Article Praised . . .

We just received the Southern Alumnus today and as usual read it carefully to see if there was news of old friends.

We were delighted to see a story by Dr.
Coleman. We thoroughly enjoyed the story and we are saving it for our "fishing" friends.

We wish the magazine would print more stories by faculty members.

And Condemned . . .

Re: The article "Fishing" in Sept. number, by Claude Coleman. I doubt that many subscribers enjoyed his taking the Lord's name in vain twice, and vulgar descriptive words.

I hope I never know Coleman. If any more such articles appear, I shall cancel my subscription.

Keep Old Main!

What adds to an institution more than an old landmark? In the Globe-Democrat I noticed an article concerning the razing of Old Main. How well many of us can remember when Old Main was the hub of activities there.

I certainly believe in progress, but should progress go so far as to destroy the character of an institution that has stood these many years?

As one alumni member I strongly protest such action.

Stationed Abroad

As you can tell from the enclosed card, I have been on the move again. Following a total of approximately 11 months Stateside, my family and I boarded a Pan Am jet in New York bound for Rome, Italy. A most pleasant and relaxing six days were spent in the Eternal City before continuing to our destination—the Jewel of the Middle East—Teheran, Iran.

My husband is currently attached to the Attaché and we are just completing four months here. It has been quite an experience... for this is a land of contrasts: ancient vs. modern, Oriental vs. Occidental, familiar vs. strange.

We are fortunate in having an American Community School (in fact there are two American schools—the other is run by the Presbyterian Mission), which the children can attend. Last year one of the teachers was a graduate of SIU, but I did not have a chance to meet her. I am not sure if she is back again this year.

There is much more I could tell you—but I have gone on long enough for right now.

A Backward Glance...

Names and events which appeared in the campus news during the fall of 1960, 1955, 1940, and 1915.

Five Years Ago

Maurice Ogur, associate professor of microbiology, is the Fulbright research scholar in biological sciences for France during this academic year... Sandy Keller, Witt junior, reigned as the 1960 Homecoming Queen... Leland P. (Doc) Lingle '21-2, '27, has retired from coaching after 34 years at Southern. He will confine his activities to teaching and counseling physical education majors.

Clarence G. (Doc) Dougherty, assistant director of the Ohio Union at Ohio University, has been named director of SIU's University Center... The 1960 Obelisk was one of six yearbooks in the nation awarded All-American Rating by the Associated Collegiate Press... Twelve tennis courts are being built on the Carbondale campus for use in the physical education program and for intercollegiate matches.

Ten Years Ago

Dean E. G. Lentz is the author of Seventy-Five Years in Retrospect, the history of Southern Illinois University... John W. Allen '22-2, Information Service staff member, is the new president of the Illinois State Historical Society... McAndrew Stadium has a new look this football season, with new entrances, additional parking facilities and ticket booths, new walkways, and more stadium light... Charles Boyer '50 was elected president of the Washington County SIU Alumni Club, which met in October. Seventy-eight alumni and guests heard a talk by John Erle Grinnell, new dean of the College of Education... Enrollment figures for fall, an all-time high, show that 5,551 students are attending SIU. There are 1,820 freshmen.

25 Years Ago

Southern's pilot training program, being conducted under the Civilian Aeronautics Authority, has 18 members enrolled in preliminary courses... Orville Alexander '31, political science instructor, was chairman of all Homecoming activities last month. Al Donahue provided music for the Homecoming dance, Orbalee Hubbard, Johnston City junior, was crowned Homecoming Queen, and the Southern football team lost the Homecoming game to Normal 25–6... The annual Homecoming hockey match between members of the Women's Athletic Association and alumnae of the organization ended in a 1–0 victory for current students.

50 Years Ago

Southern won its first football game against Eastern Normal October 22 by a 41–0 score. The following week, however, Christian Brothers College defeated Southern 33–0 in St. Louis... October marked the anniversary month of the organization in 1876 of the Southern Normal Young Women's Christian Association, the second student association in the nation. The first was organized at Normal.
Motorscooters and motorcycles are the major means of transportation for SIU students, who, ineligible to operate cars, refuse to walk. These two students, unaware of the photographer, demonstrate the art of maximum use of one of the two-wheelers. Parking Section officials had registered 1,546 late last month.

Ellen McGuire, Mt. Carmel, (left) and Betty Heller, Millstadt, show the technique and determination that led Alpha Gamma Delta to victory in the Teke Ole-Impics last month. The Alpha Gams also had the Ole-Impics queen, Marty Katzenmeyer, St. Louis, Mo., who was the choice of fraternity voters. The event is an annual project of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.
Judith Ann Hill, a junior from Freeburg, the 24,000th student to enroll at SIU this fall, is congratulated by President Delyte W. Morris (right) and registrar Robert McGrath. Enrollment at both campuses was a record.

Georgia Bollman (left) and Ann Ford, SIU students, examine a spinning wheel given to the University Museum by Mrs. Emma Furlow Hicks and Mrs. Elfie Furlow Copeland, both of Mulkeytown. The spinning wheel, used by three generations, originally belonged to their great-grandmother, Nancy Ann Rose. The spinning wheel, then 35 years old, was originally brought to Illinois from Covington, Tenn., in 1815.

Theodore C. Sorensen, special counsel to the late President Kennedy, was a visitor to the Edwardsville campus last month. Author of the best-selling book Kennedy, he spoke on “The Kennedy Legacy.”

A. J. Pappelis, SIU botanist, explains a study aimed at finding the causes of stalk rot in corn to officials of Farm Bureau, project co-sponsor. Plants are grown in water containing necessary nutrients.
Fall Enrollment at Record High

The official fall enrollment at SIU, including both Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses, totals 24,502, an all-time high and an increase of 4,031, or 19.7 per cent, over the 1964 fall quarter.

Greatest increase was in the freshman class, with 9,669 enrolled. That figure represents a 36 per cent increase over last year's 7,065 freshmen. The Graduate School enrollment was next highest with 3,260, or 20 per cent more than the 2,742 registered last year.

The Carbondale campus and nearby Vocational-Technical Institute have 17,356 students, an increase of 3,509 over last year's 13,847.

The Edwardsville campus, including the Alton and East St. Louis Centers, has an enrollment of 7,146, up 502 from last year's 6,644.

Student Body Survey Planned

Southern Illinois University's entire student body will be surveyed by questionnaire in the near future to give every student a chance to express his feelings on his place in the University.

Claude Coleman, chairman of a student-faculty commission on student participation in University affairs and the role of the University in society, said the questionnaire will be an invitation to every student to voice his opinions honestly and freely.

Dr. Coleman, professor of English, said he believes students' answers will give the commission a clearer picture of actual student interests and potential areas of student discontent.

A central purpose of the commission is to study and make recommendations for improvement of communications between all parts of the University, and especially between faculty, administration, and student.

In appointing members to the commission earlier this year, President Delyte W. Morris charged them with the responsibility of "exploring the ways and means of promoting the welfare of all students."

"It cannot be said too often that this University and all universities should exist solely for the welfare of students," Dr. Morris said in a letter to commission members. "In a rapidly growing University where communication at all levels becomes more difficult, we must seek to discover more effective ways of talking to and understanding each other."

Commission members include students and faculty members from both the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses.

Dr. Neckers Teaching Again

The quarterback of the "Four Horsemen," a near-legendary group of professors who made Southern Illinois University's Department of Chemistry a precision production line for future Ph.D.'s, has gone back to his first love—teaching.

After 36 years as chairman of the department, James W. Neckers has turned over the reigns to Roger Beyler, who will be acting chairman until a permanent chairman is named. Dr. Neckers tenure in the chair is the longest ever recorded in any department at SIU.

Some production-line figures should point up why: more than 500 chemistry graduates came through it, some 200 of whom continued to master's degrees. Exactly 72 of those went on to win Ph.D.'s elsewhere, many on prestige fellowships.

The base for this academic operation was set by Dr. Neckers, T. W. Abbott, Kenneth Van Lente, and R. A. Scott, the quartet dubbed the "Four Horsemen" by some now-forgotten student. From 1931 until 1945 they were the entire staff in chemistry.

Now, the department numbers 18 faculty members and 40 graduate teaching and research assistants. The yearly load of students taking chemistry courses has gone from 300 to 3,000. Of those, 80 are juniors and seniors majoring in the field and 45 others are studying for master's and Ph.D.'s.

Nuclear Science Study Pushed

A new organization of Midwest universities designed to promote graduate education in areas related to nuclear science is expected to result in more effective cooperation between the schools and the Argonne National Laboratory, a major research and development installation of the Atomic Energy Commission near Chicago.

Henry Dan Piper, dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and a founder of the Central States Universities, Inc., said the organization, made up of SIU and 11 other Illinois colleges, and colleges in Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, and Michigan, will help students and faculty members from member organizations take advantage of the talent and facilities available at Argonne.

The new organization has proposed a credit program whereby senior students preparing for graduate school would spend a semester in residence at Argonne in research with Argonne scientists and in planned course work.
Research Article Wins Praise

An article written by Dan W. Soper, professor in the Edwardsville Education Division, has been picked as one of the outstanding research contributions to the field of counseling psychology.

The article, "The Perceptual Organization of Effective Counselors," was selected by the Scientific Affairs Committee of the Division of Counseling Psychology of the American Psychological Association. Prof. Soper will receive a certificate of commendation from APA for the article, which appeared in the Journal of Counseling Psychology in 1963.

Prof. Soper's article also was a finalist in this year's Research of the Year award given by the American Personnel and Guidance Association. He joined the Edwardsville faculty in 1962, after nine years at the University of Florida.

Literary Journal is Selected

The Midwest Modern Language Association has chosen SIU's new literary journal, PELL (Papers on English Language and Literature), as its official publication beginning next year.

Prof. Nicholas Joost, editor of PELL, and Gwin J. Kolb, president of MMLA, announced the selection last month. While the journal's copyright will be retained by SIU's Board of Trustees, the name will be changed next year to Papers on Language and Literature.

The journal was introduced last March and already has readers in the Netherlands, Nigeria, Costa Rica, Canada, the Philippines, and Spain. Prof. Joost is a member of the Humanities Division at Edwardsville.

Two Offices are Combined

A new Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance incorporates the student work program, financial assistance, and scholarships at SIU.

The reorganization was approved in September and will be supervised by Ralph W. Ruffner, vice president for student and area services, and John Rendleman, vice president for business affairs.

Frank C. Adams, head of the student work program, is director of the unified program.

Fifth Career Day a Success

The fifth annual Career Day last month attracted 5,000 SIU students to displays and talks presented by representatives of more than 30 industrial, governmental, and educational organizations.

The Career Day offered students information on employment opportunities in all academic areas. Sponsored by the University with the assistance of Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity, the Career Day event was an expansion of the Chicagoland Career Day held for the past four years.

In addition to firms from the Chicago area, firms from South Bend and Indianapolis, Ind., Hazelwood and St. Louis, Mo., Detroit, Mich., and Springfield were represented. The event was the first Career Day of all-University scope, with personnel from Edwardsville participating.

Two Visiting Professors Named

Two visiting professors, one in anthropology and the other in geography, have joined the SIU faculty at Carbondale.

Ramon Pina Chan, chief conservator of archaeology
Vision 65, sponsored by The International Center for the Typographic Arts and Southern Illinois University, was held on the Carbondale campus October 21–23 and brought together the world’s outstanding creative thinkers in such fields as television, motion pictures, graphic design, art, data processing, genetics, and architecture. The international congress, with the theme “New Challenges for Human Communications,” will be featured in the January Alumnus magazine. In connection with Vision 65, an international traveling exhibit of the greatest in graphic design in the past 50 years was on display in the Mitchell Gallery. In the photograph at left visitors study the display.

New ‘Front Door’ is Approved

A new Harwood Avenue “front door” to SIU’s Carbondale campus, dominated by a multi-story administration building, is among proposals in the University’s updated long range master plan.

A complex of administrative and student service buildings would be located on the site of the present McAndrew Stadium. The football field would become a plaza inside the building group, with an open-air stage at its center facing the existing stadium grandstands.

The overall plan for the future is keyed to eventual relocation of the Illinois Central Railroad tracks and Route 51, both of which cut through the spreading SIU campus.

Alternate plans were drawn to cover either course—whether the highway and tracks are moved or not. The final plan with the two removed describes three main loop roads serving academic, residential, and research areas of the campus. High-speed through traffic would be re-routed around SIU and buses could run continuously on the loops to serve students and faculty.

Old Main, original building of the campus, would be sacrificed to make way for one of the loops if the tracks are not moved.

The football field would be moved to a new site at the far west edge of the campus.

The master plan was approved by the SIU Board of Trustees after presentation by President Delyte W. Morris.

for Mexico’s National Museum of Anthropology, will teach part-time in the Department of Anthropology and devote part of his time to the University Museum.

He replaces Pedro Armillas, associate professor on leave of absence as a visiting professor at the University of Chicago.

Francis John Monkhouse, former chairman of the Department of Geography at the University of Southampton, England, and a visiting Fulbright professor at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, has joined the Department of Geography.

Among books he has either authored or co-authored are Principles of Physical Geography, Landscape from the Air, Europe: A Geographical Survey, and The American Landscape.

He is a member of the Institute of British Geographers, the Royal Geographical Society, and the Geographical Association.

Authority on Shakespeare Visits

A. L. Rowe, one of the foremost living authorities on William Shakespeare and the Elizabethan Age, was a visitor on the Carbondale campus in October.

He is a fellow of both the British Academy and All Souls College, Oxford, and a senior research fellow of the Huntington Library in California.

His William Shakespeare: A Biography was a 1964 best seller and a Book-of-the-Month Club choice.
Club Officers Workshop

SIU Alumni Club officers from as far away as California and Arizona were on hand for the annual Club Officers Workshop held October 9 in the University Center at Carbondale.

Twenty-one clubs from six states were represented, and officers spent a busy day which began with progress reports on academic, building, and athletics programs.

After a buffet luncheon, they gathered in four groups of 25 each to discuss club activities and make plans for the coming club year.

Then they boarded buses for a trip to the new University Park and a tour of the 17-story Neeley Hall. A tour of Lawson Hall, the new classroom building, followed.

The day was climaxed with the football game between the Salukis and Lincoln University.

Speakers at the morning session were Robert W. MacVicar, vice president for academic affairs; John S. Rendleman, ex '47, vice president for business affairs; and Donald Boydston, director of athletics.

Charles Pulley, University architect, conducted the tour of University Park and described the communications building, now under construction, during a coffee at Lawson Hall.

Alumni touring University Park:

Dr. MacVicar's major emphasis was on the need for facilities for medical education in Southern Illinois. He told club officers that Southern Illinois University is not concerned with the location or the administration of a proposed medical school as long as one is established somewhere in the lower part of the state.

He also reviewed the academic program and reported that the University was fortunate in bringing to the campuses outstanding new faculty members even in the face of highly competitive recruiting programs being conducted by the majority of the nation's colleges.

Dr. Rendleman gave a progress report on construction on the two campuses and outlined points of the master plan for Carbondale campus development.

In describing plans for the central campus, he said alternate courses have been approved, depending upon whether the Illinois Central Railroad tracks and Route 51 are relocated. In the event the tracks remain as they are, the plan calls for the removal of Old Main in order that a loop road could pass through the campus.

But he added that he does not believe that Old Main will be torn down even if the tracks are not moved.

Dr. Boydston covered the athletics program and the University's status in its efforts to join the Missouri Valley Conference.

He said that with the exception of football, SIU probably is superior in most sports to other member schools but that football needs to be upgraded before the University can qualify for admission.

Dr. MacVicar followed the athletic director to the rostrum to point out that SIU has nothing to be ashamed of as far as the athletics program is concerned. He said the general studies program and admissions policies in general require that the University bring in students both athletically and academically talented.

SOUTHERN ALUMNUS

A $6,250 bargain purchase made by Southern Illinois Normal University 25 years ago has become a "priceless" feature of the University's architectural landscape.

Thompson's Woods, a stand of "old growth" trees, provides a sylvan retreat in the middle of an outward-growing campus. When the cornerstone for Southern Illinois Normal's first building, Old Main, was laid in 1870, the woods to the southwest already were 20 to 30 years old. The young hardwoods, mostly oaks, were growing before Carbondale became a town. Carbondale's population at the time of SINU's cornerstone laying was about 1,500, according to one history of Jackson County.

The grove was a popular picnic spot for Carbondale's first settlers, and the newly organized Grand Army of the Republic held meetings in Thompson's Woods. William Marberry of the Department of Botany says a part of the woods extended originally to a point near what is now Parkinson Laboratory.

Now, since the University has surrounded the woods and the trees have become old, the tract is unique. Certainly few, if any, university campuses can boast of a 10-acre "old-growth" stand. Those in the woods extended originally to a point near what is now Parkinson Laboratory. The University once begun in 1870, grew rapidly, but, miraculously, the woods, although privately owned, were not cut down. As the University reached out, it became apparent that the woods should be made a part of the campus. The University family, the University, the plot was owned by the Thompson family. Even as older trees gradually disappear, making openings in the main stand, the advance growth which has become generally established will take over. So, although the character of the woods will be changing as to species, Thompson's Woods should remain a campus feature to be enjoyed and remembered.

By N. W. Hosley

The author is a professor in the Department of Forestry at SIU. He extends thanks to Mr. Marberry, historian John Allen, Prof. Alex Reed, and John Lonergan, University landscape architect, for their assistance in research for the article.
Classes Begin at Edwardsville

By MILDRED ARNOLD
Information Service, Edwardsville

Rain, mud, and parking problems failed to dampen the spirits of 3,000 students who began classes at Southern Illinois University’s brand new Edwardsville campus on September 23.

Most of them came by car, although bus service, 10 round trips daily from both Alton and East St. Louis to the new campus, started that day.

Dug by bad weather, paving of parking lots had been delayed and there was not enough room for the 1,500 cars on campus that day. Some of the students had to walk as far as a mile to reach their classrooms.

The weather and parking problems, students’ unfamiliarity with the geography of the new campus, plus wild rumors that they would have to use outdoor privies, were blamed by Registrar John Schmabel for the fact that only three-fourths of the anticipated capacity enrollment of 4,000 was reached. For example, he said, the day before classes started the enrollment center was moved into the heart of the new campus buildings, a mile away from its original location where SIU students had been registering since 1960.

Bad weather also caused delays in moving furniture, so on opening day academic division heads and service departments were without.

But no one seemed to mind. At last there was a real campus with real students, not just office-converted farmhouses where administrative duties were handled.

Most of those attending classes at Edwardsville are upperclassmen and graduate students. The other 4,000 enrolled this year at the Edwardsville campus complex are freshmen and sophomores attending classes at SIU’s teaching centers in Alton and East St. Louis.

For the most part, students at Edwardsville are enrolled in the divisions of business, social sciences, education, and humanities. Until the science laboratory and classroom building is ready next year, science and fine arts students will remain at the teaching centers.

Ready for use by the 3,000 students at Edwardsville were the $3.5 million John Mason Peck Classroom and Fac-
...a national model of its kind and a significant contribution vis-à-vis the needs and more intellectual aspirations of man in an increasingly urbanized, mechanized, and materially dependent society.
An elaborate vending machine operation in the basement of Lovejoy Library provides hot and cold food for students and faculty while the University Center is being completed. About 2,500 meals are served daily.

Photographs by Charles Cox

Library basement also is an ideal place to study.

About the photographs on pages 12–13: New Student Week at the Edwardsville Campus opened with Parents Day on September 19. More than 2,200 heard Ralph Ruffner, vice president for student and area services, as he explained something of what could be expected by parents and students from life at college. Tours of the campus were conducted the same day, and on September 26 faculty families were given guided tours. An open house was held for the general public on October 3. The Lovejoy Library is the favorite building for study and serves as something of a center for campus activities. The shift to a new campus didn’t affect campus politics. Homecoming Queen candidate Judy McDanel, Alton, campaigns.
If pre-season predictions are accurate, the rapidly approaching winter sports season could be the most enjoyable ever for SIU sports fans.

Basketball Coach Jack Hartman says: "We have every right to be as—good—or better—than a year ago when we won 20 of 26 games, but must approach the season with the same desire and dedication.''

There's no doubt about this being stronger than last season's when we won all 11 regular-season dual meets and were beaten only by Penn State's national champions."

Swimming Coach Ralph Casey says: "This is the best team Southern's ever had and is considerably stronger than that which won seven of nine meets a year ago."

Wrestling Coach Jim Wilkinson says: "Of course everyone else is better than ever before, too, but this outfit has more balance and depth than any team we've ever had here at Southern. By January we should be real tough."

Indoor Track Coach Lew Hartzog says: "Better balance will make this year's team the best we've ever had so far and if we are fortunate to have a comparatively mild winter so that we don't have to miss too many days training outdoors, we'll push some of the best in the country."

While optimistic, each coach voiced the same opinion as Wilkinson..."everyone is better than ever before, too."

"Virtually every swimming team in the country will be improved by 15 per cent over a year ago," Casey said. "It's simply a matter of how much above that figure we can improve as to whether or not our records will show it."

Hartman also was anxious to point out that whereby prospects were excellent for the coming cage campaign, an up-graded schedule may make it impossible for this year's club to match the superb overall record posted by last season's group.

And, of course, Meade and Hartzog were in agreement. Sports, just as other areas of American life, are simply improving every year.

Nevertheless, the outlook is encouraging and the fact that SIU teams will be competing against many of the finest universities in the country this season should perk up interest of former students even more.

Hartman's cagers challenge the University of Iowa in their third outing and have home dates with Chattanooga, Nevada, San Diego State, and Wichita State prior to the Christmas holidays. Following a two-and-one-half-week break, games with Arizona State, Arizona, Evansville, Tennessee State, Richmond, and Oklahoma State should provide the Salukis with an ample opportunity to impress the national pollsters.

Returning from last year's club which placed second to Evansville in the NCAA college-division tournament are David Lee, McLeansboro, George McNeil, St. Louis, Boyd O'Neal, Philadelphia, Pa., Ralph Johnson, Trenton, Bill Lacy, Pinckneyville, Clarence Smith, Zion, Ill., Randy Goin, Rankin, and Roger Bechtold, Belleville. In addition, Lloyd Stovall, Memphis, Tenn., a valued member of the 1963-64 squad, has returned to school and will be a strong contender for regular employment.

Only Bill Wolf was lost from last year's gymnastics squad and eight sophomores have been listed by Meade as possible replacements. "In fact," Meade said, "there may be some members of last year's varsity group who are unable to make our traveling squad."

Balance is the key to the swimming team’s success also. Thomson McAneney, Miami, Fla., is expected to maintain his superiority in the 200 and 500-yard freestyle events while breaststroker Gerry Pearson, Rockford, and butterfly specialist Kimo Miles, Pearl City, Hawaii, are also place-winners from last year’s NCAA championships returning.

McAneney had 13 firsts and a third in dual meet competition last year while Miles was 12–1–0 and Pearson 8–1–0.

Ed Mossotti, St. Louis, is the classiest of the newcomers, but has given every early indication of developing as one of Southern’s finest freestylers.

Seven lettermen from 1964–65, plus three others who had lettered previously, are responsible for Wilkinson’s bright outlook. Top names are Larry Baron, Melrose Park, and Don Schneider, Maywood, who will be performing in the 130 and 137-pound divisions, respectively.

Others certain to bid for front-line positions are newcomers Buck Deadrich, Castro Valley, Calif., Bob Roop, East Lansing, Mich., Terry Magoon, Erie, Pa., and Steve Sarossy, Maywood.

With Tom Ashman, Murphysboro and Mitchell Livingston, Decatur, giving Southern its best one-two punch ever in the high jump, the Salukis will be exceptionally strong there as well as in several other events. George Woods, Sikeston, Mo., is another certain point-winner as the shot put specialist ranks as one of the finest in the nation.

Three members of SIU’s fine mile relay team of last spring—Gary Carr, Mt. Vernon, Ind., Jerry Fendrich, Evansville, Ind., and Robin Coventry, Melbourne, Australia—will head Hartzog’s middle-distance crew with Al Ackman, Mt. Vernon, Ind., slated for longer duty. John Vernon, Nottingham, England, and Rich Ellison, Berwyn, should also prove valuable in the broad jump and pole vault.

Beneath the hot suns of Pokwo, Ethiopia, the Carroll Loomis, ex, family is living in an environment of experiences strange to most of us. Mr. Loomis is a medical missionary. After spending a year in Addis Ababa studying the national language, Amharic, the family moved to Pokwo. This was in the spring of this year. At that time, their little 10-bed clinic was filled beyond capacity, the village being plagued by malaria, tuberculosis, yaws, malnutrition, snake bites, and wounds caused by crocodiles and hippopotami. At one time, 10 Nuer tribesmen were brought in suffering from wounds received in a tribal cattle war. Before bringing the tribesmen to the clinic, they were taken to a witch doctor who only made their wounds worse. Dr. and Mrs. Loomis and their five children, Mark, Ben, Becky, Sarah, and Mary K., live in comfortable houses with thatched roofs, brick walls, and concrete floors. Cooking is done on a wood stove. Food varies with the season and supply, sometimes consisting of such natural fare as water buffalo meat, mangoes, and papaya. Their work includes a variety of teaching. Its purpose is best summed up in Mr. Loomis' words: "Each area or work unites with every other as an expression of the teaching of the Christian gospel through evangelism, education, agriculture, and medicine." Dr. Loomis has a B.S. and M.D. degrees from the University of Illinois. The Loomis family has been well-represented at SIU in past years. Mr. Loomis' brother, Jon E. Loomis, is a 1957 graduate of SIU and Jon's wife, Elizabeth A. Grant, graduated in 1960. Their mother, Mrs. Kathryn Snyder Loomis, received her B.S. degree in 1948 and M.S. degree in 1956. Life in Pokwo would seem trying, but for Dr. and Mrs. Loomis (Nola Fay Finley '50), who write with optimism, enthusiasm, and dedication, it appears to be an experience culminating in rewards for all concerned.
