No tax hike may mean higher tuition

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit, who said Gov. James R. Thompson's tax proposal, which includes a 10 percent salary increase for faculty and staff, would provide the University with money "at the level we've been shooting for," if Thompson's proposal -- as set last Thursday -- is approved, nearly $127 million in new funds would go to Illinois colleges. This is close to the level recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education, Pettit said. Originally a 13-percent salary increase was requested, Pettit said. "I don't think we can count on anything without a tax increase -- anything but a disaster," Pettit said.

Without a tax increase the governor has said he would veto a 7-percent salary increase for faculty and staff at SIU. The budget was cut.

Pettit said he would not rule out a tuition increase if the tax increase plan fails. Tuition was increased $100 per semester last year after Thompson could not find a $150 increase in Thompson's tax proposal and the University's budget was cut.

Until the tax increase question is resolved, the House Appropriations Committee cut the SIU appropriation and the Senate will not agree to the amendment, Southern Illinois Daily Egyptian, June 14, 1988.

Crafts, memories recall Makanda's 100 years

By Christine Cudsky

Visitors and residents strolled along the rickety wooden boardwalk of the old L.J. Stil building in downtown Makanda Saturday and Sunday to celebrate the village's 100th birthday.

During the two-day Centennial Celebration, flags hung, balloons floated and old-time music played. The festival featured various scheduled events, including many handmade crafts by local artists, plenty of hometown storytelling and reunions.

Carroll Rowan of Millstadt said he was reared in Makanda and came back to see friends. He remembered the railroad depot, where the noon and evening trains stopped and took riders to Carbondale, Anna or Golconda for 10 cents.

"It was a great thing to see when you got off the train," Rowan said.

One of the event's coordinators, E.D. McGuire, a 93-year-old Makanda native, said his life was a series of short stories, which depicts the people and history of Makanda.

"Makanda has a very large background," McGuire said.

Makanda Mayor Joanne Simpson said the book was bound especially for the celebration.

McGuire said the village was agriculturally productive in 1930 and had more than 60 businesses, three banks and three hotels. Now, crafts and tourism identify Makanda, he said.

Smokers get a chance to kick the habit

By Megan Hauck

The Wellness Center is offering a seven-week program to help people stop smoking and prepare for new regulations limiting smoking on campus.

The program, "Freedom From Smoking," is open to faculty and staff.

Dave Elam, Wellness Center coordinator, said the program, which is expected to start today, will involve group support.

"I'm very optimistic about the program," said Elam, who will be teaching the program. "The people who are registered for it decided to quit smoking almost out of necessity, and for most, it's something they've wanted to do for a long time." Elam said that only about five people are registered for the program but that he expects pects "around 10 or 15 to show up.

The program has a $25 fee with $10 refunded for perfect attendance.

The University Clean Air Policy, effective July 1, prohibits smoking except in designated areas. The University hopes to eliminate all indoor smoking by 1996.

Elam said the new policy was designed to enforce the already existing one of prohibiting smoking in classrooms, laboratories, Shryock Auditorium and the Arena. Elam is a member of the University task force appointed to curtail smoking in campus buildings.

"It'll decrease the times a non-smoker must suffer silently or assert himself," Elam said. "The overall purpose of the policy is that it guarantees the non-smokers the right to breathe smoke-free air."

Tobacco industry blamed for smoker's death

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) -- A jury Monday handed the tobacco industry its first loss in nearly 40 years of smoker death suits, blaming a cigarette company for the lung cancer that killed a heavy smoker and awarding $400,000 in damages to her widow.

The federal court jury found Liggett Group Inc. partially to blame for the 1964 death of Rose Cipollone, 58, of Little Ferry, N.J., who smoked the company's Chesterfields and L&M filters from 1942 to 1968. The jury -- composed of one smoker, two former smokers and three members who never smoked habitually -- cleared two other cigarette makers, Philip Morris Inc. and Lorillard Inc., of liability for Cipollone's death after 40 years of pack-a-day smoking.

The jury rejected the plaintiff's charge that all three cigarette makers conspired to mislead their customers about the dangers of smoking.

The verdict, certain to be appealed, marks the tobacco industry's first loss in a suit over a smoker's death. The tobacco industry had fended off about 350 suits every since the early 1960s, when epidemiological and animal studies first linked cigarette smoking to cancer.

The Cipollone suit, one of only four such cases to reach the stage of jury deliberations in the 1980s, was closely watched because of the number of damaging and previously unreleased internal company documents that lawyer Marc Z. Edell produced during a four-month trial.

Edell conceded that the split verdict, in the jury's fifth day of deliberations, was not a clear-cut victory over the cigarette industry. But he said it was "a lot better than to be another notch in their gun."

"This shows that they're not invincible," he said.

Liggett's lawyer, Donald Colon, disagreed.

"I'm confident that we will get the first verdict against us reversed on appeal," Colon said.

Korean students attack American cultural center

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Radical students hurled firebombs and tear-gas grenades at an American cultural center southeast of Seoul Monday, the sixth attack on an U.S. facility in two months, officials said. A spokesman for the U.S. Information Service in Seoul said three students attacked the American Cultural Center in Taeung, 155 miles southeast of Seoul, injuring no injuries and only minor damage to the building. It was the sixth attack on U.S. facilities in South Korea since February.

American, Russian Eskimos meet in Siberia

PROVIDEN,YA, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — Siberia opened its doors Monday for a warm welcome to American Eskimos and other Asians who arrived on an official visit to meet with the “ice curtain” that for 46 years has separated Eskimos across the Bering Strait. Long-kept Eskimo relatives renewed kinship, chattering excitedly in the Siberian Yupik Eskimo language after the U.S. contingent arrived aboard an Alaska Airlines Boeing 737.

Canadian charged with spying on U.S. forces

OTTAWA (UPI) — The government has charged a Canadian citizen with espionage for allegedly passing U.S. military secrets “that would be very useful to the Soviet Union” to a foreign agent, a top official said Monday. Solicitor General James Kellisher, Canada’s top law enforcement officer, said Stephen Joseph Ratkai, 25, was arrested June 11 and charged Sunday in a second trial stemming from a racial attack in St. John’s, Newfoundland, under the Official Secrets Act. Kellisher did not disclose the nationality of the foreign agent.

OPEC decides against production increase

VIENNA (UPI) — OPEC oil ministers Monday decided not to raise their production ceiling in face of a bitter debate within the 13-nation cartel over adjusting output to balance world oil prices, sources said. Iran’s Oil Minister Gholamreza Aghazadeh threatened to reject any formal agreement that gives its archenemy Iraq the right to produce as much oil as Tehran. The Iranian threat followed Sunday’s walkout by the United Arab Emirates’ oil minister, underscoring the deep discord among the 13 member states over attempts to shore up sagging world oil prices.

U.S. seeks extradition of Palestinian terrorist

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration has asked the Greek government to extradite a Palestinian suspected of planting a bomb that killed three adults and an 8-month-old baby on a TWA airliner in 1986, a State Department spokesman said Monday. Greece has not responded to the United States’ request but has said it intends to try Mohammed Rashid on charges he was carrying a false Syrian diplomatic passport when arrested May 30, a U.S. official said.

Dukakis criticizes Bush on anti-drug policy

SOMERVILLE, Mass. (UPI) — Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis visited an anti-drug program Monday and criticized a call by Vice President George Bush to impose the death penalty for drug kingpins. The governor questioned Bush’s stand in light of U.S. dealings with Panama’s leader, Gen. Manuel Noriega, who was indicted Feb. 4 by two federal grand juries on drug smuggling charges.

Morton Thiokol to test shuttle booster today

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (UPI) — Engineers Monday readied a 1.2 million pound shuttle booster for a key test firing Tuesday in a new $22 million facility that can import external launch-type forces on the rocket during ignition. The 136-foot rocket, called qualification motor No. 7, or QM-7 for short, was scheduled to be fired for a full two minutes today at Morton Thiokol Inc.’s Brigham City plant.

Second trial in New York racial attack begins

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prosecutors Monday told a jury in the second trial stemming from a racial attack in Howard Beach that they would prove the guilt of a white teenage defendant in what was “a race riot in every ugly sense of the word.” But a lawyer for the teenager charged with attempted murder in the Dec. 20, 1986, attack insisted his client, Thomas Gucciardo, 19, “sits here innocent and he will walk out of here innocent.” If convicted, Gucciardo faces up to 25 years in prison.

Finicky felines find show is the cat’s meow

By Carrie Ferguson
Entertainment Editor

The cats purred, the owners cooed and the crowd gasped when they first saw the annual All-American “Alley” Cat Show at St. Francis Xavier Hall Saturday. The show brought out cats of every size, color and temperament.

There were 10 categories in which owners could enter their cats. Some categories were: best Halloween cat, owner-feline look-alike and most aristocratic.

Fifty-five cats were entered in this year’s show. “It’s an opportunity for people to come out with their pets and have a good time,” Cindy Nelson, manager of the Humane Society’s shelter in Carbondale, said.

The best Halloween cat category began the show. Atay, an 8-year-old long-haired owned by Jonathan Ugent, Carbondale, was disqualified when he hissed at the cat next to him and jumped off the table.

“He’s afraid of other cats because the cat down the street beats up on him,” Fry said. Atay was captured with a net and glove.

The prize for best Halloween cat was awarded to Callie, owned by Sandra Piercy of Carbondale. Callie, a two-year-old male tabby, won the most unusual color markings category. Callie, owned by Sandra Brown of Jonesboro, is unusual because she was found at a shelter.

Brown said there is a one-in-50,000 chance that a calico cat will be male and only 18 percent of those will be fertile. Tri-colored Callie is fertile and researchers from the University of Missouri at Columbia and the National Institute of Health in Washington, D.C., are hoping to study Callie’s sex chromosomes.

Nine-month-old Spuds my Kitty won the most friendly cat award. Spuds my Kitty was presented to the judges in a cage with her 2-year-old friend DD.

“Spuds nurses DD. They are always together,” Jill Sauge of Murphyboro said. DD is a Siamese dog.

First prize in the owner-feline look-alike category went to Kari Dotson of Carbondale and her 17-year-old cat DQ. Dotson and DQ both wore peach colored ties.

Classes feel heat of budget crunch

The letter of Vice Chancellor Thomas C. Britton cannot be disregarded by either the faculty, staff or students of this University. Basically he criticized the letter of Professor Albert Somit, who condemned that the administration of the University is disorganized and lacks leadership. From the students' point of view, I tend to agree with Professor Somit.

While Vice Chancellor Britton dwelt on the fact that the general revenue to the University has fallen by only 3.3 percent, the lack of the current situation give the appearance as if the general revenue has fallen 30 to 40 percent.

Date and point: Summer classes. Earlier in the year the SIU-C. administration announced that there would be drastic cuts in the summer budget. Most of the department chairs and faculty thought of this as a scare tactic to ward off the evils of the summer school. The American Education Association and the Illinois Education Association has already declared the policy ineffective.

Nonetheless, the department heads tried to salvage what money they could. But the iron fist of the chancellor and the president came down and stated the cuts were across the board. This put department heads in an awkward situation. The heads were to cancel classes. Most departments cut 30 to 40 percent of the classes.

Over money that was not already used. As they say on Family Feud, "Good answer." Where did all the money, or at least 30 to 40 percent of the money that was cut, go? Did it go to the campuses in Japan? Or did it go to the law firm that is for the one cancelled. Several classes.

The administration, in its minute wisdom, basically said that all of the money for summer school was left.

But the iron list of the chancellor and the president came down and stated the cuts were across the board. This put department heads in an awkward situation. The heads were to cancel classes. Most departments cut 30 to 40 percent of the classes.

The University operates on an annual budget of approximately $135 million. Why doesn't the administration print the schedules were printed?
What caused this crisis? Even better, why were not the cuts based on enrollment in specific colleges and schools based on credit hours taken?

According to Vice Chancellor Britton, "...the change in the selection of that position nearly a decade ago, has served as the chair executive officer of SIU. But a host of other responsibilities are incumbent on that office such as the selection and direction of SIU- C and SIU-E presidents. "It is a good thing that he is here and not in corporate America, otherwise he, and President Guyon, would be pounding the pavement for another job.

As I understand things, SIU-C is a fully accredited learning institution. The learning process should not end in the summer, but should continue through the summer. Funds should be budgeted for the summer sessions. I understand that some emergencies may arise, and that some cuts are made somewhere. But to make such drastic cuts that have such a major effect is ludicrous. The lack of a budget for summer school is an example of this. Piss poor prior planning.

Can one of the more fortunate students, I will be able to graduate as scheduled in August, only after taking a lower level course and spending another semester. Subsidize classes. Most department heads cut 30 to 40 percent of the classes.

predicted the verdict, even if motions to overturn or set aside the cases against the tobacco companies. Louis G. Moran, executive director of the Tobacco Institute in Washington, D.C., which helps plaintiffs and attorneys bring lawsuits against the tobacco industry, said his clients were not surprised by the verdict but said he was aware of other cases being settled. He added that he was not sure if the tobacco industry would appeal the verdict.

raise personal and corporate taxes 40 percent with $300 million raised through higher taxes going to education. Elementary and secondary schools would get $227 million, and preschools would get $46.8 million.

The new tax rates would take effect July 1 and raise $1.6 billion. The cost to an average family of four would be $260 per year.

If approved, the personal income tax rate would go from 2.5 percent to 3.5 percent and the corporate rate from 4 percent to 5.8 percent.

Thompson said the tax increase he has proposed would "not be a blow to our business climate. But just the opposite. It's too risky to invest in education, child care, and other economic development programs, mental health, environmental protection, law enforcement, agriculture, and much more. We must safeguard our good business climate and make Illinois a far less attractive place to live and do business.

right. It was a partial victory, but not an overwhelming one. It was a partial victory, but not an overwhelming one. The jury decided that Liggett Group, knowing that cigarettes were potentially dangerous, falsely guaranteed in its advertising that its products were safe.

The company, which sponsored extensive research in the 1950s, also failed in its duty to warn smokers of the health risk they were taking in smoking, and such warnings were legally required in 1966, the jury ruled.

Many of the staff members going to Nakajo from SIUC are from the Center for English as a Second Language. Klasek said.

Students will be taught English for the first year of their education and then will move into general education courses, he said. Crebels earned at the Nakajo campus can be transferred to many American universities, Klasek said. However, students could not transfer to a Japanese university because of requirements are different, he said.

All of the students will prepare to graduate with a degree in business administration, but could go into any other major with a few additional courses, Klasek said.

Although many students are interested in transferring to SIUC, the business program here could not absorb all of them, Klasek said.

Guardian Angels arrested

NEW YORK _ Two Guardian Angels were arrested Monday for attempting to move a suspected drug dealer from the same block in the Theater District where fighting erupted two days earlier that left one Angel critically wounded.

David Walden, 18, of Newark, N.J., and Tate Gonzalez, 20, who was visiting from Milwaukee to learn about the citizen street patrols, were arrested at 1 a.m. Monday and charged with harassment and menacing, police said.

Police said officers responding to a radio call made by a Guardian Angel were told by John Johnson, 24, that he was surrounded by 12 angels as he was standing on West 66th Street and Eighth Avenue, near an area crowded with Broadway theaters and popular restaurants.

Johnson said he was told to move and when he refused, one of the angels jumped on him and Johnson, who told police he pulled out his pocket knife.

Over 50 indicted on drug charges

Court dates are being set for people arrested for drug violations in the Jackson County area. As of yesterday afternoon, most of the 24 people brought under warrants issued after 104 indictments returned by a Jackson County Grand Jury had been arrested, police said.

The arrests are the result of an 18-month investigation conducted by agents of SIEG. The Jackson County Sheriff's Department, Carbondale, De不说, stphusburg, and Illinois State police departments aided in serving the warrants. Those arrested are accused of selling cocaine, cannabis, LSD, or other look-alike drug substances.

Caution urged at intersection

By Christine Cedusky
Staff Writer

Motorists are advised to drive with caution while crossing the intersection of South University Avenue and North Illinois Avenue with Mill Street near Bleyer's Sports Mart while new traffic lights are being installed.

The installation of nine traffic signals at the intersection began May 24 and should be completed in a couple of months, said Bill Zieba, a Department of Transportation traffic engineer. The $115,000 project is expected to reduce accidents at the intersection, which reportedly has had the highest accident rate in Carbondale for the past three years.

Colombian airline ends cargo export to U.S.

MIAMI (UPI) — Avianca Airlines, the Colombian national airline repeatedly penalized for smuggling drugs, said Tuesday it had seized a Boeing 747 cargo plane June 4 when 422 pounds of cocaine was concealed in a shipment of cut flowers. They released the jet when the airline signed an agreement to end the shipments.

"It does not mean it is the most dangerous area," Zieba said.

But Richard Brake, DOT construction field engineer, said the intersection is one of the most accident prone locations in the area because it is confusing to motorists.

The latest DOT figures report 38 traffic accidents in 1986, and Zieba said DOT expects the 1987 total to be at least that high.

Brake said it is hoped the stoplights will reduce traffic problems and make it safer for pedestrians. Wheelchair ramps also will be built on the corners, he said.

The inconvenience of stopping traffic at the stoplights on Route 51 is justified for safety reasons, Larry Meyer, DOT planning and programming bureau chief, said.

"We will still have accidents, just less severe ones," he said.

Meyer said traffic signals and devices are used only when absolutely necessary.

Pedestrian call buttons, like the ones already functioning at the intersection of Main Street and Oakland Avenue, will be installed with the signals, Meyer said. Call buttons enable pedestrians to change the lights and allow them to cross the streets.

Zieba said no accidents have occurred at the intersection during construction. But he said he would be surprised if no accidents occur.

The number of accidents and availability of funds make the project a priority right now, Zieba said. A shortage of construction funds has prevented installation of lights in the past, he said.

Gallery to display area artists' works

By Richard Scheffer

New works of 15 Southern Illinois area artists are now on display at the Sixth Summer Group Show at Associated Artists Gallery in Carbondale. The gallery, at 523 S. Illinois, is a nonprofit artists cooperative. The display runs through June 25 and is open free to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays.

Among those displaying their work is Roberta "Bert" Elliott-France, a blacksmith, who has developed a series of floor lamps in collaboration with a glass blower. Lisa Sheets and James Fritz, two new artists to the gallery, also have works on display. Sheets has a sculpture and two lithographs. Fritz has two sculptures.

Richard Lawson has some new photographic work on display, and William Horrell is displaying photographs from his Yugoslavian journey. Lois Lembrick and Liz Lareen have pottery pieces on display, and there are quilted pieces painted from Kathleen Sanjabi and hand pieces from Sally Parker Hill.

Also on display are watercolors, collages, monoprints and mixed media pieces from Valerie Fry, Doris Tempelmeyer, Marie Samuel, Bonnie Moreno, Kaye Howell, Rene Potter and Debra Johnson-Jones.

A number of smaller works presented as postcards, notecards and small jewelry is on display.

The gallery will have another show in November. Area artists are encouraged to inquire about membership.

Public service spots feature teen mothers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Anonymous teenage mothers or about-to-be mothers are "staring" in new television spots aimed at curbing teenage pregnancy as part of a campaign started four years ago by the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, it was announced Monday.

We were told actresses couldn't capture or project the reality of going through a teenage pregnancy," Morton A. Lebow, ACOG director of public information, said of the use of pregnant teenagers and teenage mothers.

"We were told by the producers only someone who had been through it or someone going through it could provide authenticity. "Five girls were used and the youngest is 14," Lebow said. "For privacy reasons, we will not reveal their identities."

For the first time, the American Academy of Family Physicians is joining the ACOG crusade against teenage pregnancy, giving it a boost from another 75,000 physicians.

For further impact, in the coming weeks, contingents from the American Medical Association Auxiliary, with 60,000 members, will visit TV stations across the country to sell them on using the new spots.

"This $200,000 campaign is an attempt to talk sense to the American people and particularly to teenagers who have so much to lose with an unintended teenage pregnancy," Dr. Harry L. Metcalf, a Williamsville, N.Y., physician and president of the American Academy of Family Physicians said.
Thompson to take tax hike proposal on the road today

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Gov. James R. Thompson takes his quest for higher taxes on the road this week, scheduling several meetings with local chambers of commerce and newspaper editorial boards.

"He already has explained why there is a need (for higher taxes)," said Thompson aide Susan Mogermand. "Now he needs to explain exactly what his proposal is and what it will do for the state of Illinois."

On Tuesday, Thompson travels to Rockford and Moline, on Wednesday he is in Peoria; on Thursday it's Danville and on Friday he heads to Southern Illinois.

Last week the Republican governor proposed a 40 percent hike in the personal and corporate income tax that would raise $1.56 billion, with most of the funds going to education.

The plan would boost the personal rate from 3.5 percent to 3.75 percent and the corporate rate from 4 percent to 5.6 percent.

The administration has been inundated with mail, on the tax question since January, with an overwhelming majority backing higher taxes. Thompson has received 5,147 letters during the last five months — 5,050 in favor of hikes and 97 against.

"Some of the letters are a result of campaigns by special interest groups. For instance last month, 1,619 pro-tax letters were received from individuals in favor of more funds to the elderly and 1,650 came from individuals who need the tax hike for education," he said.

Ehrlich said Indiana's proposal is "absurd," and said that if Indiana's economy and support for higher education and to its economic growth, "has increased, we have no choice to do the same." He has predicted that Indiana's growth rate would be higher.

Ad manager wants to make sales reps feel comfortable

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

Helping sales representatives feel more comfortable in their jobs is a goal of Daily Egyptian summer student advertising manager Melissa McMurray.

"The sales representatives can be uncomfortable selling advertising because as students we don't have a lot of money ourselves and we see advertising as very expensive," McMurray said.

After two weeks of intensive training before the summer semester started, the staff should see itself as a part of a company's business, she said. "They're expanding their business by selling to us," McMurray said.

Part of the staff's training involved building enthusiasm for selling during the summer, a time when sales are usually cut in half, McMurray said. "We talked about why it's beneficial for a company to run advertising during the summer," she said. "The reps have gone out with this enthusiasm and for the first issue we've surpassed our goal."

A goal was to sell ads equal to 60 percent of the space of a 20-page edition. The goal was exceeded by four.

"They're going into the job with a better understanding of the job including policies and procedures," McMurray said. "They know what they can and can not do in questionable issues, such as an ad with profanity."

McMurray is in charge of 10 sales representatives, advertising office staff and the graphic artist.

McMurray, a senior in journalism with a specialization in advertising, has worked at the DE for a year. She started as an office assistant last summer. Last summer, she was promoted to advertising representative.

"I enjoy selling but I also wanted my experience here to involve a managerial role," McMurray said. "Aerobics Standard tests assailed by group

NEW YORK (UPI)—The nation's 98.8 million public school kids now take an estimated 100 million standardized tests each year and that's not good, a report from FairTest, a testing watchdog group, said Monday.

The report, based on a survey of education administrators in 50 states, the District of Columbia and local school officials, said 24 states now require students to pass standardized tests for high school graduation and 12 use exams to decide which students pass.

"The real problem is that many tests are not objective measurement instruments," Monty Neal, managing director of FairTest in Cambridge, Mass.

Housing face-lift approved

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

The Board of Trustees approved use of a $1.25 million federal grant for renovation of the Evergreen Terrace housing complex. The renovations will concentrate heavy financing on energy conservation, purchase of items such as insulation, frost-free refrigerators, and energy efficient doors and windows. Catherine J. Hunter, assistant director of University Housing, said the project will be funded by Housing and Urban Development grant that was awarded after the University applied for a loan to finance the project.

"Think how it feels to be given $1.2 million," Hunter said.

After HUD told Hunter about the grant, the paper work was completed, and a million dollar low-interest loan application turned into a million dollar gift.

The renovations should be finished by December, Hunter said, but it isn't certain when the project will begin because the contractors - Bearden Construction of Marion, R and H Plumbing and Heating of Carbondale and Vose Heating and Air Conditioning of Murphysboro - must be coordinated.

Two adjacent parking lots and the portion of road running between them at the housing complex also will be repaired. The work will begin the week of June 13, and finish by July 4, Edward L. Jones, director of University Housing, said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled Monday that criminals and their families may sue under the federal law "required to establish the principle that citizens can't recover from the government." The court’s decision found the guidelines into a state of confusion and trenched division has created a determination that the sentencing process, "the deterrent effect sentencing may have, about the crime, the public concern over the nature of the crime, the deterrent effect sentencing may have, and the defendant's age, background, criminal history and family and community ties."

Sentencing law to be reviewed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court agreed Monday that the federal government has the right to sue the single law that abrogates parole and limited prison terms for drug violations. The act also abolished parole and limited the amount of time prisoners could have taken off their sentences for good behavior.

The Sentencing Commission is made up of seven voting members, three of them federal judges, appointed by the president and confirmed by the Senate for six-year terms.

The commission is supposed to develop guidelines to avoid "unwarranted sentencing disparities" among criminals with similar records convicted of similar crimes.

The commission comes up with a complex set of rules that eliminates a great deal of discretion that judges have in sentencing.

The rules lay out sentences for different categories of crimes and for different categories of criminals for each crime. Factors involved include the nature of the crime, the public concern about the crime, the deterrent effect sentencing may have, and the defendant’s age, background, criminal history and family and community ties.

Mails open to lawyers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court made it easier Monday for lawyers to advertise their services, ruling 5-3 they have a First Amend-ment right to do so. The case, which involves mailings to citizens known to face specific legal problems.

The justices will hear arguments next term in cases filed in the case, at least 59 federal judges have sent targeted letters to potential clients.

"Admittedly, a letter that is personalized to the recipient presents an increased risk of deception, intentional or inadvertent," Justice William Brennan wrote for the majority. "But merely because targeted, direct mail solicitation presents lawyers with opportunities for isolated abuses, mistakes does not justify a total ban on that mode of protected commercial expression. The state can regulate abuses and minimize mistakes through far less restrictive and more precise means."

The commission did not find the letter false or misleading, but declined to approve it. The Kentucky Supreme Court agreed with the commission’s citing the state’s blanket prohibition on targeted direct mail solicitation by lawyers.

Polio victims get right to sue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled Monday that criminals and their families may sue under the federal law "required to establish the principle that citizens can't recover from the government." The court’s decision found the guidelines into a state of confusion and trenched division has created a determination that the sentencing process, "the deterrent effect sentencing may have, about the crime, the public concern over the nature of the crime, the deterrent effect sentencing may have, and the defendant's age, background, criminal history and family and community ties."

However, Marshall wrote that the appeals court erred in finding that the federal law "required the dismissal of Berkowitz's claim."

The court’s ruling does not ensure success for the Berkowitz family, but rather gives them the right to pursue their claim. They must now go back to lower court and prove their case.

Paul Friedman, an attorney representing the family, called the decision an "important ruling. He said the government has been "pushing very hard to maintain the principle that citizens can’t recover from the government. This is a major defeat for that position."

Berkowitz was given a dose of polio vaccine by his pediatrician in Charleroi, Pa., May 10, 1979, when he was about 2 months old. About a month after taking the vaccine, he contracted paralytic polio and now is severely paralyzed and maintained on respirator.

The child contracted polio from the live-virus vaccine, developed in the mid-1960s by Dr. Albert Sabin, which had been licensed and approved by the government. An epidemic of crippling — and sometimes deadly — polio had ravaged the nation in the early '60s, and Dr. Jonas Salk had earlier developed a killed-virus vaccine. The Sabin vaccine was considered superior.
Letter addresses treatment of Catholics in Soviet Union

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev met with his Warsaw Pact counterpart, Casaroli of the Vatican, over a letter from Pope John Paul II expressing concern about treatment of Catholics in the Soviet Union.

The private meeting was the highest level session between the two religious leaders, a Vatican spokesman said. The move by First Secretary Suren Arutyunyan, which appeared to put him at odds with central authorities, came after thousands of people left the tiny Vatican state, an official said.

Three weeks ago, Arutyunyan was installed as first secretary of the Armenian Communist Party after a shake up in that party and in Azerbaijan that appeared to be an attempt to tighten Moscow's control.

Arutyunyan's announcement to the crowd gathered in the heart of Yerevan was in contrast to a Kremlin decision in February that there would be no change in the political status of Nagorno-Karabakh.

During the meeting, two police officers escorted Casaroli from the plane and he was seated near a window with prison guards.

For months Armenian nationalists have held protests to demand that the mostly Christian enclave of Nagorno-Karabakh, administered by the neighboring, nominally Muslim republic of Azerbaijan, be switched to Armenian administration.

Two police officers escorted Arafat to his New York-bound flight — TWA Flight 689 — about 70 minutes before departure. His handcuffs were removed at the door to the plane and he was seated in the business section, the radio reported.

Reports were not allowed to see Arafat before his departure. He had vowed he would have to be carried aboard his flight, but it was not known whether Arafat resisted.

Warning not heard; Palestinian gunned down

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli troops gunned down a deaf Palestinian man Monday who apparently killed three people in a West Bank village, Israeli officials and Palestinian sources said.

An Israeli army spokesman confirmed soldiers opened fire in the area in pursuit of Arab suspects who killed three soldiers.

A police and security force brought Arafat, a psychologist, to Ben-Gurion Airport from a nearby prison in a van with covered windows, state-run Israel Radio reported.

Education slows AIDS spread in Mexico City

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — The percentage of homosexual men in Mexico City infected with the AIDS virus has declined since last year, researchers reported Monday at the largest conference ever assembled on the disease.

Restored house unveiled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The buildings are diagonally aligned, bordered by来安 avenue from the northwest gate of the White House.

Casual pick-ups are a high-risk AIDS group

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — A northern California study has found that the percentage of heterosexual men who could be considered high risk for AIDS has declined. The study, conducted at the Center for Disease Control in San Francisco, interviewed heterosexual men and women and homosexual men at the popular gay bars "a disgrace" bars in the San Francisco area in 1987. The researchers found that 30.6 percent of heterosexual men could be considered high risk, that is, they had had sexual intercourse without a condom and involved the gay community in four adjacent townships, including the original Blair House built in 1874.

Nurses worth more, Miss America says

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Health care professionals must help solve the nursing crisis in this country before the practice of having a nurse at bedside is alienated, Miss America 1988 Kaye Lani Rae Radlko said Monday.

"Nurses are underpaid, and we are the heart of the health care system," said Radlko, a registered nurse from Monroe, Ohio, who said that she would have a drastic decline in the health care system if she returned to work.

"There are many opportunities for nurses to join the ranks of the many opportunities for nurses to join the ranks of the nurses in the health care system," she said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The restoration project began in June 1982, after a natural gas leak underlined the deplorable condition of the building, and involved the gutting of four adjacent townhouses, including the original Blair House built in 1874.

Canada summit agenda set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan urged the leaders of the other major industrialized democracies Monday to "venture to progress," that opens the world trading system and strengthens that global economy.

Senate leaders for talks next week in Toronto, Reagan indicated Thursday at the 12th annual Economic Summit to push for a united attack on economic problems ranging from Third World debt to drug abuse.

"We will be building on a decade of progress, on the new economic opportunities in many countries," he said in a speech to the Conservative Party's national convention. "We will be continuing to the build a new global marketplace."

He added Monday Sunday for Toronto and his eighth and final Economic Summit with the leaders of Britain, Canada, France, Italy, Japan and West Germany. Though past summits were marked by disputes over trade, budget deficits and monetary policy, little controversy is expected in Toronto.

Instead, the meeting will be highlighted by a nostalgic valedictory from Reagan, praise for the recent superpower summit in Moscow and focused debate on economic issues due to be inherited by the next president.

In his speech, Reagan set ambitious goals for the talks that contrasted sharply with widespread expectations that the Toronto summit will be more scripted for harmony and goodwill than for substantive achievements.

At the same time, he noted with a sense of personal pride that the countries began experiencing a common period of growth after other nations began setting into place economic policies modeled after his own program of tax cuts, fiscal restraint, deregulation and greater reliance on the free market.

Reagan hailed a trend away from "structural rigidities and protective subsidies" and used the occasion to make a pre-summit pitch for the global elimination by the year 2000 of agricultural subsidies that cost an estimated $200 billion a year.

That proposal, as well as others to reduce the barriers, remain mired in difficult multilateral trade talks and is not expected to be advanced in Toronto. Dan Amstutz, the Agriculture Department official responsible for the trade talks, told reporters the most that can be expected is "a head" for the negotiations, rather than concrete progress.

Voters favor funding child care services

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Most American voters say child care is an important issue and two-thirds of them favor a $2.5 billion bill that helps parents find and pay for child care services, a poll released Monday showed.

The Children's Defense Fund and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFL-CIO) released the survey. Key findings are:

- 74 percent of all American voters consider the need for affordable child care an important issue.
- 84 percent believe it is "difficult" for parents to obtain child care that is affordable and of good quality.
- 63 percent say there is not enough child care services available to keep up with the current demand.
- 36 percent want the federal government to establish minimal standards of health and safety for child care facilities, rather than leave such standards to individual states.
- 60 percent of all voters favor a bill pending in Congress, known as the Act for Better Child Care.

The results are striking, and point to a growing awareness of something both our organizations have recognized for a long time - that in a time when so many parents of young children have to work because of economic necessity, government must find ways to help families, said AFSCME President Gerald McEntee.

The Act for Better Child Care Services is being reviewed by subcommittees of both the House and Senate. It would provide $2.5 billion in 1989 to make child care more affordable for low and moderate income families, and to encourage states to increase the accessibility of quality child care. It also would establish minimum health and safety protections for all children in child care.

Marian Wright Edelman, president of the Children's Defense Fund, said the goal is to "get the bill through the House before the political conventions in July and August."

"The poll that we are releasing today sends Congress a clear and powerful message," said Edelman.

Senate urges reform of welfare program

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate began debate Monday on the most far-reaching overhaul of the welfare system since its establishment 53 years ago as congressional leaders worked on a compromise bill that would win President Reagan's support.

The bill by Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., the author of several books on the federal welfare program and who was a White House aide under President Nixon, would overhaul the system during the Kennedy and Nixon administrations.

It would restructure the basic welfare programs and significantly increase parental responsibility.

In floor debate, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said welfare reform is an urgent national priority.

"America needs welfare reform because this modern, compassionate, cost-conscious generation of young people is trying to make do with a Rube Goldberg welfare system developed during the Depression to meet the needs of a society that no longer exists," Bentsen said.

The basic welfare program, established in 1935 by President Franklin D. Roosevelt as part of the New Deal, was designed to lift up the widows and coal miners stay at home to raise their children.

"Today American society has changed dramatically," Bentsen said. "Many people believe it has changed for the better. But for better or worse, we're fighting the battles of the '90s with the tools of the Depression."
Federal judge allows NFL to sue L.A. Raiders

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The NFL, which violated antitrust laws by trying to stop the Raiders from moving from Oakland to Los Angeles, won permission Monday to seek millions of dollars in damages from the team.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Terry Hatter Jr. allows the NFL to proceed with a federal cross-complaint from the team. They argued the NFL cannot recover breach of contract in connection with the team's $12.5 million move to Los Angeles.

Raiders attorneys said they would immediately ask the U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals to overturn the ruling.

The NFL said it had no comment on the ruling by Judge Hatter.

The NFL attorney said the ruling allows him to try to prove the league does millions in damages from the Raiders and managing general partner Al Davis because the move allowed the Raiders to occupy the valuable Los Angeles franchise and leave open the less-valuable Oakland franchise.

Before Hatter's ruling, the NFL did not stand to gain any money. The only issue in the upcoming final phase of the 1978 antitrust suit was the amount by which an earlier $34.6 million award to the Raiders — now totaling about $7 million with interest — would be reduced.

The struggle arises from a complex set of rulings in the Memorial Coliseum Commission's 1978 antitrust case. The Commission, joined by the NFL, is trying to get good money. The only issue in the

The ruling by Judge Hatter Jr. allows breach of contract in connection with the team's 1982 move to Los Angeles.

Oakland Raiders attorney told Hatter: "This is trying to get good from evil," Raiders attorney Joseph Alito Sr. told Hatter. Attorney Richard Haas said the team is "trying to profit from its own wrong."

NFL attorney Frank Rolheim said the ruling allows him to try to prove the league does millions in damages from the Raiders and managing general partner Al Davis because the move allowed the Raiders to occupy the valuable Los Angeles franchise and leave open the less-valuable Oakland franchise.

The NFL had violated antitrust laws by requiring approval of three-fourths of NFL club owners before permitting the Raiders to move to Los Angeles.

Free camp for poor children gets too many applications

By Brad Bushue Staff Writer

Children are being put on a waiting list to participate in a free summer sports camp for economically disadvantaged children in a 30-mile radius around Carbondale.

Lori Lynn, activity director of the National Youth Sports Camp, said that children on the waiting list may be able to attend the camp if others decide not to participate.

The five-week camp will be weekdays from June 13 to July 16. She said that students who qualify for the free school lunch program will usually be able to attend the camp.

Lynn said the camp will provide "sports activities and enrichment activities to area children."

The children will swim, play soccer, basketball and other sports on a daily basis, as well as attend classes on health, drug abuse, career objectives and nutrition, she said.

The camp is one of 160 funded by the federal government through the National Collegiate Athletic Association. This is the first year SIU-C has chosen to offer a free camp by the NCAA.

Runner makes All-American

Discus thrower for the men's track team Ron Harrer said he was disappointed with his performance in the Olympic Trials in July.

Harrer improved the distance on every throw, his last being 185 feet, five inches, which was just two feet short California Berkeley athlete Kari Nisula's winning throw. "It was just up for grabs, potluck," Harrer said. "It was just a matter of inches and four guys were throwing the same distance."

A throw of 199 1/2 at the Southwest Louisiana Invitational in March qualified Harrer for the NCAA competition. Since then, he has improved his distance to 202 18, which will enable him to participate in the U.S. Olympic Trials in July.

Harrer was accompanied by 800-meter runner Bret Garrett, who placed fifth in his heat and tenth overall.

Baseball star drafted by St. Louis Cardinals

By Jeff Grieser Staff Writer

Sahuki baseball standout Joe Hall was drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals this weekend in the Major League Baseball's amateur draft.

Hall, a junior from Sahuki, was picked in the 14th round by the Cardinals and has signed with the team. He will report to Hamilton, Ont., where the Cardinals rookie team is located.

Hall has been a catcher and a third baseman as well as playing the outfield and other infield positions during his career at SIU-C. He hit .365 in 1988 and belted nine home runs while driving in 26 runs. At six feet and 180 pounds, Hall has the size to play at the professional level.

Richard "Itchy" Jones, Hall's coach for the past three seasons, said he believes Hall's best chance as a professional might be at second base.

Lendl, Graf seeded No.1 in Wimbledon

LONDON (UPI) – Ivan Lendl and Steffi Graf, last year's losing finalists, were seeded No.1 and No.2 respectively in their respective draws for the Wimbledon tennis championships June 20-July 3.

The Wimbledon referee's office has largely followed the world rankings list in determining seedings and bumped both defending champions from the top spots.

Men's defender Pat Cash of Australia was seeded fourth behind Lendl, Mats Wilander and Stefan Edberg of Sweden. Martina Navratilova eighth-seed and women's defender, was seeded No.2 behind Graf.

Towards Connors, St. and a two-time winner (1974, 1981) was the leading U.S. seed at No. 5 with Boris Becker of West Germany, winner in 1985 and 1986, at No. 6 and Henri Leconte of France No. 7.

Tournament organizers ignored the world rankings to make John McEnroe the No. 8 seed in his first Wimbledon appearance since 1985.
Saluki teams finish seasons

The women's track team led the way as several Saluki athletic teams closed out the spring season in May.

Women's Track

The Saluki women's track team concluded the season at McAndrew Stadium May 14 by having the largest winning margin in the history of the Illinois Valley Conference Track and Field Championship.

The team had 132 points, 55 more than Drake and Western Illinois, which both had 77.

The Salukis took first place in seven of 19 events and tied in an eighth event.

Christians Philiboue broke the Gateway record with a triple jump of 46 feet, 11 inches and Wendy Kelly ran the 400 meter dash in 56.74, a new Gateway record.

Junior Yvonne Yorcutt was named most valuable player for the Salukis as Coach Don DeNoon was named Coach of the Year.

Men's Track

Men's track Coach Bill Cornell said he was pleased with the performance of his team in 1986.

"We had a very successful year with just operating with 16 scholarship men," Cornell said.

The Salukis took first place in the Missouri-and-Purdue meet May 5 with 96 points. Purdue was second with 74 and Missouri followed with 42.

A week later, May 12, the team struggled through a week showing on the first day of the Missouri Valley Conference meet. The Salukis lost close to second place, just eight points behind Indiana State.

"We had a poor first day but we wound up the next day and almost pulled it off," Cornell said.

Runner Brett Garrett qualified for both the NCAA Track and Field finals at the Illini Lake Golf Course Thursday in Champaign with an 8.94-meter time of 1:49.91. Shane Weber became the fourth best Saluki pole vaulter with a 17-foot jump.

In June, teammate Ros Harker, a senior All-American, placed fourth in the discus competition. The throw qualified him for the Olympic team in July, Cornell said.

Cornell said he hopes his new recruits can turn out a successful season.

Baseball

The Saluki baseball team compiled a record of 42-22 and became the fourth team in the school's history to win 40 or more games. SIU-C came in third in the Missouri Valley during the regular season. The Salukis won the Creighton and Wichita State in the Valley standings. The Salukis qualified for the NCAA tournament and came within one game of tying for the championship.

The Salukis went 1-3 in the conference tournament, failing four place.

Senior Chuck Verschoore finished his career in style. Verschoore had a .34 batting average which began in the final two games of the 1987 season. The streak is the longest in Saluki history.

Verschoore also ranks first in career games played with 207, third in runs with 146, and fourth in hits with 214.

Popularity seen as strength for Hart

By Ron Sone
Staff Writer

Former professional football quarterback Jim Hart's ability to bring "notoriety and exposure to Saluki athletics was viewed as a positive asset in Hart's bid to be athletics director.

Hart was interviewed Monday by the Intercollegiate Advisory Committee. The 90-minute interview was the first of several interviews and meetings Hart is scheduled to have over an open session at 9:30 a.m. today in the Student Center Auditorium. Committee chairperson Roger E. Robinson did express concern that Hart "not minimize the administrative responsibilities of this position." Hart said that he felt "confident" after getting "good reactions" from one of the tougher groups of interviewers. Committee members would not discuss the meeting further.

Hart said he would like all Saluki sports to become successful. "Time to make the program work, however long that takes. I don't have any preconceived ideas about how long that's going to take." The 44-year-old Hart, who played Saluki football from 1965-69, said he is prepared to make a long-term commitment to Saluki athletics.

"This is not a stepping stone. This is my home. I really believe that this is my last job in life and I retire after this, that's what I'm looking for." Hart submitted his bid for athletic director April 20.

Hart, who played Saluki football from 1965 to 1969, is an honorary chairman of the Saluki Athletic Fund.

He went on to be a quarterback for 18 years with the St. Louis Cardinals and Washington Redskins. He is the third leading passer in NFL history.

He currently is a commentator for Chicago Bears football games on WGN radio in Chicago.

Charlotte West, a 30-year veteran of Saluki Athletics and interim athletic director, will begin interviewing Monday.

Jury M. Hughes, athletic director at Central Missouri State University since 1983, will begin interviewing Wednesday.

Ralph Barkey, director of athletics at Sonoma (California) State University, will begin interviewing June 22.

SIU-C sports fundraiser takes Iowa AD position

By Beth Clavin
Staff Writer

Paul Bubb, who was the University of Iowa's first full-time athletic fund raiser, has accepted the position of director of the athletic development at Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa.

Bubb resigned as director of athletic development June 30. Bubb will work with public relations, parent relations, alumni and annual giving, Curt Blake, athletic director, said. Our program is similar to a lot of ways to the program in Carbondale, he said.

Bubb was chosen for the position from 30 applicants, Blake said.

The biggest change Blake expects to see is in the expansion of Drake's Bulldog Club, the athletic support club.

"It is presently primarily a local group and I feel Paul will open a better job of reaching out to these people," Blake said. Blake also hopes to see the Bulldog Club promoted statewide and nationwide by satellite.

"I am most pleased that Paul Bubb will be joining the Drake Athletic Department administrative team," said Jim Hart, acting athletic director. "His expertise and experience in the areas of public relations, parent relations and fundraising will be instrumental in assuring the continued and enhanced success of the Bulldog Club and Drake University athletics.

Bubb feels good about his position at Drake. "I'm glad to be reporting to the athletic director," he said.

During his position here, Bubb worked closely with the athletic director, but reported to the Foundation.

"This is a positive," Bubb said. "They want someone as a full-time fundraiser," he said.

The associate athletic director handled the fundraising before, along with several other duties, he said.

Bubb said his resignation from SIU-C stemmed from personal reasons and was partly because he felt it was time to move on.

"When I came here, I knew there were a number of things to be accomplished," he said. "I feel we've made progress during my three years here, but I also feel that some new energy and direction are needed at this time.

Bubb also says his resignation came at an opportune time for SIU-C because if coincides with the search for a new athletics director.

"The new athletics director should have the opportunity to hire his own fundraiser," he said.

Charlotte West, SIU-C's acting director of athletics, said: "I have enjoyed working with Paul for the past three years and feel he brought many welcomed ideas into the new position. His successor will have a good foundation on which to build and improve our overall situation."

Salukis ready to broadcast

By Beth Clavin
Staff Writer

Action is underway to begin radio broadcasts of Saluki sports.

Final negotiations are being administered between the Saluki athletic department and Turner Communications in Harrisburg, which owns WEBO-FM, according to SIU-C acting athletic director Charlotte West.

"We think we've definitely going with the Turner Communications bid," said West. "We're in the final stages of signing the contract."

When the negotiations are finalized, Turner Communications will set up a network of stations to carry Saluki football and men's basketball games and to begin a coaches' show.

"Turner Communications had done their homework well," said West. We think we have a real good contract with them, she said.

West declined any more information until both sides of the contract had been signed.
