Honorable & Mentionable . . .

TAILBACK ANDRE HERRERA gave Southern Illinois University football fans much to cheer about this season. The senior from the Bronx, N.Y., broke several Saluki records and achieved national attention on more than one weekend. Herrera established himself as a bona fide all-America candidate with the following record-setting performances:
—NCAA record set: 214 yards in one quarter (vs. Northern Illinois); old record 182 yards by Mercury Morris, West Texas State.
—Six TDs and 36 points vs. Northern Illinois were the most touchdowns and the most points scored in one game by an NCAA Division I player in 1976.
—Most rushing attempts, season—258 (through 10 games), breaking old record of 240 by George Loukas, 1971.
—Most rushing yards, season—1,440 (through 10 games), breaking old record of 1,178 by Bob Hasberry, 1969.
—Most total offense yards, season—1,440 (through 10 games), breaking old record of 1,364 by Brad Pancoast, 1971.
—Named national back of the week by Associated Press and to national backfield of the week by United Press International following Northern Illinois game (35 carries, 319 yards, six TDs, 214 yards in first quarter).
—Named Missouri Valley Conference offensive player of the week three times.

Exhibition Spotlights the Blacksmith

Down through the years the folks at University Museum and Art Galleries have been expanding our worlds with exhibitions and demonstrations that have ranged from the Mayan artifacts uncovered by Robert Rands and crew in Central America to the oils of some of Illinois' celebrated early moderns.

Not content to sit back and let the public come to them, Museum and Galleries staff members have hit the road with several of their shows, visiting schools, museums, county fairs and many of the rural communities that dot the southern and central Illinois landscape.

Last month, though, the Museum and Art Galleries delivered a coup de maitre that promises to leave its mark for some time to come. Backed by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, Illinois Arts Council, John Deere Foundation, Granite City Steel and several others, the University Museum and Art Galleries staged a special Bicentennial salute to one of America's proudest artisans—the blacksmith.

"The Blacksmith as Artist and Craftsman in the U. S., 1776–1976" has already become one of SIU's most lavishly praised contributions to the arts.

The exhibition, which included a wide-ranging display of historical and contemporary works in wrought iron, a competition for practicing smiths and a one-week workshop of blacksmiths, drew hundreds of people from throughout the United States to SIU-C galleries and demonstrations. A highlight of the month-long exhibition, which opened with displays in Mitchell and Faner Hall galleries September 27, was the annual conference of the Artist-Blacksmith Association of North America (ABANA) at SIU-C's 6,500-acre Touch of Nature Environmental Center near Little Grassy Lake.

More than 450 smiths and aspiring smiths from 30 states attended the workshop—making it, according to everyone present, the largest gathering ever of blacksmiths. Many of the country's prominent practitioners of this regenerated art participated: Francis Whitaker and Slim Spurling of Colorado, Frank Turley of New Mexico, Jud Nelson of Georgia, Gary Brumfield of Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia, and Tom Bredlow of Arizona.

Participants like Kevin Matthews, a Massachusetts teenager who hitchhiked part of the way, and Robert...
Hale, an ex-Navy blacksmith who designs machinery for the nuclear power industry at Oak Ridge, Tennessee, rubbed elbows with the masters for four days. They attended demonstrations and lectures—like a presentation on metals by one of the world's foremost authorities, Cyril Stanley Smith, professor emeritus at MIT.

Everyone involved left the ABANA conference and University Museum and Art Galleries exhibition talking with excitement of the revival under way in the art and craft of blacksmithing. Many friends were made and much information was passed during the course of the exhibition, and the momentum has, apparently, just begun to build.

The combined staffs of University Museum and Art Galleries (merged in 1975) and the SIU-C art department spent months assembling the more than 180 pieces which went into the exhibition titled "Iron—Solid wrought/USA." Contributions like the Temple Toggle harpoon designed by a Massachusetts freedman in 1840 and still used by the whaling industry, a Conestoga Wagon jack, two self-scouring steel plows developed by John Deere, a slave collar and a fireplace set from the forge of Daniel Boone VI were assembled from prominent collections and museums throughout the country.

New York's Museum of American Folk Art and Museum of Contemporary Crafts, Nebraska's Museum of the Fur Trade, Oklahoma's Cowboy Hall of Fame and the Arizona and Missouri Historical Societies were among the collectors who loaned pieces to the exhibition.

Many of the pieces have been sent packing to the Museum of Contemporary Crafts in New York City for an exhibition which is scheduled to open in mid-January. The Smithsonian Institution has expressed an interest in exhibiting many of the works also.

The opportunity to witness the creations of one of America's most accomplished artisans—the blacksmith—and examine the work of a few prominent contemporary smiths was rare indeed. Witness the remarks of Dorothy Stiegler of Olympia, Washington, to SIU-C President Warren Brandt after the ABANA workshop at Touch of Nature: "I've never been to a more smoothly run workshop in my life. It was like reading 50 books and working at my forge for five years."

It was also probably one of the most representative and tasteful displays of America's heritage staged anywhere during this Bicentennial year.
Art Exhibit

Next month Southern Illinois University and its School of Art will share in an historic first. Wann-hong Liu, who received a master's degree in fine arts in 1971, will have a special exhibit of his jewelry in January at the National Palace Museum in Taipei, Taiwan. The National Palace Museum is recognized as one of the great museums of the world, and first in its collection of Oriental art.

It is the first time the Museum has had an exhibit of jewelry, and the first time a member of the Museum staff has exhibited his art at the Museum.

The National Palace Museum has more than 4,000 bronze vessels in its collection. As curator for this section, Wann-hong established a workshop three years ago to explore the methods of smelting and casting bronze vessels. The objective was not only to investigate the mysteries of this ancient art, but also to duplicate them with modern techniques and to use these techniques in teaching Chinese history and culture.

The project was highly successful. Now accurate reproductions of the ancient vessels, identical even to the green patina caused by age can be purchased at the Museum at prices ranging upward to $250.

Wann-hong Liu, who was known to his classmates on the Carbondale campus as “Jimmie,” is recognized as one of the leading designers of modern jewelry in the world. Donald Willcox, an American authority, lists Wann-hong high among the top jewelers in his book, “Jewelry—International Perspectives.” Seven of the illustrations in this book are of Wann-hong’s creations. The author writes:

“Wann-hong Liu is both a private craftsman and a research associate at the National Palace Museum in Taipei, Taiwan. Much of his official work is devoted to the study of the Shang Bronzes—not only finding out how they were made, but also restoring and attempting to reproduce them with the same techniques. Wann-hong has often found an application for his research in his own work. He expresses some of his fantasy through gold and silver wire, using the material somewhat like macrame, by twisting, winding, knotting and braiding it into form.”

Equal praise is accorded Mr. Liu by Dr. Arline M. Fisch, professor of arts at San Diego State University. Her book, “Textile Techniques in Metal, for Jewelers, Sculptors and Textile Artists” was published by Van Nostrand Reinhold Co.

A Finnish craftsman, Oppi A. J. Untracht, also gives recognition to Wann-hong Liu in his book “Jewelry Techniques,” to be published by Doubleday & Company. Wann-hong is represented in this authoritative volume by photographs of his jewelry creations of the last two years.

Mr. Liu is an author as well as an artist. Most of his writings have appeared in the “Bulletin of the National Palace Museum.” His most recent article is entitled “Casting Reproductions of Chinese Bronzes At the National Palace Museum.” His home near the museum is an art show in itself. He “paints” in metal and a dozen of his works hang on the walls of his home. He also works in wood and in textiles, and impressive examples of his work are displayed in his home.

Great Teacher

A teacher of teachers received the 17th annual Great Teacher Award of the Southern Illinois University—Carbondale Alumni Association during Homecoming ceremonies October 23.

Morris L. Lamb, 39-year-old associate professor of curriculum, instruction and media, received the $1,000 award at a Homecoming luncheon in the SIU-C Student Center.

SIU-C's Great Teachers are chosen by a vote of University alumni. The standard is classroom teaching excellence, according to Robert Odanrell, executive director of the Association.

Lamb is a specialist in elementary education and coordinates SIU-C's master's degree program in that field. Since coming to SIU-C in 1970 he has served on more than 70 thesis and Ph.D. dissertation committees.

He is a member of the College of Education's teacher education task force, the Administrative Certification Committee, the undergraduate and graduate Student Affairs Committees, and the University's Faculty Senate.

In announcing the award, Odanrell cited Lamb's "Great Teacher qualities": inspiration, enthusiasm, attention to students in and out of class.

The award includes an engraved plaque as well as the $1,000 check. Award money comes from Alumni contributions "as an expression of appreciation to their great teacher at SIU-C," Odanrell said.

Lamb has been a consultant to the Illinois Office of Education and numerous public school systems in Illinois. He also conducted an Illinois Humanities Project in Carbondale on school integration.

In 1972, Lamb won the SIU-C College of Education "Good Teaching Award" for excellence in undergraduate teaching.

A native of Hammond, Okla., Lamb received a bachelor's degree from Southwestern (Okla.) State Teachers College and master's and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Oklahoma.

He was principal of elementary schools in Santa Rosa, N.M. and Oklahoma City, Okla., and taught for two years at the University of Oklahoma before joining the SIU-C faculty.

He is married to the former Sharron Whitney of Dallas, Texas. They have two young children.

Homecoming 1976

A 54-0 football victory over Northern Illinois University climaxed Southern Illinois University's 1976 Homecoming Celebration Oct. 23.

The victory, the fourth triumph in what has become SIU's first winning grid campaign since 1971, was just one of several highlights of a rain-soaked, but activity-filled weekend.

Among those alums returning to their alma mater were representatives of the Class of 1926. They were toasted at a 50-year class reunion dinner Friday evening.

Saturday's traditional Homecoming parade down University Avenue was rained out, but the soaking didn't spoil the spirit of those who had returned to SIU for a weekend of reunions, socialization and campus visits.

A campus recognition luncheon preceding the SIU-NIU football game Saturday was highlighted by the presentation of the 19th annual Alumni Achievement Awards and announcement of the 1976 Great Teacher Award.

Receiving the Alumni Achievement Awards were Orville Alexander, 1931 graduate and professor emeritus; Willis E. Malone, 1940 graduate and former chancellor and special assistant to the University president; and Robert G. Stevens, 1951 graduate and chairman, chief executive and president of Bancohio Corp.

Alexander, who retired Sept. 1 after 38 years with the SIU-C government department, was instrumental as the University's Springfield representative in changing SIU's status from a teaching college to that of a full-fledged University with its own board of trustees.

The Vienna native served as research director for the Illinois School Problems Commission from 1951 to 1963 and also as acting director of research for the Illinois Legislative Council from 1944 to 1946. In 1957, the Illinois House of Representatives unanimously adopted a resolution citing Alexander for "giving a full measure of skilled devotion to helping solve problems of school finance and school functioning while carrying on his teaching and administrative duties at Carbondale."

A political science specialist, Alexander served as chairman of that department from 1950 to 1969 and was the University's first director of Alumni Services from 1946 to 1950.

Malone joined the SIU-C faculty just one year after Alexander as a supervisor of rural education programs in the University's training schools. The Hamilton County native has held a variety of posts at SIU-C including director of admissions, professor of elementary education, vice-president of academic affairs and provost and executive vice-president before retiring in 1975.

Following the May, 1975 student anti-war protests which closed the University, Malone was named acting chancellor and subsequently was recognized by the SIU board of trustees for his "quiet leadership."

Stevens, who will participate in his 25-year class reunion during the weekend, holds a bachelor's degree from SIU-C in business administration, and a master's and doctorate from the University of Illinois. A frequent lecturer and writer in the fields of banking and finance, Stevens was named to the top slot at Bancohio last January. The firm has 40 affiliates and more than $3 billion in assets.

Before going to Bancohio, Stevens was vice-president of First National City Bank, New York and later became president of the Old Stone Bank, Providence, Rhode Island.

Iowan To Head SIU Coal Center

A coal mining expert from Iowa State University has been chosen to head Southern Illinois University—Carbondale's Coal Extraction and Utilization Research Center.

The selection of Lyle V. A. Sendlein to direct operations of SIU-C's multi-discipline coal research center was announced Nov. 3 by W. D. Klimstra, acting director of the coal research unit who has headed a search committee to fill the position.

Klimstra said the 43-year-old Sendlein, professor of geology at Iowa State and assistant division chief in the Iowa Coal Research Project, will take over the director's duties July 1, 1977. Klimstra, who heads SIU-C's Cooperative Wildlife Research Laboratory, will continue as acting director until then.

Sendlein's appointment is subject to ratification by the SIU board of trustees.

Currently director of the Iowa Coal project's experimental surface mine at Oskaloosa, Sendlein has a wide range of coal-related research interests which includes geophysics, ground-water problems, engineering, land-use planning and reclamation. The Iowa State coal research project was set up to investigate all aspects of surface mining from land reclamation to utilizing the coal taken out of the ground.

Sendlein was graduated from Washington (Mo.) University with a bachelor's degree in geological engineering and a master's degree in geophysics. He received a Ph.D. in 1964 (in soil engineering) from Iowa State.

SIU-C's Coal Extraction and Utilization Research Center was established in 1974 after Gov. Daniel Walker called for increased research to boost the potential of Illinois coal reserves.

Constituent Groups

There have been six societies charted by the Board of Directors to date with the School of Engineering and Technology added at the Homecoming meeting. Others are School of Agriculture, College of Business and Administration, College of Science, Home Economics and School of Technical Careers. The following are currently in the process of submitting petitions: College of Education, contact Dr. John Evans, College of Education, SIU, Carbondale; School of Law, contact Mr. Bill Schwartz, 1202 West Main Street, Suite 12, Carbondale; and School of Medicine, contact Mr. Jason Barr, Assistant Dean, SIU School of Medicine, P. O. Box 3926, Springfield, Illinois.

The purpose of the constituent society groups is to provide a continuing professional relationship between the University academic staff and its alumni through professionally oriented meetings both on and off campus, newsletters, assistance in placement and admissions, and continuing education.

You are automatically a member of your chartered constituent society as a member of the Alumni Association. A portion of your membership is transferred to provide programs...

It is the plan of the Alumni Association to charter constituent societies in all the schools and colleges. Four of the above have been activated this year.

Legislative Council

Homecoming was a time of business for SIU's Alumni Association Legislative Council. The Council is the basic governing board body of the Alumni Association. It is composed of representatives from each class, geographic area, alumni club and constituent group.

During its annual meeting, the Council heard reports from the Association president, treasurer and executive director; elected five directors to the Board of Directors; awarded an honorary life membership to Henry A. Blackman, associate justice of the U. S. Supreme Court; and heard arguments for and against revision of the bylaws.

Among those by-law revisions passed were: a provision for the Board to set the date for Alumni Day, which this year was combined with Homecoming; provided for two student voting members of the Board, graduate and undergraduate; and changed the fiscal year from January–December to July–June.

The Council turned down a revision that would have given the Board of Directors power to revise the bylaws, a power now vested in the whole Legislative Council.

The Council also announced representatives-elect for the Class of 1976: James Ray Wood, Carbondale, representative; Diane Cherry, Carbondale, first alternate; Carla Sue Baker, Bridgeport, second alternate.

Butts To Head Kentucky State

A 1968 Ph.D. graduate of Southern Illinois University-Carbondale was inaugurated September 24 as president of Kentucky State University in Frankfort.

William A. Butts, a 1968 recipient of an SIU-C doctoral degree in political science, was formally chaired as president of Kentucky State in ceremonies in Frankfort. He took over from former President Carl M. Hill in December, 1975.

Butts, 43, is a native of Kilmichael, Miss., and was graduated from Mississippi Vocational College, in Itta Bena (now Mississippi Valley State University) in 1957 with a bachelor's degree in political science. He taught in public schools in Natchez, Miss., and came to SIU-C in 1961, receiving a master's degree in government the next year.

After receiving his Ph.D., he taught at Mississippi Valley and was chairman of the department of social sciences, executive assistant to the president and head of the division of arts and sciences before going to Kentucky State.

Butts is married to the former Clara Coleman.

A delegation of SIU-C officials attending the inauguration ceremonies included SIU-C President Warren W. Brandt, David Kenney, professor of government (Butts' doctoral dissertation adviser), and emeritus professors Orville Alexander and Frank Klingberg.

Leadership Workshop

SIU-C President Warren Brandt addressed a crowd of some 90 people attending the annual fall workshop for alumni leaders, held Sept. 25 in the University's Student Center. Participants from alumni clubs, constituent societies and the Alumni Association Board of Directors heard Brandt's appeal for assistance from individual alums and alumni organizations.

Brandt expressed concern over recent state and national trends in funding higher education, delineating many of the problems caused by SIU-C's being funded for an enrollment of 19,000 (with actual enrollment figures approaching 22,000) during the current fiscal year. Brandt discussed the current enrollment limitation, possible future budget and enrollment restrictions and fiscal trends and their effects on other in-

Participating in a “round-table” discussion during the annual fall Alumni Leaders workshop were (clockwise from front left) Keith Sanders, Olin Heilman, Mrs. Heilman, Jennie Maas, Willie Maas, Carol Goldsmith, Remo Castrale, Bob Mees and Cleo Carter.
Alumni leaders also heard from J. C. Garavalia of the SIU Foundation, Paul Schoen, past president of the Alumni Association, and J. W. King, assistant director of the Alumni Office.

Varsity Lettermen

The Saluki Varsity Alumni Lettermen honored two of their most avid boosters during their annual meeting-buffet dinner, which preceded the NIU-SIU football game.

Robert "Rip" Stokes, University photographer, and George Mace, vice-president for University relations, received varsity letter jackets from the group.

Stokes has been as much a fixture as the Saluki mascots throughout his 25 years of recording the exploits of SIU athletes. When it comes to Saluki athletics, if Rip's lense hasn't captured it, his memory has.

Mace steers several University units from his office in Anthony Hall, but among his favorites is Intercollegiate Athletics. He's there shaking hands and offering encouragement nearly every time a Saluki team or individual athlete takes the field or court.

The lettermen also elected a new slate of officers during their Homecoming get-together: Seymour Bryson '59, president; Larry Schaake '67, vice-president; Glenn Storme '29, secretary-treasurer.

Directors of the organization are John Cherry '54, Terry Rohlfing '70, Charles Goss '50, Harold Bardo '62 and Charles Warren '69.

Alumni Activities

Dec. 18-Jan. 16—University Semester Break
Jan. 8—Alumni Recognition Basketball Game—SIU Arena—SIU vs Bradley University. Complimentary tickets for alumni and their families in recognition of alumni support to the University and the Alumni Association. Tickets may be obtained by writing: Alumni Office, Room 2179, Faner Building, SIU, Carbondale, IL 62901. If it is convenient, you may wish to stop by the office or on December 21 and 22, the Jackson County Alumni Club will have a table located at the University Mall in Carbondale from 6:30 to 9 P.M. Tickets will be available after December 1.

Jan. 17—Classes start for spring semester
Jan. 29—Alumni Association Board of Directors' meetings, Carbondale

Club Notes

Recreation Faculty

Twenty-six SIU recreation department alumni attended a breakfast on October 20 held in conjunction with the National Recreation and Parks Association Convention in Boston. Representatives from the SIU recreation department in attendance were Loren Taylor, William Freeberg and Douglas McEwen. Alumni from several states were represented and expressed a desire to continue the get-together at future meetings.

Chicago Area

Gale Sayers, athletic director; John Novotny, assistant athletic director; SIU Trustee Bill Norwood; and Dr. Jerry Lacey, special assistant to the vice-president for University relations, visited the Chicago Area Club annual picnic on Sunday, Sept. 19 at Bemis Woods Forest Preserve. One hundred seventy-five persons attended. Thirty alumni attended.

District of Columbia

The annual fall picnic of the Washington, D.C. area club was held at the U.S. Naval Surface Weapons Center in Silver Springs, MD. Fifty-five were present to enjoy golf and other recreational activities as well as the good food and fellowship.

Madison-St. Clair

A joint meeting of the Madison-St. Clair alumni clubs was held in Belleville on Sept. 18. The multi projector and screen slide show on Southern Illinois produced by University Exhibits was featured and enjoyed by 32 alumni and friends.
The gavel symbolic of the presidency of the Alumni Association was passed from outgoing president Paul Schoen '67 (left) to incoming president Roger Gray '64 during ceremonies held Oct. 23 at SIU-C.

Inclement weather didn't deter several former Saluki athletes from paying tribute to their ex-coach, Lynn Holder (center) during Homecoming ceremonies. Holder, who coached varsity basketball from 1947 to 1958, retired last August as varsity golf coach. A varsity athlete himself during the early '30s, Holder's basketball teams compiled a combined 176-123 won-lost record, including seasons of 22-4, 21-6 and 19-6. Pictured with Holder during halftime of the Saluki-Northern Illinois football game are John Cherry (left) and Harvey Welch, both former Saluki lettermen under Holder.
WITH THE CLOCK RUNNING DOWN on the most successful football season in years and the Valley cross-country title under its belt, the SIU athletic program—the best all-around program in the Midwest—is gearing up for what promises to be the best winter sports season ever. Indeed, the words, "best ever", are being freely tossed around in discussions of the Salukis' basketball, swimming and wrestling teams, while coach Bill Meade's young gymnasts are cautiously eyeing a possible NCAA title run (it's an off year when they're not) and coach Lew Hartzog's indoor track team is aiming for its second Valley title in as many tries.

COACH REY DEMPSEY'S almost miraculous job of turning SIU's gridiron fortunes around deserves a good look, however, before turning to winter sports. When Dempsey arrived in Carbondale last December, he inherited a program that had compiled records of 1-8-1, 3-7-1, 2-9 and 1-9-1 since the last winner—the 6-4 1971 team. Working with the same group of players who had finished so poorly the year before, he completely rearranged the squad's mental attitude, and going into the Nov. 13 game at Bowling Green, the Salukis had a 6-3 record and had assured themselves of a winning season. A win against Bowling Green or Marshall on Nov. 20 would produce a winning total equal to the previous four years combined. Led by all-America calibre tailback Andre Herrera (see a list of his 1976 accomplishments inside the front cover of this magazine), the Salukis, after dropping their opening game, 38-0 at McNeese State, stormed back to win three in a row—27-15 at Drake, 21-17 in the home opener against West Texas State (after trailing 17-7 late in the third quarter) and 19-7 over Lamar. Then came two losses to outstanding teams, 49-14 at East Carolina and 41-10 to Arkansas State to drop to 3-3. However, another three-game winning string ensured the winning season. SIU defeated Northern Illinois for the first time since 1961 with a rain-soaked 54-0 romp on Homecoming, beat Indiana State at Terre Haute, 21-2, then dumped Illinois State, 17-3, in the home finale.

SIU CONTINUED ITS DOMINANCE of Valley runners on Nov. 6 when Hartzog's harriers ended Wichita State's five-year reign in league cross-country. The Salukis got a third-place finish from Mike Sawyer and, with four other runners grouped in the top 15, edged the favored Shockers, 44-48, at Peoria. After winning both indoor and outdoor track titles last year, the Salukis have won every Valley running title they've been eligible for.

ALL-AMERICA CANDIDATE MIKE GLENN and preseason all-Valley pick Corky Abrams head a stellar group of Saluki cagers, which many observers feel could be the best SIU basketball team ever. The 6-3 Glenn was named the Valley's most valuable player last year when he averaged 19.4 points per game, while the 6-7 Abrams shattered the league's field goal percentage mark by hitting an incredible 76.7 per cent of his shots from the floor. However, the two senior stars aren't the only weapons in coach Paul Lambert's arsenal. Al Williams (6-9) and Gary Wilson (6-6) are back after averaging 11.0 ppg and 10.1 ppg, respectively, last year as freshmen. Of nine lettermen in 1975-76, only the often-injured Mack Turner is missing. Despite an abundance of returning talent,
Lambert still managed an excellent recruiting year, signing two of the nation's most-highly recruited athletes in 6-6 Wayne Abrams (Corky's younger brother) and 6-9 Al Grant. Barry Smith, a 6-6 native of Eldorado, has impressed in early drills, as has 6-3 junior college transfer Jerry Kellum, a Murphysboro native. The Salukis narrowly missed the Valley title last year when they dropped an overtime decision at New Mexico State in the season's final game, but with the talent on hand, a few breaks going the right way, SIU could claim the league title on its second try. (Space doesn't permit publication of the basketball schedule here, but alums desiring pocket schedules may write to Tom Simons, Sports Information Director, 118 SIU Arena, Carbondale, Ill. 62901.)

WINTER SPORTS other than basketball also have high hopes for 1976-77. Coach Bob Steele's swimmers, after a 14th-place finish in the NCAA last year, are looking to crack the top 10 in 1977. Olympian Jorge Delgado is gone, but seven veterans of last year's NCAA meet and a crop of fine recruits make top 10 aspirations seem very realistic. With a veteran nucleus of Clyde Ruffin, Fred Hoef, Tim Maday and Jay Friedrich on hand, Saluki wrestling coach Linn Long also has hopes of making the top 10 at next spring's NCAA championship meet in Norman, Okla. SIU compiled a 15-7 dual mark last year and finished 22nd in the NCAA. The top wrestlers are back from that squad to go with a solid group of six state champion recruits. Coach Bill Meade lists only three seniors on his gymnastics roster, but the youthful Salukis could surprise quite a few people—even themselves—before the year is out. Bolstered by an experienced all-around crew and a talented group of recruits, Meade hopes to improve on last year's 7-5 dual record, but he'll have to do it against a schedule that includes the defending champions of nearly every major conference. Also working in SIU's favor is an NCAA realignment that moves the Salukis to the Western Regional qualifying meet after several years in the East. The Saluki indoor track team lost hurdler George Haley and distance runner John St. John from last year, but Hartzog has every other runner back from last year's Valley champions. In addition, the veteran SIU thinclad coach feels he has a much stronger group of field event men than last year. In other words, another Valley title could be in store.

WITH THE FALL sports season drawing to a close, two SIU women's teams have claimed state titles and two others have finished in the runner-up spot.

The undefeated field hockey team claimed the state title with sophomore Helen Meyer providing most of the offense. Meyer broke the SIU career scoring record with a total of 56 goals. The field hockey team advances to the regional tournament with a 14-0-2 record.

Also capturing top state honors was the Saluki cross-country team. At the first state cross-country championship, Southern Illinois' first five runners finished among the top 10. Six Saluki runners qualified for the AIAW Cross-Country Championship. Leading SIU's championship bid is Jean Ohly, who posted a qualifying time of 18:32.0. Also qualifying were junior Peggy Evans and freshmen Trish Grandis, Linda Snovak, Cathy Chiarello and Cindy Ruester.

The tennis team finished second at the state tournament with SIU's Sue Briggs winning the singles title. Briggs had an outstanding season as she went undefeated in singles competition (17-0). Marsha Bladel, only a freshman, had a very good season. She finished fourth in state tournament singles competition and had a 13-6 season record. The tennis team posted a 6-4 fall record.

The Saluki golf team, with six freshmen, concluded a successful season with a second-place finish at the state tournament and an eighth-place finish at the regional tournament. Sandy Lemon led the team throughout the season as medalist.

The volleyball team finished the regular season with a 20-15 record. The fourth-seeded Salukis stand a good chance of advancing beyond the state tournament to regional competition.

Dear Alumni,

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale recently completed its most successful football season in years by posting its first winning season since 1971. I, personally, am very proud of the job that has been done by my coaching staff and of the tremendous amount of dedication and effort put forth by the players themselves. I hope you are, too.

However, we can't afford to rest on what we have accomplished this year. There is a tremendous amount of work left to be done before we will be able to have the kind of football program we can all be proud of, year-in and year-out.

Presently, we are involved in the most important area of our rebuilding process—recruiting. We lose nineteen seniors off this year’s team, including twelve starters. Among them is tailback Andre Herrera, who put the Salukis in the national spotlight this year by winning national back-of-the-week honors from the Associated Press for gaining 319 yards and scoring six touchdowns against Northern Illinois. In that game, Andre set an NCAA record by rushing for 214 yards in the first quarter ALONE!

As you can see, we are losing a young man who is truly one of the premier runners in the nation. In order to replace him and all of the seniors who contributed so heavily to our success this year, we are going to have to recruit very well. To do that, we are going to need the support of many people—especially the alumni of SIU.

If you want to help us in our recruiting efforts, we would greatly appreciate hearing from you. If you know of outstanding high school football players in your area, please let us know about them by sending us any information you have, such as newspaper clippings, etc. If you would be willing to contact prospective student-athletes for us, we would like to know that, too. After all, who can recommend any university better than someone who has actually attended it.

We are asking for your help. If you think you can assist us in any way, please write to us in care of the Football Office, 118 SIU Arena, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill. 62901. If you wish to reach us by telephone, that part of my staff that is not actually out on the road recruiting will be in the office almost every day during the offseason and can be reached at 618-453-5311.

Thank you very much for your attention to, and your interest in our efforts to build a strong football program at SIU. If we all work together, I know we can have the kind of program we all want.
