Never Fly Club.

Our secret motto is nearly a year in advance of this summer. Chamberlin, director of admissions, said any such effect may not be apparent until later in the summer, if it develops.

During the past several months, other state institutions have announced various policies interpreted as restricting enrollments for next fall.

In the past two months, Chamberlin said, the applications for admission to SIU have not reflected any "fall-off" from those announced restrictions. Applications for SIU admission are higher than last year and "we will have an increase in enrollment," Chamberlin said.

The SIU policy is to accept all qualified applicants and attempt to make a place for them, he continued.

He expressed the opinion the announced restrictions on the other state institutions may be largely contingent upon availability of housing.

"Since May 20 we have been admitting qualified applicants from the top half of their graduating class only if they couldn't find 'in town' or 'off-campus' housing," Stanford said.

The U. of I. had received 19,692 applications for admission to SIU in the spring of 1964, or a 20 per cent increase from the total a year ago.

The SIU Chamberlin said high school graduates normally start their process of application for college or university admission nearly a year in advance of their graduation. They

Chigger, a Mite With Big Bite, Sends Many to Health Service

The chigger, that mighty mite with six legs and a fearful bite, is living up to its description in Webster's dictionary, a SIU health official says.

The American brand of chigger is described in the dictionary as "very troublesome," and Dr. Richard Lee, director of the Health Service agrees.

The most frequent visitors to the Health Service this summer have been up-state students suffering from chigger bites.

"I'm sure it is discomforting," Dr. Lee said, "for a student unfamiliar with the ways of the chigger to suddenly discover that he is peppered with red spots which itch like fury."

Dr. Lee's advice to prevent a recurrence is, "next time take along some insect repellant."

Joiners Support Thousands of Select Societies

By Larry Widrig

Do you pledge never to say this secret motto "Rab-a-dad-abid" for any reason?

And never reveal our secret grip in public? Say "hoo" and you join the millions of Americans in the United States who belong to occupational associations.

Americans, quite possibly, are the greatest joiners in the world. There is an ancient canard that every time two Greeks meet they open a restaurant, and c'mon, he might say, Americans meet to form an organization.

The art of joining clubs wasn't invented in the United States. The Masons and the Odd Fellows, two of our largest orders, began the custom in medieval Europe. Since then the Americans have greatly enlarged the custom, President Delyte W. Chamberlin, for example, is a member of approximately 30 professional honorary and special interest organizations, and the average department chair at SIU belongs to 20 to 25 professional societies and fraternities, not including social or religious groups.

Scarcely anyone today is immune from some type of an organization. There are such organized tribes as the Fatty Acid Producer's Council, the National Association of the American Dehydrated Onion and Garlic Association, the American Association of Poultry Slaughter House Operators, the National Broom, Brush and Plastic Industry Association, and the Man Will Never Fly Club.

D.C., executive secretary of the American Vocational Association, will speak at 2 p.m. Thursday on "The Road Ahead for Vocational Education."

Vocational education in Illinois will be discussed by four representatives of the office of the state superintendent of public instruction, Walter C. Reed, chief of agricultural education; Robert Kozlowski, chief of technical education; E. C. Fields, chief of adult education; and Miss Elaine M. Buchanan, chief of home economics education.

Jacob O. Bach, chairman of the Department of School Administration and Supervision, will preside over the afternoon session. Dean E. J. Simon of the Division of Technical and Adult Education will introduce the speakers, and other SIU faculty members will lead discussion in small group meetings on various areas of vocational education.

The conference is being held in connection with the 5th annual Educational Materials Exhibits to be held at the University Center Ballroom today. Both the exhibit and the conference today are sponsored by the SIU College of Education, the Division of University Extension.

Probation Students To Meet at 1 p.m.

Students on scholastic probation must attend a meeting at 1 p.m. today in Davis Auditorium, according to Jack Graham, chairman of Academic Advisor.

This includes students enrolled in various schools and colleges, and in General Studies.

The meeting is designed to aid the students in improving their scholastic standards.

Graham reminded all students on scholastic probation that they will be dropped from school if they fail to make a C average.

He urged all students who are not on probation but who are concerned about their grades to attend the meeting.

Hamlet in Dirty Sweater

Playhouse to Open July 8
With 'Look Back in Anger'

The Southern Playhouse is closed this week, but it will reopen July 8 with a production of "Look Back in Anger." - John Osborne's drama portrays "angry young men and women" in contemporary life. "Look Back in Anger" received outstanding reviews after its London opening in 1956. It was equally lauded in the New York production.

Osborne's dramatic style has been called "tones of thunder" and "incandescent prose" by critics. The play itself is described as potent, compelling and vivid.

The brutal picture of an embittered young tyrant struggling to smash society's dogmas fills the stage with stinging wit.

Jimmy Porter, the hero, has been compared to Hamlet. Others see him as a "tousled-haired, dirty-sweatered" character who keeps his devoted wife in an attic hovel. He sneers at his mother-in-law, betrays his sweatered character who sees him as a "tousled-haired, dirty-sweatered" character who keeps his devoted wife in an attic hovel. He sneers at his mother-in-law, betrays his sweatered character who sees him as a "tousled-haired, dirty-sweatered" character who keeps his devoted wife in an attic hovel.

In this production of "Look Back in Anger," the audience will meet five members of the 1964 summer company of Southern Playhouse: Jerry Powell from Carlin, Okla., will appear as Jimmy Porter, the angry young man. Powell has formerly played the female lead role of Alison in "The Zoo Story." Two other actors have integral roles as cast members in the play. Beverly Berra from Newark, Del., will perform as Helena Charles, Jerry Ryan in "Two for the Seesaw," John Proctor in "The Crucible," and Val Carter in "Orpheus Descending.

From Pennington, Penn., Jo Powell will play Luigi. Other outstanding parts include Gertrude in "Hamlet," Virginia in "A Clearing in the Wood," and the Mother in "Rashomon." Bob Perivit from Chicago, will play Cliff Lewis, Perivit has previously done the parts of Stage Manager in "Skin of Our Teeth," Algys in "The Importance of Being Earnest," and Jerry in "The Zoo Story.

The 27th annual educational materials exhibit has representatives here from the major metropolitan areas of Chicago, New York, and St. Louis as well as from less densely populated areas of Sandusky, Ohio, and Eau Claire, Wis.

Everything to make the educator's job easier, faster and even more enjoyable can be seen. It's not quite one of those birth-to-death situations, but almost. The exhibit ranges from giant wooden toys for the kindergarten set to cars and grown.

SIU Press Fills Raleigh's Rush Order

Southern Illinois University Press rushed to help the Peace Corps yesterday. At 3 p.m., it will open its catalog room for use in a Peace Corps training program.

"The Villagers," by Jorge Gural, is a tale of the exploitation and extermination of an Indian village in Ecuador by its landlord. The first novel published by the SIU Press, it is the first printing of the novel in the English language. The author resides in Quito, Ecuador.

Girl's Escort Fined $50 for Using Car

The escort of an SIU coed who reported she was raped has been assessed $50 for unauthorized use and possession of an automobile.

The student, a 22-year-old senior from Jervisville, was also a letter of reprimand.

The Office of Student Affairs said the student was traveling in a car belonging to another student who has gone home for the summer. The office said the owner of the car would also be investigated, upon his return to the campus, to assess its fitness to lend it to an unauthorized person.

The coed and her escort are both in police custody, but while they were parked on a farm driveway near Murphysboro one night last week one man restrained him while two others raped her.
‘Music and Youth’
Enrolls 150 Pupils

Some 150 high school students from five states will spend two weeks of intensified study in music at SIU under the program of ‘Music and Youth at Southern,’” sponsored by the SIU Department of Music.

The program will be held July 1-15.

All participants are talented in music, and have been accepted on the basis of their musical abilities.

Melvin Stener, director of Music and Youth at Southern, said classes will include rehearsal periods for band, orchestra, chorus, stage band, voice and piano, theory, music literature, science of music, ensemble and instrumental sectional sessions.

The faculty includes Douglas Screeland of the Elgin High School as band director; James Barnes of the Indiana State Teachers College, orchestra director; Walter Kody of the Homewood Flossmoor High School at Hope-Hepburn Film
To Be Shown Today

Bob Hope and Katherine Hepburn star in "Iron Petticoat," at 9 p.m. today in the Andrew Stadium. The story involves a stern woman captain in the Russian Air Force (Hepburn) and a U.S. major (Hope) assigned to educate her in democracy. The Undergraduate English Qualifying Examination will be administered at 9 a.m. today in the Muckelroy Auditorium.

Students in the Schools of Technology and Business and the College of Liberal Arts and Science are required to successfully complete the examination prior to graduation.

Students who maintained a B average in their basic English composition courses are exempted from the requirement.

Students in the College of Education may take the examination in lieu of English 391, but are allowed to take it only once. But students who major or minor in English in the College of Education may substitute English 300 for English 391, Oliver said.

Students who fail to pass the objective section will be required to take the second section of the test, which is scheduled for July 15.

SIU Has Fleet of 288 Motor Vehicles

Cars, Buses, Scooters Fill Many Needs

(But Taking Your Girl to Prom Isn't One of Them)

SIU has a fleet of some 288 motor vehicles—give or take a few and don't count the farm tractors or the mow-down lawnmowers.

Everything from a convey of three-wheeled motor scooters to several 60-passenger buses is included in the University's motor pool. It is planned so transportation can be provided for just about anyone or anything.

If you want to take your class on a field trip to these cars—transportation is available. And if a magazine's car test notes the speed across campus—and a lot of people seem to be on the move—a truck is available.

The bulk of the fleet is made up of passenger cars, but it includes just about everything else you might name in the motorized fields.

"Basically we try to buy the least expensive model in the Big Three," said purchasing agent who handles the bids on cars. At present there is no money to dominate the fleet.

At various times the University has experimented with various styles and models such as compact cars and larger models, but most of these have not been used in favor of buying the standard type.

"We once bought a number of small two-seaters—small Buicks, for example—three-seaters, but we no longer do that," one official said.

Most SIU passenger cars are painted white, a color agreed upon by those who make such decisions, but there seems to be no particular explanation.

"When we advertise for bids we always specify white or near white as the color," the official said.

A car's life span generally is 40,000 miles, or two years, whichever comes first, and if it isn't wrecked before one or the other is reached. Actually total wrecks are few but the number of nicked fenders mounts up over the year.

The entire fleet is covered by a single insurance policy that covers the University and the drivers for public liability and property damage. Collision insurance isn't carried on passenger cars.

Cars are available for any legitimate University function and may be requested through the Physical Plant office. However, don't make the mistake of one young man a few years ago who had heard that the University car's were available and asked for one to drive his date to a prom. And don't request a Mustang. SIU doesn't own one and it appears doubtful that it ever will.

"I believe you could say they are just a little too spunky for us," the purchasing agent explained.

Eager But Apprehensive

Writer on South Pole Safari Finds Fun in Icy Escapades

Quick, Before It Melts, by Philip Benjamin; New York: Random House, 1964, 247 pp. $4.95.

As the jacket designer boldly forewarns readers, Quick, Before It Melts is very funny novel. Author Benjamin has been a New York Times reporter for over 10 years. In that time, he made two trips to the Antarctic, upon which this work of fiction is based.

Benjamin assures in a tongue-in-cheek prefacing note that the story and situations involved are completely imaginary, such places as New York, New Zealand, and Antarctica do indeed exist.

Experienced readers will immediately detect that such is going to be the nature of Benjamin's humor and it is, after all, a magazine with a rather unusual title: "Sage, the Magazine That TheFaHs for You." This is a satire of a Sage, impulsive, impudent image, which is reflected in the novel.

This is all fortunately tied into a coherent package, with Benjamin daring to put into words a thing which makes one chuckle to think or reveal to close friends; in the minds of many, the Soviet Union can not be funny, the Soviet Union can not be humorous, the Soviet Union can not be entertaining. But it is.

"I do not believe this kind of humor," says Benjamin, "I do not believe this good. Why don't you read a novel and make up your own mind?"

Soviet Control Costly

Reds Lost Out to NAACP In Waging Rights Struggle

This is the story of how the Communist Party attempted to infiltrate the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). The book tells the story of how the Stalinist party attempted to infiltrate NAACP's ranks and take over its leadership in an effort to increase the influence of the Soviet Union in the United States.

The main point of the book is that the Communist Party's infiltration of the NAACP was not successful, despite the efforts of the party's leaders. The party's attempts to take over the organization were thwarted by the organization's leadership, which remained committed to its own goals and objectives.

The book provides a detailed account of the party's efforts to infiltrate the NAACP and the ways in which the organization's leadership was able to resist these efforts. It also provides an analysis of the reasons why the party was unable to succeed in its infiltration efforts, including the organization's strong leadership, its commitment to its own goals and objectives, and its willingness to defend its independence.

The book is an important contribution to the understanding of the role of the Communist Party in the United States and its efforts to gain influence in this country. It is also an important resource for those interested in understanding the history of the NAACP and its role in the fight for civil rights.

Many readers will remember the front page story which broke last year when Professor Herring was arrested and accused of espionage. The demand by the President Kennedy that he be released was another story, in another country, for instead of trad- ing a captured American spy capter, a Russian spy over here, the Russians yielded to the demand of President Kennedy and Professor Herring came back to this country.

Professor Herring, now Professor of Political Science at Yale, has made the Soviet Union a specialized area of study. From 1943 to 1947 he was press attaché at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, and he returned to the Soviet Union for further study in 1953. He left it in March 1957 when he was arrested.

Professor Herring has collected much of what he has written, in a book which is to be the most impressive to his subject ever put under the covers of one book. It takes the official reports from the Soviet Union, notes from Soviet newspapers, journals, speeches of officials, books written inside and outside Russia, and he weaves all the material together in one of the best jobs of factual reporting I have ever read. Now and then he blazips a blow; in; row and then he includes a vaCUO judgment; however, for the most part, he simply weaves facts to make his case.

This reviewer's criticism of many books written on Soviet Russia is that they do not go back to the writings of Lenin as the starting place for understanding Soviet theory and practice. It is enlighten-
'10,000 Turn Out in Chicago
As Scranton Bids for Backers

CHICAGO -- Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania met his biggest audience yet Tuesday in sweltering downtown Chicago shortly after he arrived to meet with Illinois delegates in his bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

State GOP Leaders
Side With Majority

CHICAGO--Victor L. Smith, Republican state chairman of Illinois, and Charles R. Percy, the party's candidate for governor, told newsmen Tuesday they will vote with the majority of the Illinois delegation at the GOP national convention.

The latest Associated Press poll of the Illinois delegation shows Sen. Barry Goldwater has a majority of 39. It also shows that Richard M. Nixon has one, and 18 are uncommitted.

* Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, chairman of the Illinois delegation, said, "There is more than a passing possibility" that he will go along with the majority.

Congo's Adoula Resigns Post
As Last U.N. Troops Depart

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo--Premier Cyrille Adoula resigned Tuesday as the Congo marked the fourth anniversary of its independence and the last U.N. troops left the country.

French Foreign Minister Kauvubu announced he had accepted Adoula's resignation. He said a new government would be formed in a few days.

The news was followed by speculation that the new government would be headed by Moise Tshombe, a secessionist whose defiance of Adoula's government was ended by the U.N. Congo force early in 1965.

Tshombe returned last week from self-imposed exile in Europe and embarked on a reconciliation mission to bring together the still turbulent African country's feuding political leaders.

The former president of Katanga Province announced Monday night that Antoine Gизenga, head of Stanleyville's 1961 Communist-breakaway government, would be freed soon from the island prison where he has been held for 2 1/2 years.

With Gизenga's return, all surviving political leaders at the outset of the Congo's independence will be back in the political arena.

Gизenga claimed to be "a truce Lumumba's successor when he set up his regime in the northeast Congo after Lumumba, the Congo's first premier, was murdered in Katanga.

A person joins one of these organizations by contributing time, enthusiasm, and, of course, dues. He is rewarded for his time with personal satisfaction and an occasional pat on the back. But what happens to the reward for his financial donation? It surely couldn't be solely for that 12-page, poorly-written booklet that comes in the mail once a month or once a year.

It doesn't do any good to question the higher-ups in the organization about this point. They'll only recite the answer they've prepared, "It's going into a fund for the betterment of good old U-Tappu-Reg." There's an organization waiting for you, if you want to be selective you can find some 20,000 or more listed in the 'National Organizations of the United States,' a handy reference book on the shelves of the Social Science library.

The book lists everything from the Aaron Burr Association to the Society of Systematic Zoology. Now all you have to do is get on your marks, get set, pay your dues and join!
