PULLIAM SERVES ON FACULTY OF WASHINGTON U.

Southern President Teaching At a Neighboring University
For Second Consecutive Year

President Robert C. Pulliam is teaching at the Southern Illinois University whose term at the University of Illinois was completed in December. He will return to Southern Illinois University in the fall to continue his teaching duties.

During this past year, Pulliam has served on the faculty of the University of Illinois, where he has been a professor of economics since 1960. He has also served as dean of the College of Commerce and Business Administration at the University of Illinois since 1963.

In his dual role as Southern President and University of Illinois faculty member, Pulliam has balanced the demands of his administrative duties with his teaching responsibilities.

CENSORSHIP

By Associated College Press

Bulgaria in Washington, according to an article appearing in a national periodical, is announcing formal establishment of a censorship bureau in our nation's capital. Apparently this move is encouraging the move in an attempt to preserve national sentiment. Bulgaria is now preparing to ban all literature which contains any reporting of the war, or the condition of the war, or that criticizes the government of any other nation. It is feared that censorship in the United States may follow this example.

There is no word yet as to what form this censorship will take. There is little difference in the censorship of the United States and the censorship of other nations. In the United States, censorship is absolute. There is no censorship of the press in the United States. The United States government, as a whole, has never been in favor of censorship. It is the policy of the United States government to maintain full freedom of the press and to protect the freedom of the press.

POWERS OF THE PRESIDENT

President Roosevelt now has extensive powers over most of the activities and functions of the United States and its citizens. Under the authority granted him by the constitution, he has absolute control over all executive departments, agencies, and commissions of the federal government. His powers extend to all departments of the government, including the military, the Treasury, the Post Office, and all other agencies of the federal government.

The powers of the president are absolute, and he can direct the executive branch of the government to act in any manner he deems necessary.

MISS AMERICA FIGHT

The American people were suddenly brought face to face with the idea of fighting for their country. The idea of fighting for their country is not new, but it has never been so pressing.

Almost instantly the question was asked, "Shall we fight?"

It is essential that we all fight, for there is no alternative. It is essential that we all fight for our country.

In the first place, we must be prepared to fight if necessary. We must be prepared to fight the war, to protect our country, and to fight for our freedom.

When this has been accomplished, the attitude of the offender should be humanitarian. If Germans and Germans have been accused, they should be treated with the same respect that they would receive from us if we were to fight for our freedom.

The answer is positive. We should not attempt to predict the outcome. There are, however, only two conditions that seem likely to occur: either we will win the war, or we will lose the war.+m
