Anderson named Great Teacher

Marcia A. Anderson, associate professor of business education in the department of vocational education at SIUC, has been named this year's winner of the Great Teacher Award presented by the Alumni Association. Her selection was announced Oct. 24 at the annual Alumni Recognition Luncheon in the Student Center ballrooms held in conjunction with SIUC's Homecoming. The Great Teacher Award is given annually to honor classroom teaching excellence. The winner is selected by members of the SIUC Alumni Association. Ms. Anderson received $1,000 cash award and an engraved plaque.

"I am so pleased and so surprised," Ms. Anderson said. "Teaching has been a joy, an inspiration, a form of service, and so rewarding." Ms. Anderson received $1,000 cash award and an engraved plaque.

Ms. Anderson is the fourth woman to win the Great Teacher award. The other female recipients include: Georgia Winn (1963), Dorothy Davies (1968) and Anna Carol Pulte Khattab (1972).

Marcia Anderson of secretarial and office specialties at SIUC's School of Technical Careers. She was the program coordinator of the business education program from 1975 to 1981, holding the current academic rank this year.

Also, she has taught business in high schools in Lincoln and Stromsburg, Neb.

She earned her bachelor's degree from Midland Lutheran College in Fremont, Neb., her master's degree from the University of Nebraska and her Ph.D. in education from SIUC in 1975.

In 1983-84, Ms. Anderson was cited as an "Outstanding Teacher" by the Illinois Vocational Association and named as the "Outstanding Teacher" in the SIUC Department of Vocational Education in 1986. She earned the Distinguished Service and Teaching award in 1979 presented by the Illinois Business Education Association. She is listed in "World Who's Who of Women in Education" and "International Who's Who in Education."

Ms. Anderson is the co-author of three books and contributed numerous articles to professional journals.

She has served as secretary of the National Association of Business Education; secretary of the Illinois Vocational Association and president of the Illinois Business Teacher Educators Council.

In the past, the Alumni Association in cooperation with Development and Services has carried out about 16 telefunds each year in Illinois club areas and perhaps one or two outside the state, he said.

"While we have no specific goal in mind, we do hope to surpass the amount raised in previous telefunds," Garavalia said.

The phone bank plans have not yet been finalized, but there is hope that it will be on campus operation and will use students to do the calling from 3:00 p.m. until 11:00 p.m. daily for some period of time.

"We hope to make higher education a priority in developing mindpower," Garavalia said.

Invest in Mindpower

Like all other segments of our society, educational institutions are faced with problems that emanate from the condition of our economy. To combat these financial restraints, the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) has initiated a national year-long communications campaign to enlighten the public about these problems.

"America's Energy is Mindpower" is the theme of the campaign, which will focus on the recognition of education's role in the modern world. The campaign will encourage SIUC friends who make annual money gifts to increase their giving priority in developing mindpower, Garavalia said.

Finally, an individual can leave money to the University through his or her will. State universities have always required the Prior to the 1960s, federal income tax laws permitted only the charitable contributions of corporations to be deductible against income. In 1960, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) changed the laws to encourage giving to higher education institutions. The change was made by amending the federal income tax laws to permit the deductibility of corporate charitable contributions.

"We hope to make higher education a priority in developing mindpower," Garavalia said.

The turn-out itself evidences widespread student interest in an issue that affects the entire University community. The margin affirms a consensus that SIUC's athletic programs should be maintained at the level of support they now enjoy," said Rogers.

The current $30 fee was established as a temporary measure in December, 1979, to help cover an expected deficit in that year's intercollegiate athletic budget. The University's board of trustees voted last year to continue the fee at its current level instead of returning it to the earlier $20 figure.

Student fees contribute about $1.2 million to the current $2.6 million annual intercollegiate athletics budget.

The referendum ballot explained that a return to the lower fee would force a $450,000 cutback in funding for SIUC's 12 men's and 10 women's intercollegiate sports programs.

"It appears obvious that a lot of people are very dedicated to seeing that the University continues a quality and highly diverse athletics program," said Rogers, who has a degree in business administration. "The support our students have shown through this referendum should help our community efforts to raise funds for the athletics program," said Swinburne.

Todd Rogers, president of the Undergraduate Student Organization (USO), which coordinated the referendum, said the record turnout is a good indicator of the strength of student backing of the University's athletics program.

"The turnout itself evidences widespread student interest in an issue that affects the entire University community. The margin affirms a consensus that SIUC's athletic programs should be maintained at the level of support they now enjoy," said Rogers.

Miami University has in excess of 30,000 employees, who would be affected by the bond issue. Some 4,000 people attended the bond issue hearing last night at Miami University's Center for Continuing Education in Oxford, Ohio. The event was coordinated by Miami's Bond Issue Committee, which is responsible for the campaign.

Popullam elected president

The new president of the SIUC Alumni Association is steeped in Saluki tradition. His father was president of the University from 1935 to 1944, three sisters and a brother are alumni, his wife and two of his six children attended SIUC.

After raising her family, his mother, Mabel Pulliam Sattgast, finished a degree from SIUC in 1947 and served as a board of director of the Alumni Association for two terms, from 1951 to 1958.

A second-generation Saluki fan, Robert (Bob) Pulliam of Fairfax, Va., was elected 1981-82 president of the Association at the Legislative Council meeting during Homecoming festivities Oct. 24.

A native of Makanda, Pulliam was the first child of Roseau Pulliam, the sixth president of Southern Illinois Normal University.

Prior to coming to Carbondale, the family lived in Staunton and Harrisburg before the elder Pulliam accepted the SIU presidency shortly after the death of Henry W. Shryock.

From 1951 until 1970 Pulliam served as cryptanalyst specializing in Russian for the U.S. Air Force. At retirement, IL Col. Pulliam was director of research for the Defense Language Institute in Washington, D.C.

In 1970 he earned his Ph.D. from The Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. and since then has worked as an engineering psychologist for Bion-Technology Inc.

During his presidential term, Pulliam hopes to increase alumni membership and establish a stronger economic base for the Association to help it cope with inflation. Secondly, he wants to give SIUC alumni of support for the good of higher education.

Pulliam and his wife have six children. They are Nancy Weitz of International Falls, Minn.; Mary Garlick of Los Angeles, Calif.; Ann Johnson of Clinton, Md.; Janet Read of Annapolis, Md.; and Robert and Jonathon at home.

New Alumni board of directors named

Three incumbents and two newcomers were elected to serve four-year terms as members of the Alumni Association board of directors Oct. 24 at the Legislative Council meeting held annually at Homecoming.

Incumbents elected for their second four-year terms are Grant Henry, '69, M.S., '70, of East Moline; Patricia Cook Hun­saker, '57, of Belleville; and Sally G. Moyers, ex '47, of Puducah.

Henry is chief of education administration for the Illinois Department of Correc­tions in Moline. Mrs. Hunsaker is coordi­nator of English as a second language at Belleville Area College and is the owner of Ohio Valley Aviation Service in Puducah.

Newcomers are W. A. Butts, A.M., '62, Ph.D., '68, of Frankfurt, Ky.; president of Kentucky State University and a 1980 SIUC Alumni Achievement Award recip­ient, and Larry R. DeJarnett, '52, M.S., '63, of Rancho Palos Verde, Calif., vice pres­i­dent of Lear Siegler Inc. of Santa Monica, Calif.

In addition, the Board of Directors selected five officers to oversee Alumni Association activities for 1981-82. The newly-elected officers are Robert Pulliam, president; Mrs. Hunsaker, president-elect; Harold R. Kuehn, '51, of DuQuoin, vice president; W. Ray Mofield, Ph.D., '64, of Hardin, Ky., vice president; JoAnn Jungers, '52, of Alton, secretary and treasurer; Bradley Bowen, '76, of Crawfordsville, treasurer.

Mrs. Hunsaker will become the first woman president of the Association in 65 years. Three other women have served as president.

Mofield, a professor of radio and televi­sion at Murray State University, served on the radio-television faculty at SIUC from 1959 to 1964. He was Kentucky Communications Teacher of the Year in 1977 and received the International Radio-TV Society Teacher Award in 1977, 1978 and 1979. He has served as director and president of the Murray State University Alumni Association.

Mrs. Jungers, who has been the Associ­ation's Secretary since 1973, is a vocal music teacher in the Alton elementary school system.

Bowen is the assistant director of SIUC Development and Services. He is married and has two daughters.

Two directors' terms expired at Home­coming, those of Patrick Mudd, '55, M.S., '66, of DePauw, and Eugene Paxton, ex '38, of Chicago. Both were ineligible to run again, as they had served two consecutive four-year terms. Mudd was the Association's president last year. He has been chairperson of the Alumni Association's awards committee since 1970 and chaired the Homecoming committee from 1973 to 1975. In addition, he was the president and vice president of the St. Clair Alumni Club. He is the super­intendent of schools in DePauw.

Paxton was formerly employed by the U.S. Office of Health, Education and Wel­fare, served as the Association's secretary in 1973-74 and has been chairperson of the membership-retention committee and co-chairperson of Homecoming. Also, he was SIUC Community Ambassador for Chicago in 1978 and is former treasurer of the Chicago Alumni Club.

Alumni Officers

Alumni Association legislative council officers selected at the Homecoming meeting were (1-7): W. A. Butts, new board member; Bradley R. Bowen, treasurer; W. Ray Mofield, vice presi­dent; Pat Cook Hunsaker, president, elect; Robert Pulliam, president; JoAnn Cunningham Jungers, secretary; Harold Kuehn, vice president; and Sally Moyers, board members. Not shown is Larry DeJarnett and Grant Henry, board members.

Jackson Co. Fish Fry

The fish was delicious. The company was even better. About 250 Jackson County SIUC alumni turned out Sept. 19 after a Saluki football game in Ever­green Park, south of the Arena to wel­come new coaches and generate some of that good old school spirit.

One of the most enjoyable aspects of being associated with intercollegiate athletics is knowing there are many friends throughout the United States with common interests—in this case, a unknown friend.

Our comments in the September Alumnus about updating the Henry Hinkley Award resulted in several notes. We must share one of them with you:

"There are probably only a few people left at SIU who know why the Henry Hinkley Award was established. Henry Anson Hinkley was one of my closest friends and I would like to share these comments concerning him.

"Henry was a strawberry blond from Alma, Ill. His friends called him, 'Red.' Henry attended and graduated from Salem High School where he was an outstanding athlete in football, basketball and track. At 5-11 and 155 pounds, 'Red' was small for football, but he had blazing speed and was a fine running back.

"I was a sophomore and Henry was a freshman when we met in 1941. Both of us were new members of a newly formed fraternity, Nu Epilon Alpha. The next year we became roommates.

"Henry was an honor student, a sophomore representative to the student council, and a letterman in football, basketball and track. More importantly, he was one of the most outstanding individuals I have ever known.

"In 1941, of course, World War II began. Henry decided to stay in school and continue his education until drafted. In March, 1943, he was drafted into the Army, received his basic training in the States, then was immediately sent to Australia.

"I entered the Army in April, 1943, and Henry and I exchanged a few letters before received word from his family that he had been killed by machine gun fire during the invasion of Ieak. This happened during the fall of 1943.

"I returned from the Pacific in August, 1946, and re-entered SIU that fall. Prior to my return the members of Nu Epilon Alpha had decided already to honor Henry...and to perpetuate his memory by recognizing the outstanding student athlete each year through presentation of the Henry Hinkley Award.

"Henry's friends will be delighted to hear of the revival of the Hinkley Award. However, I hope those who receive the award in the future, and the entire athlete whose name the award bears.

Very truly yours,
Marvin Gerlach
Superintendent
Lincolnwood School District
Lincolnwood, Ill. 60645

They will now, Marvin, and thank you for enlightening me and thousands of others through the Alumnus.

Gridders could win MVC Championship

"We're 5-3 after the first eight games and are in total control of our own destiny, you can't ask for anything more," said SIUC football coach Rey Dempsey after his 1981 Salukis recorded their fifth straight win of the season, 41-0 over Southwestern Louisiana.

The "destiny" Dempsey was referring to is the 1981 Missouri Valley Conference championship and, just as he said, the Salukis are in complete control of the eventual outcome.

With three weeks—and three games against MVC opponents—remaining, the Salukis occupied the number two position in league standings with a 3-1 record.

Recapping the Saluki gridders' record at that point and the Salukis were slated to host the Bulldogs in what many were describing as one of the most important games to be played in McAndrew Stadium in many years.

The date Saturday, Nov. 7.

In addition to meeting Drake head-on, the Salukis have one other distinct advantage in that they are playing seven conference games this season as compared to the Bulldogs' six. With the champion determined by the best winning percentage, the Salukis obviously are in a position to claim the title with a 6-1 mark (457) over Drake's possible 5-1 record (455).

The Salukis were to tangle with tough Indiana State at Terre Haute first. A failure there would eliminate all the what-ifs and maybes.

That's what Tules, West Texas State and even Indiana State were hoping for. All three, in addition to Drake and the Salukis, had a shot at the MVC title.

In addition, the Saluki gridders' record, SIUC lost to McNeese State, 12-27; Wichita State, 7-13, and Tennessee State 4-17 before being victorious over Tules 36-34; Illinois State 14-3; West Texas State 25-22; Fresno State 24-28 and Southwestern Louisiana 23-21.

The Salukis wind up the season Nov. 14 against New Mexico State at Las Cruces.

Women cagers want to better last year's record

Coach Cindy Scott would like to reverse last season's dismal 14-18 slate and capture the inaugural Missouri Valley Conference basketball title for women cagers.

In her fifth season with the Salukis, Scott is optimistic—even as SIUC faces its most demanding schedule in history. With a 14-player roster that includes nine underclassmen, she's faced with early-season challenges from Indiana, Northwestern and UCLA. In addition to meeting Drake head-on, the Salukis have one other distinct advantage in that they are playing seven conference games this season as compared to the Bulldogs' six. With the champion determined by the best winning percentage, the Salukis obviously are in a position to claim the title with a 6-1 mark (457) over Drake's possible 5-1 record (455).

Hall of Famers

Football great Amos Bullocks, track standouts Phil Coleman and Terry Erickson and former football player, coach and longtime faculty member William Freeburg were inducted in the SIU Hall of Fame Sept. 12. The quartet of former SIUC athletes joined 58 others inducted during the first three years of the Hall of Fame's existence. Proudly displaying their plaques which were placed in the Hall of Fame in the Student Center are (l-r) Erickson, Bullocks and Freeburg. Coleman did not attend.

Also received a note from Hall-of-Famer Wilbur Valentine of Vineville, Ill. (3418 Old Birchtree Road, 47991). He apologized for not being able to be with his former alumni lettermen following this year's Homecoming game due to his poor health. Nevertheless, he promised to be thinking about all of his friends and rooting for the Salukis.

Another Hall-of-Famer, Bill Townes, did quite a number for SIUC alumni in the California area when the Salukis visited Fresno recently. Bill, assisted by the Alumni Association office, put together a pre-game breakfast and game reception which actually amounted to a victory celebration following the Salukis' well-earned 24-18 win over Fresno State. The appreciation was genuine from the Salukis on the field, who were startled by the cheering...

And speaking of the trip to the West Coast, every SIUC alum anywhere would be proud of the manner Coach Ray Dempsey's squad conducted themselves at all times—on the plane, in restaurants, at motels. The trip, longest I can recall a Saluki football team made since the four-day rides to Ohio and back, had both enjoyable and somewhat uncomfortable moments. But at each of the three motels where the teams stayed, management said, "This is the nicest team any of you ever had to stay with..." Makes you feel good, and proud.

Elmer Clark heads service office

A former dean of SIUC's College of Education has been named director of the University's new Office of Regional Research and Service.

Elmer J. Clark, a professor in SIUC's department of educational leadership, was named to the new post Sept. 1 by SIUC President Albert Somit.

Clark, who stepped down Aug. 15 after 17 years as dean of the University's College of Education, will take over his new duties as head of SIUC's revitalized service operation Sept. 15.

Establishment of the new service office had been among major recommendations of a 20-member campus-wide task force which spent three months earlier this year studying the role of regional service in the University's operations. Clark chaired that task force.

The group had recommended—among other items—that SIUC set up a central office to oversee the University's efforts at service to the region. The task force noted that although service projects being carried out by individual University faculty members are now "more extensive than at any time in the history of the institution," organized service by SIUC departments has declined since 1970.

Clark said he's looking forward to his new post as head of the service and research office and plans to attack the job "with vigor."

"We've been talking a great deal about this idea, but we need an agency which will give service a focal point in the University," he said. He said he sees the new office as a clearinghouse and organizer of service projects by SIUC faculty and staff, and also as a place where people from outside the University can come to get help.

The research and service office will be located in SIUC's Anthony Hall.

Somit announced the establishment of the new office in July, and said it would concentrate on "the single most important need of this area—economic development," although he said the University also probably will try to play a larger role in bringing the arts to Southern Illinois communities and will strengthen its ties to local governments.

A native of Wixom, Mich., the 60-year-old Clark was dean of SIUC's College of Education from 1964 to 1981. He's a three-degree graduate of the University of Michigan, and when he retired, he was the campus's senior dean in terms of length of service.

He's been honored by the Educational Council of 100, a group of Southern Illinois supporters of higher education, and by the Marycrest (Iowa) College board of trustees for service to education. He's also been recognized by the board of trustees of Indiana University.

He and his wife, Grace, live in Anna. She is an English teacher at Anne-Jonesboro Community High School.

The Edmund O'Connors, a Wilmington couple, received a belated 30th wedding anniversary gift Oct. 3 from one of their nine children when they reigned as "Parents of the Day" at SIUC's annual Parents' Day festivities. Their son, Martin, a senior in STC's automotive technology program, said he'd been too busy with back-to-school preparations to do a proper job of recognizing his parents' anniversary in August so he nominated his parents for the Parents' Day honor. Pictured are (I-r): Tracy Boggs, an SIUC hostess; Martin O'Connor; his parents, Angela and Edmund O'Connor; a brother, Charles; SIUC President Albert Somit and Kevin Molidor, chairman of Special Events of Student Activities.
