University Council Plans Summer Session Study

Committee Will Look Into 'Side Effects'

A study of "side effects" resulting from an 11 or 12-week summer session at SIU is planned for late summer and early fall. The University Council's concern over possible side effects of an extended term was outlined at a recent meeting of the Faculty Councils of Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses.

Charles D. Tenney, vice president for instruction, told a decision to establish a committee to conduct an intensive study of the implications of such sessions.

The membership will include a chairman selected by the University Council and two other members from the Faculty Councils. Dr. McDaniel, professor of mathematics at Carbondale, and Paul G. Merriam, associate professor in the Humanities Division at Edwardsville, have been appointed as the Faculty Councils representatives. The chairman has not yet been selected.

The committee will be expected to make its report early in the fall. Vice President Tenney said this will require the committee to continue its work through August. He asked considerations given to this requirement in selection of the council's members.

Members of the councils also discussed eligibility for voting for members of the council. The decided eligibility would be defined as each University Faculty Council member as set out in the Statutes.

The councils also decided composition of ex-officio membership of the Faculty Councils. They will consist of the president of the University, the chief officer of the University, and the chief officers of instruction for both campuses.

2 Ag Faculty To Be Judges At State Fair

Irvin Hillyer and H.W. Miller, assistant professor of vegetable industries and animal industries, respectively, have been invited to judge Illinois State Fair. Hillyer, a vegetable specialist, will judge the Fairs vegetable exhibits Aug. 5. Miller, a vegetable specialist, will judge the Fairs vegetable exhibits Aug. 8. They will be his fourth year as an exhibitor. A native of Thief River, Minn., with a doctorate in horticulture from Michigan State University, he has been on the SIU faculty since 1956.

Miller, who joined the School of Agriculture faculty in 1961 as a livestock specialist, will judge the Junior Sheep Show on Aug. 15. He will also help with the state 4-H livestock judging contests Aug. 14.

SIU Board Told Campus Of Future To Have An Airy Look

Possibilities of how Southern Illinois University could be developed in the next five to 15 years were presented to the Board of Trustees Tuesday.

Proposals were described as "only an exploration of possibilities" by Charles M. Brubaker of the firm of Perkins & Will. He outlined these among ideas in long-range consideration.

Two future footbridges over Illinois Avenue, on near Grand Avenue, the other near University Park. These would also bridge the railroad tracks.

Completion of the Campus Loop Drive, with a long-range study of another outer drive beyond this circle.

Closing of Grand Avenue and in its treelined remains, "an excellent place for a building!"

In the longer range, a new football stadium southwest of the SIU Arena.

President Deyley W. Morris, introducing Brubaker to the board, told of past annual upgrading and development in detail of the University master plan. The Perkins & Will study, he said, is an "extension in depth" of the continuing study which involves backing off and taking a new look at the plan in its entirety.

A "mock-up" on the scale of one inch to 200 feet was on the trustees' table, and Brubaker used small building models to illustrate possible placement of future structures. He pointed out central features of unity in the campus, such as Thompson Woods, Lake-on-the-Campus, meadows, and Morris Library.

What Brubaker called a "fantastic diversity" of buildings on campus could be either an asset or a liability, but he considered this an asset at SIU. He cited Harvard University as an example of diversification, but what ties this together into a unity is space between buildings as re-presented in gardens and yards. Woods, lake and meadows serve this function at SIU, he told the trustees.

Future buildings at SIU should concentrate on large open spaces between them, he said. "You have something established here," he declared. He called Thompson Woods the "umbrella area", cementing theme of this type, and a focal point in the com-munity. He also cited Barrett Park, site of the Campus Loop Drive.

Brubaker discussed the sta-tus and its long-range status. SIU will outgrow it, he predicted, and the site (Continued on Page 7)
Phonograph records have a high casualty rate at Morris Library these days, but by now the library is used to it. Besides the normal incidents of loss, breakage, and scratching, there's a new method for damaging records which might be called "bring'em back burnin'".

"One poor fellow," said Grace Kite, assistant librarian, "brought a record back the other day still smoking. Evidently he had dropped a cigarette but into the bag." A more common method is to leave records stacked in hot locked cars. Records are made of plastic.

Logically enough, the records damaged most are the records that are used most—the popular records, such as recordings of Broadway musicals, but these records are, in fact, only a very small portion of the library's total collection.

Altogether, Morris Library has 4,400 records for student use. Most of the records are of classical or semi-classical music—although other types of music are included—but there are also significant recordings of plays and operas.

The library also buys "good jazz," especially records significant in the history of jazz, as Miss Kite said. Although damage is high, the library nevertheless believes in keeping its records circulating, and prides itself on the perfect condition of its records, but in the libraries the students cannot take the records from the library. Also, the students have someone who comes in to make sure the records are returned.

When you've found the call number, the record you want, a librarian will get the record for you if it is available. You may then either listen to it in the library, on a headphone set or check it out at the main circulation desk and take it home.

A maximum of six records can be checked out at one time, and all records may be borrowed for only one week. Records that are somewhat disappointed, however, to learn that all the library's recordings are 33 rpm monaural.

Axtelle To Publish Dewey’s Total Works

An undertaking to compile and publish all of Dewey’s published works is next to an impossible task, yet that is what George Axtelle has been doing since he retired from New York University in 1959.

Assisted by Mrs. Joann Boydston, Axtelle has collected and published all of Dewey’s that has been published “except maybe a half dozen that have not been located.”

No unpublished manuscripts or letters of Dewey’s is to be included in the work.

The material will be organized in categories including critical and historical essays, education, ethics, general philosophy, law and social philosophy, psychology, and religion, in each category the works will be organized in the order they were written, Professor of Educational Administration and Supervision, Axtelle expects to publish two or three volumes a year. The manuscript for the first volume on philosophy volume-increase since 1951, when Axtelle laid end-to-end, they would be organized in the order they were written. When I retired, I thought I would like to develop a correspondence of Dewey’s works, Axtelle said. “That is, dictionary of terms as Dewey used them and the development of the change in usage.”

“Six or seven years ago when I retired, I thought I would like to develop a correspondence of Dewey’s works,” Axtelle said.

“That is, dictionary of terms as Dewey used them and the development of the change in usage.”

“It seemed like such a voluminous work we decided to do the whole thing,” he added.

To Axtelle, the perfect retirement because this is what he has always wanted to do.

“He thinks he should be playing the piano for life, but he enjoys it so much, that he will do a whole lot of Dewey’s total works is expected to be ready by September.

Dewey’s publishing career of 70 years was still writing when he was 93 years old. “My interest in this is that Dewey was ahead of his time and the next generation will find him more interesting than he does,” Axtelle said. “I want to make all his works available to the public.”

The University of Illinois is cooperating in the project by allowing Joe Burnett, professor of education, to devote one third of his time to the Dewey project.

The rest of the advisory committee for the project is composed of Willis Moore, department of philosophy and chairman of the committee; Vice presidents John E. Greenell and Charles Tenney; Ralph McCoy, library director; John Anderson, coordinator of research; Vernon Sternberg, director of the University Press; Dean Arthur Lane of the College of Education; William J. McKeever, dean of academic affairs.

A Record:
19 To Get Ph.D’s At Commencement

Nineteen persons—a record for a single graduation, and 19 students have been appointed as assistant professor of philosophy degree at the University of Illinois commencement, Aug. 9.

Included is a wife whose husband received doctorate in psychology only two months ago, at Southern’s June Commencement. She is Don J. Zosse, scheduled to receive a Ph.D. in psychology, with a baseband, George Jossie, is a clinical psychologist at Anna (Ill) State Hospital.

The two met on campus when both were graduate students a few years ago. They reside in Makanda Township south of Carbondale, Ill., and Cape Girardeau, Mo., has been in the SIU Guidance Department since 1956 and her husband was a graduate student here who did his internal work at the hospital in Anna. He is from Minneapolis. Her plans are indefinite.

Candidates and their plans are:

Herschel Edward Ainslie, sociology, who will join the staff of the University of Florida, Tampa.

Stephen A. Thomas, history, government and history at Texas College, Tyler, Texas.

Jean Lee Williams, education, to be assistant professor of elementary education at the University of Connecticut.

Donald V. Strong, educational administration, to be assistant professor of educational administration at the University of Illinois.

Harry Seymour Jr., elementary education, to be assistant professor of elementary education at State Teachers College.

Harold Smith, childhood education, to continue with his work at the State Library in Carbondale.

E. Neal Claassen, speech, to leave his present position as scientist with the Missouri State University, Springfield.

Other speakers who will take part in the workshop are executives from the Globe-Democrat, wire service representatives, an educational officer from the United States Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, a wife whose husband received a doctorate in philosophy degree at the University of Illinois commencement, Aug. 9.

Southern Post Office Handles Miles Of Mail Each Year

If all the letters, cards and packages and inter-office correspondence which passes through the Southern Illinois University Post Office were laid end-to-end, they would reach from the state capital to Cleveland, Ohio.

That’s the estimate of Mrs. Katherine McCullie, mail service supervisor, who has watched the post office volume-increase since 1951, require an expansion of the work force from two regular employees and a student helper to today’s three full-time workers, a temporary helper and 30 students.

Approximately 3 million pieces of correspondence—regular mail, inter-office—flow through the post office, which in effect is more of a message center than a regular post office. Only some 300,000 pieces were handled in 1951.

The major increase in student workers at the post office came about 1955 when on-campus delivery was begun, "The decision to deliver the mail caught us by surprise. We had to borrow mailbags from a local bank and cardboard post offices because we didn’t have time to buy them," she said.

The mail service is operated much like a regular post office. Students are able to buy stamps, insure and mail packages and registered letters. However, service does not include money orders, cash COD packages.

The SIU office is more or less a branch of the Carbondale office, Post office officials in town estimate that SIU receipts account for about 35 per cent of their annual volume.

In 1951, the mail service on campus did $900 monthly in postage and metered stamps. Today the service sells $250 daily in stamps and envelopes.

Another indication of the rapid growth of the mail service is found in a set of weight figures kept by the university. The mail handled on campus increased from 7,200 pounds in November, 1961, it weighed 7,000 pounds, and last November the total was 10,570 pounds.

All these figures and comparisons might indicate that postal work is routine and for the most part does not require the services of a dog which was supposed to be sent to the state Health Department.

A silly idea that the university library was going to get a dog to help in the mail handling. The dog was actually a dog, which became a mess of a dog which was supposed to be sent to the state Health Department.

Hodge Scandal Failed To Bring Moral Or Political Awakening

Reviewed by William O. Winter, Assoc. Prof. Of Government

Thiem was intrigued. He decided to get out of Spring­field and the problems of: 1) the state auditor's office; 2) the State Auditors. He was not interested in the politics that involved these issues.

In conclusion, Thiem believed that Hodge was a failure as a politician. He did not have the qualities necessary to be a successful politician. He was more interested in his personal life and did not have the skills necessary to be a politician.

Huang T'eh Related Old and New Elements In Art of The Chinese

This little book with a translation of Huang Yeu's Twenty-four Qualities of a Great Man, a classic Chinese art essay, is an essential work for anyone interested in Chinese art. It is also an important resource for students of Chinese art history.

Miss Tseng Yu-ho's selection, including paintings, bam­boos, flowers, and birds, was made to illustrate two different trends in Chinese art: 1) the traditional trend, which is reflected in the works of the Wei, Sung, and Yuan dynasties, and 2) the modern trend, which is characterized by the use of modern materials and techniques.

The selection is not very representative of the entire field of Chinese contemporary art. However, it is an important resource for anyone interested in Chinese art.

Hodge Scandal Failed To Bring Moral Or Political Awakening

Abroad a remarkable tragedy for the history of Illinois in the fall of 1952 was a handsome woman from Chicago who visited the Drake Hotel for a dinner companion's view of the Hodge scandal. He was once a vice man, "generous to a fault, very human," the man who attended me at the Drake Hotel. There were two orchids, a hybrid of "d'ouieres", an open bar, and orchids for the women. I was not interested in his story.

"It's hard to think of him now as a convict."

Both the picture of Orville Hodge, why was the picture as well as her reaction to the doctors who tried to be nasty, as the state were typical of the views held by Illinois citizens during inves­tigation of the scandal. The public at large had already stereotyped him as a weirdo with a lot of money who might lose it all.

Public reaction to Hodge's exposure and indignation was one of the most important factors in his downfall. How could a man of such wealth and good nature get involved in a scandal like this? How could such a politician ever be trusted again?

Such questions were the ones being asked. Practical ques­tions about the future of Hodge and Illinois seemed to occupy the public mind.

The drama of the Hodge af­fair possibly obscured the more important story. There was a whole new political machine.
Bobbi Is Anxiously - Awaiting Openning Toss

Harry Bobbitt, one of SIU’s three captains for the 1963 football season, is as anxious as a cat on a hot tin roof for the season to start.

An interview participant in a recent interview. He was taken to work at Little Grassy camp.

"I lost about 14 pounds when work," he said, "but I now have gained most of them back.

Bobbitt is expected to be in the Salukis starting backfield when play opens Sept. 21 at Evansville. He will be running from the "flanker back position.

He described the flanker back position in the following manner:

"The half back may be in tight, in the back as backs," he said, "or he may be out wide to the outside, or even inside the ends. A third variation is to send the halfback out.

Carmen Picone, SIU head coach, changed his offense scheme for spring practice in an effort to open up his runners. In the past the Salukis had been a running team but figure to put the football in the air more this fall.

"We are going to have an interesting team next fall," Bobbitt said. "The players that I talked to said they have interesting and ready to go. We are going to have an exciting team for the fans who have not followed us from ponentes during the season."

"Opponents must loosen the reins of their defense not only to cover our passing attack," he said, "or we will pass them to death."

"If they do loosen their defense then our running attack must have a chance to get away to trouble, he added.

"All in all it figures to be a very exciting season. We have players covering two types of offenses and we hope to be open. It will be our job to find the weakness," he concluded.

Bobbitt’s move to halfback last fall was a direct result of the offense change since coming to Southern after discharge from the armed forces.

‘Music Man’ Has Its Problems, But Will Make The Schedule

Anybody from Iowa would naturally seem to have the inside track on producing Meredith Willson’s musical, “The Music Man,” which takes place in Mason City, Iowa.

And it just so happens that there are three members from that area who are going to stage the SIU Summer Opera Workshop’s version of the hit musical.

The musical director, William Taylor, not only hails from his native state, but several of Wilson’s songs with the writer on radio, Paul Hibbard, and lyricist, Loren Cocking, film production of the musical, both members, are Iowans too.

Even with talent around with first-hand knowledge of the music, you will have to wait until the show ready for its opening Friday night. rehearsal has been anything but a breeze.

One member of the cast was recently canned by the hospital, But Margaret McCoy, once ailing, will be on hand for the rehearsal. The rest of the cast is already as tight as a drum.

Tests Show Red's Used Captured US Guns to Kill GI's

President Kennedy's equal opportunities executive order faces the prospect of a court test. The United Federation of Postal Clerks said it would go to federal court in an effort to have the U.S. Civil Service Department to follow its merit promotion plan rather than the President's equal opportunities program.

The action came after the department bypassed 53 white Dallas postal employees on the merit list in promotion to Negroes to supervisors. After the promotion last June, the clerks filed a complaint with the Civil Service Commission, which upheld the promotions.

Hospital Care Costs Doubled In Decade; Rise To Continue

Hospital costs are averaging higher than a decade ago and the rise in expense is expected to continue.

That was the word Wednesday from the American Hospital Association, which conducted an survey of 307 hospitals.

The AHA said the average patient's daily expense rose from $15.25 to $68.83 in the last 10 years the total expense of an average stay in the hospital nearly more than tripled from $184 to $527.

The figures are based on non-federal, short-term general hospitals which admit patients with all types of illnesses or injuries. The costs are those met by the hospitals and in some cases slightly exceed the charges made to patients, the AHA said.

The report said steadily rising labor costs were the major cause of increased expenses. Some 1,762,957 persons were employed short-term hospitals last year, $6,825 more than during the previous year.

For each 100 patients in a short-term general hospital, 237 employees were required. "New services and equipment that didn't exist 10 years ago also have accounted for the rise," said Dr. Winfield A. Crosby, association director.

"As hospitals become vastly more complex, they need more and more personnel to care for patients. It is expected expenses will continue to rise."
