However, some students may find it beneficial to extend their studies for an additional two years to gain more experience and to pursue additional coursework.

RHYTHM NOTES

By NORMAN BONDS

The Students' Weekly, the student weekly of the University of Wisconsin, will feature one new article each week on the art of rhythm, written by NORMAN BONDS. The column will deal with various aspects of rhythm, including its history, principles, and applications.

The first article in this series will cover the fundamentals of rhythm, including the concepts of time, duration, and melody. The article will also introduce the reader to the basic rhythms of different musical cultures, such as African, Indian, and Middle Eastern music.

The second article will focus on the role of rhythm in dance, covering the different types of dance and their associated rhythms. The article will explore how rhythm is used to create movement and express emotions in dance, and how it can be used to create a sense of unity and collaboration among dancers.

The third article will cover the relationship between rhythm and melody, showing how rhythm and melody are interrelated in music, and how they can be used to create a greater sense of unity and coherence in a musical piece. The article will also explore how rhythm can be used to create tension and contrast in a musical composition.

The fourth article will focus on the role of rhythm in language, covering the different types of rhythm in speech, such as iambic, anapestic, and trochaic rhythms. The article will explore how rhythm in language can be used to create a sense of rhythm and cadence in written text.

The fifth and final article in the series will cover the role of rhythm in everyday life, showing how rhythm is used to create a sense of order and structure in our daily routines. The article will also explore how rhythm can be used as a tool for meditation and relaxation, as well as a means of expressing our own emotions and experiences.

The articles will be written in a clear and accessible style, aimed at making the complex and often abstract concepts of rhythm more accessible to a general audience. The series will be designed to provide a comprehensive and engaging introduction to the world of rhythm, and to encourage readers to explore and appreciate this important aspect of music and language.
NYA WORK NEARLY BACK TO NORMAL; 299 AT WORK

The National Youth Administration program for Illinois high schools has been in operation for six months, and now there are 299 boys and girls working, 230 of them in the schools, 64 in the community centers, and 15 in the field. The number is expected to increase to 400 by the end of the month.

The NYA work is of vital interest because it is the first large-scale program of its kind in the country, and it is expected to benefit all schools, both educational and social. The NYA work includes the provision of housing, recreation, and educational programs for young people between the ages of 14 and 18.

The NYA was established by the federal government in 1935 to provide work opportunities for young people who were not employed in traditionally male-dominated occupations. The NYA work is designed to provide young people with on-the-job training, which will enable them to enter the labor market with greater confidence and skill.

The NYA work is also expected to provide community benefits, such as the provision of housing and recreation programs, which will help to create a more vibrant and active community.

The NYA work is expected to continue for six months, and it is expected to have a significant impact on the lives of young people in the community.

Only Two Leftman Left From Second Place Team Last Year

Ample to present indication of the strength of the Dunbars basketball squad this season. The second place finisher, last year, with only two Leftman left from the 1933-34 team, it is quite evident that the Dunbars will take the front rank among the leading basketball teams this season. The Dunbars will have to have a season like the 1933-34 team in order to finish in the top group.

WPA TO ENCOURAGE COLLEGE DRAMATISTS IN COMING YEAR

International agreement to encourage college dramatists this year is significant. Nine new groups of American and English college theatrical associations agree to promote American and English plays. The agreement was announced at the recent meeting of the English College Drama Association. The agreement includes the following:

1. The American College Drama Association.
2. The Canadian College Drama Association.
3. The British College Drama Association.
4. The Australian College Drama Association.
5. The New Zealand College Drama Association.
7. The Indian College Drama Association.
8. The Chinese College Drama Association.

The agreement was signed by representatives of each association, and a copy of the agreement was sent to the WPA for consideration.

In addition to the college groups, the WPA has also encouraged professional and amateur theater groups to promote American and English plays. The WPA has allocated funds to support these groups, and has encouraged them to participate in the national and international theater festivals.

---

The agreement is significant because it promotes the appreciation and understanding of American and English theater, which is a valuable contribution to the cultural exchange between the United States and the United Kingdom. The agreement also demonstrates the importance of the WPA in promoting cultural and artistic expression.

---

The WPA has also supported the establishment of theater workshops and schools, which have provided training for actors, directors, and designers. These workshops and schools have helped to develop a new generation of theater professionals who are committed to promoting American and English theater.

---

The WPA's support of the college theatrical associations and professional theater groups has been instrumental in promoting American and English theater. The WPA's commitment to cultural exchange and artistic development is a testament to its dedication to promoting cultural diversity and inclusivity.
