Pres. Warren W. Brandt Resigns

Warren W. Brandt, the 12th president of SIU-C, announced his resignation April 16 effective June 30.

The 55-year-old Brandt, who headed the 22,500 student SIU-C campus since December of 1974, expressed objection to some board of trustees' actions which he said, "usually involved the placing of so-called system concerns ahead of the needs of SIU-C.

The system includes universities at Carbondale and Edwardsville, each headed by a president. Until March of this year, the two presidents reported to the SIU board of trustees.

As reported in the March Alumnus, the SIU governing system has been changed to create a chancellor of the system who would have the ultimate decision-making power. James M. Brown, former chief secretary of the system, was named acting chancellor.

In his resignation letter to Brown, Brandt, said, "I have repeatedly objected in open board meetings to board actions which I felt impacted negatively on the future development of Southern Illinois University at Carbondale and Edwardsville. Each division of the system which I have, in my own mind, been responsible for, has been impacted adversely by some board action which I felt would be detrimental to the University in a capacity other than president until his normal commitment to improve quality and student life.

After my resignation date, SIU-C will have a chancellor, position. Currently, the SIU board of trustees has screened 106 nominations for the chancellor's position. Currently, the SIU-C, Brandt said he didn't want tenure from SIU-C, Brandt said he didn't want tenure because his most recent positions had been in administration and not in teaching.

A new president will not be named until a permanent chancellor has been selected, Brown, the acting chancellor said. Then, it will be up to the new chancellor as to the selection of a new SIU-C president.

The Chancellor Search Assistance Council, chaired by Keith Sanders '61, '62, professor of speech at SIU-C, has screened 106 nominations for the chancellor's position. The list has been narrowed to 32 candidates through screening processes. Another screening session will narrow candidates down to 8 to 12 applicants, Sanders said.

By late July or early August, the Council hopes to make recommendations to the board of trustees so the board can begin their interviewing process for a permanent chancellor.

In his five-year stay at SIU-C, Brandt succeeded in creating or renaming some of the vice presidential posts. In 1974, there was one vice president in charge of academic affairs and one in charge of developmental services and one who served as campus treasurer. In addition, there also was a dean of student life.

Currently, there are five vice presidential posts, one each for academic affairs, financial affairs, student affairs, university relations and campus service.

During his years in office, Brandt witnessed the opening of the $9 million multi-purpose Recreation Building and the dedications of the $6.1 million School of Technical Careers Building and the Home of the SIU-C Alumni Association.

Also, under his administration, funding for the new SIU-C School of Law building which is scheduled to be completed in the fall of 1981 was appropriated in 1978 by the Illinois General Assembly.

In the fall of 1975, SIU-C attracted more students than it had in the past four years. In his first year as president, Brandt promised, "a reorganization and renewed commitment to improve quality teaching, research and service."

Three years later, the University raised its academic standards required to apply to the University and the minimum grade point needed to receive dean's list honors also was raised. And still the number of graduates continued to rise despite stricter standards.

Prior to coming to SIU-C, Brandt served as the first president of Virginia Commonwealth University (Richmond, Va.) for four years. In previous administrative positions he had been vice president and graduate school dean at Virginia Commonwealth, associate dean and chemistry department chairman at Kansas State University and chairman of the analytical chemistry department in Purdue University's division of chemistry.

A native of Lansing, Mich., he has a bachelor's degree in chemistry (1944) from Michigan State University and a Ph. D. from the University of Illinois (1949).

Sue Long (1), president of the Jackson County Alumni Club, presented Esther and President Warren W. Brandt with a plaque from the alumni club commending them for their service to the University and their hospitality to SIU-C alumni. In addition, the SIU-C Alumni Association Board of Directors sent the Brandts a letter thanking them for their support of the Alumni Association and their participation in alumni events. STC Holds Dedication Congressman Paul Simon was the principal speaker April 27 at the dedication of the new School of Technical Careers Building opened on campus this spring.

The $6 million, three-story structure is the first permanent home of the unit, which moved from "temporary" quarters on the former Vocational-Technical Institute campus near Carterville which it had occupied since 1952.

SIU-C President Warren W. Brandt was master of ceremonies for the program. Frank Horton, vice president for academic affairs, Illinois Sen. Kenneth Bazbee, from the 58th district, and Arden Pratt, dean of STC, made brief remarks.

Bill Norwood, vice chairman of the SIU board of trustees and representatives from the Community Development Board also took part in the ceremony.

"We were particularly pleased that Congressman Simon was with us, because he has been a friend and supporter of our programs as an Illinois legislator, lieutenant governor and in Congress," Pratt said.

STC administrative offices, the Division of Baccalaureate Studies and programs in dental hygiene, dental laboratory technology, nursing, mortuary science and funeral services, allied health careers specialties, secretarial and office specialties, architectural technology and electronics technology are housed in the new 88,000-square-foot building. It was designed especially for the laboratories and clinics required by the programs.

Other programs of the 3,000-student undergraduate unit, such as electronic data processing and physical therapist assistant, are located in other specialized facilities on campus. Aviation programs are conducted at the Southern Illinois airport.

When moves are completed this summer, only automotive technology, construction technology and tool and manufacturing technology will remain on the old campus near Carterville. They are scheduled to occupy a second new building, STC II, planned to accommodate studies in so-called "heavy technologies, conducted by the School."
Participate in 1979 Homecoming activities

SIU-C alumni who graduated from the University in years ending in four or nine plus the class of 1978 should be making plans now to attend Homecoming, Oct. 12-13.

The class of 1929 will celebrate its 50th year reunion this October, while the classes of 1904, 1909, 1914, 1919, 1924, 1929, 1934, or nine plus the class of 1978 should be invited annually to attend the Half Century Club banquet held each year at Homecoming. The dinner will be Friday, October 12.

To make certain you receive Homecoming information, please send the SIU-C Alumni Office (2179 Faner Hall) your current address. Also, all SIU-C alumni are invited to nominate other alumni for the Alumni Achievement Awards presented annually at Homecoming.

Alumni Achievement Awards

Awards are presented in two categories: (1) for outstanding professional achievement (2) for outstanding service to the University and or the SIU-C Alumni Association. Any graduate or former student is eligible except those who are members of the University faculty or Board of Trustees while on active service and the current president of the Alumni Association.

It is important to submit complete biographical sketches with nominations to assure proper consideration of each individual. Final selection is made by a committee of the Alumni Association.

Deadline for nominations is June 30, 1979.

Great Teacher Nominations

In addition, Great Teachers ballots have been sent out to all Alumni Association members. Again this year, a living member of the faculty, either active or retired, will be honored at Homecoming for being an outstanding teacher. In completing the ballot, please list three Great Teachers in order of preference. Remember that the award is bestowed in tribute of classroom teaching excellence.

The award includes $1,000. Robert Mohlenbrock was the 1978 Great Teacher.

Deadlines for nominations are Aug. 1, 1979.

Elderhostel Begins in June

ELDERHOSTEL still has openings for persons of 60 or older. The program as reported to you in the March Alumnus will begin in June.

SIU-C’s first one-week programs will be held June 17-24 and July 8-14.

Join us this summer for an SIU-C adventure. For further information contact: Ms. Jeanne Bortz, ELDERHOSTEL, coordinator, Division of Continuing Education, SIU-C, Carbondale, Illinois 62901 or (618) 536-7751.

Scholarships Awarded

Scholarship awards totaling $39,235 have been presented to SIU-C students in nearly every college and department at the University by the SIU Foundation since Jan. 1.

The total figure represents a variety of awards established by philanthropists, alumni, the University and the Foundation to recognize scholastic achievements or financial needs.

Sixty-two sources will have provided monetary awards to 144 students by May 12. Joseph Goodman, director of the SIU Foundation, said:

A breakdown of the figures shows seven senior art winners in the annual Rickert-Ziebold scholarship competition; a home economics doctoral student and winner of a $3,000 Letitia Walsh grant, 55 students throughout the University sharing $9,560 in scholarships presented at the recent Honors Day session and two students as recipients of the Theta Xi-Leo Kaplan scholarships of $100 each.

SIU-C Alumni in Arizona

The desert of the southwestern United States may seem like an unlikely place for SIU-C alumni to live. However, there are no less than three alumni working together in the same department at the Marine Corps Station, Yuma, Ariz. Pictured here (l-r) are: Major Thomas F. Wunderlich ’67, M.A. ’72, who is head of the training dept. at the air station; his wife, Sue Balmes Wunderlich ’67; Capt. Michael L. Olson ’73, officer in charge of the Training Support Center; his wife, Ely, and Lt. Robert D. DeStefanis ’74, the assistant training officer. Wunderlich was instrumental in bringing to MCAS Yuma one of SIU-C’s School of Technical Careers baccalaureate programs for the personnel on the base. (MCAS Yuma Photo)

Seven Art Seniors Win Rickert-Ziebold Award

Seven senior art students at SIU-C each won $3,428.57 from the $24,000 Rickert-Ziebold award for excellence in art. It is the richest cash prize offered for undergraduate achievement at the University.

Awards are made each year out of proceeds from the estate of the late Marguerite L. Ricket, who left a third of her estate to SIUC with the stipulation that it be used to reward outstanding undergraduate senior art students.

Judging was performed by the faculty of the School of Art. The winners were: Mark Taylor, Evansville, metalsmithing; Darrelle Scott, Lemont, porcelain; Patrick Strzalec, Chicago, metalsmithing; Scott Frendenburg, Zion, sketching; Elizabeth Yop, Metropolis, water color; Jeffery Todd, Devon, Pa., glass blowing and jewelry and Ray Balinkas, Carbondale, pastels.

The winning artworks were exhibited in the Faner Hall gallery April 16 through May 9.

SIU-C Promotes 19 To Full Professor

Nineteen associate professors at SIU-C recently were promoted to full professors.

In addition, 12 assistant professors were promoted to associate professors, 10 instructors to assistant professors and one visiting assistant professor to visiting associate professor.

Promotions were approved April 13 at the SIU Board of Trustees meeting at the SIU-E School of Dental Medicine in Alton.

Promoted to full professorships, effective July 1 are: Richard S. Millman, mathematics and Darwin Payne, theater.

Those whose promotions are effective Aug. 27 are: Duane Baumann, geography; Dale Betterfield, technology; Sabir K. Bose, physics and astronomy; Echol E. Cook, thermal and environmental engineering; Darrell W. Dunham, coaching job at Auburn University. One June 6, 1978, Lambert died in a fire in Columbus, Ga. George R. Rendleman Resigns As SIU Trustee

Carbondale surgeon David F. Rendleman, ex-49, has resigned from SIU's Board of Trustees to avoid what he called a potential conflict of interest.

Rendleman's resignation was announced during the trustees meeting April 12, in Alton, by board chairman Harris Rowe of Jacksonville.

Rendleman had been appointed to the SIU board March 1 by Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson to replace former trustee Margaret Blackshear of Fidelson. Blackshear's term had expired earlier this year.

Sussman Resigns

Arthur M. Sussman, legal counsel for Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, has announced his resignation effective June 30.

The 36-year-old Sussman has accepted an appointment as general counsel and vice-president at the University of Chicago. He said he will begin his duties there in early July.

A former partner in the Chicago law firm of Jenner and Block, Sussman came to SIU-C in January, 1977. Shortly before his SIU-C appointment he was named by Secretary of the Army Martin Hoffman to head the staff of a special commission set up to look into the honor code and cheating allegations at the U.S. Military Academy.

In his resignation letter to SIU-C President Warren W. Brandt, Sussman said, "the experience at SIU-C has taught me much about the values of universities about dedication and about the integrity of leadership. My tenure has been a period of personal and professional growth."

Sussman said his vice-presidential duties at the University of Chicago will include coordination of UC relations with state and federal government agencies.

Saluki Thinclads Romp
To Fifth MVC Title

For the fifth straight year, the SIU-C track team has captured the Missouri Valley Conference championship.

Even though the Salukis dominated the championship, track coach Lew Hartzog was a worried man after the first-day SIU-C performances despite a 97-64 lead over second-place Wichita State.

The reason was that he was afraid West Texas State's 19-7 advantage in final-day qualifiers would enable SIU-C's four-year reign in the Valley.

The Saluki performance on the track was commendable. Last year, when the Salukis beat West Texas State 182-125, they were outscored on the track by the Buffaloes, 120-94. This year with better Buff runners, the WTSU edge on the track was just 128-109, and the person who probably did the most to spark SIU-C was veteran Mike Bisase, a 26-year-old senior from Uganda.

After the 400-meter relay team finished second to West Texas, Bisase ran away from the field in the final 1500-meter run to win in 3:48.36. Just 45 minutes later, he won his third career 800-meter title in 1:52.17 and became one of two double winners in the meet.

Bisase was the only Saluki to pick up a first place medal in the finals, but his performance sparked a series of outstanding, if not winning performances.

David Lee got a third in the highs, following Bisase's 800 win, a second place medal in the final 1,500-meter run and a third place medal in the 100 (10.76). Following Bisase's 800 win, a second place medal in the final 1,500-meter run and a third place medal in the 100 (10.76).

A COUPLE OF PUTTS & A SNOWSTORM...

A year ago it was a couple of missed putts in the final day of the Missouri Valley Conference golf tournament that cost Southern Illinois University-Carbondale the league's coveted all-sports trophy.

This year it appears a freakish winter snowstorm will wind up being the culprit.

Two mere strokes knocked SIU-C's golfers down one spot in the 1978 meet and the Salukis wound up being nipped by one-half a point for the MVC all-sports crown.

The fact Coach Lew Hartzog's track team was unable to get out of town last January when Carbondale was inundated by an overnight snow storm cost the Salukis an opportunity to compete and gain a first or second place finish which seemingly would have given SIU-C the necessary points to claim the title this year.

Nevertheless, it's been a good year for SIU-C in MVC play as the Salukis have obviously established themselves as one of the dominating members of the prestigious league.

Baseball Salukis Place
Third in MVC Playoffs

For only the third time in the past 14 years, the baseball Salukis won't be represented in this year's College World Series.

Despite a 37-10 record and a No. 5 ranking in the nation, the Salukis, two-time defending Missouri Valley champions, were shocked twice by Indiana State University during postseason tournament play and were eliminated from the double elimination title clash. SIU-C placed third.

In fact, since turning Division I in 1966, the Salukis and the University of Texas have appeared in the NCAA post-season tournament more times (11) than any other team in the nation.

Had the Salukis, the pre-tournament favorites, won the championship as they did the past two years, they would have received an automatic berth to the NCAA Midwest Regional.

Ten at-large NCAA bids were extended, but Southern did not receive one. At large bids are limited to conference runners-up and independent schools.

The MVC representative in this year's NCAA playoffs will be Indiana State who captured the Valley title by a 3-run seventh inning home run in a 9-8 win over Tulsa in the championship game.
This 1979 Engineering Graduate Had No Trouble Finding a Job

There are plenty of opportunities in engineering for minorities, particularly those who are willing to put in a little extra effort - according to an SIU-C engineering student who stepped into a high-paying job when he graduated May 12.

Osbert Lomax, senior in electrical engineering technology, knows all about it. The 23-year-old black from Madison, Ill., rejected 20 job offers before accepting a position with the Kansas City Power and Light Co. He traveled from New York to Los Angeles and points in between during the two semester breaks - all at the companies’ expense.

Susan Rehwoldt, CPC career counselor for engineering, mathematics, technology and computer science students, said close to 200 companies come to SIU-C each semester for on-campus interviews. Many of her student clients are hired on the spot and others are flown to the home offices to meet other company officials.

“The biggest problem for these students is deciding which offer to take, not worrying whether they’ll get a job offer,” Rehwoldt noted.

Osbert Lomax

He planned a regional NTA conference at SIU-C last year which brought together students from 10 engineering schools and representatives of 20 major corporations.

Electrical engineering technology is a four-year program. But Lomax added a year to his studies by participating in a cooperative program in which students work during the summer and parts of the school year at jobs related to their majors.

Maryrose Minnito, counselor in SIU-C’s Career Planning and Placement Center (CPPC), secured a job for Lomax in the electrical maintenance division of a steel company. So he graduated with 14 months of practical experience - experience companies are willing to pay for.

Lomax said he received salary offers ranging from $17,800 to $22,000 a year plus fringe benefits. His average offer was close to $19,000, approximately $1,000 more than the average graduating engineering student receives.

Lomax said the work experience paid off in the classroom, too. “You do better in school because all that stuff on the blackboard makes a little more sense. You know you’ll be applying it when you get out,” Lomax said.

In addition, Lomax took advantage of the CPPC to arrange his job interviews and help him prepare a personal resume.

4,500 Students Graduate May 12

Some 4,500 SIU-C students were candidates for degrees at the University’s 104th spring commencement exercises May 12 at the Arena.

The spring graduating class included 387 candidates for master’s degree, one for a specialist degree, 69 for the Ph.D. and 85 for the law degree.

In addition, graduation ceremonies for 74 M.D. degree candidates at the SIU-C School of Medicine were scheduled for June 3 at the Holiday Inn East in Springfield.

At the Carbondale exercises, two retired scholar-administrators received the University’s Distinguished Service Award. They were: Dr. Marie A. Hinrichs, 86-year-old physiologist and health educator who directed SIU-C’s Health Service from 1935 to 1949 and Ralph E. McCoy, former director of libraries and dean of library affairs.

Hinrichs, who died May 11, was active prior to her death as a health columnist for “60 Plus” magazine. For a year before leaving SIU-C in 1949, she was chairman of the Dept. of Physiology and acting head of the Health Education Dept. Then she taught at the Univ. of Illnois until 1954.

McCoy, 63, headed SIU-C’s libraries from 1955-1976, during which time University book holdings grew from a total of 160,000 volumes to more than 1.5 million. He developed the Morris Library rare books and manuscripts collections.

Recruiting Demand Increases for Two-Year Graduates

On-campus recruiting for two-year degree graduates of SIU-C’s School of Technical Careers has never been heavier, according to the SIU-C Career Planning and Placement Center (CPPC). Marilyn DeTomasi, CPPC career counselor, said 42 companies recruited two-year graduates this year, compared to only five last year.

What recruiters call a “higher level of sophistication” in recruiting prompted 41 of the 42 companies to make multiple visits to their home offices to meet with personal resume.

Companies which usually come to SIU-C looking for bachelor’s degree graduates are now checking out the well-trained associate degree students, DeTomasi said.

Recruiters give two reasons: a demand for persons with technical training to work with engineers and what recruiters call a “higher level of sophistication.” in STC two-year students than in typical community college graduates.

The demand for well-trained graduates is such that the Stewart-Warner Corporation chartered an SIU-C plane to take 17 technical careers graduates to Stewart-Warner’s Hobbs Division plant in Texas. Several other Texas Instruments flew 20 electronics students to Dallas for interviews in May.

Paul Harre, supervisor of the electronics-technology program, said his students have been able to choose from four or five job offers because of their academic achievements this year. He said the placement center's interview-scheduling program has played a large role in the stepped-up recruiting demand.

'69, an agriculture teacher at Southwestern High School in Piasa, Ill., with the 1979 Outstanding Agriculture Alumnus Award. In addition, Van Doren has served his entire professional life as a vocational agriculture instructor and an advisor to the Future Farmers of America, building the Piasa chapter into a leading, active state group, which has been recognized 12 of the last 16 years as a gold emblem chapter, the highest overall award given.

Ted Hutton Gets SAM Award

Outstanding business graduate — Ted Hutton (left) of Brookfield, Wi., receives the first SIU-C Society for the Advancement of Management (SAM) National Management Award from John Fohr (center), professor of business at the University and Chuck Marx, student president of the SIU-C chapter of SAM. The award will go annually to an SIU-C Alumnus who has achieved success in the field of management. Hutton, a labor relations manager for Allen-Bradley Co. of Milwaukee, is a native of Casey, Ill., and a 1963 graduate of the University. In addition, the SIU-C SAM chapter this year was named the top student chapter in the nation because of the organization's outstanding campus activities. (SAM photo).

Olin Stratton named National AASA Head

Olin Stratton '47, MSED '49 recently was installed as the president of the American Association of School Administrators, one of the most prestigious honors in education. The superintendent of the Highland (Ill.) Public Schools, Stratton is only the second Illinois educator to be elected to this position and is the first native-born Illinoisan to achieve this honor.

In 1947, he joined the Highland faculty as a teacher and a coach and served as principal of Highland High from 1956 to 1958. In 1958, Stratton became superintendent. During his 21 years in the position, the school district's enrollment has grown from 1,265 to 2,478; a $4 million high school was built, as well as an athletic field that includes a football stadium, all-weather track, tennis courts, soccer fields and baseball diamonds.

In addition, because his abilities as both an educator and administrator have long been recognized, Stratton is included in Who's Who in the Midwest, Who's Who in America, Who's Who in American Education and Who's Who in International Biographical Centre.

Also, he is a member of the North Central Reviewing Committee; was president of the Southwestern Superintendent's Forum from 1965-66; a member of the Illinois Governor's Task Force on Education under Gov. Otto Kerner in 1967 and under Gov. Richard Ogilvie in 1972.

He was president of the Illinois Association of School Administrators in 1972. He received the Distinguished Service Award from Madison County Superintendent of Education Service Region in 1972, and the same year served as legislative chairman of the Illinois Association of School Administrators.

Bill Wilkerson named 1979 Journalism Alumnus-of-Year

A popular St. Louis radio sportscaster has been named SIU-C's 1979 Journalism Alumnus of the Year.

Bill Wilkerson, sports reporter for KMOX radio, in St. Louis received the honor May 4 at the annual Journalism Day banquet, in the Student Center.

A native of Memphis, Tenn., Wilkerson was graduated from SIU-C School of Journalism in 1967. Also, he played football at SIU-C, where he was a teammate of Jim Hart, now quarterback of the St. Louis Cardinals.

In 1970, he joined KMOX as a newswriter and reporter. His current assignment at the radio station involves providing color commentary for radio broadcasts of the St. Louis Cardinals and the University of Missouri football games and St. Louis Blues hockey.

In addition, he is co-host of the weekday evening and Sunday morning "Sports Open Line" program and does seasonal sports programs such as "Lou Brock Baseball Replay," and the weekly "Big Eight Review."
Association Introduces
Two Supplemental
Insurance Programs

As the alumni group term life insurance program was so well received last year by SIU-C alumni, the Alumni Association is introducing two new supplemental insurance programs.

The two programs, accidental death and dismemberment and in hospital indemnity programs, are available to all SIU-C graduates, former students and their families.

The accidental death and dismemberment program is available to all those under 75 years old with no health information required and offers coverage from $25,000 to $250,000 for the insured; from $10,000 to $100,000 for a spouse and from $2,500 to $35,000 for each child. This supplemental policy pays the insured directly. There are four plans available.

If you are interested in more information, please send your request to the SIU-C Alumni Association, Faner Hall, Carbondale, Ill. 62901. Information may still be obtained concerning the group term life insurance.

These specifically designed programs represent our continuing effort to provide tangible means of service to all SIU-C graduates and former students.

The Association is pleased to add the option of this to a long list of services to alumni.
