A resolution to adopt the proposed five-year capital improvements program for the City of Carbondale was tabled by the Carbondale City Council on Tuesday night.

The council tabled the resolution after Councilman George Karas and the City Manager, Robert Taylor, stated that a "reasonable" capital improvements program would be submitted to the State for approval.

"The City Manager, Bob Taylor, stated that the City would submit a capital improvements program to the State for approval," said Mayor Chet Roberts. "If the program is approved, the City will receive matching funds from the State for the projects."

Priest aims at City Council seat

Editor's note—This is the third in a series of candidate interviews in the Feb. 17 primary election for City Council seats. The articles will be presented in alphabetical order of the candidates' names.

Sitting in his office at the Newman Center, Father James Genisio, the former choir director and resident of St. Louis, speaks candidly about his desire to represent the community on the City Council.

Genisio, a 40-year-old native of St. Louis, said he is the only candidate for the 5th Ward seat that currently serves the city. He added that he is not sure if there should be any restrictions placed on construction of new housing in the area.

Genisio favors the weekend council party plan, but feels it needs better organization.

Genisio suggested the possibility of adding a mall-cum-campus to the city in the Campus Center Plaza parking lot.

"We have to quit arguing about whether we are going to close the street and see what we are going to do with it," Genisio added.

Genisio also felt the present council was not running as efficiently as it should and stated that more councilmen are needed for the city to progress.

Genisio said the city manager form of municipal government is good, but "I lean toward the aldermanic form of government also.

According to Genisio, the advantage of the aldermanic system is that each councilman represents a district and is more aware of the people's needs.

He said with the city's election system like Carbondale uses, the councilman can lean toward the people of the area who gave him the most votes.

Genisio said he would like to see a combination of the aldermanic and city manager forms in Carbondale government.

Genisio said the advantage of the proposed SIU City Joint Medical Care Plan is that services offered to all of Carbondale will be more available and services to the people they are now.

He explained that it will be good for both the city and the University to "join rather than overlap their health services.

"The Rs. SI Bypass is the biggest, most important issue for council members," Genisio said.

He is "inclined to favor" the Rs. SI Bypass right now.

Genisio said the bypass sounds like a "reasonable plan" for elevating the traffic flow through Carbondale and the city council will be planning the project.

He added that part of the traffic problem in Carbondale is "bicyclists, so he favors construction of bicycle trails.

Genisio said Carbondale should not move City Hall to the old Holden Hospital Building.

Communist newsmen visit SIU, defend free press

By Monroe Walker

The struggle for freedom of the press is one of the major struggles taking place in America today. Communist newsmen, Bruce Bachechi, state secretary of the American Communist Party, said yesterday afternoon.

Bachechi, who is also a worker in the broadcasting field as a technician, said in a telephone conversation with the Daily World that he has been in Carbondale for three weeks in an effort to increase the SIU newspaper circulation.

"As just the establishment newspapers come out against Nixon's attention going to the students, we will be right beside them," Bachechi said.

"We will certainly be fighting for stronger student journalism," Schaffner said.

Schaffner said the government was going against all of the press, both underground and establishment.

"They know," he said. "Maybe the feels will be breaking into the Daily Egyptian one of these days.

Bachechi pointed out that the Daily World is the only daily Marxist-Leninist newspaper in the country.

"It's a national paper which comes out of New York," he said. "But our offices are in Chicago.

Schaffner said the paper evolved from the Worker, the Socialist and The Toiler in 1914. The Daily Worker has 25,000 subscribers and reverts back to The Worker in 1958 after finally becoming the Daily World in 1963.

"The speeches have turned into songs," he said. "Our circulation is more than 25,000 nationally.

Vietnam: Some will never return

(If the following story written by Dana Ewell of the Decatur Herald and Review chronicles the experiences of four families in Cerro Gordo as when the end of the Vietnam war evoked memories of sons who had died in it.)

by Dana Ewell

CERRO GORDO, III. APA—It's more than three years since they buried Bill Heim and it was just about five years ago when they brought Curtis Baker home to Ritchie Cemetery. Two years before that it was Mike Folk and Don West.

The end of the Vietnam War brought little peace to those four families. If any of them have found peace since the day Army and Marine cars pulled into their driveways bringing the word, it's a peace they've found all by themselves.

"It's just as sore now as the day they came in the door to tell us," said Mrs. Baker as she sat staring out the same window that framed a Marine car as it pulled into the driveway on a March day in 1968. Her eyes filled with tears as she talked about it without crying, she said, explaining, not apologizing.

"I don't think we'll ever get over it. It's something we live with every minute of the day and night," said Robert Heim as he stood in the kitchen of a new home he and his family moved into last November, hoping to get away from some of the daily reminders in the home where Bill grew up.

"We'll be better off if we could forget, but we can't. The war will never be over for us.

"I've got a son buried over there on the Hill. You know what I think about it, don't you," said Ray Folk as he sat down for lunch with two of his grand children with whom he and his wife were baby-sitting.

"Mikey always liked this ground. After we lost him, we thought we'd name it after him," explained Mrs. Folk. "I don't want to lose the memories in this place. We're talking about the little things...like the way our 13-year-old son talks about how he used to wrestle with him. He would have been four or five then.

"There were no tears in Mrs. Folk's eyes, the hurt showed just as plainly when her face took on a sort of far-away stare.

"It's a sort of cross between Lewis West's face as he sat on the sofa in his trailer home in Coco and talked of his son Donald. "I still think about him sometimes, but you have to let your mind rest," he said.

"I go see things to get my mind off it. If you just sit and study about it you'll go crazy.

The following story written by Dana Ewell of the Decatur Herald and Review chronicles the experiences of four families in Cerro Gordo as when the end of the Vietnam war evoked memories of sons who had died in it.

"We used to have a nine-room house in Cerro Gordo. Of course we need it when we got it because we had all the kids. Five sons and two daughters. My wife has seen too many things. She remembers too much. I had to get her away from all those memories. That's why we came over here to Coco.

"The change wasn't enough, though. West said his wife is now living in a shelter care home in Decatur.

"Donald had joined the Marines after attending Southern Illinois University for a while. He died in 1968 in a plane crash in South Vietnam.

"It's a rich man's war and a poor man's fight," West said. "That's the way I figure it. No bigger than that country is, we could have had it whipped if..."
More Discrimination At SIU?

By Malcolm Lumby

Journalism Student

Homosexuality—the mere mention of that word is enough to make many persons anxious. But there was an editorial adversing the above word in the Daily Egyptian held by the Illinois Gay Liberation Movement to publicize University Legal Counsel Huffman's memo expressing discrimination in Employment Based Upon Homosexuality. "The letter stated that the Pell Grant, a federal education program which allows a state agency to deny employment to a homosexual who pursues 'an act' along with his unconventional ideas.

In the context of recent decisions by the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare relative to sex discrimination at SIU, this memo concerns itself with the problems of university regulations regarding homosexuals. When employment discrimination due to sexual orientation is not raised by the unequal application of hiring and tenure selection procedures, it may be perceived to be an unconscious act.

After all such a state may be interpreted by others as evidence of manifest or latent homosexual tendencies.

Four questions

Regardless of the perceived threat or imagined the Huffman memo raises a number of questions which deserve to be answered.

1) What is the effect of the SIU memo on legal decision?
2) How does this case relate to other decisions involving homosexuality and employment?
3) What is the employment status of homosexuals in Illinois?
4) What are the implications of this SIU memo?

James McConnell left a job as librarian at Park College, Kansas, to accept an appointment as Head of the Cataloging Division at the University of Minnesota. But when McConnell moved to St. Paul he was laid off and another man was hired. Baker University of Minnesota student body president.

This application for a marriage contract by two homosexuals drew substantial publicity in the news media. A bill in Congress, Senate, was introduced by Representative William. Bennett (R-Mass.) to allow two homosexuals to marry legally. The bill was not consistent with the best interests of the University, since it was presumed that he would engage in a specific sexual act and thereby detract from that state's moral fabric.

U.S. District Judge Neville, deciding in favor of McConnell, stated that an homosexual is after all a human being, and a citizen of the United States. He had to uphold the protection and benefits of the laws and due process fair treatment as are others. The appointment was never made due to absence of proof and not the mere supposition that he has committed or will commit criminal acts or that his engagement to marry another man would destroy his homosexuality. Judge Neville cited the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution, which clearly state to support the position that public employment is a constitutionally protected right.

In 1981, however, the U.S. Court of Appeals overturned the District Court decision and stated that this case does not involve homosexual preferences, nor a desire to pursue homosexual conduct. This is a case in which the prospective employee demands the right to pursue an active lifestyle. It involves an unconventional person, a socially repugnant concept upon his employer.

By permitting this decision to stand, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the view that public sector employees do not claim to be homosexual on their job application. Thereby, to first tacit approval of this socially repugnant concept upon his employer.

"Moral turpitude"

In recent years, the courts have declared in criminal law that the moral turpitude as a grounds for dismissal has been applied capriciously and in a discriminatory manner. The concept is unconstitutionally vague.

In 1989 the California Supreme Court ruled in favor of Professor William Morrison, a teacher at the Lowell Unified School District in Los Angeles County, who had been implicated—but never arrested—in a homosexual relationship involving a student. Although the State Board of Education had revoked Morrison's teaching certificate the Supreme Court held that the school board's action was not based on a finding of moral turpitude.

This view was also held in the case of Mr. Jack Pettit, an Orange County teacher of "emotionally disturbed" children, who was fired in December 1987, to a "swinger's" party at a private home in Hollywood. Everybody at the party knew in advance that Jack Pettit was a homosexual, and his eight-year solicitations were not a violation of Penal Code 317a (c). The charge was rather a violation of Penal Code 317a (b) to encourage a lewd act to a minor to commit a lewd and lascivious act on a minor.

The Court of Appeals found "nothing in the administrative record that the State's conduct that would render her unfit to teach. The only persons who witnessed appellant's misconduct at a private residence were adults who left the under-cover police officer. There is no evidence a student was or could have been aware of the misconduct. As a result of this decision, the State's remedial measures and the California Supreme Court has agreed to hear this case.

The courts have recently spoken out against invasions of privacy by employment of power by states. In a recent case, the court held that an alleged homosexual advance of a Civil Service employee toward a non-employee was not sufficient grounds to justify dismissal. Rather, the government must show some reasonable foreseen specific connection between an employee's embarrassing conduct and the efficiency of the service.

The court noted that the most widely accepted study of American sexual practices estimates that at least 17 percent of the American male population have had one sexual experience since the age of 15. If this is so, a policy of excluding all persons who have engaged in homosexual conduct from public service over one-third of the male population.

Illinois law

In 1961 Article 11 sexual offenses of the Illinois Criminal Code was revised so that private adult consensual behavior was no longer proscribed. Commenting on the effects of this and similar revisions, the National Institute of Mental Health's Task Force on Homosexuality made the following statement: "To be sure, full equality of employment, full security and full acceptance by the society at large for homosexuals will not be achieved by changes in the law alone, but such changes may help to facilitate the realization of attitudes that are ultimately needed.

But if discriminatory employment practices illegal in this state?" The Illinois Revised Statutes indicate that it is an unfair employment practice "for any employer, by discrimination or discharge or refusal to hire, to discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment on the basis of race, creed, color, national origin, citizenship status, age, sex, marital status, sexual orientation or non-job related or non-employee association or activity involved in employment, trade or craft, or for the violation of any other employment protection law, excluding discrimination on the basis of marital status.

Thus the former relationship of the court, courts relative to the employment of homosexuals.

By their presence, the University Legal Counsel provides a basis for law enforcement officers to pursue homosexual apprehensions. The officials, who are legally bound to maintain public order, are responsible for maintaining public order.

This research is limited to the exploration of the legal and social environment in which homosexuals are employed.

Convo to feature Spanish Flamenco troupe Thursday

By Dokie Pratt
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The pulsating rhythms of Flamenco music will permeate the Arvada Thursday at 5 p.m. when the Jose Montaño Cauris appear at the University Convocation Center.

Prof prepares photo exhibits

Two photo exhibits have been prepared by Charles Swindell, assistant professor of cinema and photography, who is offering for sale 125 signed copies of each.

One exhibit, a portfolio of six color prints, consists of a machine which Swindell built utilizing the additive principle of color photography.

The machine consists of three slide projectors with 80 slides which are exposed through red, green and blue filters to produce 480,000 different combinations.

In order to get a permanent representation of the slides, they were made into negatives and printed in the third color to add which combinations of colors and negatives hold the essence of those seen with the machine. The negatives were prepared as offset prints and combined in such a way as to produce a composite.

The second exhibit titled "The whole show," is a group of photographs shot with a fish eye lens and printed in nine-inch square format.

The exhibit is available as well as a miniature version printed on one and a quarter inch buttons which are packaged in a can.

From its first premiere in Washington D.C. in May 1982, the young company of Spanish dancers, singers and instrumentalists were a popular booking and played engagements from Honduras to Mexico, Peru and Canada.

This year's program consists of songs and dances from all of the Spanish provinces, from the camp of Charles III, the great Spanish opera, ballets, and the Spanish operas cartoons.

Costumes for the production are quite varied. Many of the larvae, used in the wardrobe valued at $80,000 are hand made. Of the various types of dresses worn by the girls, one of the most beautiful and eye-striking is the "hata de raso," or dress with a tail. The trick in making such light fabrics is in learning how to maneuver the train by keeping it without getting the birds caught.

From four to ten performers are worn by each girl. Wearing the shorter skirts featured in several of the show's numbers, the troupe also uses 88 parts of shoes and boots per performer.

The men's costumes are also quite striking. The men's costumes having the tray, pocket, short jacketed suit with high-waisted tight-fitting trousers, hold up a short suspenders.

Born in Madrid, Jose Montaño started dancing at the age of three. At the age of 16 he was accepted for and was accepted into the Secretariat Flamenco troupe in Spain. White still in his teens, Jose arrived in the United States and made his television debut on the Steve Allen show. He caught the eye of Jose Iturralde who invited Montaño to join his company. After five years with the Iturralde troupe, Montaño formed his own company.

Immediately following the program, a coffee hour will be held in the Missouri Room at the Student Center.

Both the Exhibition and the coffee hour are free and open to the public.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Roll over, Beethoven, you're wanted on campus. Students are returning to the classics and nostalgia.

Bach, Beethoven and Brahms are beginning to grab more of students' attention than ever before. Secondly, there is an increasing interest in concert performances, alternating between pride and sorrow.

Their primary goal was to arrange bookings for talent on campus. "We want to make sure we have a diverse program," says Larry Long. "I think it's a very good thing." Long says music is coming back on campus, and students are returning to the classics and nostalgia.

High court rejects reopening ITT case, appeal by Sirhan

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court Tuesday turned back a move by consumer crusader Ralph Nader to reopen a government antitrust suit against international telephone and telegraph giant ITT.

In an 8-1 ruling the justices agreed with a federal district court that the government suit to end what it called a "predatory" tie-in sale had not been timely filed. The suit was based on President John F. Kennedy's order of a government review of the ITT case.

Nader's appeal represented an effort by the consumer advocate to take the case into the Supreme Court at a time when a number of antitrust suits were pending against large business interests, although Justice William J. Brennan voted with the majority.

The case against ITT went to the Supreme Court with two other nondrug cases. In the other case, United Airlines employees charged that the airline took a bribe to place its seats and make the plane discover the baby girl later. The plane was not involved in the accident of another small plane.

Nader, a lawyer, and his associate, Edward B. Robinson III, talked out of a California mother whose son died in Vietnam. The mother, whom he did not name, praised the "honorable peace agreement" and said:

"If you said you would do anything, you would have to do it not only for the boys remaining in Vietnam, but also those who died in the war." We feel that you and your government have been as we do, and would have supported your policy. Senator Adams and the letter was from Mrs. Louise J. Amundson of Downey, Calif. The President said his appeal was "based on the historical record, the judgment of the people of the United States and the judgment of the people of all nations involved." The President also said that the Supreme Court had not made a "final decision with respect to the United States position." At the request of the military, the President said: "We are happy that the Supreme Court has decided to hear our appeal. It is a step in the right direction." After the appeal was turned down without comment or dissent. Meanwhile, six appeals were granted review, will be considered on the new term.

Men get sympathetic welcome at Women's Center.

By June O'Conner
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

It was Monday night at the Women's Center and the first week of the new semester brought many anxious women to attend. Margaret Hedges, coordinator of the women's center, said, "We had the most response in years," adding that there were at least 200 women registered.

This year's activities included three major events:
the opening of the center, the first of October, and the annual Women's Day celebration, October 11.

The center offers a variety of services, including counseling, legal aid, and a lending library.

In addition to the center's regular activities, the students also held a benefit concert on Monday night, which was attended by a large crowd.

Judge says shoplifting appears on increase.

By John D. George
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

There appears to be an increase in the number of shoplifting incidents being processed through the court system. Robert M. Schwartz, associate circuit court judge, said he has seen an increase in shoplifting.

"I have been hearing a lot about shoplifting, and I believe there is an increase," he said. "I think people are becoming more sophisticated in shoplifting.

Schwartz said he believes that the increase in shoplifting is due to the lack of security in department stores. He said that many of the incidents come from places where stores do not have adequate security systems.

"I think that people are becoming more sophisticated in shoplifting," Schwartz said. "I think it is becoming a problem in department stores."

Marketing, fashion tour of Europe offered

By Sarah Blacker
Fashion Writer

Marketing and merchandising students will have the opportunity to participate in a one-week European fashion tour this spring. The tour is being jointly offered by the marketing and clothing and textiles departments.

The program will be conducted and taught by Andrew F. Powell, associate professor in the School of Business. Powell will be joined by Harvey Friend, chairman of the clothing and textiles department of the School of Home Economics. Powell will teach the History of Clothing and Fashion course, and Friend will teach the History of Marketing course.

Powell refers to the tour as an "associate approach to the study of international marketing." He also stated that the primary objective of the tour is to provide students with the opportunity to study the influence of the environment on marketing under varying economic, social and cultural conditions.

Mrs. Friend said that although the major portion of formal study takes place in Southern Switzerland, study tours are conducted throughout Western Europe.

The approximate cost of the trip is $300 which includes room, transportation, meals and sightseeing. The first class Powell pass which provides unlimited rail travel for two months, accommodations and tuition.

The credit for the courses will equal 12 quarter hours. There will also be a chance to study abroad, according to Powell.

Both types of travel will feature seminars with business leaders and government officials, and classes will be taught and graded in the same manner as regular classes.

Last year, 23 students participated. Ten people are presently scheduled for the tour.

The tour schedule will remain basically the same as in previous years except for more stops and visits related to fashion, she said. There will be fashion shows in textile manufacturers and museums.

$3.4 million contested

By Larry Kraus
Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — More than two years after the death of Paul Powell, the willful farmer of a $3 million estate was contested in a $270,000 estate won by his wife in a probate court.

The State of Illinois has filed a claim on the estate to be turned over to the state. The case is scheduled for May 9 in the Sangamon County Circuit Court.

Powell, 70, lived on a farm located in rural Sangamon County.

His death in 1975 resulted in a will contest which was brought by Attorney William Jackson Scott of Chicago.

Scott filed an amended complaint in Circuit Court in Powell's home town of Varna. A hearing was set for June 26.

Animal warden still "dog catcher" to the public

By Dave Phoenix
Daily Regional Staff Writer

Randy Corey wouldn't trust a dog the way some people trust him.

Corey, a veteran city employee, has been the only full-time dog wardener in Carbondale's city hall for more than a decade.

He is one of Carbondale's unsung heroes, who, for the price of a few dollars a month, keeps the city clean and safe by catching stray dogs.

The warden has changed, but public attitude is still the same, as is the role of the animal warden's big yellow truck.

Corey and Randy, a roll-up student, Bill Burford, each work 30 hours a week under the guidance of the city's animal control officer, Barry Taylor.

"We get into the back seat of the truck and the dog is in the back seat, and we go out and look for the dog," Corey said.

"If I see a dog running loose, I'll call the owner and tell them to come get their dog," Corey said.

"We'll take the dog to the shelter and if the owner doesn't come get it, we'll take it to the pound."}

No. 1 Porters lead prep contenders

By The Associated Press

Leckport Central, still ranked No. 1, appears the best bet among the respected teams in the AP’s weekly poll to reach the Class AA Elite Eight. With a 9-2 record, the Leckport High School showdown at Champaign next week.

No. 5 Collinwood was the only school earning more than 200 points. No. 3 Quincy was 20.1 with 200 points. A reputation on paper is one thing and the Class AIA state champion this year is another.

However, Leckport appears to have more muscle through its own regional and sectional meets and against the Chicago Heights sectional champion in the state meet. All six teams in the top 20 poll earned 282 points from the statewide poll ballot.

Lincoln also boasting a perfect 24-0 record, but the Leckport top spot with three top-five places and 33 points. The only schools earning more than 200 points were No. 3 Quincy 20.1 with 200 points, and No. 4 Elgin 20.1 with 282 points.

The prime Southern Illinois contender was No. 5 Collinwood with 282 points, closely followed by No. 4 Chicago Honors 19.1 with 182 points. A reputation on paper is one thing and the Class AA state champion is another.

But the early tournament going means ruggers for Lincoln, Quincy and Elgin.

If Lincoln reaches the Springfield sectional, it could be challenged in that four-team tourney’s first round by Quincy. The winner of the Springfield supersectional will be favored to win the Normal super and probably will meet with Fayetteville in the Sectional championship match in the sectional super.

No. 4 Elgin, heavily favored in its own regional, could run into East Leyden, currently ranked eighth with an 18-1 record, in the Palatine sectional. The Palatine champion probably will be confronted by No. 8 Evanston East in the Aurora sectional super.

Pressing state tournament danger for No. 5 Collinwood was this week’s grinding of the AP’s Top 10 ratings by two other Southern Illinois teams.

Salukis, Redbirds battle to save face

By David Breshears, Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Doug Collins and the Illinois State Redbirds will invade the SIU Arena Wednesday night for a 7:30 p.m. contest with a double-bonus, in a game matching two teams who are trying to make the most out of a disappointing season.

The Salukis have lost 10 of their last 12 games into their next-to-last home game of the season, as the Salukis have had trouble winning the close ballgames this year.

If SIU's record has been disappointing, Illinois State season must rank as a near disaster. Coach Will Robinson's Redbirds appeared ticketed for a sure post season tournament berth in early season, with a team loaded with talent and scoring votes in the national polls, but have faded to 11-12 coming into Wednesday night's contest.

In their last outing, Illinois State lost at Jacksonville 95-88. SIU lost to the nationally ranked Dolphins 89-77 early in the season.

Even SIU's "all everything" Doug Collins, whose hometown is Benton has had his share of problems. Collins, a 6-6 guard, will take the floor tonight with a 25 point scoring average, far behind last year's 35.4 scoring pace which ranked him third in the nation.

Perhaps the biggest reason for Collins' lower point totals was an attempt by Robinson to utilize more of his halfbacks in a balanced attack. Before the first meeting with SIU, Robinson had his problems with youth that hadn't learned to work as a unit.

On paper the Redbirds appear as strong as any team SIU faced this year. Saluki coach Paul Lambert compares them to Northern Illinois, Jacksonville and Florida State.

"They are a very physical basketball team and very tough, so we know we're in for a lot of problems and we have," Lambart said.

Inside the Redbirds have the nation's 13th leading rebounder in 6-11 center Ron DeVries. DeVries, who is averaging a little over 15 rebounds a game, pulled down 21 in a 72-65 victory over Salukis in Bloomington earlier in the year.

That seemingly one-sided win over SIU is somewhat deceiving in that SIU's entire starting lineup got into foul trouble. Jose Herronwarter, Nate Hawthorne and Tim Ricci all fouled out of the contest, with Dennis Shaffer and George Thompson finishing the game each with four fouls. Illinois State had no player foul out which gave an indication of what the Salukis were up against.

With SIU in foul trouble, the Redbirds hammered the boards for 52 rebounds compared to SIU's 38.

"They murdered us on the offensive boards. We didn't shoot well (36%). We didn't move well on offense. We just didn't play very good ball," Lambert said.

Besides Collins and DeVries, Illinois State has two former high school All-Americans in 6-4 Robert "Bubba" Hawthorne and 6-4 Roger Powell. In recent games, Powell has been a constant player at High School, a forward and Robinson's Pretending High School, at the other guard slot.

Inconsistency has marked both Hawthorne and Powell in their freshmen years. While Powell has been productive to date, he has missed several games in the past. Powell scored 20 against Marshall State and Hawthorne powered in 20 in last Saturday's game with Jacksonville.

At the other forward position, Robinson will go with 6-7, 220 pound sophomore Calvin Harper. The extremely physical Harper, who was a high school All-American last year, is a hard player at Detert-Pershing, pulling down 13 rebounds in the first SIU-SIU contest.

If Paul Lambert's squad can avoid the foul problems which plagued them at Bloomington, the Salukis could average the earlier loss since SIU has had considerable difficulty winning on the road this year.

The Redbirds have lost nine of 11 road games this year and have lost five of their last six games, one of which was at home to Ball State.

If the Salukis are to win, they will need big games from their one-two punch of Hawthorne and Powell. Hawthorne leads SIU in scoring with a 17.2 average, and he leads the team in free throws for a .76 percent average in recent games.

Bernard: Motivation key to high-jumping success

By Jan Brown, Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Pressure isn't what hurts Mike Bernard. It's the lack of attention afterwards that aches.

Those two elements—pressure and attention—best characterize the efforts of the 6-4 Illinois high jumper at the weekend's Central College indoor track championships (CCIC) in Ypsilanti, Mich.

With a successful leap of 6-11 3/4, Bernard became the first athlete in the history of Central College track outings ever to win an event four consecutive years.

"I was psyched up for the meet this year," Bernard recalls. "But there didn't think it was such a big thing. They weren't even surprised when I won the high jump as a freshman. It was a big thing for me to be just to be able to compete at the Central College my first year."

Bernard, a senior from San Diego, Calif., successfully waltzed over the bar at the heights of 6-3, 6-7 and 6-9. Then he moved to 6-10 and the pressure started building for him.

"When I hit the bar at 6-10, the pressure was on," he said. "I had to clear it because I know that Hancock (Ill. Hancock) Bernard's teammate had cleared 6-10 on the first try."
