Mrs. Morris Gets Award

Dorothy Mayor Morris recently was selected as the winner of the 1977 Service to Southern Illinois Award.

She is the wife of Deltey W. Morris, who was SIU president from 1948 until his retirement in 1970.

The Service to Southern Illinois Award is an annual award presented by the SIU Jackson County Alumni Club. It was presented for the sixth time this year. Last year's recipient was William Marberry.

Keith Sanders '61, M.S. '62, president-elect of the Alumni Association, presented Mrs. Morris the award May 1 at a Jackson County Alumni Club dinner at the Student Center.

The first lady of SIU for 22 years was honored at a champagne reception at the University House and a dinner attended by 176 people at the Student Center.

During the Morris era, the gracious Mrs. Morris had a fulltime job serving as the official University hostess. A lot of entertaining she did was in the President's home located where Faner Hall stands today.

Her home was the scene of social events ranging from formal faculty receptions to civic meetings and student gatherings, including the famed annual watermelon welcome feasts for students.

Named the 1962 Women's Club Woman of the Year, Mrs. Morris was active in the SIU and Carbondale Women's Clubs and the American Association of University Women.

A native of Maine, she married her husband while employed as a circulation assistant in the University of Maine library.

Letters of congratulations may be sent to Mrs. Morris at her home in Gilbertsville, Ky.

Student Gets Diploma at Bedside

Mrs. Linson learned she had cancer in November 1975, but did not let it get in the way of her goal — a master's degree.

She is at ease now. Her goal has been met.

And recently, three professors in the higher education department presented her with a letter from Robert Radtke, associate dean in the graduate school, saying that she had met all the requirements to receive the degree.

At bedside, the professors — John E. King, Donald J. Tolle and Roland Keene — honored her and her accomplishments.

King, chairman of the higher education department, asked for special permission to say she had met the requirements for the degree before graduation.

"Naomi is one of the best qualified master's graduates we have produced. She is especially well prepared to direct a financial aids or student work program. She has had an excellent range of occupational experience," King said.

For the past four years, Mrs. Linson has struggled between housework and homework. During that time she earned an associate degree in dental technology in 1973 and a bachelor's degree in occupational education in 1974.

"I want to thank everyone who has helped get my master's degree especially my husband, Doug, who has been a constant inspiration," Mrs. Linson said. "I am especially grateful that I was able to obtain my degree."

Her husband, Doug, is studying psychology at SIU. He helped Southeast Asian refugees find homes last year.

During the last couple of years, Mrs. Linson was adamant in reaching her goals.

For an example, during one quarter, she took 12 hours at SIU and 13 hours at John A. Logan College in Carterville, in pursuit of her associate's degree, Linson said.

"She just was a person who could never say no," Paul Morrill, one of Mrs. Linson's professors, said.

Editor's note: After this story was written and just at presstime, Mrs. Linson died May 6.
Paralleling the national trend, the SIU Greek system has doubled in size in less than 10 years.

In 1969, there were 13 chapters (eight fraternities and five sororities), while currently there are 28 chapters (18 fraternities and 10 sororities).

The three newest organizations are Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, Triangle fraternity and Phi Sigma Sigma sorority.

To honor these new chapters, the Inter-Greek Council sponsored a picnic following a Saluki baseball victory over Louisville. “Real-To-Real,” a rock group consisting of Sigma Tau Gamma and Kappa Alpha Psi members played.

Under the leadership of Chairman Brett Champion, the Inter-Greek Council has implemented many new activities. They include the development of a monthly Greek newsletter, a fall fashion show with proceeds going to the Cliff Stein Memorial Scholarship, a introductory booklet on the Greek system to be sent to incoming freshmen, and Greek Advisor’s workshops where common problems are discussed.

The traditional Greek Week was held April 22 to May 1 with the Greek Awards Banquet May 8.

The Inter-Greek Council serves as the coordinating and legislatively body for all the University’s 28 social fraternities and sororities. The 18 fraternities included are Alpha Gamma Rho, Alpha Kappa Lambda, Alpha Kappa Psi, Delta Chi, Delta Upsilon, Iota Phi Theta, Kappa Alpha Psi, Omega Psi Phi, Beta Sigma, Phi Kappa Tau, Phi Sigma Sigma, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Sigma Pi, Sigma Tau Gamma, Tau Kappa Epsilon, and Triangle.

The 10 sororities are Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Kappa Alpha, Alpha Sigma Alpha, Delta Sigma Theta, Delta Zeta, Phi Sigma Sigma, Sigma Gamma Rho, Sigma Kappa, Sigma Sigma, and Zeta Phi Beta.

Before, these groups have been divided into three sub-councils: Inter Fraternity, Panhellenic for sororities, and Pan-Hellenic for the black sororities and fraternities. But effective fall semester 1977, there will only be two sub-councils: Inter Fraternity and Panhellenic. The purpose is to establish a closer bond between all fraternities and sororities. Much work and determination is needed for a united Greek system. As we hold the common bond that unites us together as Greeks, the Greek system continues to grow and be strengthened at SIU.

Williamson County Honors Educators

Three Williamson County SIU alumni received the Williamson County Club Distinguished Service Award May 6, Remo Castrale ’55, M.S. ’57, Ph.D. ’72, president of the club, said.

The three were recognized as “Outstanding Educators” at the annual Williamson County Alumni Club ravioli dinner at St. Mary’s School Gymnasium in Herrin.

Honored were George Taft Baker ’41, former Carville School superintendent; Morris Lee Booth ‘49, MSED ’52, former Herrin and Williamson County Schools superintendent; and Cleta Greer Whitacre 32-2, ‘43, MSED ’56, a member of the business education department at Marion High School.

On-Campus Housing Tight

On-campus housing is quickly being reserved for the fall semester.

Thus far, all the contracts for Mae Smith (816 spaces) and Thompson PoiL (1,282 spaces) have been rolled out to new or returning students, said J.W. Gasser, assistant housing director.

There still are some openings among the 1,756 spaces available at University Park which includes Memorial, Hall and the Triads, and the 816 spaces available at Schneider Hall, he said.

Gasser reasons that housing contracts are being mailed out at a faster pace this year because most students realize that housing is tight and want to have somewhere to live this fall.

In admissions, the new students being admitted is running 500 to 600 below last year.

Remember me? Write!

Editor: I have fond memories of many of you, my former and widely scattered students through the years. As 36 years of newspapering and teaching, I’m on medical disability leave at age 55. I’d love to hear from you who may remember me.

I’ve been a teacher and administrator at five universities: Southern Illinois, Texas Christian, Silliman (in the Philippines), Syracuse, and Drake. I’d like to know how life has treated you since our paths crossed. I’ll put your letter in my “Book of Fond Memories.” Can you spare a picture? And welcome to my cottage in the southwest Missouri Ozark Mountains when you’re in the vicinity.

Sue Briggs
Wins Award

Sue Briggs has been named the Recipient of the Virginia Gordon Scholar-Athlete Award April 24 at the annual Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Awards Banquet.

Miss Briggs of Rock Island is a junior majoring in physical education.

The Gordon Award is given annually to a physical education major who is both an outstanding scholar and athlete. As a Saluki tennis player, she compiled a singles record of 46-8. She is also the reigning state and Region 5 singles champion.

Southern Baseball Team
Off to Sluggish Start

The Saluki baseball team, off to a sluggish start, was off and running, sporting a 19-7 record after little more than a half a season.

At one time 9-6, the Salukis exploded in mid-April, winning 10 of 11 games, due mostly to a much-improved hitting attack that saw the team batting average climb to .291.

Leading the hitting attack were six seniors that carried the club even stronger in April.

Chuck Curry (.324), Rick Murray (.308) and Neil Fiala (.305). Much of the credit for the team's success, though, should go to a pitching staff that carried the club during the early going, then came on during the season's end.

One of the most pleasant surprises on the Saluki staff has been freshman pitcher Ken Lorraway (25-2%), in the long jump, Clay DeMattei in the pole vault (16-6), John Marks in the shot put (59-1), and the two relays - both of which, by the way, qualified against Illinois in 40.3 and 3:07.7. The Salukis would have had another pole vaulter in junior Gary Hunter (17-1) but the stationed in the slot (69-1) and has yielded only 18 points over the last 10 years.

The Salukis need not win the tournament to go to the NCAA Midwest Regionals, May 19-22 (site to be determined), but must be at the top of the Valley at the season's end.

This year's team has all the potential to do it all. They have hitting, pitching, strong defense and good speed. All they need do, is continue to improve, and have a little good luck.

SIU Thinclds Whip Illinois

The Salukis and the Illini met for the 10th time in a dual meet at the annual Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Awards Banquet.

Both teams are rated fourth in both the discus (172-6) and the hammer throw (164-10). Another collegiates at Naperville, 111., May 7-8, Wichita, Kan., May 17-18.

Gridders End Spring Practice

The Salukis gridders were third-fifths finished with spring practice at this writing and Coach Ray Dempsey wasn't overly enthused with his team's progress toward the April 30 spring game at McAndrew Stadium.

"We're not looking any better this year than we did at this time last year, and that's not the way it should be," the second-year coach said after a recent scrimmage.

Dempsey's pessimism has been tempered this spring by the continued improvement among veterans of last year's 7-4 campaigns.

Tailback Gary Linton, the designated heir to Andre Herrera (1,588-yard) is showing signs that he can take the punishment required of his position in the Saluki attack. If he does prove capable of that, he'll provide plenty of excitement for SIU fans next fall. He's bigger (6'1", 206 lbs.) and faster (4.6 in the 40) than Herrera.

Another player catching Dempsey's eye is senior quarterback Bob Collins. The Oak Park, Ill., product started the first six games last year, yielded to freshman Reggie Evans for four games, then came back to direct a 44-16 mauling of Marshall in the finals. So far, he's showing the football "movie" he's likely to need behind an inexperienced offensive line next fall. One of his chief targets has been sophomore split end Kevin House, who's showing Paul Warfield-like moves.

Briefly on defense, senior linebacker Dan Brown is coming back with a super spring after leading the team in tackles last fall with 133. Sophomore corner back Oyd Craddock and senior monster Ron Geels are both looking good, as is nose guard Marty Devolder.
Helen Meyer was named SIU Athlete of the Year April 10 at the annual Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Banquet.

Miss Meyer, a Crestwood, Mo., native, is a sophomore majoring in physical education.

She was awarded the honor because her fellow athletes and coaches felt she had shown great versatility while participating in three sports.

During her freshman and sophomore years, Miss Meyer started on the basketball, softball and field hockey teams.

Miss Meyer's dedication to field hockey is reflected in her nickname, “Hockey.” In two seasons, she rewrote the Saluki record book in hockey with three new records: most goals scored in a single game (5), most goals scored in a single season (30) and most career goals (59).

As a starting guard on the basketball team, she has been the court general for two years. Although she handles the ball more than any other player, Miss Meyer's percentage of turnovers was the team's lowest.

SIU's leading pitcher for the past two years, Miss Meyer compiled a 5-5 record in 1976 and thus far is at 6-3. When not in the starting pitcher's role, she plays shortstop or second base. Her current batting average of .722 is the third best on the team.

An aerial view of the Intramural-Recreational Sports Center gives an idea of its massive size of 150,747 square feet. The swimming pool is located in the first building to the right and the gymnasium is in the back building to the left.

Center Finished

The building has everything any sports minded person would want or need. There is a large gymnasium, a computerized golf room, a weight room for men and women, handball courts, three-heated swimming pools in one and much more. But best of all, the building, the fo-recreational building is finally ready to open.

After more than 10 years of planning and financing and two years of construction, the student-funded building should be ready June 15. William C. Bleyer, '49, M.S. '58, assistant dean of student life, said the $11 million building, located on East Grand Street in Carbondale, officially is called the Intramural-Recreational Sports Center.

In size, the building's 150,747 square feet is comparable to the SIU Student Center.

The first priority of the building will be student recreation. Alumni, SIU staff and faculty will be at liberty to use the building by paying a fee, said Bleyer, who will be director of the facility.

The two-story facility is divided into the spectator and administrative areas, the largely recreation area, and the administrative area with the planning offices. Located on the upper level in the administrative offices, a recreation area, a lounge, a vending machine area, and the planning offices are built with a viewing area which also contains a drive-up window. The window will enable students to borrow athletic equipment for use in outdoor recreation areas.

The three-in-one Olympic-sized pool, has two swimming areas divided by a diving well. It measures 54 meters long and 35 yards wide. Seven diving boards and two diving platforms set off the diving area. The depth ranges from four feet to 16 feet. Also, for the physically disabled students, a platform to raise and lower them into the water has been installed. Up to six lifeguards will be on duty when the pool is open.

The lockerooms — and building facilities — were built to accommodate the physically handicapped.

The locker rooms are equipped with two saunas in each section, Bleyer said. The lockerooms are designed for the physically disabled and are equipped with four eating facilities in the locker rooms, presents all the men's and women's locker rooms. The rows between the lockers are built large enough for two wheelchairs to pass, and a bench to allow the custodial staff to wash the locker room floors nightly.

The wall of the lockerooms is made by Harvey Welch, dean of the College of Business. Bright reds, green, yellow and blue adorn the walls in the men and women's locker rooms. The rows of lockers are available for a charge of 25 cents each. The items must be returned each day.

The sports center proposed hours are from 7 a.m. until 11 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. until 11 p.m. Saturdays. It will be open from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. Sundays. All University faculty and staff, including retired and visiting professors, may use the sports facility for $8 a semester. Authorized students, faculty and staff members may bring their children and spouses to the center for no additional charge on special family nights. Members of the Alumni Association may use the facility for $1 per person per semester. Lockers and towels are available for a fee.
Debra Moriarty and Donald Wheeler were recently named to the SIU Alumni Board of Directors. Debra Moriarty, a graduate student in higher education, and Donald Wheeler, a junior in speech and political science, will become the first student constituency representatives to serve on the alumni board.

The students were named to the board with the hope of building a better relationship with the student body. Roger Gray '64, president of the Alumni Association, said.

The students will have full-voting rights in any decisions and motions made by the association, Gray said.

The appointment also would strengthen the alumni board ties with student organizations like the Student Government Activities Council (SGAC) and the Graduate Student Constituent Society Board (GSC).

At Homecoming 1976, the Alumni Legislative Council amended the Association’s by-laws to permit the naming of student representatives by the Association president. Miss Moriarty and Wheeler attended the April board meeting.

Miss Moriarty and Wheeler will serve on various alumni board committees including the newly created Student Alumni Board, Gray said.

Miss Moriarty has a bachelor’s degree in recreation and leisure education from Southern Connecticut State College. She is housemother for Delta Zeta Sorority and holds a graduate assistantship at the Student Activities Center, responsible for advising SGAC. She also is active in various other campus activities.

Wheeler, the current student body president recently lost a bid to become student body president. He is from Evanston and is a member of the Alpha Gamma Rho Fraternity. He is active in various other campus activities.
