The Junior High School intends to experiment with a device for raising the level of English composition work that has proved successful in many other places. The minimum essentials printed below will be given to the pupils who will understand that failure to conform with any two of the fourteen points will cause a mark of conditional failure to be given them. The presence of seventysix among a pupil's marks in the class register causes a perceptible drop in his term grade.

Points thirteen and fourteen have to do with the use of punctuation and capital letters. Since none of the texts used in the second edition summaries of their functions it seemed only fair to give the children these laws in a concise, usable form. This codification is based upon the best grammar authorities and is simplified for Junior High School pupils.

It may be noticed that all of the fourteen points have to do with form and not with content. The main argument against the rigid use of minimum essentials is based upon the fact that it is said that students will write in so sinnerly and careless a fashion because of their fear of the rules that the resulting composition will lack all naturalness and spontaneity. To be sure, the first few themes may show these very results but as the pupils become more masterful in their handling of technique they will soon be tuning the rules of expression. True freedom of expression requires control of the tools of expression.

The minimum essentials, to be of value, must be rigidly enforced. At first there will occur disappointments among the pupils, it is expected, however, that the plan will bring excellent results.

Minimum Essentials for Composition

J. H. S.—November 1921

If a composition falls in any two of the following points it is marked T.G.

1. Point must not be followed on a blank line.
2. Writing must be on one side of paper only.
3. Only black or blue ink may be used.
4. There must be no blots, smears, tears, etc.

Socrates Are Entertained by the Zetets

Last Friday night after the usual Socrates program we had a business meeting, and after the business was dispensed with, our president, Harley Mowrey, announced that the Zetets wished us to come to their hall for a visit. This was indeed a great surprise to most of us, although we had noticed out in the hall a couple of suspicious looking articles filled with appetizing goodies. So with a lot of enthusiasm we proceeded to the Zetetic hall, where we were royally greeted.

Lucille Coulter, the Zetetic president, gave the visitors a hearty welcome and then called the Socratic president to preside at parliamentary practice. Strange, indeed, were the brilliant remarks given. It was really queer, how many different items were displayed, for though many made an earnest plea to have the windows closed, others were determined that the fans should be turned on. While we were in the midst of such an argument, the doors opened and in came a number of Zetets with MATS. Oh boy! those sandwiches and apples! They certainly made a strong appeal to all in spite of the late hour. The Socrates, wishing to give some demonstration of their appreciation, gave their sister society fifteen big "tales." The entertainment continued and Harriet Marvin and Ellis Smith proved themselves capable of accomplishing great deeds by collecting all the apple cores.

The Socrates certainly appreciate his entertainment given them by the Zetets. We owe much to Miss Coulter.

Books of Yesterday and the Day Before

"Cold Mutton," by F. Salt or Leavitt. Not an advertisement, by Amour, it's too Swift for that—a hungry note in every line.

"What to Do and Where to Do It," by All Cane. Everybody should give his father this book—it's a scream.

"A Little of Heaven or He Didn't Mean It." A book every wife should read. Also those contemplating matrimony.

Last Friday evening the Socratic Society housed a record breaking attendance, the largest attendance in its history. It was estimated that about five hundred enjoyed the program given by the society.

Every Friday evening the society prepares a well balanced program for your entertainment. Why not come out and enjoy this program with us? When you come to our meetings, you will not regret it and naturally will enjoy our programs.

The society appreciates your presence. Let's see you at our next meeting. What do you say?

Before and After

When his last class was over Wednesday, November 26, he gave a mighty sigh of relief and made a grand rush to his room, where he proceeded to pack his final belongings. After strapping up his suitcase for at least the third time he reopened it to jam in a bunch of forgotten handkerchiefs, badly in need of laundering. There was his toothbrush, too, but lack of room forced him to slip it in his pocket. The last step before leaving the place which had been his studious and solitary retreat for the past ten weeks was to draw the curtain tightly over the shelves of text books. At last aboard the train for home, oh, the thrills that came when the plans of what he should do, where he should go, who he should see and what he should eat ran through his head as the train whirled him to his destination. The whole family were—at the train to meet him. Never before had he fully realized his importance.

And this is the rest of the story:
Thursday he ate,
Friday he slept,
Saturday he prepared to come back.
Sunday he came.
Monday he went to class and was duly reminded that "Vacation was over."

By Wednesday he realized
That all things are with more spirit "Chased than enjoyed," including the Thanksgiving vacation.

Peculiar Construction of Man

A Texas editor, while glancing over the papers, has discovered a number of cases where many good inoffensive people have been injured in various parts of the anatomy. Here are a few cases cited: While Miss Kinnsmore at East Wind, Ind., was coming down the stairs Tuesday she slipped and bruised herself on the landing. Amsel Kitlebe of Woolpool, Kansas, while barnessing a fractious horse was kicked just south of the corn crib; he is able to be about again. While Horrid Green of Palah, Miss., was escorting Miss Violet Gooch home from a church social Saturday night a savage dog set upon them and bit Miss Gooch four times on the public square. Joseph Tuff of Grimesville, Iowa, climbed on his house last week to find a leak and fell, striking on his back porch, causing serious injuries. Isaac Trimmer of Dolfwright, Neb., was playing with a cat Friday, when the animal severely scratched him on the veranda.

"If you see a complexion that's peaches and cream, remember things aren't always just what they seem: Just take a good look, and come out of your dream—It's Camouflage."

Y. M. C. A. Notes

Last Sunday the Y. M. C. A. cabinet of the S. I. N. U. went on its annual retreat. They chose one of the houses on the shores of Thompson's lake as their camping place. Besides the cabinet, Mr. Pence, the student secretary, the faculty advisory board, and several of the local pastors were present.

The purpose of this meeting was to discuss and in a measure solve some of the problems of the Y. M. C. A. in relation to student life on the school campus.

Every one took part in the discussion of the various phases of the day's program; as it was by this means that Mr. Pence could understand our situation more thoroughly. He gave us many valuable suggestions in regard to the solving of our problems.

The Y. M. C. A. can do a great work toward the enrichment of student life on the campus, but what we need in order to accomplish this great work is the earnest co-operation of each and every student on the campus.

Now in order to give us your cooperation come out to the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday and keep on coming. There is nothing that yields more to the success of a student than leading a true Christian life with a true Christian purpose.

Mr. Pence is going to co-operate with us in getting a speaker to come and lecture before the student body, as Mr. Gilky did last year.

Every one who went on this retreat had a most enjoyable time and went away feeling full of the sense of duty, which is certainly essential to the high purpose for which the Y. M. C. A. stands.

A Questionnaire to Mars

Hello, Mars! The earth is talking—
Do your flappers bob their hair?
Do your grandmas dance the Java?
Have you prohibition there?
One piece bathing suits, high prices.
Ladies' knickers, near jade beads.
Petting parties, jazz, new novels.
Saxophones, weird, occult creeds?
Have you fluffy female bundles?
Boohloggers and human tanks?
Romans and boomers, income taxes.
Autos that you start with cranks?
Free verse, soul mates, hunch and flourishes.
Vamps and wonderful movie stars?
Not why then you must be in heaven.
I am coming over, Mars.

You will have a chance to buy your Christmas gifts at the Y. W. C. A. bazaar. Alton Tuesday, December 2, at the Association Hall. Come and bring your friends.

CLASS SPIRIT

College is a great place to make friends. The trouble with the average student is that he doesn't make enough friends when he is in college. Every student has his own little group of intimate associates. Besides these each one has a large group of good friends. Generally, these are members of your class. You meet them often because they are in the same recitation class that you are in. Strive to know more of the members of your class. He who sits beside you in recitation class may not be so dumb as you think he is. You are missing a good deal if you gain acquaintances only in the class room.

Develop a class spirit. Know each other better. One way to do this is to have class parties, class socials, or a class affair of some kind. Some students say that they do not like to attend a school or college during the summer. They say the quality of work is just as good during the summer as during the regular school year, but there seems to be no real classification of students and there is no class spirit or class loyalty. Students like to be classified and know where they are instead of being wanderers.

One can develop class pride and still govern that feeling so that there will be no ill feeling towards other classes. Class rivalry is good, but is wrong when it results in class fights. Class fights belong to the past. They are barbarous and crude and show bad taste.

If you haven't already done so, see that your class gets together soon and has a good time. Each will know the members of his class better, and each will have a different attitude toward his class as a whole. Be a booster of your class.

THE ALMA MATER SONG

The other morning the school was practicing the Alma Mater song in chapel and—as customary, no signal was given for the school to rise. None should be given. The student who has entered into the spirit of these things here immediately jumps from his seat. However, that morning we noticed several who either through lack of intelligence or lack of will power, remained seated. If it was through ignorance, they may be taught when to stand and when to sit; if through lack of will power, their presence is not needed here in school. Loyal students take care of the slackers. If it be necessary, the lake is large and room for many. It is hoped that the next time we're singing the S. I. N. U.
song that these few people will show better spirit toward the school they are attending.

JOHNSON, VANCIL, TAYLOR CO.
First Meeting of South Illinois Historical Body

A new organization to be known as the South Illinois Historical Society was launched during the last quarter of the summer session of the S. I. N. U., held its first meeting Saturday morning in the auditorium of the Allyn building. The following program was rendered:

Invocation—Prof. S. E. Harwood, Violin Solo—Frank Smith.
President’s Address—Arthur W. Cox.
Address—“Slavery in Illinois”—Prof. Alma Bratton, Principal of Marion Township High School.

President Cox in his address presented a conception of the scope of the organization and something of the service it could render to the community and the State of Illinois. He also emphasized the fact that this end of the state laid in shaping the destiny of our commonwealth and suggested possible lines of practical work for the organization.

The music rendered by Frank Smith and Miss Alice Weaver, with Miss Ruby Robertson as accompanist gave pleasing variety to the program and the young people may congratulate themselves to have had a part in the initial program of an organization that is likely to have a large share in preserving the historic lore of our beloved “Egypt.”

The forty-minute paper of Mr. E. J. Ingersoll, on the subject of slavery in Illinois gave evidence of patient and scholarly research and will become a real contribution to that important subject in Illinois history. He traced the growth and various issues that entered into the institution of slavery from the time that Illinois was a part of the Virginia territory down to and through the civil war with especial emphasis on the attitude of Southern Illinois towards slavery.

As a member of the veterans of ’61 Colonel E. J. Ingersoll was invited to appear on the program and tell some intimate soldier war stories, but illness prevented.

At the business session it was moved that the executive committee present a brief constitution for adoption at the next meeting. Prof. S. E. Harwood was elected treasurer, and Dr. with Colonel E. J. Ingersoll and Prof. George W. Smith were elected honorary members.

The meetings are to be held each year, one at the time of the annual home-coming of the Normal and the other during the meeting of the Southern Illinois Teachers’ Association.

AGORA-ILLINAE

In past years the Illiniae has been recognized by the Agora as being right at home when it comes to entertainment, so you may be sure the Illiniae are all anxious to be entertained by the Illiniae this year, some even told them so.

But this year the Illiniae had a double motive in view; they like to entertain—but they also wanted to know what opposition the Agoras would give them in debating. The question chosen was: Resolved: That turkey and pumpkin pie should be eliminated from the Thanksgiving menu.

Frank Armentrout and Kay White being chosen by the Agora took the affirmative and Lorraine Hack and Lucile Cotter defended the negative.

Will the Illiniae be given such a decision at the Tri-Club debate?

Illiniae girls can do more than debate. Mary Krumdieck can surely give pianolesions. "Katie did," so did Mary.

Fleeting moments were spent in games of various kinds. For particulars regarding the Shakespearean Wedding, ask Victor Goings and Augusta Sumners. They both got their rings.

Last but not least: the RATS! Oh! Dumpling sandwiches! Divinity! They told us it was divinity but they didn’t need to—we realized we were on a different plane. Dates! (!) Sam Howe said he had eaten with Sylvia Chambers. I want to tell you they were all "stuffin’." What would you think of Tom Whittenberg? He preferred to have his dates alone. One of the more deliberate Agora men saw to it that their Faculty Advisor was well entertained.

The Agora heartily hopes that this occasion may be duplicated more than once this year.

WHAT DOES "HELLO" MEAN
Telephone company executives have been seeking for a long time to have subscribers stop using the word "hello" in responding to telephone calls. For reasons of courtesy, time-saving, and efficiency, they have been striving to have the recipient of telephone calls merely announce his or her name or firm and then listen to the caller.

Possibly they will receive greater cooperation from subscribers by reason of the fact that etymologists have just announced that "hello" really means, "Oh, go chase a wolf."

According to these etymologists, the derivation of the word "hello" is from the cry "Au loup" (to the wolf), used by French and French-speaking Norman-English hunters when they sighted a wolf.

The French pronounced it "a loo." The English, using the aspirate "h," made it "ha loo." The cry has been used by hunters up to date when a fox is sighted, and by Americans, generally, as a personal salutation.

So we get "hello," which really means, "Oh, go chase a wolf." Which must be admitted, is scarcely a polite form of salutation, either over the phone or personally.—Ohio Utility Times
