Bill O’Brien Named 1977 Great Teacher

"This is the most significant and meaningful recognition and honor in my academic career. This is also the most humbling experience in my life. To suddenly realize that one is believed to have touched and influenced a student in his life style is both moving and sobering experience."

The Great Teacher is selected by a vote of the paid members of the SIU Alumni Association, A. Zeigler, Ill. native. O’Brien began teaching at SIU in 1947 as a physical education instructor and assistant coach. In 1950, he left for 18 months to serve with the Marines as stateside company commander during the Korean War.

From 1952 until 1955, he was head football coach at SIU and officiated as a physicist for the U.S. Navy Ordnance Laboratory in White Oaks, Md. until he retired recently. Also, he taught physics at Howard University, Washington, D.C.

In the Washington, D.C. Alumni Club, Taylor was president from 1967-1968; secretary-treasurer from 1968 until 1969 and a board member from 1967 until the present.

For the last eight years, he has served on the international Alumni Board of Directors. He was president-elect of the Association in 1971-72 and president of the Association in 1972-73.

Fisher, Talley, Taylor Win Achievement Awards

A geologist, a sports columnist and a former Alumni Association president were named as the recipients of the 1977 Alumni Achievement Awards presented Oct. 1 at the SIU Alumni Association’s annual Alumni Recognition Luncheon.

Receiving the 20th annual awards were: William L. Fisher ’54, former Assistant Secretary of the U.S. Dept. of Interior for Energy and Minerals; Warren D. (Rick) Talley ’58, sports columnist for the Chicago Tribune and Theodore E. Taylor ’44, a retired columnist for the Chicago Tribune.

Fisher and Talley were honored for outstanding professional achievement while Taylor was honored for his outstanding service, contributions and dedication to the SIU Alumni Association.

A native of Marion, Ill., Fisher currently is a professor of geology at the Univ. of Texas at Austin. He also is the state geologist of Texas; director of the Bureau of Economic Geology, a professor in the Dept. of Marine Studies and chairman of the Council of Energy Resources, all at the Univ. of Texas.

Prior to that, he was appointed Assistant Secretary of the U.S. Dept. of Interior for Energy and Minerals by former President Gerald R. Ford. He served in that capacity from January 1976 until January 1977. From March 1976 until January 1976, Fisher was the deputy assistant of the U.S. Dept. of Interior.

Talley began his sportswriting career in 1958 with the Decatur (Ill.) Herald, then became sports editor of the Menlo Park (Calif.) Recorder. In 1969, he became a general news reporter and rewrite man for the United Press International, San Francisco. The following year, he joined the sports staff of the Rockford (Ill.) Morning Star & Register-Republic. He was named sports editor in 1964.

In 1969, Talley moved to Chicago as the sports editor of Chicago Today. He held that position until the paper ceased publication and he became a daily Chicago Tribune sports columnist.

In addition, for the past two years, Talley has been a member of Chicago’s WGN-TV news team. He reports the sports on the 10 p.m. news, five days a week. And he has a sports commentary on WGN radio at 8:15 a.m., five days a week.

The third recipient, Taylor, a native of Centralia, Ill., has worked as a physicist for the U.S. Navy Ordnance Laboratory in White Oaks, Md. until he retired recently. Also, he taught physics at Howard University, Washington, D.C.

Keith Sanders is New President

Keith Sanders, the new president of the SIU Alumni Association brings to the position a whole conglomeration of skills in teaching, speaking, administrating, politicking and communicating.

Sanders '61, M.S. '62, a full professor of speech at SIU and one of the first faculty members to be Association head, wants to achieve two objectives as president.

First, he would like to bring the University community and the alumni body closer together.

Although the alumni has a positive image of the University, it is even better than they realize, he said. "I want to communicate these aspects to them."

On the other hand, Sanders said, "Our alumni are much more successful than the University community knows."

"I think that our students need to know that a lot of people have been this way before them and now are highly successful," he said.

At present Sanders' class, Research in Public Communications, is interviewing every SIU dean and department chairman to gather a list of their most distinguished graduates.

"This is to document what we already know is true, that SIU is a highly successful university and our graduates are able to obtain prestigious positions," he said.

Sanders' second goal is to improve the quality of alumni communication with public officials...persons who control the "purse strings".

"We are now in a position to be more active in communicating our strong feelings of support for this university," he said.

Sanders explains this is possible now because of a new Internal Revenue Service ruling which states that a nonprofit organization can use a small percentage of "our efforts and resources to communicate with the governor and legislators."

"Whereas previously, it was ambiguous as to whether a nonprofit organization had the right to do this," he said.

Sanders hopes to direct his efforts "to assist SIU in getting its fair share of the Illinois tax dollar to maintain and enhance the quality of this institution."

Scholarly, he has authored or co-authored over 50 papers, articles and book reviews. He is the co-author of a political communication book which was selected an "Academic Book of the Year," by Choice Magazine.

Well-rounded in his professional service to the University and the Southern Illinois community, Sanders, a native of Benton, Ill., has participated in a number of diversified activities.

Sanders is married to the former, Carol Sue Dial '61, and has one son.
Fall Enrollment Is Highest In Seven Years

Fall semester enrollment at SIU is 22,537, the highest total recorded in seven years and the second highest in history at the Carbondale campus.

Director of Admissions and Records Kirby Browning said the total, which is 418 students above last fall's final count, includes gains in every major enrollment classification except graduate classes at off-campus residence centers.

Freshmen totals jumped by 100 to 2,211 on the main campus and 1,383 are registered at off-campus locations. Both figures are up from last year.

Law and medicine professional problems increased from 426 last year to 456 this fall.

On-campus graduate enrollment is 3,114 up slightly from last year, but the overall graduate total of 3,945 shows a drop of 92, all the result of a decline in enrollments at off-campus centers, Browning said.

SIU’s enrollment in 1970 was 23,843.

Career Day Termed Success

Personnel officers from 50 private and governmental organizations in all parts of the United States recruited new employees from among over 2,000 SIU students and alumni Sept. 28 at SIU’s Career Day ’77.

Harvey Ideus, director of the SIU Career Planning and Placement Center, termed the day “a complete success.”

“The recruiters and personnel officers were very impressed with the turnout,” Ideus said.

Talking Over Old Days:

Current men’s athletic assistant director Fred Huff ex ’62 and former athletic assistant director Bill Brown talk over old times with Arlie O. Boswell ’17-2, one of the oldest living Saluki lettermen. Boswell, a four-year letterman in football, track and baseball, was a lawyer for 55 years in Harrisburg, Ill., where he still lives.

Canut-Amros Case Settled

A long-standing sex discrimination case filed against SIU was settled in September.

The University paid Marisa Canut-Amros, a former professor of applied technology, $80,000, while being released of liability in the case.

The Class of 1927 is shown here after a dinner in the Carbondale Ramada Inn celebrating their 50th year reunion. Those present included: Clara C. Taggart of Chester; Celeste Mashek Thomas of Sioux Falls, S.D.; Rachel Best Bell, Mary M. Sauer and Myrtle Allen McKinnie, all of Murphysboro. Second row: (l-r) Keith Sanders, president of the Alumni Association; Gilbert Holmes of Sparta; T. Erwin Kelly of Carterville; Rolland C. Wagner of Lawrenceville; Frank M. SIU Janitors, Custodians, Policemen Strike

For the second time in SIU history, University employees went on strike, beginning Oct. 6 and lasting until a temporary injunction halted action Oct. 12.

Over 170 members of Local 316 of the Building Service Employees Union went out Oct. 6, followed Oct. 7 by 37 members of Local 347 of the Teamsters Union, the union of the security policemen, SIU News Service sources said.

The strike idled an additional 500 other University union members who were not cross strike lines.

Both groups were striking for pay increases equal to the salary levels at the Edwardsville campus.

The building service workers are seeking an increase in pay of five cents per hour. Custodians now make $5 an hour and janitors make $4.53 an hour. In addition, the security policemen want an increase in longevity pay, bonuses for college education and shift differential.

At press time both groups were still negotiating contracts that expired this summer. The groups both are working under a temporary restraining order which has been extended indefinitely by an order by Jackson County Circuit Court Judge Peyton Kunce.

The Building Service workers turned down a 35 cents per hour increase offered in a University proposal Oct. 31.

During the strike supervisory personnel and students handled duties performed normally by the striking personnel.

From the University. Then in 1971, the SIU Board of Trustees accepted the resignation over her protest.

It was then she filed a complaint with the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare charging SIU with discrimination against her because she is a woman.

While the settlement paid Ms. Canut-Amros $80,000, it released SIU from all claims and liability stating that the University did not discriminate against her.
Typing Chair Adventuress Tells of Past

by Betsy Haynes '62

Although to the casual observer, I may appear to be an average housewife with the standard two children and a dog and, of course, the ever-rolling station wagon, my life is anything but average. When my husband and kinds go out the door in the morning, my role as an adventurer begins.

For a time I worked at conjuring up a voodoo spell to bring about the demise of a wicked slave master. Then I spent several months crisscrossing Long Island Sound in a whaleboat on secret spy missions. I waited to grow up for "The Against Taffy Sinclair Club." (Thomas Nelson, 1976)

And tales of pirates' gold buried away the Connecticut coast brought me face-to-face with a ghost who was sure he knew the exact spot to dig. I was off on the adventure that became "The Ghost Of The Gravestone Hearth."

Even though each story is spun from my imagination, research is a must, and for this I rely heavily on my journalism training. For example, I read portions of 120 books on slavery and former slaves while I was writing "Cowslip," and during the development of "Spies of the Devil's Belt," I visited many of the spots where the action took place and interviewed direct descendants of one of the spies.

I spent from a year to a year and half writing, revising and polishing each book before I sent it to my publisher in New York. I have no agent, and when my first novel, "Cowslip," was completed, I began submitting it to publishers. Thomas Nelson was the second firm to see it. They liked it and have been my publisher ever since.

There is nothing I would rather be doing. Writing books for children fits my lifestyle to a tee. And every once in a while when I wonder if I might not prefer something more glamorous to sitting around in blue jeans pounding on my twenty-year-old Olympia, I think about my favorite fan letter of all. After filling the page with glowing praise for "Spies On The Devil's Belt," the young boy closed with these words: "Mrs. Haynes, if I had three wishes, I'd give them all to you."

With an audience like that behind me and the promise of adventure before me, what else could I want? Now it's back to my typing chair and away I go!

Editors note: Betsy Haynes has written four children's books, several short stories and won a Writer's Digest annual short story contest. A native of Benton, Ill. and the daughter of a former newspaper-woman, Mrs. Haynes lives in Wilton, Conn., with her two children and her husband, James ex '60, an amateur painter and professional cartoonist. In addition to her writing, she teaches writing at the Institute of Children's Literature in Redding Ridge, Conn.

Alumni Vacation College
Satisfy that ‘Itch,’ Return to Classroom

Ever wanted to satisfy that itch to return to the old classroom?

Here’s your chance to return to campus, where in addition to reacquainting yourself with SIU, you can get involved with the excitement of education.

It’s an opportunity to return to what one thinker called the “smorgasbord of ideas,” and take a vacation that stretches your mind as well as your muscles.

The Alumni Vacation College now in the planning stages could provide a series of group lectures, informal exchanges, small group discussion and the natural interchanges that result from a number of people who bring different perspectives to a problem or topic new to them all.

Best of all, the cost would be minimal, whether it be for a weekend, three days or a week, because we would use University housing and dining facilities. This would be optional for area residents.

An added bonus would be the opportunity for the whole family to use educational facilities, including Thompson Lake and the new Intramural-Recreational Sports Center.

The crux of this program rests upon the feedback and ideas we get from YOU.

Topics could be either vocationally or avocationally oriented. The program will be noncredit.

Some possibilities might include: The Role of Women in Today’s Society; The First Year of Carter’s Presidency; How to Plan Your Will; Money-wise Hobbies; Get the Most Out of the Backyard Garden; How to Get a Better Job; Live Within Your Budget and Stop Assertiveness Instead of Aggressiveness. What ideas do you have?

This program is in the preliminary stages. Therefore, if you are interested, it is necessary for you to share your ideas with us so we might tailor the program to fit your needs.

Now for your input: Is this a good idea? What type of programming would you be interested in? Should the Vacation College last for a week, a weekend or what? When during the summer would be the best time to have the college?

The Association is endeavoring to offer you another new service. Without your feedback, it will be difficult to formulate a program to meet your needs and wishes.

Pick up that pen and paper now: Write us: Alumni Association, 2179 Faner Hall, SIU, Carbondale, Ill. 62901

If a favorable reaction is received, the final details will be disclosed in the March Alumnus.

W. W. Trobaugh Dies

He was a jolly, kind and patient old man who loved working on the SIU campus serving “his” students. And for over 40 years W.W. Trobaugh ex’ 02 did just that by operating a snack and sandwich shop right in the middle of campus.

His snack shop was moved several times during that period as SIU expanded during its building program. On Nov. 10, 1972, Mr. Trobaugh retired at the age of 92.

Mr. Trobaugh came to SIU as a student in 1898 when the school was named Southern Illinois Normal University. He became a school teacher and worked at the Doty School near Oraville and Jenkins and the Crowell and Pleasant Grove Schools near Murphysboro and Carbondale.

Though W.W. Trobaugh ex’ 02 did just that by operating a snack and sandwich shop right in the middle of campus.

Coach Cindy Scott

A full house.
No, this has nothing to do with cards, but with a goal of SIU women's basketball coach Cindy Scott MSED '76.

Scott, in her first year as head coach, is determined to fill Davies Gymnasium to capacity (3,000) for each of the eight home games played there. Two home games will be played in the SIU Arena.

 Armed with an abundance of enthusiasm, six lettermen and a host of talented young players, Scott hopes to gain local interest in her sport that is a crowd-drawer in other states such as Indiana, Iowa and Tennessee.

"Women's basketball is picking up momentum in Illinois because the state high school basketball programs are being developed and this is building interest at all levels," Scott said.

A 1973 graduate of Memphis State University, Scott played guard there for four years and is used to a heavy crowd turnout.

It's always easy to play better ball when there is a crowd yelling encouragement," she said.

An added crowd pleaser is four women over six-foot tall. They are: Gerri Hoffman, 6-0, a forward from Hammond, Ind., last season's leading scorer with 14 points per game. Two newcomers are: Sue Faber, 6-0, a freshman center from Wayne, N.J. and Gena Valli, 6-1, freshman center from St. Louis.

"Filling out the team are lettermen: Lynn Williams, 5-7 forward from Costa Mesa, Cal.; Sue Schaeffer, 5-4 guard from St. Louis; Jackie Lott, 5-9 forward from Bloomington, Ind.; Robin Deterring, 5-10 to 5-11, from Granite City, Ill.; and newcomer Jill Pomeranke, 5-7½ forward from Flanagan, Ill.

The three open spots will be filled from some of the 35 women who are trying out for the team.

A fast breaking team, the Salukis will play a double post offense and use a man-to-man defense, Scott said.

"We have good speed and will probably be in better condition than most of the teams that we'll face because we've been running a lot in practice," she said.

Scott hopes to improve last year's 15-7 slate and the Salukis third place finish in the state championships. She feels the women Salukis are "potential scoring threats," who should do well in the AIAW regionals and state championship.

The Saluki season opens with back-to-back home games: Dec. 2 at 8 p.m. against Central Missouri State and Dec. 3 at 3 p.m. against Indiana University. Both games are in Davies Gymnasium.

Of special interest to Saluki supporters is the Saluki Invitational, a double elimination tourney to be held Jan. 19, 20, 21 in the SIU Arena. Five teams have been invited. They are Purdue, Wisconsin, Central Michigan, Univ. of Illinois, Circle campus, and the Univ. of Missouri.

Other home games include: Illinois State, Jan. 26, 7 p.m.; Southwest Missouri, Jan. 27, 8 p.m.; Northern Illinois, Jan. 28, 11:30 a.m.; Eastern Illinois, Feb. 18, 8 p.m.; Univ. of Missouri, Feb. 18, 7 p.m.; Southeast Missouri, Feb. 21, 7 p.m. and Meramec, Feb. 28, 7 p.m.

The away games include: Mississippi Univ. for Women Tournament, Dec. 15-7; Univ. of Tenn.-Martin, Jan. 11; Union Univ., Jan. 12; Ball State University, Feb. 5; Memphis State Univ., Feb. 4; Mississippi State Univ., Feb. 22; Western Illinois, Feb. 10; Northeast Missouri State, Feb. 11; Univ. of Illinois, Feb. 16; Univ. of Louisville, Feb. 23; Eastern Kentucky, Feb. 25;

"We hope SIU alumni from all over come and watch our games," Scott said.

With a little curiosity on the part of the Saluki basketball fans, Cindy Scott may get her full house.

Footballers Riddled By Injuries, Inexperience

Three games remain in the 1977 football season and Ray Dempsey's second year Salukis, riddled by injuries and inexperience, have no hopes of duplicating last season's 7-4 record.

Three successive shutout defeats on the road -- 33-0 at East Carolina, 24-0 at Southwestern Louisiana and 2-0 at Northern Illinois have dropped the Salukis' record to 2-6.

While this season's record is not all that impressive, one needs to look at the number of Saluki injuries to realize that SIU is making football progress.

Add to the injuries, a tough schedule with seven road games of 11 games while playing competition like East Carolina, Temple, S.W. Louisiana, New Mexico State, and it's easy to see why optimism is still abundant in Carbondale.

The Salukis dropped the season opener 29-2 to New Mexico State in Las Cruces, but the score in the fourth quarter was only 12-7 before the Aggies broke it open.

Games two and three against Temple in Philadelphia wasn't any brighter as the Salukis were heavy underdogs.

However, in one of the biggest upsets in SIU football history, the Salukis polished off the Owls 24-20, behind a surprisingly strong running game led by tailback Clarence Robison who gained 125 yards and fullback Berrnell Quinn who added 97 more. An alert SIU defense held the powerful Owls to only 290 yards in total offense while recovering three fumbles and intercepting three passes.

With a victory under their belt, the Salukis opened their home season in front of a Parent's Day crowd of 13,458, but fell prey to the Indiana Cardinals to a paltry 127 yards in total offense.

The Saluki defensive unit helped SIU hold the Indians to a 7-0 lead heading into the fourth quarter before running out of steam. Then SIU yielded two more touchdowns in the 21-7 loss that dropped the season mark to 1-3 and the conference mark to 0-3.

Next was Homecoming, October 1. The Salukis knocked off stubborn Lamar 10-6, behind the running of Quinn who carried for 116 yards and a ferocious defense unit that held the Cardinals to a paltry 127 yards in total offense.

Dempsey called the following week's opponent, East Carolina: "the best team we'll play all season," and he was probably even more convinced following the Pirates 33-0 win.

However, the Saluki defense kept the team in the game with a ferocious effort that gave it away yielding four punt returns for 102 yards and a kickoff return for 61 more. The Salukis played eight times this season in the game for a rather poor 33.6 average.

Despite the losses, it has been a season that does bring promise for a bright future. The defense is young and most will return next year.

Basketball Tickets Increase

SIU basketball ticket prices will receive an across-the-board increase this winter according to the Saluki Athletic Department.

New prices include: season tickets for the general public for the Salukis 14 home games will be $56 for theater seats and $42 for bleacher seats. Paid members of the SIU Alumnus Association, faculty and staff will be $56, but only $35 for the bleacher sections.

Single-game tickets will be $5.60 for theater seats (if available), $3.50 for bleacher seats, $1.50 for high school and under and 50 cents for SIU students with a current fee statement.

The Saluki defensive unit helps SIU score a safety during the Homecoming Game Oct. 1 against Lamar.

Gerry Hoffman, 6-0, a forward from Hammond, Ind., last season's leading scorer with 14 points per game. Two newcomers are: Sue Faber, 6-0, a freshman center from Wayne, N.J. and Gena Valli, 6-1, freshman center from St. Louis. The away games include:

Mississippi Univ. for Women Tournament, Dec. 15-7; Univ. of Tenn.-Martin, Jan. 11; Union Univ., Jan. 12; Ball State University, Feb. 5; Memphis State Univ., Feb. 4; Mississippi State Univ., Feb. 22; Western Illinois, Feb. 10; Northeast Missouri State, Feb. 11; Univ. of Illinois, Feb. 16; Univ. of Louisville, Feb. 23; Eastern Kentucky, Feb. 25;

"We hope SIU alumni from all over come and watch our games," Scott said.

Traded Among Pro Ranks

Two former Saluki basketball players were traded among the pro ranks in October.

Walt “Clyde” Frazier ex ’67, a guard with the New York Knicks for the past 10 years, was traded Oct. 8 to the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Joe C. Meriweather ex ’75, a center for the Atlanta Hawks, was traded to the New Orleans Jazz.

A member of the 1967 Saluki NIT team and the most valuable player of the tourney, Frazier had a distinguished career with the Knicks.

He was named to the All NBA Rookie team in 1967-68, named to the All Defense NBA team from 1969 through 1975 and was selected to the NBA All Star Teams from 1970 until 1975.

In 1975, Frazier was named the most valuable player of the 25th annual All Star Game, played that year in Phoenix, Ariz. He played in every All Star Game from 1970 until 1976.

Basketball Salukis Face Stiff Challenge

by Dave Lancer
Assistant Sports Information Director

SIU Basketball Coach Paul Lambert produced his finest team last year, but faces a stiff challenge in replacing starters from that squad — all of them sixty per cent shooters.

Missing from the Saluki uniform will be All-American guard Mike Glenn and forward Corky Abrams both who graduated. Starting forward Richard Ford, a 6-5 junior-to-be was declared scholastically ineligible before fall term.

The three were the mainstays of last year’s 22-7 squad that captured their first Missouri Valley Conference title ever and advanced to the semifinals of the NCCA Midwest Regional.

At first glance, Lambert’s sixth year at SIU looks bleak but the Salukis should be able to contend for MVC honors again because of some fine young players who received invaluable experience last year under the pressure of NCCA play.

Leading the list of returnees is 6-6 junior forward Gary Wilson, a two-year starter from Columbus, Ga., and a 6-4 sophomore guard Wayne Abrams, a starter as a freshman from Atlanta, Ga.

Add those to these other returning players: 6-3 junior guard Milton Huggins of Paltmetto, Ga.; 6-9 sophomore center Al Grant of Cedartown, Ga.; 6-6 sophomore guard Barry Smith of Eldorado, Ill.; and 6-7 junior center Dan Kieskowski of Michigan City, Ind.

“On paper we appear to be a young team, but we do have some experience with kids who played a lot off the bench,” Lambert said. “They were given ample time to find themselves and were brought slowly.”

Added to Lambert’s optimism, there are seven outstanding freshmen recruits and a two-year Wisconsin starter, transfer Brian Colbert. Heading the newcomer’s list are forwards Charles Moore (6-7, Corpus Christi, Tex.), and Anthony Frazier (6’7, Washington, D.C.), no relation to Walt.

They’ll be joined by guard prospects: Jac Clatt (6-5, Columbus, Ga.), Chris Giles (6’5, Birmingham, Ala.), and Anthony Meade (6-3, St. Louis, Mo.). Colbert, a 6-0 guard will become eligible Jan. 16.

Nominate Great SIU Athletes For Hall of Fame

Who were some of the “great” SIU athletes?

Alumni, students, athletes, fans, friends, relatives faculty members and coaches are being invited to nominate candidates for the new Saluki Hall of Fame.

The Hall of Fame was initiated Homecoming Oct. 1 by members of the SIU Lettermen’s Club, said Bill Freeburg, chairman of the new program.

The initial Hall of Fame will induct up to 20 members, he said. The first inductees will be announced at a home basketball game in 1977-78. In the future, Hall of Fame inductees will be honored at the football Homecoming game.

About 10 candidates from each SIU sports era — 1915 until 1945 and 1946 until 1972 will be inducted into the Hall of Fame the first three years.

“Before 1945 there are very few records of performance charts kept,” he said. “That’s why we divided the Hall of Fame into two eras.”

Candidates are expected to have a history of reflecting a high level plateau of qualities and characteristics. The Hall of Fame also has provisions to induct coaches, fans and friends of the University who contributed to SIU athletics.

Athletes must have earned a letter, must be five years removed from the University, and have made a contribution to SIU’s athletics program or be successful in his chosen professional field.

Nominations should be sent to Bill Freeburg, SIU, Recreation Department, Carbondale, Illinois, 62901.

Gymnastics

Meade’s Saluki teams have won four NCAA championships and finished second twice.
