Bucovaz, Craver, Davis, McHenry Win Alumni Award

Four men have been named the recipients of the 1978 Alumni Achievement Awards which will be presented as part of Homecoming activities Oct. 28 at 11:15 a.m. during the SIU Alumni Association’s Alumni Recognition Luncheon in the Student Center Ballrooms.

Receiving the 21st annual awards are: Edsel T. Bucovaz, 55, M.A., 57, a professor of biochemistry; J. Kenneth Craver,'37, a corporate research manager from Monsanto; I. Clark Davis,'39, former dean of students and retired SIU professor of higher education and Donald McHenry,’59 M.S., an ambassador to the United Nations.

Bucovaz, Craver and McHenry are being honored for their outstanding professional achievements while Davis is being recognized for his outstanding service and dedication to the University.

Internationally-known for his cancer research, Bucovaz is a professor of biochemistry at the University of Tennessee’s Center for Health Sciences in Memphis, Tenn. Bucovaz has discovered that a previously unnoticed protein appears in the bloodstream of animals with cancerous tumors. Called B-protein (after Bucovaz), the substance seems to appear shortly after the onset of cancer.

The B-protein blood test is successful 87 percent of the time in detecting cancer in animals. Within the next three years, the test may be used as an early warning system for detecting cancer in humans.

A native of Eldorado, Ill., he has been with the University of Tennessee since obtaining his doctorate from St. Louis University in 1962. He is the author of over 140 scientific articles. He is married and has two children.

All commercial aircraft in the Free World use a non-flammable synthetic hydraulic fluid, “Skydol,” invented by our second recipient Craver, who is currently the manager of Futures Research Corporate Plans Department of Monsanto.

Another Southern Illinoisan by birth, Craver, a native of Jonesboro, was responsible for the development and commercialization of this product as well as a number of important commercial plasticizers.

Since 1938 after receiving his master’s from Syracuse University, Craver has worked for the Monsanto Company.

In addition to his extensive research, management and developmental abilities, he has published extensively in the fields of sonics and ultrasonics, the structure of paper, polymer-plasticizer systems and organic coatings. He has many patents, several of them the basis for major industrial products. Also, he has written two books.

He and his wife, Iris Eileen Brock ’37, live in Kirkwood, Mo. Our third recipient currently is the third-ranking member of the U.S. mission to the United Nations which is headed by Ambassador Andrew Young. Officially, McHenry’s title is U.S. deputy representative to the U.N. Security Council, with the title of ambassador.

Since being named to this post in 1977, he has been involved in many international events, some of which are:

A consultant to Vice President Walter Mondale on his trip to Europe; conducted five-power talks with Prime Minister Vorster in South Africa and served as the U.S. representative to the Steve Biko funeral in South Africa. McHenry is regarded as a specialist on the problems of southern Africa.

Born in St. Louis, McHenry joined the State Department in 1963 in the office of U.N. Political Affairs. He has served as advisor to several U.N. delegations and received the State Department’s Superior Honor Award in 1966.

In 1969, he was an assistant to Secretary of State William Rogers and special assistant to the counselor of the State Department from 1969-71. A past foreign service lecturer at Georgetown University, guest scholar at the Brookings Institute and an international affairs fellow of the Council on Foreign Relations, McHenry also was the project director for humanitarian policy studies at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

He resides in New York and has two daughters and a son.

The final achievement award candidate was part of the leadership team under President Delyte W. Morris who were often described as “Super-dreamers.” However, for the better part of the 28 years Davis spent at SIU, many of those dreams came true.

His period of employment coincided with the time of the University’s transformation from a teacher training school to a major university.

During his tenure at SIU, Davis served as a special assistant to five SIU vice-presidents, special assistant to the chairman of the University Administrative Council and dean of men or director of student affairs from 1949 until 1964.

A native of Benton, Ill., Davis served on many planning and advising committees at the University, too numerous to mention. He was a charter member of the board of directors for the SIU Press and assisted in bringing the AFPOTC to campus.

When he retired Feb. 28, 1977, Davis was a professor in the higher education department. In March, 1977, the Illinois House of Representatives offered a House Resolution (No. 103) commending him for his University service.

He and his wife, Dorothy live in Carbondale. All three of his children attended SIU.

STC Occupancy Delayed ’Til January

A series of delays touched off by last winter’s harsh weather has set back occupancy of SIU Carbondale’s new School of Technical Careers building until at least the first of next year.

The $7.5 million laboratory-classroom building adjoining the engineering and technology complex on the SIU-C campus had been scheduled for completion in time for fall semester classes.

But weather holdsups, shipping delays for essential equipment, suppliers’ strikes and “odds-and-ends” delays have wiped out plans for an Aug. 28 moving day, SIU officials say.

“It’s just been one straw after another,” said Jack Moore, SIU architectural superintendent. “After so long, it all became impossible.”

Moore said that if all required laboratory and teaching equipment had arrived on time, there would have been little difficulty meeting the planned occupancy date.

“Generally, the physical part of the project is complete,” he said, “except for a few light fixtures, some carpeting and some painting.”

Most of the missing equipment is set for delivery around Oct. 1, Moore said. He said if everything else arrives when expected, STC’s move should be completed over the Christmas break and classes should begin in the new building when the spring semester opens in January. About 1,000 students will attend classes in the new facility.

Thank You, Alumni for Your Support and Enthusiasm

SIU alumni, put yourself on the back and take a bow too! You deserve it!

Why? Because the membership in the SIU Alumni Association increased from 6,836 July 1, 1977 to 8,073 on July 1, 1978 (all applications received. And it still is climbing.

More memberships means more alumni activities which in return gives the Association an opportunity to serve more people.

It’s a great feeling and we have you to thank!!!

Because of popular demand and a great deal of inquiries, the Association reactivated the Alumni Family Camping program at SIU Touch of Nature in August, 1977 with a two week session and 56 campers.

The program was doubled in 1978 (four weeks, over 100 campers).

Another feather in your hat was the new group term insurance program which was inaugurated in March, 1978. As of June 30, there had been 552 applications received. Only 450 were needed to implement the guaranteed issue feature.

And the applications are still coming in!

Still another service feature we added to our programming was a job search workshop which informed alumni in the Chicago area how to get a job.

Over 50 people participated in the workshop sponsored by the Association and the SIU Career Planning and Placement Center.

Based on this response, our two offices are currently finalizing similar programs for St. Louis, Springfield and Carbondale for later this year.

Also, the alumni clubs are benefitting from this wave of Saluki enthusiasm. Last year there were 28 club meetings. New clubs were formed in Omaha, Neb., Terre Haute, Indiana, the Rockford, Ill., area and the Wabash County Club was reactivated.

In working with the SIU Development Office, 14 alumni clubs conducted telefund campaigns to raise money for the University. At the end of June, $31,963.50 had been pledged, over $1,000 more than last year and this does not include the pledges from Chicago, Peoria, Washington, D.C. and the Randolph County clubs.

In reaching out to offer services to the alumni, the Association planned a get-together for current students and young alumni in Chicago during the week of July 18th.

Two students (one undergraduate, one graduate student) were added to the International Alumni Board of Directors. In addition, to giving the students an opportunity for some feedback and input into the Association, the board also developed the Student Alumni Board.

Gung ho and actively interested in participating in alumni activities, the SAB members (all current students) helped with Homecoming activities, orientation, SIU Day at DuQuoin, annual new student Watermelon fest, alumni membership and publicity; distributed words of “Go Southern Go” fight song at basketball games and published the New Student Record for incoming freshmen (over 1,000 copies were sold).

Not to be outdone by the students, the alumni in the College of Liberal Arts and the School of Medicine formed constituent societies, bringing the total to eight. There were 586 participants in the meetings workshops and open houses throughout the year.

As usual, the Association sponsored receptions after graduations and alumni in attendance, gave eight Roscoe Pulliam scholarships and two scholar-athlete awards; the Great Teacher award and three alumni achievement awards; sponsored Homecoming, the Alumni Recognition Basketball Game; helped with setting up the Athletic Hall of Fame and hosted receptions, open houses at the Class A and AA State High School Basketball Tournaments.

All and all, it was a tremendous year and we want to thank you for your continuous support and active participation.

If you weren’t able to participate last year, but now want to be a part of our Saluki team, fill out the membership application below.

We need you!

Letter to Editor

Editor,

Please permit me to use your paper to say farewell to several generations of my former SIU students. I have many happy memories of all of them, and I thank them for many fine years of association.

I want to express my gratitude again to the SIU Alumni Association for its honor, the Great Teacher Award, given to me in 1962, which I will always cherish.

Best wishes to all of you and good luck to the Alumni Association in your continuing fine work.

I would be glad to hear from any of my old friends and can always be reached in care of the Department of English at SIU.

Sincerely,

Thomas E. Cassidy

Editor’s note: Cassidy, an associate professor of English, joined the SIU faculty in 1958 as a lecturer after a teaching stint at his alma mater Notre Dame, Wisconsin. Besides the Great Teacher Award, he won the “Most Popular Teacher Award.” As of the fall, Cassidy has accepted a visiting professor position at St. John’s University in Minnesota.

SIU Budget Increases for 1978-79

Newly approved appropriations for SIU provide $4,572,000 for salary increases in the budget year that started July 1, according to a breakdown of bills signed recently by Gov. James R. Thompson.

The funds provided faculty staff pay raises averaging eight percent, plus an additional two percent for lower paid civil service workers in range classifications, said William Hemann, financial affairs officer for the SIU board of trustees staff.

Last year, pay hikes averaged only five percent for faculty members and seven percent for civil service employees.

The total 1978-79 appropriation for SIU-C is $85,218,100, of which $4,508,000 is a separate item for lower paid civil service workers in plus an additional two percent for increases in the budget year that started July 1, according to a breakdown of bills signed recently by Gov. James R. Thompson.

SIU-C had asked for more than $4 million in “other adjustments,” the bulk of it to replace equipment and bring civil service salaries up to par with the personnel code employees throughout the state. This was subsequently pared to the governor’s recommended level of $301,800 — none of it for the equity pay raises.

Non-salary increases in SIU-C's new budget, then, are: General price increases, $533,800 (up four percent); utilities increases, $383,600 (up 11 percent); library materials, $136,000 (up 10 percent); operation and maintenance of new buildings, $409,000; new and expanded program support, $644,000; and other (equipment replacement, fire protection, etc.), $301,800.

The new and expanded program money will go to energy-related projects (SIU's coal research center and a master's degree program in mining engineering), the medical school, the law school, Center for Basic Skills and a master's degree effort in rehabilitation counseling.

Salaries and wages account for some $61.7 million of the entire budget.

Dean Isbell's Plan to Save SIU Money Wins Award

A financial innovation which is expected to save the University more than $11 million over the next 30 years recently brought it additional dividends.

The National Association of College and University Business Officers has awarded SIU $7,500 as second-place prize in a national cost reduction incentive competition. The award was made at the association's annual meeting in Montreal.

SIU board of trustees treasurer R. Dean Isbell, who came up with the innovation, accepted the cash award for the University.

Under Isbell's plan, SIU in December sold $34.7 million worth of revenue bonds to a consortium of Chicago banks, and used the proceeds to refund in advance about $37 million in higher-priced construction bonds issued in the 1960's and 1960's. Because of an upgrading in SIU's bond rating, the new bonds brought a lower rate of interest than the older bonds, saving the University an estimated $11.1 million over the 30-year life of the bonds.

SIU officials said the sale marked the first time such a technique had been used to save higher education.

"Mr. Isbell conceived the idea and worked on it for a year and a half with a number of people in financial circles in Springfield and Chicago," said James Brower, general secretary to the SIU system. "He has exhibited a commendable kind of financial leadership here."

The National Association of College and University Business Officers prize money, he said, is an unrestricted award to the SIU system. No strings are attached to its use.

Releases Building Funds

Thompson Signs SIU Law Bill

More than four years of waiting ended Aug. 24 for SIU officials as Gov. James Thompson signed a bill authorizing $7,580,000 for a permanent School of Law building.

The action ended fears that the School would lose its American Bar Association accreditation. Law Dean Hiram H. Lesar said. Thompson said the School of Law is vital to the well-being of Southern Illinois.

"More than half the students in the SIU School of Law are from Southern Illinois," he said. "In addition, more than half the School's graduates remain in the southern part of the state to practice law, which benefits the area immeasurably."

Barring unforeseen hitches, the three-story building could be completed by December, 1980, SIU officials estimated.

The signing took place in ceremonies at Thompson's Springfield office. Attending were: Lesar, Board of Trustees Chairman Harris Rowe, President Warren W. Brandt and External Affairs Director Clyde Choate. State Rep. Richard O. Hart (D-Benton), one of the funding bill's major House backers, also attended.

"It's a great day for us," Brandt said. "We greatly appreciate the special help of the governor and the legislature in meeting the special needs of the SIU School of Law. This is a major event that marks the successful completion of a long effort to secure the law facility."

In signing the bill, Gov. Thompson indicated the funds would be "released expeditiously as they are needed for construction," Brandt said.

The bill earmarks $6.4 million for completion of planning and the construction of the building and $1,180,000 for planning and providing utilities. The bill received final approval in a 106-39 vote June 20 in the state House of Representatives.

The Law School has been housed in two Small Group Housing converted units since its first class began studies in the fall of 1973. The ABA required it to provide the accreditation in February, 1974, on the condition it would meet full bar standards including physical facilities standards within five years. The provisional accreditation runs out in February, 1979, and the ABA has threatened not to continue it because of lack of progress on the law building.

Grades of law schools not accredited by the ABA are not eligible to take state bar exams.

Lesar said Thompson's action assures continued provisional accreditation. He said that, technically, the school cannot receive full accreditation until the building is completed, but that there is a possibility it could come sooner.

Hart, who helped shepherd the measure through the House, said it represents the "top of the tree" of his legislative career.

"For many years there have been some areas of Southern Illinois in which citizens haven't had adequate services of state's attorneys, judges and private practitioners," Hart said. "The SIU School of Law is changing that situation, making better justice and legal services available for people throughout the region."

According to David C. Johnson, associate law dean, bids could be let on the structure as soon as February, 1979, and completion could come by December, 1980.

The three-story building, to be located just north of the present temporary quarters in Small Group Housing, will have 100,000 square feet of floor space. Sixty percent of the space will be used for the law library, providing enough room for an eventual 250,000 volumes. The library currently has about 100,000 volumes.
Stream Bed Samples — SIU geologist William Hood and laboratory assistant Polly Doyle check out samples of stream bed mud taken from Southern Illinois streams. Hood and fellow geologist Paul Robinson are studying pollution from so-called heavy metals such as cadmium, chromium, arsenic and cobalt often found with coal deposits. The geologists have found “significant, but not dangerous” amounts of the potentially toxic metals downstream from coal processing and storage areas in six Southern Illinois counties. Atomic absorption spectrometer in background is used to analyze samples. The project is funded by a two-year, $75,000 grant from the Federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Twenty Faculty Retire

The former University Architect, a pioneer in the field of rehabilitation, two internationally-known scientists, and two Alumni “Great Teacher” award-winners were among 20 SIU faculty who retired this year. Their retirement was recognized Aug. 5 at summer commencement.

While Charles W. Pulley was guiding more than $180 million in campus building projects; rehabilitation expert Guy Renzaglia, microbiologist Isaac Shechmeister, and anthropologist Phillip J.C. Dark were gaining international reputations through their research and development work.

Additionally, the teaching skills Edward J. Schmidlein and Thomas Cassidy have won wide-spread recognition and endeared them to generations of SIU students.

This year’s retirees include: Irvin W. Adams, assistant to the University legal counsel; Henrietta E. Becker, lecturer in food and nutrition; Carl E. Bretschier, associate campus architect; Cassidy, associate professor of English; Dark, professor of anthropology; Harold DeWeese, professor of guidance and educational psychology; G. Edsel V. DeWeese, instructor of curriculum, instruction and media; Diana L. Dodd, assistant professor of English; Grace Duff, assistant professor of educational leadership and Elsa Kula, lecturer in the Division of Comprehensive Planning and Development.

Others are: Pulley, assistant professor in the Division of Comprehensive Planning and Design; Harves C. Rahe, professor in the department of vocational education studies; David T. Ray, assistant professor at Morris Library; Renzaglia, professor in the Rehabilitation Institute; Shechmeister, professor of microbiology; Schmidlein, professor of accounting; Irving S. Spigle, associate professor of curriculum, instruction and media; E. Earle Sibbit, professor of English; Ralph M. Swick, professor of accounting and Max W. Turner, professor in the department of political science.

The Alumni Association wishes to thank you all for your years of service and dedication to SIU and extends best wishes to you in retirement.

Insurance Program Still Accepting Applications

Over 550 applications were received as charter members of the Alumni Association’s Group Term Life Insurance program.

The charter period for the guaranteed issue portion of the program closed June 30, but low group rates continue to be available to all alumni meeting normal underwriting standards, according to Robert Odaniell, executive director of the Alumni Association.

The program has been “very well received,” Odaniell said. “It was initiated from alumni requests and we are very pleased by having over 100 applications more than required to place the guaranteed issue portion in effect in this first offering.”

If you wish an insurance brochure, please contact the Alumni Association, Faner Hall, SIU, Carbondale, IL 62901.

Research Grants Will Benefit University

SIU departments will benefit from four research grants recently presented to the University.

The grants deal directly with the improvement of educational programs.

The largest a $325,000 grant federally-funded by the U.S. Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, will be used to develop model graduate programs aimed at bridging the gap between theory and day-to-day practice in the criminal justice field.

“The ideal is to map out master's and doctoral degree programs that hit the right blend of theoretical and practical courses and produce graduates who can readily meet the needs of the criminal justice agencies,” Dennis B. Anderson, assistant professor in the SIU Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections, said.

The two-year grant, which was sought by several other major universities, is believed to be the first ever awarded by LEAA for the development of comprehensive model graduate programs.

The SIU Rehabilitation Institute recently received a $82,201 grant from the Federal Rehabilitation Services Administration to implement a new master's degree program to train job development and placement specialists to work with the disabled.

About one-half of the funds will be used for trainships to support participants in the newly created program, A. Andrew McDonald, Sr., assistant professor in the Rehab Institute.

The grant will be used to give Southern Illinois area teachers a chance to improve their science teaching skills through a special NSF project scheduled to be set up in Centralia and Carbondale.

The funds will be used to cover tuition costs for the participating teacher. They will also receive travel and book allowances, according to Audrey Tomera, project director.

Finally, the fourth educational grant of $2,000 was presented to the SIU School of Engineering and Technology by the Union Carbide Nuclear Division.

The unrestricted grant will be used for the Advancement of SIU engineering and Technology programs.

Phil Davis (second from right), acting dean of SIU’s School of Engineering and Technology, accepts a check for $2,000 from Clay Zerby, plant manager of Union Carbide's Gaseous Diffusion Plant at Paducah, Ky. The unrestricted grant was awarded recently by Union Carbide’s Nuclear Division to SIU for the advancement of the University’s engineering and technology programs. With Zerby and Davis and Dan Stitt (left), head of mechanical engineering at the Union Carbide plant and a graduate of SIU, and Joel Ellington (right), superintendent of employment at Union Carbide.

Saluki Golfers Optimistic

SIU golf coach Jim Barrett suffered through a long, losing season last year, but with a good returning nucleus and four outstanding recruits joining the Saluki fold this year, he's raring to go.

"I'm really looking forward to the fall tournaments," Barrett said. "I'm so excited about our new players that I can't wait to get started."

In addition to the returning starters, Jim Reburn and Butch Poshard, Barrett also has Jeff Jarrett and Todd O'Reilly, all of whom gained valuable experience last year.

But the cause of all the excitement is the crop of newcomers. Leading the list is former Carterville High School star Larry Emery who returns to SIU after a year's absence.

Emery attended SIU in 1976 and played as the Salukis number two man. This summer he has been a contender in every tournament he has participated in and has qualified for the Illinois State Amateur tourney along with Reburn.

Equally exciting to Barrett is the addition of freshman Jay Smith of Lafayette, Ind. Smith was the number one man on the Indiana State High School Championship team and earned all-state honors himself.

Recently he finished 17th in the national high school tournament in Tulsa, Okla., a tournament which featured the finest high school golfers in America. In addition to being a great golfer, Smith was also an All-State guard in basketball.

Emery and Smith will be joined by Doug Clements of DeKalb, who finished third in the Illinois State High School tourney while finishing first in his district; and by John Murphy of East Peoria who came to SIU with limited experience, but potential.

The Salukis will play seven practice rounds at various local courses to determine the five starters out of the nine man roster. Barrett expects the competition for a starting berth to be stiff.

"It's hard to say right now who the top five will be," Barrett said. "All nine players have a chance to make the starting team. I have no favorites, the lowest scorers will play."

Southern will compete in 54-hole tournaments: Indiana State, Sept. 15-16; Murray State, Sept. 22-23; Fox Fire, N.C., Sept. 30-Oct. 1; and at Eastern Kentucky, Oct. 14-15. Also, the Salukis will participate in a 36-hole tourney Oct. 6-7, hosted by Evansville at the Oak Meadows Country Club.

U.S. Volleyball Team To Play Japan In Arena

Local sports enthusiasts will get an opportunity to see world class volleyball at its best at 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 15 when the Japanese and American women's teams visit the SIU Arena for a star spangled exhibition.

Tickets may be mailed ordered beginning Sept. 1, by writing Women's Intercollegiate Athletics, Davies Gym, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill., 62901.

Ticket prices are: $5 for all reserved seats, $4 for general admission, $2 general admission for SIU students (with ID or spouse cards), $1 general admission for children age 12 and under.

Order for the Holidays!

The Japanese will come to Carbondale as part of a 27-stop, month long tour of the United States; they will bring the same veteran squad that proved good enough to capture the gold medal at the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal.

The U.S. will counter with an ambitious aggregation that has shown signs of emerging as a superpower in its own right on the international volleyball scene. The talented Yanks have flexed some burgeoning muscles of late.

After defeating the Soviet Union twice last year, the U.S. squad completed a successful Asian swing this summer by splitting 26 games with host Japan.

"I'm really looking forward to the fall tournaments," Barrett said. "I'm so excited about our new players that I can't wait to get started."

In addition to the returning starters, Jim Reburn and Butch Poshard, Barrett also has Jeff Jarrett and Todd O'Reilly, all of whom gained valuable experience last year.

But the cause of all the excitement is the crop of newcomers. Leading the list is former Carterville High School star Larry Emery who returns to SIU after a year's absence.

Emery attended SIU in 1976 and played as the Salukis number two man. This summer he has been a contender in every tournament he has participated in and has qualified for the Illinois State Amateur tourney along with Reburn.

Equally exciting to Barrett is the addition of freshman Jay Smith of Lafayette, Ind. Smith was the number one man on the Indiana State High School Championship team and earned all-state honors himself.

Recently he finished 17th in the national high school tournament in Tulsa, Okla., a tournament which featured the finest high school golfers in America. In addition to being a great golfer, Smith was also an All-State guard in basketball.

Emery and Smith will be joined by Doug Clements of DeKalb, who finished third in the Illinois State High School tourney while finishing first in his district; and by John Murphy of East Peoria who came to SIU with limited experience, but potential.

The Salukis will play seven practice rounds at various local courses to determine the five starters out of the nine man roster. Barrett expects the competition for a starting berth to be stiff.

"It's hard to say right now who the top five will be," Barrett said. "All nine players have a chance to make the starting team. I have no favorites, the lowest scorers will play."

Southern will compete in 54-hole tournaments: Indiana State, Sept. 15-16; Murray State, Sept. 22-23; Fox Fire, N.C., Sept. 30-Oct. 1; and at Eastern Kentucky, Oct. 14-15. Also, the Salukis will participate in a 36-hole tourney Oct. 6-7, hosted by Evansville at the Oak Meadows Country Club.

U.S. Volleyball Team To Play Japan In Arena

Local sports enthusiasts will get an opportunity to see world class volleyball at its best at 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 15 when the Japanese and American women's teams visit the SIU Arena for a star spangled exhibition.

Tickets may be mailed ordered beginning Sept. 1, by writing Women's Intercollegiate Athletics, Davies Gym, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill., 61901.

Ticket prices are: $5 for all reserved seats, $4 for general admission, $2 general admission for SIU students (with ID or spouse cards), $1 general admission for children age 12 and under.

Order for the Holidays!

The Japanese will come to Carbondale as part of a 27-stop, month long tour of the United States; they will bring the same veteran squad that proved good enough to capture the gold medal at the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal.

The U.S. will counter with an ambitious aggregation that has shown signs of emerging as a superpower in its own right on the international volleyball scene. The talented Yanks have flexed some burgeoning muscles of late.

After defeating the Soviet Union twice last year, the U.S. squad completed a successful Asian swing this summer by splitting 26 games with host Japan.
“Saluki Sports Shorts”, not too spectacular a name, but one which perhaps best describes the intentions of this column as it will be just that...briefs that weren't quite worthy of publication in your favorable daily newspaper or items that may have slipped by without notice. Who knows, we may occasionally even have a fresh note pertaining to past, present or future SIU athletic personalities and happenings.

Already much has been said about the 1978 edition Saluki football team...Coach Rey Dempsey's third since becoming the 11th leader in SIU's grid history.

Out of the Past...we recall SIU's football program had only two head coaches — Bill O'Brien and Glen "Abe" Martin — during its first 36 years. Since, however, there's been Bill Waller (1950-51), Bill O'Brien (1952-54), Al Kawal (1955-58), Carmen Piccone (1959-63), Don Shroyer (1964-65), Ellis Rainsberger (1966), Dick Towers (1967-73), Doug Werr (1974-75), and Dempsey.

While McAndrew is deceased, the others are very much active. And, that includes "Abe"...a giant of a man in many ways. Although he has to make occasional trips South, "Abe" is still involved with campus projects and is an ardent supporter of all SIU teams.

Walker was a campus visitor just this past summer when I. Clark Davis brought him by the SIU Arena to meet Athletic Director Gale Sayers. O'Brien, of course, is chairman of SIU's Recreation Department, a member of the Intercollegiate Athletic Council, a Vice President of the SIU Alumni Association and stays in the public eyes with frequent appearances on national TV in his role as an N.F.L. official.

Kawal when last heard from was in retirement. Piccone is an assistant head coach, and is still flashing his well-known, mischievous smile (even after the Salukis upset his club early last season). Shroyer is a junior high school administrator in Decatur. Rainsberger has just shifted to the Canadian pro league after running into problems at Kansas State. Towers has returned to Kansas as a school administrator and Weaver is A.D. at Georgia Tech.

Looking Ahead...to the fall sports season Coach Lew Hartog feels this year's cross country team may be one of his best ever. "Obviously, this is an outstanding team," Lew said, "we have everyone from last year's squad returning and we weren't 'all that bad a year ago.'"

The home opener is Saturday, Aug. 21 against the Temple and is still flinging his well-known, mischievous smile (even after the Salukis upset his club early last season). Shroyer is a junior high school administrator in Decatur. Rainsberger has just shifted to the Canadian pro league after running into problems at Kansas State. Towers has returned to Kansas as a school administrator and Weaver is A.D. at Georgia Tech.

While Saluki volleyball coach Debbie Hunter espouses due respect for the two heavyweights of the eight-team field, she does not discount her own squad's title chances.

"I feel like our girls will have made enough experience through pre-season conditioning and early competition to be tournament tough in time for our Invitational," Hunter said. "We have to be considered a solid contender for our championship; we’ve beaten the likes of Illinois State before," she added.

Mary Shirk (right front), SIU’s returning volleyball standout, executes a timely block. Robin Deterring, the Salukis’ returning team captain (back), casts a wistful eye toward the action.

Volleyball Invitational
Set for Homecoming

Illinois State and Southwest Missouri State University, two of America’s top women’s volleyball teams last season, head an impressive field that will gather to test up-and-coming SIU in the Saluki Invitational, Oct. 27-28, homecoming weekend.

Friday night’s schedule (Oct. 27) calls for three volleyball sessions at the Arena, beginning at 5 p.m., 6:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday’s semifinals will be played in Davies Gym at 10 a.m. and noon, with the championship finals — also Saturday in Davies — scheduled for 4 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at the door; prices are: $2 adults, $1 high school students, 50 cents SIU students and children age 12 and under.

Illinois State and Southwest Missouri rank by consensus as co-favorites for the homecoming event. Both come to Carbondale bearing impressive credentials. The rival Redbirds earned an eighth place finish at last year’s AIAW Nationals, while the Show Me State Bears did even better, gobbling seventh place overall.

While Saluki volleyball coach Debbie Hunter espouses due respect for the two heavyweights of the eight-team field, she does not discount her own squad’s title chances.

"I feel like our girls will have made enough experience through pre-season conditioning and early competition to be tournament tough in time for our Invitational," Hunter said. "We have to be considered a solid contender for our championship; we’ve beaten the likes of Illinois State before," she added.

Hunter, beginning her fifth season as SIU volleyball head — is hoping a large turnout of Saluki homecoming faithful will be on hand for the weekend action.

"We’ve scheduled our Saturday play so that it doesn’t conflict with the football game or other university homecoming events," Hunter said. "We want our fans to have every chance to see a field of top notch volleyballers that, I think, is the best we’ve ever put together for our Saluki Invitational."

Hunter said the opening night action would prove particularly attractive to volleyball newcomers.

"The fans will get a chance to see four games going on at once. They’ll have the luxury of choosing which two-out-of-three game match to zero their attention on," Hunter said. "But more importantly, they will be able to learn firsthand why volleyball is the fastest growing sport in the nation and the second most popular participation sport in the world," she added.

A maximum of 20 athletes will be selected to be inducted into the Hall sometime during the early part of 1979.

Athletes should be nominated for two time periods: 1915 until 1945 and 1946 until 1973.

Nominations can be sent to the Alumni office, Faner Hall, Carbondale, Ill. 62901.
Football Team Hopes To Better Last Year's Slate

by Tom Simon

Sports Information Director

SIU's introduction into Missouri Valley Conference football in 1977 was not a pleasant experience for the Salukis.

The team finished 1-10 overall and 0-9 in the MVC.

This season, with the addition of some talented newcomers and the return of a number of experienced players, the Salukis hope to improve on last year's performance.

Harries' Hope to Regain MVC Title

With five regulars returning from last year's squad and several promising newcomers, Cross Country Coach Lew Hartzog hopes to regain the SIU Salukis' Missouri Valley Conference title.

Hartzog, who has led the Salukis to two MVC titles, is optimistic about the team's chances primarily due to the return of some key players.

Several other freshmen could also figure in the picture this year. They are: Bob Hesketh and Bill Laser of Carbondale, Chries Rieger of Golconda, Bob Ratcliffe of Palatine and John Sales of Deerfield.

The home schedule includes:

- At the Intercollegiates, Oct. 21.
- At the Missouri Valley Conference meet, Nov. 28.
- At the NCAA meet, Nov. 30.
- At the NCAA meet, Nov. 30.

Despite the severity of the schedule, Hartzog looks for his team to have a fine season and to make a strong showing at the MVC meet.

"We've got everyone back plus several good new runners," Hartzog said. "So I can't help but think we'll be better. I feel we'll be much stronger this year and should be contenders for the conference crown."

Salukis Add Two Grid Assistants

Two new assistant coaches have joined the Saluki football staff. They are former graduate assistant Jan Quarless, who will take charge of the defensive line and NFL veteran Dan Brooks, who will handle offensive backs and receivers.

A native of Iron River, Mich., Quarless joined the Saluki staff in 1976 and has served as a graduate assistant for two years. He will replace former defensive coach Jim Vecchiarella who moved to Tulsa.

A four-year letterman at Northern Michigan University from 1969 to 1972, Quarless was named the Wildcats' team captain for the 1972 season. He received his bachelor's degree from Northern Michigan in 1972 and his master's from the Univ. of Michigan in 1974.

Brooks, a native of Jacksonville, Ill., comes to SIU after spending the past two years in the NFL with the St. Louis Cardinals. While with St. Louis, he served as a special assignments coach under Don Coryell.

The 28-year-old Brooks was a four-year letterman at Illinois College from 1969-77 as a quarterback. Following graduation, Brooks took his first coaching position at Jacksonville High School. Then in 1974 and 1975 he was an assistant coach at the Univ. of Illinois.

As a high school student at Jacksonville, Brooks played freshman football for coach Itchy Jones. Jones has coached SIU baseball for the past nine years.

Saluki Basketball Schedule Lists 25 Season Games

The 1978-79 Saluki basketball schedule lists 25 games, 13 of which are home games.

The schedule is as follows:

- Evansville, Nov. 25; Roosevelt, Nov. 27; at St. Louis, Nov. 29; the Show-Me Classic at Columbia, Mo. (SIU, Alabama-Birmingham, Eastern Kentucky and Missouri.)
- In December the Salukis are slated to play at Illinois State, Dec. 6; Kansas-Missouri, Dec. 9; Northern Illinois, Dec. 11; and at Virginia Commonwealth, Dec. 16.
- In January the games are: William Jewell, Jan. 9; at Wichita State, Jan. 13; at Missouri, Jan. 15; at Pittsburg State, Jan. 19; at Oklahoma State, Jan. 21; at Tulsa, Jan. 23; at Texas A&M, Jan. 26; at Arkansas State, Jan. 28; at Creighton, Jan. 30; at Wichita State, Jan. 30.
- During February, SIU will play: Indiana State, Feb. 3; at Creighton, Feb. 5; at West Texas State, Feb. 9; at Drake, Feb. 12; Indiana State, Feb. 15; at Tulsa, Feb. 17; at New Mexico State, Feb. 19 and Drake.

Once again, the line holds the key to the offensive's success.

Junior guard Byron Honore has proven himself to be a fine all-around offensive player and should be able to push for All-MVC laurels. Center John Hall came on very strong in the spring, as did tackle John Schroeder who was probably the spring’s most improved player.

Promising sophomore Steve Wheeler will be at the other guard, while the second tackle position is expected to be filled by senior Mike McArthur. Both tackles are under pressure from Dempsey’s best-ever group of freshmen recruits.

Four starters return on the five-man defensive line, with John Schreiber, Jim Silver, John Hall and Ron Ridgway.

Of the 11-game schedule, four games will be played at McAndrew Stadium. They are: West Texas State, Sept. 23; New Mexico State, Sept. 30; Arkansas State, Oct. 14; Northern Illinois, Oct. 28 (Homecoming) and Marshall, Nov. 11.

The seven away games are: Drake, Sept. 9; Lamar, Sept. 16; Illinois State, Oct. 7; Wichita State, Oct. 21; Indiana State, Nov. 4; and S.W. Louisiana, Nov. 18.

Persons interested in tickets should contact the SIU Athletic Office, (618) 453-5311.

Job Search Workshops To be Planned

Because of the success of the Job Search Workshop held last year in Chicago, three more are being planned.

These workshops, sponsored by the SIU Alumni Association and the SIU Career Planning and Placement Center, will be conducted in St. Louis, Springfield and Carbondale this year.

The St. Louis workshop will be Nov. 18 located at St. Louis University.

The Carbondale workshop is slated for Jan. 13 and will be held in Quigley Hall (formerly the Home Economics Building). The Alumni Recognition Basketball game (SIU vs. New Mexico State) also is slated for that evening.

Finally, the workshop in Springfield is scheduled for Feb. 17 at the SIU School of Medicine in Springfield.

Workshop participants will receive assertiveness training for job interviews and they will learn how to conduct field surveys to locate companies that correspond with the employment surroundings the person is seeking.

In addition, the workshop will give tips on interviewing techniques, resume writing, role playing and the rationale of an active job search.

Enrollment is limited to a first-come, first-served basis. A notice of the event will be sent out to all of the workshop area alumni.

Prices and specific room locations have not been finalized at this time.

If you are interested and do not want to wait for the workshop notice, send your name and address, telephone number, and SIU class year to the SIU Alumni Association, Faner Hall, Carbondale, Illinois 62901. Or call the Alumni office at (618) 453-2408.

Help SIU Better Itself! Donate Now!!!

Gifts and pledges to the SIU Foundation totaled $1,021,144 during the Alumni Association's annual giving program.

Of this total, SIU received $696,468 in cash gifts and $324,767 in gifts in kind, J.C. Garavalia, director of the SIU annual giving program, said.

Garavalia pointed out that the most important aspect of last year's Endowment fund raising program was the increase in cash gifts from $513,306 to $696,468, a 24-percent increase.

In addition, he said, the number of donors stayed about the same as last year around 5,000.

Half of the donations were made by SIU (2,500) graduates and former students, $51,602 was donated, almost doubling last year's donations.

"We would like to encourage the alumni to contribute more frequently in support of programs and Activities on the SIU campus," Garavalia said.

Currently, Garavalia is making plans for the 1978-79 Living Endowment Fund raising program.

Endowment Fund raising program. Three direct mail campaigns to previous non-donors are being planned. Plus, he will send mailings to previous donors and two mail campaigns to the SIU faculty and staff.

Alumni should be receiving the first mailing sometime in October, but Garavalia said it is not necessary to wait to donate.

If you are interested in making a donation to SIU, contributions can be sent to the Office of Development, SIU, Carbondale, Ill. 62901. Or you can call him at (618) 453-2684.

Make all checks payable to the SIU Foundation. You can designate on your check what activity or program you would like to support.

Garavalia said he likes to suggest that donations be made to an unrestricted fund so that the University can respond to immediate needs through this fund.
