted by letter.

This was the second year for the club’s scholarship fund program. Last year a mail campaign netted $262.50 for academic and athletic scholarships.

A Lifetime for Learning . . . .

a four-session seminar on “Estate Planning for Women”; a one-day “Educational Conference,” dealing with such varied subjects as the Scarlet Letter, Cuba, the Civil War, styles in clothing, air pollution, and the flow of gold out of the U.S., offered in Houston, Tex.; and equally varied one-day programs in Memphis, Tenn., and Shreveport, Lafayette, and St. Charles, La. In all these offerings emphasis upon alumni sponsorship and participation was pronounced.

Possibilities for continuing education among its alumni, and through the efforts and facilities of SIU, are as limitless and impressive as the range of alumni professions, interests, and vocations. The greatest present need is for alumni to make their needs and wishes known. For this most productively to occur, the association of alumni into area or vocational groups is essential.

With the combination of alumni interest and University resource, a greatly augmented program of continuing education for the adult clientele of SIU may be attained.
