As stated in the preamble to the Southern Illinois University Alumni Association Bylaws, one of our major goals is "to advance the spirit of fellowship and loyalty among our members." In order for this goal to be accomplished, we, your board of directors, want to make every effort to be accessible and responsive to the needs and wishes of each graduate and former student of SIU.

Ours is an international organization and distance in some cases precludes direct contact. At our request, the telephone number and address of each director of the Association are listed on this page. We hope that you will call or write when you have a question, criticism, problem or suggestion.

The continual growth and prosperity of our University and of our Association requires the interest and enthusiasm of all of our graduates and former students.

We, your board of directors, pledge our conscientious and diligent efforts to work with you to achieve these purposes. We look forward to receiving your comments.

Sincerely,

Paul G. Schoen

Southern celebrated its 100th spring commencement this year. On a Saturday in mid May, some 3,776 persons joined the ever-growing ranks of SIU alumni. When compared to that first class of five who received their diplomas back in 1876, one can imagine the multiple changes of the preceding century. For a look at graduations past, see page 2.

Edward J. Schmidlein was announced as 1975's Great Teacher. Other highlights of this year's Alumni Day were the presentation of Alumni Achievement Awards, class reunions, the Graduate Reception and the installation of new officers. The story and pictures of the day begin on page 5.

What's new at SIU? Lots . . . Eight SIU women have received special International Women's Year awards from the University. John W. Huffman of University Legal Counsel has resigned. Two departments in the College of Human Resources have recently attained a full accreditation status. Clarence W. Stephens, professor emeritus, was awarded an honorary doctorate degree from SIU at Edwardsville. For more details and other stories, see News of the Campus beginning on page 8.

The graduating class of 1902 is shown in the upper windows. The people on the steps of Old Main are assumed to be professors, students and staff of S.I.N.U.

Southern Illinois University held its 100th spring commencement on May 17. The commencement ceremonies were conducted in the Arena, with over 3,500 students qualifying to receive degrees. From start to finish caps and gowns predominated.

Graduations at Southern, however, haven't always been like this. There have been a great many interesting changes in the graduation exercises since that first class of five received their diplomas back in 1876.

Undoubtedly, two of the major changes have been in the level of graduate participation and the number of graduates. Up until the early part of the present century the seniors had quite an active part in the commencement program as did the main speaker himself. Graduations were looked forward to with conflicting emotions, at once both pleasurable and terrifying. Each senior, before he could be graduated from this institution was required to read an original scholarly essay. The rhetorical masterpieces were the result of long and studious preparation, not only in research and actual composition, but also in careful study and practice in the art of elocution.

After each senior had delivered his oration at the exercises, friends from the audience came forward in the midst of the applause and presented the orator with large...

baskets of flowers. By the end of this part of the program the stage was so crowded and stacked with flowers that the graduates and platform dignitaries were almost hidden from view. In spite of the fact that the audience had been sitting cramped in the assembly seats for hours, they showed no visible signs of weariness, nor did one single person leave the scene before the conclusion of the program.

As a matter of fact, the real social event of the day was yet to come, for after the academic ceremonies were finished, the so-called “promenade” was started. The orchestra struck up the grand march, and the president and his wife, followed by the faculty, the visiting dignitaries, and the graduating class marched around the hall in a kind of moving receiving line. The audience wormed themselves out of the seats where they had been more or less squeezed in by the Assembly Hall desks, and all enjoyed a general social time, exchanging greetings and offering congratulations to the members of the class.

Also at this time the audience was given the opportunity of admiring the baskets of flowers and reading the attached cards, and could also view the graduation gifts on display, each senior having a reserved space for his own gift exhibit. Popular presents for the graduates in the early days consisted of brush and comb sets, pearl handled shoe buttoners, fancy hat pins, fans, watch fobs, stick pins, and books of poems. Whittier’s Snow Bound and Tennyson’s Princess seem to have been the favorites.

Graduation dresses in those days were extremely fancy and elaborate. Heavy white silk and lace creations with voluminous sleeves, and ruffle trimmed skirts with broad satin sashes were most popular. This custom, however, was due to cause embarrassment to those students who could not afford such extensive wardrobes. We find that in 1898 an attempt was made to simplify matters by the adoption of caps and gowns. Some of the graduates, however, did not favor this so called “uniform.” So that year most of the class marched in wearing the new academic regalia, while a few wore the traditional white dresses and conventional black suits.

There have been a hundred graduations at SIU. They have been held in everything from the original Old Main which was destroyed by fire on November 26, 1883, to tents, during the intermediate years prior to the second Old Main, from Shryock Auditorium to McAndrew Stadium, and at the Arena where commencement ceremonies are still being held. Graduating classes have ranged from five to 4,063 degrees being presented at spring commencement in 1973. Many of the details surrounding it have changed through the years but nonetheless, graduation is still a sight to behold at Southern...

Alumni Day Highlights

Edward Schmidlein, accounting professor, was named Great Teacher, William E. Williams '48, William H. Cook ex '42, Dr. Martin Van Brown '25 and Robert L. Gallegly '39 received Alumni Achievement Awards. Paul Schoen '67 was installed as new Alumni Association president. Two new members of the Alumni Association board of directors, Kent Brandon '61 and Willis Coatney '55, were elected to office and SIU President Warren W. Brandt addressed the large banquet audience, meeting many of attending alumni for the first time.

These were the climactic highlights of Alumni Day, held May 17 on the SIU campus. With blue skies and cool breezes prevailing, returning alumni enjoyed a beautiful day full of activities, which ended in the traditional Alumni Banquet in the evening.

It was a busy day with graduation and alumni activities sharing the all too short daylight hours. "Official" activities included an Alumni Association Legislative Council meeting at which Coatney and Brandon were elected to office, and Schoen, Fred Huff ex '62 and Roger Gray '64 were re-elected to the board. New life members of the Association and members of the Class of 1925—returning for their Golden Reunion—were guests of honor at a special luncheon at noon in the University's Center. Class reunions and elections were held during the afternoon. Alumni also held a reception for the 1975 graduates and their guests to officially, yet informally, welcome the "new blood" into the alumni body.

Like any get-together, the day was full of food, smiles, jokes and visits with old and new friends but after all the punch lines had been delivered, informality gave way to the banquet.

Retiring Association President Albert Shafter introduced Brandt at the banquet as the type of a man that he was sure would be around for quite a while and the audience broke into a generous round of applause.

Brandt, enthusiastic after his participation in the commencement exercises which had been completed less than an hour prior, flavored his "State of the University" address with optimism, stressing the greatness of the University to its new and old alumni.

"It's been a wonderful, warm 'Yeh, isn't SIU great' kind of a day. I've had the opportunity to meet some of you and talk about the University, by the way, it's in great shape. It doesn't matter where I am, in or out of the state, on or off campus, people are saying great things about what is going on at SIU.

"After spending the afternoon with students I can say students today make you feel good about the future."

Commenting on the new degree programs which are being developed, Brandt admitted that some criticize adding programs when the old programs sufficed former students. "The world is changing and students are constantly confronted with new problems and methodologies. The University must keep abreast if it is to continue to produce students with the types of educational programs they need and want."

Inspite of the budget crunch, SIU is progressing. "McAndrew Stadium is near completion and construction is underway on the 'co-rec' gymnasium which will provide students with outside of class experience. We are also continuing our development of the medical and law schools."

The public, according to Brandt, is concerned about the job that higher education is doing. He attempted to reassure the alumni in attendance that SIU was working hard to stay within the allotted budget and not to sacrifice any quality in academic output. "This University is giving the people of Illinois considerable coverage for their money," Brandt concluded.

More than 300 people witnessed the presentation of the Great Teacher Award. Schmidlein was obviously moved when he said, "I've received a number of awards but none have meant more." The Alumni Achievement Award recipients thanked the association's alumni over and over again for the honor of being recognized.

Then, when the speeches had been delivered and the awards presented, the traditional candlelight closing ceremony began. The lights dimmed as everyone lit his candle, cleared his throat and sang "Alma Mater." Thus, ending Alumni Day 1975.
Departments OKayed

The College of Human Resources at SIU have reason to celebrate, thanks to professional recognition of interior design and social welfare departments by accrediting agencies.

Inspection by the Foundation for Interior Design Education Research led to accreditation of the interior design department, while the social welfare department has been approved by the national accreditation commission of the Council on Social Work Education.

SIU is one of 14 four-year institutions in the U.S. and the only school in Illinois that offers a recognized professional interior designing program, according to Paul J. Lougeay, department chairman.

Lougeay said one of the major strengths of the department lies in its architectural orientation. "The department is unique in that it has two registered architects and two professional interior designers on its faculty," he said.

According to Lougeay, job opportunities in this field are excellent. "There is a tendency for students to obtain employment in architectural firms and related areas rather than in small decorator studios."

The accreditation of the social welfare department "represents a milestone in the development and upgrading of professional social work education at SIU," A. J. Auerbach, department chairman, said.

"Graduates with a bachelor's degree from an accredited institution are likely to receive greater employment consideration by agencies looking for qualified social work practitioners on a beginning level," he said.

Social work job opportunities are constantly multiplying, according to Auerbach, "Taking the combined resources and expenditures of public and private welfare activities, social welfare is the largest 'industry' in the country today, exceeding even military and educational expenditures.

News of the Campus

"Recent developments,' he explained, "indicate plans for expansion in services to the aged, in health security and training, in the attempt to decrease crime and increase rehabilitation of offenders, in the need to control alcoholic and drug addiction, and in the wide variety of services, public and voluntary, for children, families and adults in both urban and rural areas."

A Degree of Thanks

Clarence W. Stephens, professor emeritus of SIU-C, received the honorary doctor of humane letters degree from SIU-E at the June 13 commencement.

Stephens, who has held high administrative positions on both campuses of SIU, was recommended for the honorary degree by John S. Rendleman, president of SIU-E, and the University Committee for Honorary Degrees. The recommendation was approved by the SIU Board of Trustees.

The SIU positions which Stephens served included director of student work and financial assistance, University budget officer, vice-president for operations at the Edwardsville campus, special assistant to the president, special assistant to the chancellor of the Carbondale campus, and chairman of the University Administrative Council. As Council chairman, he was temporary head of the University during the transitional year following the reassignment of the president to president emeritus and during the time that the campuses at Carbondale and Edwardsville were made autonomous.

The recommendation for the honorary degree included the statement, "Dr. Clarence W. Stephens' mark upon SIU has long been felt and his influence upon the development of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville is significant. His budgetary skill and insight into fiscal matters contributed greatly to the growth of the University. His habit of viewing each decision-making situation with objectivity and fairness fostered respect and admiration and gained the thanks of countless persons."

A 1974 Alumni Achievement Award recipient, Stephens has served both this University and the Alumni Association through the years. He received the bachelor of education degree from SIU at Carbondale, the master of arts degree from the University of Illinois and the doctor of education degree from Indiana University.

Huffman Resigns

SIU Legal Counsel John Huffman stepped down from his post on July 1 to enter private law practice. Huffman has plans of opening a law office in Carbondale.

A year-and-a-half after he joined the SIU legal staff in April of 1972, Huffman was appointed legal counsel, succeeding T. Richard Mager when Mager became vice president for development and services. Prior to coming to SIU, Huffman directed legal affairs at Kent State University.

No replacement has yet been found. Huffman, therefore, will continue to supervise the legal office until a successor is chosen. He said he will assist the legal staff after his replacement has been installed.
Grades Drop a Point

The days of the straight 5.0 average are over. As of June 7, a 4.0 was the best to be had. That's when SIU changed the grading scale after a recommendation of the Graduate Council and the Faculty Senate and approval by the office of the vice president for academic affairs and provost.

All grade points were lowered one point in the conversion. Requirements for academic honors and honorary organizations were also lowered one point to correspond with the change.

Under the new system, an A is valued at 4 grade points per hour; a B, 3 points, etc., with an E, WE, or ABS carrying no grade point value.

Positions Assumed

President Warren Brandt announced the appointments of a vice president for University relations and a director of campus services.

George R. Mace, acting vice president for administration and campus treasurer was named vice president for University relations. He will be responsible for development and alumni relations as well as offices dealing with public relations and area services.

The redefined position was formerly known as vice president for development and services and was held by T. Richard Mager until his resignation in May to join the law school faculty.

Clarence G. Dougherty, director of the Student Center was appointed to the newly-created post of director of campus services. He will be responsible for the Physical Plant, Facilities Planning Office, security police, airport operations, auxiliary enterprises, the SIU Arena and Shryock Auditorium. Dougherty will report directly to Brandt.

Though both men assumed their new positions on July 1, formal approval of them is expected at this month's board meeting.

Mace, 41, joined the SIU administration in 1971. He had served at SIU-Edwardsville on the government and public affairs faculty.

He was assistant to the president, dean of students and acting vice president for student affairs at SIU before becoming acting vice president for administration and campus treasurer.

Dougherty, 52, became Student Center director in 1960. He came to SIU from Ohio State University where he was Union Center director.

Women Commended

Eight SIU faculty and staff members have been chosen to receive the University's special International Women's Year awards for "contributions to the role of women in the University community."

Recipients of the one-time honor were announced by SIU President Warren Brandt. They are:

—Ruby Battles, a building services supervisor who is in charge of custodial workers at four major campus buildings and several temporary houses. She worked through the ranks to her present position after starting out as a maid and now she supervises a work crew of 38 men and women. Brandt said her philosophy, "the most valuable gift you can give another is a good example," has gained her recognition for leadership.

—Eleanor Bushee, chairman of the allied health and public services division of the School of Technical Careers. She has been nominated to several state and national committees in the field of dentistry and was cited specifically for "contributions to developing the concept of careers for women in the medical and biological sciences."

—Charlotte Campbell, professor of mythology and chairman of the department of medical sciences in the SIU school of Medicine. She was cited for a "noteworthy professional career during a period and in a field in which women were not typically found." Her selection also was based on leadership and outstanding contributions to the field of science.

—Jane Crichton, '42, director of the faculty administrative records center, who was cited for outstanding contributions to SIU. Brandt said her capable administration reflects an example for women.

—Florence Foote, professor in the School of Medicine and department of physiology. She won recognition for outstanding contributions in her academic field and in contributing to the successful establishment of SIU School of Medicine.

—Barbara Kirkikis, M.S. '74, director of employment services. She was cited for developing seminars for women and the entire campus community. Brandt called her "outstanding as a professional."

—Alice Rector, '35, counselor in career planning and placement, who is credited with helping to eliminate discriminatory practices in the areas of vocational guidance and aptitude and interest testing.

—Stella Yanulavich, '63, administrative clerk in industrial research and studies, cited for "loyalty and competence" in serving the University.

The eight women were selected from a list of nominees by a special Committee on Women's Awards, composed of Elaine Alden, Ginny Britton, Fidella Doolin, Ann Griffin, Doris Hofer and Sharon Justice. Award-winners received certificates of recognition at a special luncheon held at the University House.

Willis E. Malone (center) accepted the Service to Southern Illinois Award from William Kent Brandon (left) and Keith Sanders. The award was given by the Jackson County Alumni Club in appreciation for Malone's contributions to the people of Carbondale and southern Illinois.

In behalf of the Williamson County Alumni Club, Jack Murphy '54, '57 presented Cleo Carter '46, '49 the 1975 Outstanding Alumnæ Award. "Cleo Carter was selected because she has been a tremendous supporter of Southern and of our club through the years." Helen Banycky '47, president of the club continued, "Her loyalty and service has kept our club alive and we wanted to thank her in a special way for all that she's done. The plaque will serve as a constant reminder of our gratitude." Miss Carter is the second recipient of this award. Last year "Itchy" Jones was so honored.

What's New For '76?

The Alumni Association Board of Directors has voted to combine Alumni Day and Homecoming. Starting in fall of 1976, Southern Illinois University's alumni will be invited back for Alumni Day-Homecoming festivities. Class reunions and other features of Alumni Day will be added to the traditional Homecoming activities; thus, the combination promises to be the best of both.

With school in session and the renovation and expansion of the stadium, there will be plenty of activity and lots of room for all the visiting alums.

Many of the details are yet to be decided but plans are to provide a greater opportunity for alumni to meet with faculty and students through campus organizations and academic units. We will be keeping you abreast of the plans as they are developed. Anyone having any suggestions for activities that might be held in conjunction with the dual event is encouraged to send them to the Alumni Office.

As for Homecoming 1975, it will be held on October 25. Southern's football opponent will be Wichita State. Further details will be forthcoming.

The Scholar Athlete Award of 1975 was presented to Jack Laurie, a gymnast who recently graduated with a B.A. in science-physiology. The award is given each year to the graduating athlete with the highest average. Bob Odaniell, director of the Alumni Office, presented the award on behalf of the Alumni Association as Mrs. Laurie looked on.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS' BASEBALL team closed the 1975 season with a 36-13-1 mark and a second place showing in their first competition in the Missouri Valley Conference.

While the Salukis were ranked 10th nationally for much of the season, Saluki coach Itchy Jones expressed disappointment.

"We hit for high averages and ran well, probably as well as any past Saluki team," Jones said. "However, we did not hit in clutch situations and our pitching staff did not reach their full potential."

Frank Hunsaker, a junior from Burbank, led the team with a .364 average, while Bert Newman of Mt. Prospect bettered his school stolen base record to 36 thefts this season.

Individual performances of three Salukis prompted professional baseball scouts to draft Howie Mitchell and juniors Steve Shartzer and John Hoscheidt.

Mitchell is a native of Maywood and was chosen in the 21st round by the San Francisco Giants. Shartzer passed up his final year of college eligibility to sign for a lucrative bonus as a fifth-round pick of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Hoscheidt, who led the major college ranks in triples a year ago, is a native of Henry who was selected in the 13th round by the New York Yankees. The 21-year-old outfielder also has one year of eligibility remaining and is playing in a summer league for Fairbanks, Alaska.

Jones noted that the improvement of newcomers into the lineup helped stabilize the team's offensive punch.

"George Vukovich, Rick Murray and Wayne Rueger made rapid strides and now have a thorough knowledge of their capabilities," Jones said. "They'll contribute to a good offensive team along with a group of newcomers who should jump right in next year. Truly, we felt we had the team to win the conference and return to the college world series, but we did not get the job done. The people we have returning should send Southern Illinois' baseball back to the national tournament in 1976."

AFTER THIS YEAR'S successful basketball season, Southern Illinois coach Paul Lambert and his assistants had some rebuilding to do. If the current recruiting harvest is any indication, the Salukis have been well-stocked.

Lambert and assistants George Iubelt and Herman Williams have signed four high school standouts and one junior college transfer to go with their six returning lettermen for next season's initial campaign in the Missouri Valley Conference.

The newest Salukis are Tyrone Davis, a 6-1 juco guard; Richard Ford, a highly-regarded 6-6 forward; and Gary Wilson, a 6-6 super offensive performer. Dan Kieszkowski, a rugged 6-7 forward and center and Al Williams, a 6-8 mobile forward are also recent recruits.

"Overall, this has to be our best recruiting year in my five years at Southern Illinois," said Lambert who has guided the Salukis to the best records among the state's eight major colleges the past two years.

"All of the players we have recruited have excellent quickness and fine growth potential," Lambert said.

"Of course, we did not sign the big center but you just don't replace a player of the size and quality of Joe Meriweather. The fact we do not have the one big center will mean we will alter our attack.

"We will probably have a rotating pivot with as many as three freshmen starting," Lambert continued. "We should be able to use our outstanding quickness to be a pressing team which uses defense as an offensive weapon."

Of the new recruits, Davis and Ford signed, on national letter-of-intent day in mid-April. Davis was considered by many to be the premier point guard among the nation's junior colleges. A native of New York City, he was recruited hard by South Carolina, Providence and Oral Roberts.

Ford was a standout in several high school all-star games following his stellar performance in the Alabama State tournament when he was selected the meet's MVP after Birmingham Parker High won the state title in the large-school class.

Parker High was the same school which produced current Saluki assistant coach Herman Williams and where Williams later won two state championships as a coach.

Kieszkowski was recruited by several Valley teams and played for a former Drake standout, Billy Hahn, at Rogers High in Michigan City, Ind. He is an excellent shooter and rebounder who is also an excellent baseball performer.

Al Williams was considered by some as one of the top two players this year in talent-rich Memphis, Tenn. He selected SIU over several Southeastern Conference and major independent teams. Williams was a starter for the U.S. national junior team in a series against the Russian juniors.

Wilson is the latest signee. Although he is only 6-6, many coaches feel he has the ability to play a power forward or center. He becomes a Saluki after narrowing his choice of college to Louisville and SIU. He was the player of the year in west Georgia after leading Columbus Carver to the state tournament.

"It is a tribute to Coach Williams and the remainder of our staff and current players," Lambert said, "that we had such an excellent year recruiting. We had a couple of things working for us which helped in a big way.

"Of course, we went to the National Invitation Tournament this year and had some openings which attracted some outstanding players. But most important," he said, "was the fact we are now in a major conference.

"The attractiveness of the Valley with its outstanding basketball tradition and television contract gives us an advantage no other SIU basketball staff has had," Lambert said.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association limits each institution to six basketball recruits per season. At press time, the Salukis were recruiting a couple of other prospects and the possibility remained another player could sign with Southern Illinois University.

Surrounding the new look of football at Southern Illinois is a new enthusiasm. This enthusiasm is founded upon special “days” to be celebrated throughout the attractive six-game home schedule at McAndrew Stadium. Such days as Family Day, Parent’s Day, Band Day, Rededication Day and Appreciation Day (honoring the high school football players of the area) are expected to kindle this flame as well as the traditional homecoming, October 25.

For years, McAndrew Stadium was used as a crutch by Southern Illinois football fans. No more. Ol’ Mac has received such a facelift the alumni will hardly recognize it. From that WPA beginning some 36 years ago, McAndrew Stadium has been rebuilt including complete new seating, rest rooms, concession stands, scoreboard, dressing rooms, press box and public address system. Saluki football fans will soon learn the luxury of ample seating on the sidelines between the 35’s.

Since 1962, Southern Illinois has been knocking on the door of the Missouri Valley Conference. Now we’re in. And in two more years the Salukis will be playing for the Valley football championship. But for now SIU will have to make its presence felt against Wichita State and Drake.

The Valley has maintained a strong football heritage which has seen such stars as Johnny Unitas, Mean Joe Green, Mercury Morris, Howard Twilley, Jerry Rhome, Howard Stevens, Johnny Bright, Bob Fenimore and others.

Probably every football fan has his offensive theories. And so do coaches. One of the Saluki staff’s theories revolves around the wishbone offense. It’s a simple formation predicated on fakes, blocks and ball-handling. In the past two seasons, enough running backs have gained experience to operate this sound offense which has proven to be the most devastating college football has ever seen. Oh, it takes a good quarterback and a lot of work to make it go. But it also takes a lot of work to make it stop.
