Tuition increase?

Answer is at least two weeks away

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said that it will take at least two weeks before an analysis of whether the SIU system will need to raise tuition.

An increase in tuition would offset the loss of revenue that would have been generated by new state taxes.

Gov. James R. Thompson said proposed a 10 percent increase in personal and corporate income taxes. He declared his proposal dead Tuesday.

Although SIU's appropri-ations budget could include a 5 percent increase, it would leave the system facing $15 million in inflation increases, Pettit said Thursday. This budget problem could affect any programs, he said.

"We don't know how much a tuition increase would be or even if there will be one," Pettit said. "We can't rule it out."

Pettit said he will meet with other administrators today to discuss the University's options.

"We're in a bad way," Pettit said. "We have to continue to do everything it's going to take to maintain the policy."

"We will do our best to save people's jobs and avoid a tax increase, but we can't allow the quality of education to suffer," Pettit said.

Pettit said he will be meeting with the presidents of each campus and also ask for input from faculty senators on where the cuts should be made. "Something drastic is going to have to be done," he said.

Pettit said the heads of other state universities announced a few weeks ago that they would raise tuition without a tax increase. Pettit said he told them, "I said I couldn't say right now."

The policy goes into effect today and aims at creating a smoke-free campus by 1995. It prohibits smoking in all indoor areas except those designated as a "Smoking Permitted Here" sign.

Dave Elam, Wellness Center coordinator, said policies similar to the University's have been successful in other universities and places of industry.

"We're depending on people's personal courtesy and that people in the restricted areas will request those smoking to stop," Elam said.

Clean air officers, appointed from several service departments, will reprimand those not following the policy. Repeat offenders will be reported to department supervisors and residence life counselors.

President John Guyon is certain the policy will work, but not without flaws.

"It's a policy that will control human behavior to some extent."

—President John Guyon

"It's a policy that will control human behavior to some extent," Guyon said. "If you do something like that, there's bound to be problems."

Neddy Jones, member of the University task force on smoking, disagrees with the policy restrictions because it's simply not concerned with the lungs of non-smokers. (The policy) makes it a moral dilemma.

Jones, who stopped smoking at the beginning of June, said offenders are addicted to the habit and will not stop as a result of the policy.

"They're going to have to decide for themselves," Jones said. "Just because they're going to be there, they don't want to smoke doesn't mean they won't."

Phil Lyons, student representative on the task force, said it is going to be hard to enforce the policy with the students.

"The only way this will work is if everyone makes a concerted effort to follow the policy," Lyons said. "People are going to have to cooperate or it just won't work."

Elam agreed, saying it will be awkward for non-smokers to ask smokers not to light up in restricted areas or to light up in areas where smoking is permitted.

"Smoking is a privilege and breaching is a right," Elam said.

Blood drive successful

By Shawn Welch
Staff Writer

The Red Cross blood drive collected a three-day total of 412 pints, easily surpassing its goal of 370 pints, the drive coordinator said.

Vivian Urgent, blood drive coordinator for Southern Illinois University, said 256 pints were collected Thursday at the University.

"We were very busy today," Urgent said. "As a result, some people had to wait longer than usual. We really appreciated their patience."

"We're extremely happy with the total. We needed blood badly, not only because of the blood shortage, but also because of the upcoming holiday weekend."

"This drive made it easy to realize why SIUC is the number one school in the country when it comes to donating blood."

—Vivian Urgent

A total of 550 pints were collected at the University on Wednesday and Thursday, Urgent said. Another 263 pints were collected Tuesday at St. Francis Xavier Church in Carbondale.
Four bishops consecrated against pope's approval

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Traditionalist Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre created the first schism in the Roman Catholic Church in more than a century Thursday when he consecrated four bishops "explicitly against the pope's will," the Vatican said.

In addition to Lefebvre, El Salvador Archbishop Luis Silva and bishops "have been insistent in maintaining their independence," the Vatican said. Vatican officials called the schism "painful, but said it was not crucial for the church.

Sending signs to the Central American aid agreement

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz pledged to continue support for Central American democracy Thursday in a quick swing through El Salvador, where he signed an agreement for $15 million in new foreign aid funds, which visited Guatemala Wednesday and also will travel to Honduras and Costa Rica during a three-day Central American trip, arrived in El Salvador Thursday and was met by Acting President Rodolfo Castillo Clarasum.

Vietnam withdraws officials from Cambodia

HO CHI MINH CITY, Vietnam (UPI) — Vietnam withdrew its top commanders and military advisers from Cambodia Thursday and declined its nearly 10-year war against resistance forces has cost the invading army the lives of 15,000 soldiers — about the same number of U.S. troops lost in the Vietnam War.

A draft statement of a plan to cut Vietnam's 17,000 troops in Cambodia in half by the end of the year, coincided with the scheduled arrival of a U.S. Navy convoy seeking an end in the fighting.

Toronto conference urges global action plan

TORONTO (UPI) — An international conference on the atmosphere urged world governments Thursday to adopt a global action plan, warning changes in climate and sea levels could threaten food supplies, boost rates of skin cancer and bring political and economic instability. A draft statement of a plan to cut Vietnam's 17,000 troops in Cambodia in half by the end of the year, coincided with the scheduled arrival of a U.S. Navy convoy seeking an end in the fighting.

Democrats call for crackdown on drug users

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democrats called Thursday for a tough crackdown on drug users that would sharply boost spending, add more judges and jail cells, stiffen criminal penalties and expand drug abuse treatment and education.

The proposal would provide for a Cabinet-level drug czar and almost $2.5 billion a year — the amount of federal taxes now going to fight the war on drugs.

White House guards suspected of cocaine use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan expressed alarm Thursday at the suspension of three White House guards suspected of using cocaine and his spokesman said other officers are under investigation.

"Well, of course you have situations like this happen," Reagan said. "A small number of other guards are still being investigated," spokesman Martin Fitzwater said.

U.S. offers reward for info on attache's death

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration offered up to $50,000 Thursday for information leading to the arrest of those who killed a U.S. military attaché earlier this week in Athens. The leftist extremist group November 17 claimed responsibility for the car-bomb slaying of Navy Capt. William Nordeen this weekend.

The group warned in a statement it would continue to strike at U.S. targets.

Bill would allow testing for AIDS without permission

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Doctors would be able later this year to test for AIDS with their patients' consent, with or without their permission, under bill passed Thursday by the House. Under the bill, doctors could order AIDS tests if they believe it is needed for an appropriate diagnosis and treatment and if the patient has given his or her consent to receive medical treatment. The bill was sent to the Senate on an 85-3 vote despite objections that it violates the constitutional and confidentiality rights of individuals established last year by the legislature.

The Carbondale World Fair, an international festival and bazaar, will offer something different for the Fourth of July this year. Different foods, exhibits, and international events will be on display.

Watanabe, staff writer, said the fair is a unique chance for people to celebrate indoors. Reynolds added that it gives international people a chance to get involved with Fourth of July festivities and to honor their heritage. "We have a large international population in Carbondale," she said, "and more and more are coming out of the woodwork."

Aiko Toyota, a Japanese woman visiting her daughter in Herrin, does not speak English, but will display her Japanese embroidery called "Oshibori". Other exhibits include Reiko Walanabe, a University graduate student in art, selling original Grateful Dead wall hangings. Shirm Khan, a Carbondale resident, will sell handmade clothes and rugs from Pakistan.

The International Student Council will provide exhibits from various countries and will donate international flags to_carbondale mayor. Reynolds said the council also is presenting an international fashion show beginning at 11:45 a.m. at the center stage surrounding the water fountain.

Council president M. Ali Firouz said the International Student Council is interested in community involvement and the World Fair is a chance for international students to promote their heritage.

The University has about 2,300 international students representing over 100 nations, Firouz said. He said nations such as Thailand, Latin America, China, Turkey, Iran, Malaysia and others will be represented.

Reynolds said international foods ranging from funnel cakes to Polish sausages to Filipino pork kabobs also will be available. In addition to concessions stands, the International Student Association and the Indian Association will prepare authentic foods. Reynolds said.

Two Carbondale restaurants, King's Wok and Ali Baba, also will set up food booths.

Entertainment throughout the day includes belly dancing, German dancers, square dancers, Thai drama, Sumi violin, a polka band, martial arts and a Tai Chi demonstration, Reynolds said. She described Tai Chi as a gentle Chinese exercise.

The World Fair advisory board, consisting of University Mall management and representatives from the Carbondale Convention and Tourism Bureau and Chamber of Commerce, the University's International Programs and Services and the Indian Association, planned on the fair being an annual event, Reynolds said. The fair was developed as an activity to follow the Prairie State Games Torch Run, which has been held on July 4 in Carbondale for the past two years, Summy Sark, of Sen. Ralph Dunn's office, said.

The torch run promotes the Prairie State Games held in Carbondale and Champaign from July 20-23, Farr said. The games are like a state of Illinois Olympics with athletes participating in sports ranging from archery to basketball, she said.

The seven-and-a-half mile run through Carbondale starts at 9 a.m. at the tourism bureau, 714 E. Walnut St., and ends at University Mall.

In addition, the fair's festivities, Farr stressed the run is not competitive.

Area businesses and organizations are sponsoring miles in the run, but Farr said anyone is welcome to come and run. Runners get free Pepsi and T-shirt.

Carbondale is the only city south of Springfield that hosts a torch run, Farr said, adding that Carbondale's run is used as an example by other cities.

The final event of the day will be a fireworks display at 9 p.m. at SUI-C's Abe Martin baseball field, southwest of the SIU Arena.

Ella Mitchell, Lion's Club member who heads the fireworks project, said the show will take place now that it has rained. There was concern that the dry conditions would prevent the show.

Mitchell said fire chief Everett Fillman said the fireworks show could continue if it rained steadily for five minutes.

Affirmative action: Seeing some action

SOME AFFIRMATIVE ACTION finally has taken place in the University's Affirmative Action office.

President John C. Guyon appointed College of Human Resources Dean Seymour Bryson as his full-time assistant for affirmative action.

Bryson wants action. He doesn't want the office to merely comply with federal law.

In one sense, the real affirmative action is left to the Board of Trustees, which must either approve or disapprove Bryson's appointment and the office changes.

Bryson knows what needs to be done to make the office effective. By approving his appointment, the board will show its actively committed to affirmative action, and that affirmative action isn't just another item to place on the omnibus motion.

BRYSON KNOWS ABOUT the problems affirmative action has had. He knows that the office hasn't had a viable or active role in the recruiting and hiring process.

Bryson knows about the problems minority students have at SIU-C. He was the chairperson of a task force on the status of blacks at SIU-C. The task force's 175-page report states that about 75 percent of all black students who enter SIU-C, drop out before graduation.

Bryson has explained in broad terms how he plans to solve these problems. He isn't sure what kind of office structure will be needed to accomplish this. Whatever transpires, the changes shouldn't be cosmetic, they should be active and affirmative.

WHETHER THE OFFICE will be able to address these problems depends on funding, Bryson says. The office needs funding in order to become fully active, but it basically needs the full commitment of the administration, faculty, staff and students.

In this tough no-tax increase climate, it might be difficult to justify extra funds to an office that has had little or no support of the University community.

If the office has the commitment of the University, it could at least be affirmative, if not fully active.

The Boston Globe

A New Jersey verdict against a cigarette company in the death of a young man's parents is one thing. While the case may lead to other suits against tobacco companies, the best form in which to attack smoking is not the courts.

Rose Capolonne, the plaintiff, smoked for 40 years despite entreaties from her family to stop. She quit in 1983 after being diagnosed as having lung cancer.

L&amp;M, a brand Capolonne smoked in the 1950s, advertised itself as "Just what the doctor ordered." in a campaign anti-smoking advocates believe was intended to soothe fears. Yet throughout this time, evidence was accumulating that smoking was dangerous.

Now that smoking no longer enjoys social acceptance, it is possible to prevent millions of youngsters from becoming addicted in their teens, as Capolonne was in 1941. Congress should employ an economic disincentive and drastically increase the cigarette excise tax as a way to discourage smoking by the young.

Doonesbury

When you're down in the dumps, it's good to have a buddy, someone who un­derstands a little about it. And I'm lucky. I have such a pal.

There I was this morning, sitting at my desk feeling miserable about an old problem. My wife was furious because I've been sneaking puffs on cigarettes. Some of my friends were mad at me for the same reason. And I was disgusted with myself for not having enough will power to quit once and for all.

Then, as morsely flipped through the newspapers, I found my buddy — someone who understands and even supports my nicotine habit.

My pal's name is Phil. More formally, Phil. As in Philip Morris Inc., the giant in­ternational conglomerate.

And how did our pal Phil back up my argument? With a new ad campaign. You may have seen it. There was a full-page spread in various big newspapers. It said: "I'm Phil. I see nothing to lose."

I'm not sure if I'm too much financial power to ignore.

I'm told Philip Morris, $17 billion, makes 25 million smokers a powerful economic force. If their households spent their billion on tobacco, it would be the third largest in the world. The plain truth is that smokers are one of the most economically powerful groups in this country. They help fuel the engine of the largest economy on the globe.

"The American Smoker — an economic force." We're not that good knowing that I was part of a vast economic force, although my share of that $1 trillion is modest.

A spokesman for Philip Morris Magazine, which placed the ad, explained:

"The reason for the ad campaign is that we feel the legal action and the anti-smoking ads have been overlooked and underrated (or too long). We're trying to say that businesses and municipalities should think about what they're doing before they discriminate against a large segment of their employees, customers and voters."

I felt so good about having a buddy like Phil that I showed the ad to my friend Slats Grodsky, a reformed smoker. Slats sneered and said, "You think that when you croak from smoking your pal Phil Morris will send flowers to your funeral?"

Some people are always negative. Must he be in the genes. So I took a different approach, pointing out that Philip Morris is in the anti-smokers know that we are a force to be reckoned with and that they shouldn't discriminate against us.

"Big deal," Slats said. "Dope peddlers are an economic force. Should we hold a parade for them? So are unfailable spouses, pimps and hookers. A lot of metals would fold without 'em. And what about boozers?"

What about boozers?

"Go in any bar after work and look at people gathered there. At 5 o'clock, all over America, the hook is floored. If booze industry could figure out that boozers represent a large part of the economy and take 'em as ad just like Philip Morris did.

"The ad could say: 'Boosters — an Economic Force.' And they wouldn't want to do it to politicians who pass tough drunk driving laws or laws that say what time saloons have to close and to employers who don't want their workers getting loaded or coming in hangovers. But they don't do it. You know why?"

Phil.

"Because it would sound stupid, like that Philip Morris ad."

That's no way to talk about my new pal. Phil.

"Some pal. If they're going to tell about what an economic force smokers are, why, they don't get it into some specifics?"

Phil.

"How much extra business you provide for doctors when you mess up your ticker or your lungs turn to caustic. And for fire departments, when you light up the house down. Or how much business they generate for oxygen tanks. Speaking of oxygen, you remember the Marlboro Man.

Who doesn't? A rugged cowboy, up on a horse, smoking a cigarette. He was at one time the spokesmodel in America. "Yeah, he was selling Phil's cigarettes. And you remember what he died of?

Slats.

"Sip my mind."

"Why don't ya ask his widow. And ask her what she thinks of your pal Phil's a?"

It wasn't bad idea. So we called her. And the Marlboro Man's widow said: "Em­physema killed him, and it was brought on by smoking. And it's irresponsible to en­courage people to poison themselves."

Phil.

On second thought I'm not sure if you're my pal after all. And I think you are.

Tell me the truth. You won't send flowers to my funeral, will ya?"

I didn't think so.

When you're down in the dumps, it's good to have a buddy, someone who under­stands a little about it. And I'm lucky. I have such a pal.
It’s ‘30’ for DE’s managing editor

By Christine Schoeddy Staff Writer

The Daily Egyptian’s managing editor left Thursday to take the position of reorganization of the faculty and staff positions at the newspaper.

Former managing editor Gordon Billingsley was offered a contract through August 31, but did not accept because he was informed of the renewal four days before his former expiration on June 30. Billingsley has worked for the newspaper since September 1986.

School of Journalism Director Walter B. Jaehnig told a DE reporter in April that because of a $200,000 computer system, the job description of the managing editor might change.

Jaehnig said because of affirmative action guidelines it may be necessary to restructure for the position. Jaehnig was out of town Thursday and could not reach for comment.

The current managing editor for the DE, James J. Brodeil, will suffer the same fate in August.

Brodeil said the responsibilities of the business manager are being divided among other people in the business office.

Billingsley said his job was to "supervise the newsroom, review and hire... and give advice to the writers."

He said of his former position, "I’ll miss it."

Korean political prisoners freed

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — The nation’s best-known political prisoner, Kim Jong-hwa, and 45 others were released Monday in a move the government said was aimed at calming the stresses which forced the government to impose democratic reforms.

Also Thursday, a dissident given press freedom five years ago that President Roh Tae-woo, former President Kim Jong-hwa and eight others, including two Americans, were cleared of all punishment for their roles in criticizing the government crackdown on 1980 in which 200 people died.

Kim was released after serving two years and one month in jail for violating the ban on criticism by organizing students and workers against government demands for noses against the coup, the Justice Ministry said. He had been sentenced to life in jail.

He earned international attention when he charged at his trial that he was tortured for the Agency for National Security Planning, formerly called the Korean Central Intelligence Agency. Other prisoners had not spoken until their release from their cells.

Kim, winner of the 1980 American Momentum Human Rights Award, was released along with 45 other prisoners by the president to mark the 20th anniversary of Roh’s "June 29 Declaration" when as a candidate he promised allowing direct presidential elections and other democratic reforms.

Opposition parties criticized Roh for not releasing more than 1,000 other prisoners they say were jailed for their political beliefs. Western Asian countries identified about 230 still jailed political prisoners.

Kim was released from a prison near Kimche, 112 miles southeast of Seoul, and was greeted at the prison gate by his wife and several dozen supporters.

Kim and his wife, In-Jae, shared the Kennedy award last year, but his Korean government refused In-Jae’s permission to travel to the United States to accept the award.

In 1983, was given the Kennedy award for her human rights work in South Korea.

Kim, Minghagyp, the Association of Families of Democratic Prisoners, which pressures the government to release political detainees.

Roh, then commander of the Capital Garrison Command, also was a "principal culprit" in the case, the committee said.

The inspectors were triggered by a sweeping government crackdown on political dissent, it is included in the report by Kim Deok-joo, who is from near Kwangju.

Nine hundred and seven people cashed in their tickets during the three days, Ugent said. A total of 26 people were deferred, primarily because of a low iron count, she said.

Sidetracks needs new tax numbers to stay on track

Although owners hope Sidetracks will continue to stay open, patrons may find it closed Friday. If so, it will be open Saturday, they said.

The bar temporarily lost its liquor license because of city pressures to get the license back, the employees said. the owners were told by the Illinois Department of Revenue they could keep the same tax numbers even though the bar had changed owners. But the City said the change in ownership requires they obtain new numbers.

Sidetracks was owned by the Cole and John Alexander. Alexander is now the sole owner.

Clark said she is driving to Springfield today to get the new numbers. She said she should be back early enough to go to the city clerk’s office and renew the expired license to keep Sidetracks open.
Gromky’s removal from Politburo urged

MOSCOW (UPI) — In a dramatic move orchestrated by Mikhail Gorbachev, a delegate to the Communist Party conference called Thursday for the ouster of two aging members of the Politburo, including President Andrei Gromyko, a towering figure in the Soviet government since the days of Lenin.

The unprecedented attack on members of the elite by Vladimir Mazalov, head of a regional party organization, was one of the most sensational events in a day which saw a sharp rise in the level of debate over political reform.

Those who in the past actively promoted the policy of stagnation may not serve and work on the central party and government bodies now, at the time of perestroika (reforming)," declared Mazalov. "They should answer for everything and for themselves-personally."

At this point, Soviet leader Gorbachev, seated behind Mazalov at the front of the cavernous Kremlin hall, asked the official from Komi in the north of Russia to identify precisely whom he had in mind.

"I would apply this to Gorenje Solomuzhev in first place and to comrades Gromyko, Abramsky, and Beleuski," Mazalov told the 5,000 delegates.

Two men named were delegates to the conference and Gromyko and Solomuzhev both were seated near Gorbachev because of their membership in the main Politburo that rules the country.

But state television broadcast the verbal attack on Gromyko and showed Gorbachev eagerly clapping his hands in apparent anticipation as the rotund Mazalov approached the rostrum.

The television also contradicted Sklyarv's report, saying applause rang out when Mazalov responded to Gorbachev's demand to give names.

Sklyarv said a subsequent delegate note was read aloud defense of Greenpeace, "an honorable man" and received thunderous applause.

McLeod Theater to be alive with the “Sound of Music”

By Carrie Ferguson

McLeod Theater will bring the “Sound of Music” alive as Summer Playhouse ’88 opens tonight.

The popular Rodgers and Hammerstein musical is set in pre-World War II Austria. It is the story of a young widower, Maria, and her involvement with the Von Trapp family.

 Assigned by her convent, Maria goes to the Von Trapp home to act as governess to the seven children of Captain Von Trapp, a widower.

The story follows Maria’s involvement with the children and their father, as she teaches them the importance of fun, laughter and music.

When Nazi influence threatens Austria, the family is forced to flee over the Alps into Switzerland, and begin a new life.

The play is directed by Elizabeth Carlin, assistant professor of theater. She directed the department’s production of “Romeo and Juliet” in 1987.

At Wednesday night’s straight-run dress rehearsal, Carlin said she was extremely happy with the production.

“Look, I’ve only taken a page-and-a-half of notes; usually I take eight,” she said.

“It is a different kind of theater...we couldn’t take any risks with the audience, so we chose the ‘Sound of Music,’" Carlin said. "It is a show with integrity and depth.”

Susan Wedekind, from Tuscow, Ariz., is a delightfully witty and energetic Maria. She delivered a brilliant performance during the dress rehearsal.

Bob May brings Captain Von Trapp to life with a believable and elegant performance.

The three oldest children are played by University students Charles Cook, Jeff Lewis and Marybeth Scherr. The four youngest Von Trapps – Jacob Tate, Carrie Farr, Amy Gunzenbach and Julia Steiner – are from the Carbondale-Murphysboro area.

The children give a fantastic performance. Their singing, acting and dancing will bring a smile to everyone’s face.

The voice to listen for belongs to Christine Zimmerman, who plays Mother Abbess. Zimmerman will mesmerize audiences when Magazine, played by Susan Wedekind, confronted Captain Von Trapp, played by Bob May, during the dress rehearsal of the “Sound of Music” Wednesday night. The play will be presented at McLeod Theater tonight through Sunday and from July 7 through July 10.

she sings “Climb Ev’ry Mountain.” Songs from the musical, such as “My Favorite Things,” and “The Hills,” have become family classics. The orchestra, conducted by Mike Hanes, does a fine job of keeping the production’s energy level up.

The 1988 production of “Sound of Music” definitely will leave all audiences smiling.

Indictments months away

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Indictments in the Pentagon probe (charges for which were not made) are not likely until late this year, House Armed Services Committee Chairman James E. Astrue, D-Wis., said Thursday.

Astrue made the comments after closed briefing by Pentagon officials, and he was investigating on charges of a scandal in the Navy in the San Francisco Bay Area some time before the end of this year.

He said work by the NIS and the FBI so far has largely been "a question of getting the "exercise" more than a criminal investigation, something he said is now getting started with premises and search warrants.

The investigation is really just beginning, he said, and so far the NIS and FBI might have broken the law. It was set as an investigation as such. From now on the investigation really begins with searches and search warrants.

"They say don't look for indictments until November or December," he added, as he declined to discuss any specific aspects of the investigation.

"I think it has a long way to go. I think indictments will be forthcoming and there will be many of them," he said.

John Hopkins and other committee members declined to discuss specifics of the case, saying they did not want to jeopardize the investigation.

Early morning fire destroys apartment

By John Washby
Staff Writer

A fire Thursday morning destroyed an upstairs apartment on Carbondale's south side.

A couple living downstairs alerted the manager after he heard glass breaking. Lucinda VanDover, manager of the Carl Arta Apartments at 166 N. Grant St., said.

Vandover said after she called the firefighters she attempted to open the apartment window. Lockridge was in the still in the apartment.

Vandover said she knocked on the door several times, but got no answer and had to use a key.

"I went up the stairs (in the apartment) and I could feel the heat, so I came back down," she said.

Lockridge was not in the apartment when the fire started.

John Michaelakis, Carbondale firefighter, said firefighters found two windows when the firefighters arrived at about 4 a.m. The fire was started when an area left in the bedroom came in contact with clothing, according to Michaelakis.

Damage was estimated at about $5,000 to the structure of the building and $5,000 to the contents, Michaelakis said. The building was insured, according to a family member of the owner.

"Designer drug" Ecstasy causes neurological damage in primates

CHICAGO (UPI) - Ecstasy, a "designer drug" that became a breakthrough to protest groups as a key chemical is the brain and may cause permanent neurological damage, the斧h Hines indicated Thursday.

Six monkeys injected with 3,4-methylenedioxy-methylamphetamine, or MDMA, showed a marked decline in the serotonine, a key chemical that is involved in the transmission of neural messages at the brain, Hines said.

The researchers from Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The researchers said their findings help to show the effects in animals and should serve as a warning to anyone who decides to take the drug.

"It remains to be determined if administration of MDMA to monkeys in a pattern identical to that used by humans results in similar toxicity," the researchers said. But they cautioned that the drug, if used, should be used as a potential drug in the toxic effects of drugs. It is used to study patients with neurological disease, the researchers said.

"In view of these considerations, they would not recommend its use or its use for the treatment of patients with similar neurological disorders. It would seem prudent for humans to exercise caution in the use of MDMA."

Navratilova wins over Evert; top-seed Graf beats Shriver

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Defending champion Navratilova, seeking for a record ninth Wimbledon singles title, and Steffi Graf, considered the top-seed American Pam Shriver in 59 minutes in the semifinals.

Navratilova edged perennial rival Evert, 6-1, 6-4, 6-1 in their 77th meeting. Graf, the top-seed, defeated Shriver, the third-seed American Pam Shriver in 59 minutes in the other semifinal.

Navratilova, 31, has won the All England title, for six straight years. Graf, 19, is contesting for a Grand Slam sweep, having won the Australasian and French Opens.

The men's semifinals are scheduled for Friday. Two-time champion Peter Becket faces world No. 1 Ivan Lendl, who has yet to win a Wimbledon semifinal against Ivan Lendl.

"I'm going to win seven matches to win the tournament," the West German said Thursday, a day after routing defending champion Pat Cash in straight sets to set the stage for the clash with Lendl. "I'm playing good, and I'm feeling good, but it doesn't give me the trophy." Lendl, the top seed, has lost the Wimbledon semifinals for two straight years and has yet to win a Grand Slam title.

In Friday's other semifinal, Stefan Edberg, the third seed, faces world No. 2 Michael Stich, who has troubled Swedes in the past. The Czechoslovakian ended that reputation Wednesday when he ended Mats Wilander's Grand Slam bid. Wilander won the French and Australian Opens.

Lendl returns to the court against Becker, seeded ninth this year, when the West German claimed his second crown at the All England Club two years ago. Lendl was stunned by Australian Cash a year ago in the final.

Lendl holds a 7-3 career edge over Becker, but will have trouble matching the joy and intensity the West German returns to the court.

Becker, the fast, unpredictable surface goes against his well-ordered game.

Navratilova, the second seed, improved to 6-6-37 against Evert in career. She beat Evert to 4-6 in the final game, but squandered two match points on their third break point in a pair of shots into the net. She came on a close-call, as Evert's forehand clipped the top of the net and was ruled wide. Navratilova waited for the linesman's call before continuing and stayed at the baseline, waiting for confirmation from the umpire, before walking to shake Navratilova's hand.

"I can't say if it was cut or in. It's just too bad that it (the call) had to be so hesitant," Navratilova said. "It was just a battle of wills and great shots.

"I think my serve pulled me out, helped me out a lot, but it was a struggle. We were both playing too well for either one to pull away."

Evert, 33, a three-time winner and seven times a runner-up, was convinced her final return fell good.

"I was so sure it was good and I was so happy it was done," she said.

"I was totally unaware that he had called it in. Usually don't question calls, but it was so crucial, maybe it was a mixture of hoping and seeing. I really didn't think that the ball was ruled the line."

The defending champion had one match point in the 10th game of the final set, when she held the advantage on Evert's serve. But Evert faced one with a forehand passing shot for deuce, and held her serve to tie the set at 5-5.

Graf has played 20 Grand Slam matches without dropping a set. Her six matches at Wimbledon have lasted a total of 6 hours 47 minutes. She has lost only 17 games.

"I know I had to come up with something I didn't have," Shriver said. "It was a fight out there. I felt very naked.

Shriver lost to Graf in last years semifinals 6-4, 6-5.

Lawyer: Tyson retired, but manager suit stays

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mike Tyson's lawyer Thursday said the world heavyweight champion has retired from boxing, but is continuing legal action to break his contract with his manager in case he returns to the ring.

"Michael told me yesterday, 'I'm retired,' just like he said in the newspaper," Michael Winston said at a news conference Thursday. "He filed to discuss Tyson's suit against manager Bill Cayton.

Asked why Tyson was placing his suit with Cayton, Winston said, "We all reserve the right to change our minds. Tyson, who turned 22 Tuesday, was granted a temporary injunction Wednesday stopping any money from going to Spinks from going to Cayton, and preventing Cayton from acting as his manager. That restraining order was granted by Judge David H. Edwards, Jr., in New York State Supreme Court, pending a July 15 trial.

Tyson spent his birthday in Dallas, N. Y., after his 91-second knockout over Spinks in the biggest bout of his boxing career. His 21 knockouts, said after the fight, brought Tyson $2 million.

Winston Thursday spoke for the first time about the suit filed Monday against the Man. Located in Wheeling, W. Va., was fired Wednesday. By Beth Clavin

The University of Northern Iowa has hired the University of Northern Iowa head coach to meet the Salukis on Nov. 18. Bruce was hired Wednesday, joining former Buckeye basketball coach Eldon Miller. Bruce led the 1967-68, by Ohio State compiling a nine-year record of 81-26-1. He was also had a 36-22 record at Iowa State in Ames and was named the Big Eight Coach of the Year in 1976 and 1977.

The University of Northern Iowa is in the Gateway Conference with the Salukis and will be at McAndrew Stadium for Southern Illinois Day. Last year, the Salukis lost at the Salukis 203, finishing with a record of 11-4.
Tennis player one of 4 with perfect grades

By Jeff Grissel
Staff Writer

SUU-C tennis player Dean Russell was one of four student-athletes in the Missouri Valley Conference with a perfect 4.0 grade point average, which put him on the 1998 MVC Commissioner’s List.

The list also includes students who earned a GPA of 3.8 or better during the 1997-98 academic year and competed in at least one sport. This year list has 16 student-athletes from the eight MVC institutions.

Russell was a bit surprised by being named to the list.

“This is the first I’ve ever heard about it (the commissioner’s list),” Russell said.

Russell, a pre-med biology major, said studying and playing tennis can get tough, but she doesn’t have time to relax.

“It gets kind of hard with the morning classes,” he said.

The two sport life a lot to do from 6 a.m. until noon, and practice is from 2 to 5 p.m. “I have to study some after that but, if you’re right, you can have the evenings free to do other things.”

Russell is one of five women to make the list. Others with 4.0 marks are: Bill O’Dowd, basketball player from Creighton; Brian Scott from the Drake track team, and Peter Bedenecker, a distance runner from Tulsa.

SUU-C tied Wichita State for third place with 23 student-athletes on the list. Indiana State had the way with 26, Illinois State placed 28, and Bradley and Creighton had 19.

Drake placed 15 and Tulsa had 12.

SUU-C President John Guyon said: “I’m absolutely delighted with the performance of our student-athletes. The student comes first in student-athlete, and our athletes are doing a good job of maintaining high academic standards.”

The Saluki men’s tennis team had five players on the list. Joining Russell are Jairo Aldana, George Him, Juan Martinez, and Fabiano Ramos. Tennis coach Dick LeFevre said his players are able to work on their studies around a hard schedule.

“We’ve done something about it (academics) and we try to accommodate the team at best we can,” LeFevre said. "Some of the kids have to miss practice for classes and tests, or else they come and practice later. I think they’ve done outstanding because a lot of studying has to be done during a rough schedule.”

The Salukis had eight baseball players on the list: Larry Beutler, Brent Finner, Rock Garre, Matt Guglielmo, Robert Hass, David Humpfling was the lone member of the Saluki basketball squad on the list, and Thomas Neuman was the only Saluki golfer.

SUU-C placed eight track and cross country student-athletes, including Eric Bomball, Ron Harver, Gerard Horan, and Bobbie Keas. Tennis players were: Harold Shephard, Edwin Taylor, and Shane Weber.

Guyon: Thought on AD continues on weekend

By Beth Clavin
Staff Writer

President John Guyon said he has not reached a decision in the search for a new athletics director.

He said he “continued to think” today and heard the opinions of a few coaches and other interested parties.

“Some (athletic directors) have said, ‘I’m going to work on it over the weekend,’ Guyon said.”

Guyon still expects to reach a decision the first week in July.

Meanwhile, the candidates for the position have received new word on their status.

The candidates for the position are current athletics director Charlottesville West, athletics director at Central Missouri State University Jerry Hughes, athletics director at the College of William and Mary in California State University Ralph Barkey and former St. Louis Cardinal Jim Hart.

Former track star returns to University

By Brad Rohou
Staff Writer

Former women’s track and field distance runner Vivian Simone recently returned to SUU-C after a month-long European tour with the Greek National team, which is from her native country.

Her tour with the track and field team was cut short to finish her last semester at SUU-C this fall and to assist head coach Don DeNook in training the women’s cross country team in the upcoming season.

She said the cross country team has potential, Simone said, but she will be hard on those who did not keep up their practice over the summer break.

After finishing second in the 1500- and 3000-meter competitions at the Greek Nationals, Simone traveled to Belgium with the Greek track and field team where she made personal bests in every event she participated in.

Simone said competing in Belgium was a frightening experience because she had no coach for guidance, but her success on the team was a “nice change” and helped her to overcome her fear.

Simone admitted she had become a national sports hero somewhere in her country since she came out of nowhere and almost made the Greek Olympic team.

Good athletes are well protected for in Greece, Simone said, and she would have liked to run with the team for the rest of the tour but decided returning to SUU-C would be in her best interest. She said it would be too difficult to continue running with the team while working on her master’s degree.

Drake placed 15 and Tulsa had 12.

SUU-C President John Guyon said: “I’m absolutely delighted with the performance of our student-athletes. The student comes first in student-athlete, and our athletes are doing a good job of maintaining high academic standards.”

The Saluki men’s tennis team had five players on the list. Joining Russell are Jairo Aldana, George Him, Juan Martinez, and Fabiano Ramos. Tennis coach Dick LeFevre said his players are able to work on their studies around a hard schedule.

“We’ve done something about it (academics) and we try to accommodate the team at best we can,” LeFevre said. "Some of the kids have to miss practice for classes and tests, or else they come and practice later. I think they’ve done outstanding because a lot of studying has to be done during a rough schedule.”

The Salukis had eight baseball players on the list: Larry Beutler, Brent Finner, Rock Garre, Matt Guglielmo, Robert Hass, David Humpfling was the lone member of the Saluki basketball squad on the list, and Thomas Neuman was the only Saluki golfer.

SUU-C placed eight track and cross country student-athletes, including Eric Bomball, Ron Harver, Gerard Horan, and Bobbie Keas. Tennis players were: Harold Shephard, Edwin Taylor, and Shane Weber.

Guyon: Thought on AD continues on weekend

President John Guyon said he has not reached a decision in the search for a new athletics director.

He said he “continued to think” today and heard the opinions of a few coaches and other interested parties.

“Some (athletic directors) have said, ‘I’m going to work on it over the weekend,’ Guyon said.”

Guyon still expects to reach a decision the first week in July.

Meanwhile, the candidates for the position have received new word on their status.

The candidates for the position are current athletics director Charlottesville West, athletics director at Central Missouri State University Jerry Hughes, athletics director at the College of William and Mary in California State University Ralph Barkey and former St. Louis Cardinal Jim Hart.

Former track star returns to University

Former women’s track and field distance runner Vivian Simone recently returned to SUU-C after a month-long European tour with the Greek National team, which is from her native country.

Her tour with the track and field team was cut short to finish her last semester at SUU-C this fall and to assist head coach Don DeNook in training the women’s cross country team in the upcoming season.

She said the cross country team has potential, Simone said, but she will be hard on those who did not keep up their practice over the summer break.

After finishing second in the 1500- and 3000-meter competitions at the Greek Nationals, Simone traveled to Belgium with the Greek track and field team where she made personal bests in every event she participated in.
