What is a Living Endowment?

The Living Endowment of Southern Illinois University is a recently established program of the Southern Illinois University Foundation. It is designed to afford alumni and friends the opportunity to express their interest in and support of the University.

The name “Living Endowment” was chosen for a very special reason. “Endowment” is a word which usually calls to mind visions of vast stores of invested wealth, yielding a substantial and reliable income. The great universities, both public and private, more often than not, are characterized by possession of a sizable endowment. Still, a number of public institutions have been able to present an excellent educational program despite having no real endowment...Southern Illinois University has been one of these.

However, times are changing. Southern Illinois University is no longer a “tax supported” institution—we are a “tax assisted” institution because a diminishing percentage of our budget comes from state appropriated dollars.

The fact that Southern Illinois University does not have vast dollar resources, yielding a steady substantial income, is becoming a disadvantage. Were it not for the important reserve strength that Southern Illinois University does have, the quality of her education offerings could suffer.

It is now time to call up our reserves—and that reserve strength is you.

Yes, you. Southern Illinois University’s endowment is not dollars—it is people. It is invested in those who came here seeking the knowledge and skills to become productive and contributing members of society. So you see, Southern Illinois University really has thousands of deposits of wealth. It is distributed teaching children, building buildings, preserving the environment, generating technology, and in a hundred other ways, improving the quality of life for all of mankind.

You are Southern Illinois University’s “Living Endowment.” You are the wealth from which steady and significant income must come. At no time in Southern Illinois University’s long and distinguished history of service, has her need been as great. With your help, our standards for quality in all our educational and service endeavors will never diminish.

Please consider—and favorably—a gift as a part of the Living Endowment. Your gift may be restricted to a particular program or be designated for use where the need is greatest. Any gift will be gratefully accepted and judiciously applied to insure maximum usefulness.

The fund drive kicks off in the month of September, 1974. Perhaps by the time you are reading this issue of the Alumnus magazine, you have received other explanatory materials about the Living Endowment. Checks should be made payable to the Southern Illinois University Foundation. We urge you to give.

Mission and goals of the University as seen by the SIU-C Alumni Association Board of Directors which approved it Aug. 17 is reprinted beginning on page 2. This significant material was direct input into what will eventually be the updating of the state-wide master plan for higher education called Phase IV.

Mission and Goals of the University

Recommendations for Phase IV submitted by the Board of Directors, SIU-C Alumni Association

(Editor's Note—The Alumnius magazine this issue is reprinting the recommendations on the mission and goals of the University as submitted on behalf of the Board of Directors, SIU-C Alumni Association.

We consider them important because they were part of the material used by the President's Advisory Committee on Goals and Objectives in a report it has made to interim President Hiram Lesar's office expected to be incorporated into a policy statement by SIU after review by the Board of Trustees to the IBHE statewide master plan for higher education—Phase IV.

Acting in accordance with its statutory responsibility, the Illinois Board of Higher Education activated the updating of the Master Plan in November, 1973. Each institution of higher learning in Illinois has been urged to submit goals and the President's Advisory Committee on Goals and Objectives for SIU-C worked through the summer gathering information and reviewing Phase III. In addition, the IBHE held a series of three public hearings in September at Carbondale, Normal and Chicago to acquire material for Phase IV.)

I. Southern Illinois University at Carbondale should retain the "comprehensive" University status granted in Master Plan—Phase III.

This recommendation is made with the full knowledge that enrollment at SIU-C has declined since Master Plan—Phase III was written. However, the educational needs of the southern third of the state remain comprehensive. Fewer students do not necessarily mean fewer legitimate commitments. Every major state needs at least two first-rate public universities and Illinois is no exception. Based upon Master Plan—Phase III, we specifically recommend the following:

A. Continued support for an encouragement of interdisciplinary studies. Consistent with the retention of strong academic departments, we urge a more problems-oriented approach. It frequently takes the talents of more than one specialist to solve real life problems. Cross-departmental cooperation should be encouraged in every curriculum.

B. Continued support for technical and vocational education. The current popularity of vocational training suggests that there are still unmet needs in this area. However, we believe that those receiving degrees with majors in technical areas should be well-rounded individuals, fully prepared to participate in an increasingly complex world.

C. Continued support for the humanities and social sciences. No university has ever achieved greatness without strong programs in the humanities and social sciences, and we urge a continuation of the "rounding out" process begun after Master Plan III. At the same time, we urge those who are faced with declining enrollments to reexamine their curriculum and teaching techniques. New application of traditional disciplines should serve to reinvigorate students' interests.

D. Continued support for communication studies and studies in the Arts. As graduates of the University participating in our chosen professions, we can attest to the need for accurate, responsible, and creative self-expression. SIU-C has strong programs in these areas and fine facilities which can serve students and the area alike.

E. Continued support for agricultural studies. The Southern Illinois economy depends heavily on agriculture and, with ever expanding markets for agricultural products, this University should focus its efforts on helping farmers solve problems indigenous to this region.

F. Strong support for programs which will illuminate the history and culture of the region. Typically, we think of service to the region in terms of programs and activities cited in Area II of this report; however, academic programs which help students of all ages gain a better appreciation for their region perform a great service. More projects, such as the publication of Land Between The Rivers and the production of the television program, "Spotlight on Southern Illinois," should be strongly encouraged.

G. Contant improvement of SIU-C's working relationship with junior colleges. Specifically, we urge attempts to facilitate the transfer of junior college credit to SIU-C, the articulation of academic programs with junior colleges in an effort to make the students' transition to SIU-C smooth, and the use of specialized university talent to enrich junior college curricula where needed and requested. However, we urge SIU-C to continue to be cognizant of the need to attract and retain freshman and sophomore students for whom the junior college is not a viable education alternative.

H. Vigorous support for programs in continuing education. We urge a total abandonment of the outmoded notion that formal education is for young people. Education is a process which takes place from the beginning of life until its conclusion. One of the great challenges which faces SIU-C is how to make its offerings relevant and attractive to persons of all ages with all levels of formal education and with varying degrees of interest in obtaining a college degree. Incentives for faculty to participate in continuing education programs are encouraged.

I. A vigorous, on-going effort to reward good teaching. As alumni, we fully recognize the need for the research and service commitments of the University, but we believe that stronger efforts must be made to identify and properly reward outstanding teachers at all academic levels. We have attempted to aid in the accomplishment of this goal through such programs as the Alumni Great Teacher Award, but ours is a limited effort and must be supplemented by vigorous institutional initiatives.

II. Southern Illinois University at Carbondale should commit itself to a program of area services designed to help the region realize its great potential, develop its resources, and control its destiny.

For decades Southern Illinois and surrounding areas have been thought of as culturally and economically depressed, and this is still true to some extent. However, we have come to the conclusion that this region has more potential for controlled, productive growth and development than any other area in the state, and we encourage the University to take an exceedingly active role in the economic and cultural rediscovery of Southern Illinois.

The University is, we believe, well qualified to take the long range view of regional development because it has the intellectual, scientific, and technical resources and because it has no special interest to serve other than the long-term benefit of the area. It can, as we suggest below, help find new ways to utilize the high sulfur-content coal which lies in great abundance under the soil of Southern Illinois and, at the same time, be actively seeking ways to deal with the ecological and environmental problems caused by strip mining and eventually by coal gasification. In short, the University can become an ombudsman for unborn generations who will need our coal and for whom we must also preserve our countryside. This active, creative involvement in the long-term development of the area represents, we believe, a somewhat more aggressive service posture than SIU-C has traditionally held, but it is called for if the University is to meet its historic obligations to the area and to the people who support it. Specifically, we recommend the following as examples of this reoriented service commitment:

A. A strong commitment to aid the development of all area natural resources in a manner which preserves the ecological balance and natural beauty of the area. For example, the University should take the lead in developing and implementing a long-term plan for the discovery and utilization of coal and water in a manner consistent with the enhancement of the quality of life in the region.

B. A strong commitment to aid Southern Illinois in its development as an attractive area for tourists and retired persons in a manner which in no way compromises the beauty of the region. Highway 57 and the other interstate highways which are being constructed place the region in one day's driving time from Chicago, St. Louis, and other population centers. We are attracting increasingly large numbers of tourists and retired persons and the potential for growth is astounding. The implementation of a plan for tourism has been much discussed but little has been done. The University should assume the responsibility for initiating action in the the near future. Unregulated growth, however, could detract from the scenic beauty of the area and create problems which will mitigate the gains which are made. The University is in a good position to help avoid this occurrence and to plan for the constructive, creative development of tourism.

C. A commitment to aid the area in meeting the needs of senior citizens. Southern Illinois and surrounding areas have a considerably higher percentage of persons over 50 years old than the national average. The University should take the lead in such matters as the design of model retirement communities wherein the educational, social, and recreational needs of the elderly are met. The University could also be more active in the development of on and off campus curricula especially designed for older persons as they retire or approach retirement.

CONCLUSION

None of what we have said above should be taken as an indication of disregard for programs and departments which we have not mentioned. We have tried, insofar as is feasible, to build our recommendations upon Master Plan III and this has led us to emphasize some programs and not mention others. However, the word "comprehensive," to us, denotes strong programs across the board and does not preclude national and international commitments of high priority.

We offer these recommendations to suggest new directions and not as a definitive statement on the mission of the University. We will leave this task to those more qualified. There are many other academic programs such as veterinary medicine and continued support for high quality teacher-training at all levels and other service areas, such as water conservation and general industrial development, which we have not mentioned in detail, but which deserve consideration from the University. We have sketched here a brief outline which documents our belief that SIU-C deserves continued comprehensive university status and strong support from state government, and that it should become even more actively and creatively involved in the discovery, development, and control of the destiny of Southern Illinois.
News of the Campus

Norwood Named

WILLIAM R. NORWOOD

An alumnus of SIU, William R. Norwood, '59, of Elk Grove Village, has been named by Gov. Daniel Walker to serve on the Southern Illinois University Board of Trustees.

His was one of several names submitted by a special committee of the board of directors of the SIU Alumni Association and the committee invites alumni to continue to submit names of citizens of the state who might be considered by the Governor to fill future vacancies.

Norwood was named by the governor to fill the seat vacated by W. Victor Rouse in January this year. Norwood is the only SIU-C alumnus on the Board of Trustees.

He is a native of Centralia, Ill. who attended SIU on a four-year football scholarship, quarterbacking the squad three years. He was the University's first black quarterback, graduating from SIU-C with an A.B., Chemistry major, in 1959. His athletic and classroom work won him both all-conference and Academic All-American honors from Chemical Engineering News.

Norwood served in the U.S. Air Force six years as a pilot and with Captain's rank and has been employed as a Boeing 737 pilot with United Air Lines since 1965. In that year he became both UAL's first black pilot and the second black pilot on a major airline.

In March of 1974, Norwood, 38, received a Master of Business Administration degree with concentration in Industrial Relation from the University of Chicago's Graduate School of Business.

He and his wife, the former Molly Frances Cross, '61, have two children, William, Jr., 13, and George, 12. Final confirmation is pending by the Senate.

Semester Change-over

In its first 99 fall terms, Southern Illinois University has operated under the quarter system, but beginning with class sessions Aug. 27, the University opened term number 100 under the semester form.

The new system calls for two four-month semesters, separated by a month-long Christmas vacation. Another month's recess will precede an eight week summer session.

As a result, the summer quarter of 1974 was squeezed into eight weeks.

Placing students in a more competitive situation for summer job openings was a major consideration in switching to the semester plan, according to University authorities.

Graduating seniors also will have the Christmas recess to obtain job interviews, and by graduating in mid-May will be available for starting on new jobs June 1.

The long recesses between semesters and before the opening of the summer session will allow students several weeks for travel, short-time jobs or field experience in their majors. The semester system also means less interruptions for students during the term. Plans for the change were announced in March of 1973.

The fall semester will end Dec. 21. The spring term will open Jan. 20 and close with commencement May 17. The eight week summer session will start June 16 and end Aug. 8.

Summer Session Ends

An abbreviated summer session ended Aug. 9 with commencement exercises for 1,700 graduates so that the new school year—the first under the semester system—could get underway Aug. 27.

At the graduation exercises held at the SIU Arena for the summer quarter, highlights included the presentation of a Distinguished Service Award to Professor Emerita Hilda Stein, '22–2, '25 longtime zoology teacher who has been active in campus and community affairs since the mid-20's. She retired in 1963. She is a recipient of an SIU Alumni Association Achievement award for her many years of service to SIU and the Alumni Association.

A native of Belleville who lives in Carbondale, Miss Stein was once SIU-C Dean of Women, served on many committees of budget, curriculum and planning projects and was active in both the League of Women Voters and the American Civil Liberties Union.

At the same time, 38 faculty members and 33 civil service personnel who retired during the school year were recognized at the afternoon program of commencement Aug. 9.

Of the faculty members, Charles D. Tenney, University Professor and professor of English and philosophy, and a former vice-president for planning and review at SIU, had tops in service years at SIU with 42.

Others with years of service in parentheses were:
Fred J. Armistead, education administration and foundations (13); Chester J. Atkinson, speech pathology and audiology (19); Franklin A. Bassett, Technical Careers (10); Ralph A. Benton, Agriculture (18); Albert W. Bork, foreign languages and literatures (16); Ernest E. Brod, elementary education (23); George E. Brown, chemistry (12); J. Howard Crenshaw, Technical Careers (16); Dorothy R. Davies, physical education for women (35); Ross Jean Fligor, secondary education (34); Robert L. Gallegly, treasurer (28); C. Harvey Gardiner, history (17); James L. Harbison, Technical Careers (16); Jennie M. Harper, food and nutrition (16); Marvin P. Hill, Technical Careers (18); Eleanor C. Howe, Touch of Nature, Little Grassy (10); Daryle E. Keefer, secondary education (10); Wendell E. Keeper, Agriculture (24); Ruby Kerley, Morris Library (33); William M. Leebens, Technical Careers (8); Howard R. Long, journalism (21); William M. Marberry, botany (35); John D. Mees, secondary education (28); Kent U. Moore, Morris Library (22); Thelma Page, group housing (13); Campbell Pennington, geography (10); Ferris S. Randall, Morris Library (21); Marian E. Ridgeway, government (22); Buren C. Robbins, radio-television (25); Max M. Sappenfield, government (20); James L. Slechticky, mathematics (16); Lucy P. Stewart, interior design (11); Walter W. Taylor, anthropology (16); Maxine Vogely, foreign languages and literatures (18); Juanita Zaleski, speech pathology and audiology (17); and Helen M. Zimmerman, physical education for women (22).

Not Publish Obelisk

The SIU-C yearbook since 1914, The Obelisk, will not be published for the 1974–75 school year and slumping sales and decreased interest are apparently the causes.

In making the announcement, W. Manion Rice, fiscal officer, said that sales for the 1973 book totaled 900 and only 400 orders were placed in advance. A May survey to determine interest among students brought only 52 responses out of 1,189 questioned.

Manion said a study will be conducted in mid-year to determine if a revised format for the book would be of interest to students. Sales of the 1973 book are still being conducted at Rice's office, Communications building, room 1201 and 1970, 1971 and 1972 Obelisks are also available.

Committee Ends Work

A Presidential Search Committee early in September completed its work and submitted the names of four candidates to succeed David Derge as president of Southern Illinois University.

The names were presented to the Board of Trustees and the Board has said it will conduct interviews with them. The Board has not officially given the names of the final four candidates. In the past five months since the creation of the search committee by SIU Board of Trustees resolution, the committee narrowed the list of prospects from about 250 down to the “workable number” of less than 20 potential candidates.

The committee, chaired by Willis Malone, '40, is composed of 12 members, representing recognized campus constituencies and a representative of the Alumni Association, Larry Jacober, '62, '65, president.

SIU Receives Bequest

SIU has received an $8,000 bequest from the estate of a former student to establish a memorial scholarship fund in the name of her brother, the late Harley R. Teel, long-time faculty member.

The bequest from the late Mrs. Lora Teel Tibbetts of New York, N.Y. is designated to provide scholarships for students of Franklin, Perry or Jackson County who are in need of financial assistance. The fund will be administered by the SIU Foundation, development arm of the University.

Teel, a 1932 graduate of SIU with a master's degree from the University of Illinois, was a member of the faculty of University School from 1935 until his retirement in 1965. He died in September, 1965. He was a DuQuoin native.

Mrs. Tibbetts also was a graduate of SIU, receiving a bachelor's degree in 1928. She had planned to provide for the Harley R. Teel memorial scholarships as early as 1967, and her wishes have been carried out by her brother's son, Gordon R. Teel, a certified public accountant of Belleville.

Start Co-Rec Facility

Construction of a co-recreational facility on the east campus of SIU-C began Aug. 10 following approval of contract awards by the SIU Board of Trustees' Executive Committee.

The board's action ended years of struggling with the project due to problems with rising costs and overestimate construction bids. Over the period, $8.9 million had been accumulated from student fees set up to pay for the complex. Addition of accrued interest amounting to $1,623,995 makes the new construction budget for the building complex $10,883,464.

Rino Bianchi, director of facilities planning, said letters of intent were sent July 31 to awarded contractors to report for work in 10 days. “We were very pleased that after many years of effort we were able to recommend award of bids,” Bianchi said.

“Two and a half generations of students have paid for this so it really has been paid for by this university’s alumni—but, we finally got the show on the road.”

The complex will be on a 36-month construction schedule. Barring any long strikes, bad weather or material shortages, the complex should be available for activation beginning the fall semester, 1977, he said.

SIU-C Enrollment

Enrollment at SIU-C this fall is 19,009, a very slight drop of 128 students, less than one per cent, from the 19,147 total last fall.

The slight decrease was encouraging to various SIU officials, especially in view of the fact that enrollment decreased 1,200 between fall quarter 1973 and fall quarter 1972.

James Brown, chief of board staff at SIU said: “A drop as small as this would present no significant difficulties as far as the Illinois Board of Higher Education is concerned. He said he could not guarantee anything, but sees “no major kind of problem with enrollment and budget” for this year.

Enrollment at SIU-C has been on the decrease since 1970. The figures for 1971 were 22,382; for 1972 were 20,349; and for 1973 were 19,147.

In a report from Kirby Browning, director of admissions and approved by interim president Hiram H. Lesar, it was said there is an increase of more than 200 in the new freshman and new transfer student categories. Graduate enrollment is up by more than 200 from last year. The various class size breakdown was not immediately available.

FOOTBALL--A new era of Southern Illinois football began this fall as Doug Weaver took over the Saluki coaching reigns. How good the Salukis will be remains to be seen, but one thing is sure--SIU will have a grid program it can be proud of.

Weaver, who has 16 years experience as a head coach or assistant in the Big Ten, Big Eight and Pacific Eight Conference, believes in a sound, fundamental approach to the game.

The Saluki offense incorporates the popular Veer series into traditional plays of football such as sweeps, traps, and bellies. And the 4-3 defense places maximum emphasis on fundamentals.

"Our goal this first year is to have a winning season," Weaver said. "We aren't going to write this year off or any year as a building year."

"We have a tremendous job to do since the schedule is probably the toughest an SIU team has ever faced. There is no one opponent which stands above the others like Oklahoma State did a year ago, but it is a rough schedule from top to bottom," Weaver said.

And, there is the stadium problem. Construction delays will mean only 6,000 seats in renovated McAndrew Stadium will be available. Only four games will be at home.

"We're not going to use the stadium as an excuse," Weaver said. "We're going to have an excellent stadium--one the students and alumni of SIU can be proud of."

"But to use the stadium or schedule as an excuse would be a copout," Weaver said. "Fortunately, the field has not been involved in the construction, so we have the AstroTurf ready for the first game at home, October 19 against Northern Illinois."

With the stadium not a problem, Weaver has been able to concentrate on preparing this year's club. The quarterback situation has been a pleasing development.

"Fred McAlley was the top quarterback in spring drills and at the start of fall practice," Weaver said. "But Leonard Hopkins (junior from West Frankfort) came back in great shape and made a battle for the number one position. We started Leonard against New Mexico State, but both men will play. We have confidence in whichever one is in the game at the time."

At the running back spots, Weaver has some problems and some good things going. Steve Weathersby (Chicago Lane Tech), Lawrence Boyd (Memphis, Tenn.) and fast-improving freshman Hugh Fletcher (Webster Groves, Mo.) give the Salukis a trio of big, mobile backs.

Graduation and ineligibilities stripped every tailback from the 1973 squad. Andre Herrera, a two-time junior college All-American has entered the picture and may be the man to take over the all-important spot. Sprinter Joe Laws (Memphis, Tenn.) and durable junior Rick Lewis (Troy) will help.

The best positions on the team appear to be the receiver posts. Senior flanker Bruce Puhr (Chicago St. Laurence) has been nothing short of perfection in fall practice. Veterans Pat Forys and Bob Habbe, both of Nashville, will handle the other spots with transfer Mike Bruegge (Breese Mater Dei) and dependable Ivy Moore (Memphis, Tenn.) also available.

The offensive line isn't a big one, but it's spirited. The guards and tackles appear sound headed by senior Craig Schuette (Staunton) and junior Mark Cunningham (Downers Grove South). John Doherty (Chicago Lane Tech), Peter Harths (Arlington Heights) and Mike Thompson (Dayton, Ohio) figure to start or play a lot.

The center position has been hobbled by injuries with Martin DeVolder (Evanston) rated the nod over Matt Bowman (Belleville West).

On defense, Weaver is proud of his linebackers headed by returning starters Jack Wise (Jacksonville) and Valdrew Rodgers, who led the team in tackles a year ago as a freshman. Tom Ippolito, a hard-hitter who lettered as a freshman, has moved into the top spot at the third linebacker spot. Dan Brown, a freshman from St. Louis Vianney, is expected to see a lot of action.

The front line was a problem area that was helped with the return of Primus Jones, the steady 230-pounder from Cahokia, at tackle. Chris Miller (Memphis, Tenn.) holds the other tackle spot with Lamont Marks (East St. Louis) expected to play alot.

The defensive ends are paced by a couple of veterans Seth Kirkpatrick (Memphis, Tenn.) and Mark Hailey (Murphysboro) and a surprising newcomer, Matroy Bailey (East St. Louis).

In the secondary, John Flowers (Fillmore) Gary Powell (Glenview) and Aaron Byas (Indianola, Miss.) have three of the spots nailed down. The other position has been a battle between veteran Dwight Simmons (East St. Louis) and Joe Hosman, a hard-hitting walk-on from Herrin.

The place kicking duties are in the hands of talented Ken Seaman (Hazelwood, Mo.), while either Seaman or reserve defensive back John Rende (Lockport) will punt.

Weaver hopes that several freshmen will be able to improve as the year goes along. The new coaching staff, including holdovers Bob Hailey and Bill Dodd, took advantage of the new NCAA limitations of 30 football scholarships a year, to pick up one of the Salukis' best grid round-ups in recent years.

BASKETBALL OUTLOOK--Southern Illinois is coming off its best record since joining the NCAA's major college ranks in 1968. The 19-7 mark of last season was also the best record of any Illinois' eight major colleges. Can the Salukis repeat or improve that record?

The answer to that question is a qualified yes. Yes, the Salukis can be as good or better, but they must do two things. First, a quarterback must be found to run the attack from the point guard position; secondly, a strong rebounding forward must be found to take the rebounding load off Joe Meriweather and Corky Abrams.

At the guard position, Southern Illinois coach Paul Lambert has a couple of options. He could move one of several players to the point or rely on the talents of junior college transfer Kern McKelvey who guided Moberly, Mo., to the third spot in the national junior college tournament.

The other position in the backcourt is solid. Mike Glenn started as a freshman and earned frosh all-America honors with a 15.2 scoring average and 54 per cent mark from the field. Milton Huggins, a 6-4 guard who led all prep scorers in Georgia with a 33.9 per game mark, could see action at the guard spot as well as returning letterman Rickey Boynton and Tom Harris.

Abrams started as a freshman at forward last year and the 6-6 youngster responded with 8.7 rebounds per game. In the pivot is 6-11 all-America candidate Joe Meriweather who scored 21.2 points and had 14.7 rebounds per game a year ago.

But rebounds from the other forward were lacking last year. Tim Ricci, a 6-4 shooter, started at that spot for part of the season, but his rebounding is shaky.

For that reason, Lambert recruited Mack Turner, a 6-6, 205-pound junior college transfer from Champaign via Burlington, Ia., JC. Turner averaged 15.2 points and 8.7 rebounds a game at Burlington last season and could fit into Lambert's plans.

If the rebounding works out, Lambert has a couple of seniors with experience who could play at forward or guard. Although Perry Hines, who scored 8.3 points as a reserve last year, and Shag Nixon, who hit 5.7 per game after a late start last year, both lack size, they can score.

Lambert also has letterman Dave Montfort and transfer Charles Hughlett on hand to supply depth at forward and center. (Hughlett won't be eligible until second semester, however).

In the middle, there's Meriweather, who is not only a scorer and rebounder delux, but a shot-blocker as well. The senior who played on the United States national team this summer blocked 90 shots last year and was a first-round draft choice by the Utah Stars in the ABA's regular draft.

Meriweather has decided to forego his pro career to complete his final season of eligibility. And, while Lambert is smiling, other coaches are gnashing their teeth trying to figure a way to stop the big guy.

Lambert is just glad to have two problems and not those of the other fellow.

MERIWEATHER—Southern Illinois senior center Joe Meriweather will be named to Street and Smith's Basketball pre-season all-America team.

Meriweather, a 6-11 ace from Phenix City, Ala., is one of twenty players named to the team by the magazine which annually sells more issues than all the rest of the basketball pre-season publications combined.

Meriweather averaged 21.2 points and 14.7 rebounds per game to lead the Salukis to a 19-7 mark. He also hit 59 per cent of his shots from the field and blocked 90 shots a year ago.

In addition to Street and Smith's squad, which is recognized as the foremost in the country, Meriweather will be drawing special features and all-America honors in nearly every other basketball magazine.

Guard Mike Glenn, a member of Basketball Weekly's Freshman All-America team last season, has also drawn journalistic support for all-America honors.

"Joe and Mike are certainly deserving of these honors," said Saluki coach Paul Lambert. "But it soon will be time to back up those awards with play this season."
