SIU Engineering Courses Outlined In New Bulletin

Degree programs in engineering sciences are a major area of technical specializations are outlined in the new 1964-65 School of Technology bulletin issued by SIU.

More than 120 separate courses are described in the bulletin, the first comprehensive catalog since the Illinois General Assembly authorized SIU to house engineering degrees.

The publication also lists requirements for undergraduate degrees in applied science, engineering technology, industrial education and industrial technology. Master's degree and Ph.D. programs also are offered.

Dean Julian H. Lauchner said SIU, monitored by the southern Illinois potential for industrial development, is developing a professional program to meet the emerging needs of the area. He said the present technology program at Southern grew from a limited number of courses in manual arts taught in this presentation are Phil- olip Olsson, trumpet; William Betterson, trombone, and Robert Mullen, piano.

On U.S. Charge

The federal government has dropped the charge of photographing U.S. currency against David Thorpe, 22-year-old student from To- coma, Washington.

The U.S. District Court in East St. Louis ordered his release from the Jackson County Jail in Murphysboro.

SIU Security Police had arrested Thorpe last week on a routine traffic ticket. They reported they found photographic copies of $1 bills in the car. The Secret Service brought charges against Thorpe after interviewing him.

Deputy U.S. Commissioner Charles Herington told the gov- ernment declined to prosecute Thorpe because of "very meager evidence as to any criminal intent."

No University disciplinary action was taken by Thorpe’s case. The Office of Student Affairs said that Thorpe was suspended because of "very meager evidence as to any criminal intent."

concerns for it. There is some justification for the man is interested in going into the advanced program, but to the uninterested it is a waste of valuable time.

Pere (Dean) junior from Holobod, N.J., said, "At this level of education, a student should have freedom of choice in regard to certain activities. In addition, I think the move is made in an attempt to not have to operate the AFROTC program used in some other part of the university to serve a more worthwhile purpose.

The list of complaints endless, although some students feel that a more modified approach might be the answer.

Tom Briggs, ex-marine from Elmhurst, Ill., "The main function of ROTC is to get students interested in the advanced program in two or three quarters should be compulsory in order to acquire students with the program, but no more than that.

"I think all freshmen should be required to take compulsive ROTC on a one year basis, although I feel that all branches of service should be offered and not just AFROTC." 4th Lt. Gary Bittord, junior from Red Bud, Ill., Gene Tusky, senior from Strover, Ill., said, "There is no sense having ROTC. It gives the inexperienced man the wrong attitude about military service. If it were offered on a voluntary basis, the amount of people might be smaller, but at least you would have the 'cream of the crop.' I also feel that all branches of service should be offered."
Gus Bode...

The goal of a voluntary ROTC program at Southern Illinois University and the University and the student body should be considered. A standing all-night vigil this Military Ball weekend is a fitting way for the Committee to Abolish Compulsory ROTC at Southern to emphasize its concern and that of the student body. While we do not share their belief that it should be abolished without waiting for Congressional action on the two-year program we do agree that compulsory ROTC at Southern must go.

High Time for Lifting Burden

Now smoldering anti-compulsory ROTC sentiment has flared anew. It clearly is high time for the University to take action and rid the body of students and the cadre of the needless burden of compulsory ROTC.

Ride a Scapegoat to Happiness

The Newrotics’ Notebook: McGaugh, Mignon; Bobbie Merrill, 1963

This little book is a collection of home truths. They are the sort of things that would result if you won a good copy for samplers. Some of the examples of梢 examples are staggering, and almost all of them contain a truth which we wonder why we didn’t think of first.

Gus says he wouldn’t mind compulsory ROTC if they’d serve coffee and doughnuts on the field.

Some of the examples of the gems contained in the book are: "Men never know how they are going to sit them down for a nice long talk"; "Every group feels like it has found a scapegoat"; and "She had a right to keep the thing going, too; that is, she was happy." Max M. Sappfield

Fight—but Don’t Ban—Cigarettes

One of the most gratifying results of the United States government’s report on smoking and health is the way many health educators who dared the issue for years are now writing fearlessly about it.

The present writer has dealt with the mounting evidence for students smoking at intervals over some 15 years. In view of that long-standing interest, he will make a few observations concerning preventive steps.

First, legal prohibition of smoking would be a foolish and inexcusable mistake. It would be foolish because it would fail. It would be unworkable because the industry has the experience of the attempted prohibition of the white slave trade in the 1870’s. President Wilson’s Naval Conference and the burning of the liquor in our basic law. After the colossal failure of this "moral experiment," the amended 21st Amendment and the Constitution and took prohibition out. There is not the slightest reason to repeat the mistake.

Many Other Ways

If Eastland, Tex., wants to go in for five years and three-year imprints, as its city council has voted, that Eastland’s look out. Other cities will take care of their council members when they come up for re-election.

But there are many other ways to combat the spread of bad habits—which annually kill more people in this country than automobile accidents. These ways are at every level of government from Washington to local school districts.

1. The federal government should give the report added possible currency. Ed

"Smoking and Health," it is issued by the public health service in the department of health, education and welfare under the direction of the Surgeon General and the Federal Trade Commission should require cigaret advertising to be so scrupulously honest. That is precisely the kind of protection the FTC was created to provide. Every claim by every cigarette company should be backed up by undeniable evidence to do; that is, she was happy.

Committee Asks Action Now On Freedom ‘Infringement’

For too many years SIU students have been subjected to the Student Security Association that has called "an infringement upon the academic freedom of the American college student, and a great waste of time," the compulsory program.

The bill in Congress now, if passed, would abolish ROTC and increase summer camp pay.

Says the president appointed by Assistant Defense Secretary to discuss the matter, is by far the best method of handling better-qualified officers.

The questionable academic value of the compulsory ROTC program is something that hardly needs to be repeated. It is something that is obvious even to those who have ever attended a basic ROTC "class" or "leadership lab."

The tide of opposition against compulsory ROTC is rising fast at SIU. Those convince of the uselessness of the compulsory program are better to the front. There are few who are willing to wait until the Congress of this winter to make a move to get rid of compulsory ROTC. The Committee to Abolish Compulsory ROTC, supported by a major portion of the student body, feels that the Administration should yield to the present opinion and take immediate steps to replace the compulsory program with a voluntary one.

Cypriots chief rejects peace plan

LONDON -- Greek and Turkish Cypriot leaders said Friday a U.S.-British plan to achieve it.

Diplomatic sources said no effort must be undertaken, but no other meetings were arranged immediately.

U.S. Ambassador David Bruce, armed with instructions from President Johnson, told ministers of Britain, Greece and Turkey and the Cypriots that Washington would provide American troops under certain conditions:

-- The international force must receive an invitation to enter the island from the Cypriot president, Archbishop Makarios. There is no sign that Makarios will issue such an invitation.

-- The stabilized London conference must work out a long-range settlement of the Cyprus problem must be brought back to the island within a week.

Makarios gave every indication of vetoing the plan unless it were available to the United Nations, something the Western Allies and their allies demand because it would involve the Russians.

De Gaulle urges neutralization in Asia, defends Red China

Soviet skater gets second gold medal

INNSBRUCK, Austria -- A second gold medal by Russia's sensational speedskating teacher, Vladi­lkin, and a victory in the special 70-meter ski jump by Finland's Aarno Ruuska, Kankkonen highlighted the third day's competition Friday as the Space Olympics screamed another blank in the ninth Winter Olympic Games.

Mrs. Skoblikova, a doped, blonde of 24 who is a demon on the 1,500-meter speed skating crown to her countrymen, drew the attention of the world by winning the distance--120 yards less than a mile--in the Olym­pic record time of 2 minutes, 22.6 seconds.

The Finns won their second gold medal when Kankkonen proved king of the hill--Sundawe, 21, won the 70-meter jump on the very last leap of the day, a perfect, bird-like flight of 259 feet, 2 inches, better than that of liner Edwin, 21-year-old Norwegian clerk.

COLUMBUS, Ohio—Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., 40-year-old astronaut, captured the first reponse on the contest for the Democratic nomination of U.S. Senator from Ohio. Russian Proposal to Destroy Bombers Studied at Disarmament Conference

A proposal by the Soviet Union that all bomber aircraft of all countries be destroyed without waiting for an agreement on a general disarmament highlighted sessions of the disarmament conference at Geneva, Switzerland, this week.

The United States last summer had advocated informally to Moscow an agreement between the two powers to destroy certain types of their bombers. The Soviet announcement to the conference Thursday was the first response to the United States proposal.

Little hope exists for agreement among other world leaders, however, because France's participation would be necessary and President Giscard d'Estaing's air force is built around the bomber. De Gaulle has boycotted the conference.

The Russians maintained in their latest proposal that although bombers are included in this list of missiles, they remain important weapons. Their destruction, said the Soviet spokesman, would reduce the danger of war.

William C. Foster, United States negotiator at the conference, indicated interest in the idea and noted that the United States had in principle with Washington's view.

Other Western nations greeted the Soviet proposal with considerable interest in order to improve their hopes of seeing an example-setting spectacle of actual destruction of weapons.

On Friday, the United States introduced another proposal of its own, as Foster called on the Soviet Union to join in freezing all development of military rockets and other means of delivering nuclear arms. There was no immediate reaction to the American proposal.

MURRAY, 30, of Carbondale, Ill., has announced plans to run in the 2-mile run at the 1964 Olympic Games.

Ralph Casey did not that we’re trying to belittle Evansville in any manner,” said SIU coach Ralph Casey, “but simply that we want to make use of the meet by moving a few boys around to see if we can strengthen our lineup.”

The Saluki squad has shown a noticeable weakness in the 50-yard freestyle and 400-yard relay events and coach Casey hopes to correct this in time for the important meet with Big Eight Champions Oklahoma here Feb. 8. Casey did not disclose who will replace Saluki, McAneny and Green.

The Salukis have received surprising support from sophomore Dave Winfield and junior A.G. Edwards in their first three outings. Winfield, a Little Silver, N.J., product, set a new SIU record of 2:01.8 in the 200-yard butterfly against Cincinnati earlier this season and Edwards, Southern’s lone diver, has been impressive in his last two outings and carries an unbeaten dual meet record into today’s contest.

Southern’s freshman team, undefeated in one dual meet, will face the Evansville yearlings in a prelimin ary contest.

High Scoring Freshman Cagers

Set Record in 122-69 Rout

Southern’s freshman basketball team raced to a scoring spree as it whipped Mt. Vernon Junior College 122-69.

The freshman team was scheduled to go after its seventh win in nine games against the Evansville freshman squad prior to the varsity game.

The Salukis completely out-classed their opponents throughout the game and held a comfortable 56-35 lead at the half. After that, Mt. Vernon could not get closer as the Salukis, hitting at better than 50 percent from the field, simply added to the lead.

The f resh raced the center mark for the second time in the last three games when Bob Tyler hit for two points with 71/4 left in the game, Wednesday night’s rout gives the 336 points in their last three games.

Coach George Hubert submitted five in the game as 10 men entered the scoring column with five hitting for double figures.

As usual, Walt Frazier was the high scorer for Southern as he pumped in 26 points. There were 14 other Southern scorers dominated by Ralph Johnson who poured in 21.

Horse McBaven of Mt. Vernon nailed Frazier for game scoring honors. Roger Woodrome was Southern’s second highest scorer with 18 points. McBaven ran tally of 8 points from the charity stripe as he connected on 18 of 20 free throws.

McBaven’s 8 points in the last three games.

Field of Invention Open to Students, Faculty

SIU Foundation Encourages Development of New Ideas

The field of invention remains wide open and assistance in this direction is available to SIU students and faculty.

The help and resources of the SIU Foundation are offered to any invention-minded student, according to Ken Miller, executive director of the Foundation.

The SIU invention, the disposable animal cage, has reaped over $10,000 in royalties so far. Miller offered this general advice to prospective inventors on campus:

An invention, to be sound, must be practical. It has to be capable of being made and cost is so little. It must have enough people interested in it. But most of all it must be something new and it must work.

The greatest spur to invention is still necessity and with the use of a disposable animal cage that gave SIU its first invention, Disposable Cage Has Advantages

What is a disposable animal cage or who wants one anyway? A disposable animal cage is a temporary home for mice used for experiments. Its advantages are that a non-disposable food dish can be attached to it, the cost is so little (25 cents), and that it can be thrown away after use. The user can avoid cleaning, scrubbing and sterilizing a cage after each occupant.

Other uses have been found for this plastic cage. Taking advantage of their transparency, little boys have been using them as miniature aquariums. They are also in demand as tiny indoor greenhouses.

Three men share the honor for the invention of the disposable animal cage: Harold I. Cohen, chairman of the Department of Design; Isaac L. Schechtmann, associate professor of microbiology; and Robert Hunter, lecturer in design.

The SIU Foundation's second invention was a swinometer. Swine are pigs and dates.

The swinometer is being produced by Interstate Publisher's Inc., Danville, Ill., and the sudorimeter is made by Lab-Line Instruments Inc., Chicago.

The amount received in royalties for the disposable animal cage totals $11,116.24 to date. Half of that goes to the inventors; the other half goes to the foundation.

Miller said the fields of invention are many from education to science. This is a challenge to SIU students and he advised consideration of the possibilities.

Ideas can be found in laboratory work, in class projects, or in personal experiments, he said. He suggested that the student experiment with the idea, and if it seems to have potential, the student can present it to the foundation.

SIU INVENTION - The SIU Foundation is reaping the profits from this faculty invention by Dr. Eugene Brunton and associates in the Speech

Correction department. It is used to measure the relationship between perspiration and anxiety.

Sweat Meter Gauges Anxiety

A third invention was a sudorimeter. Sudor is Latin for sweat and the meter measures the sweat. Why? In this case sweat is not linked with hard work but with anxiety. The sudorimeter is an instrument that measures anxiety.

How? It has been discovered that anxiety causes sweating at the tips of the fingers and this does not affect normal body perspiration. The sudorimeter has three units, designed to measure the relationship between this perspiration and anxiety.

The sudorimeter is being used in the Albert Einstein Medical Center in Brooklyn, in the VA Hospital in Danville, Ill., and in many other hospitals, clinics and colleges. The device was singled out for special mention in The New York Times, in its feature on one of the approximately 1,000 patents issued weekly in the United States. The sudorimeter was described in the April 6, 1963 edition.

Credit for the invention goes to Gene J. Brunton of the Department of Speech Correction, and his associates, Hideo Koike, William L. Puddl, Darrell E. Rose and Burli B. Gray.

Firms Interested in Inventions

The foundation has many other projects on hand and is now negotiating with several firms regarding other inventions. One promising invention is an animal weight control device developed by David Ehrenfreund, chairman of the Psychology Department.
