Students plead for U.S. help

By John Walbey

More than 50 University students from both the People's Republic of China and Taiwan met with U.S. Sen. Paul Simon to urge a more forceful response from the American government for the recent Tiananmen Square massacre.

remarking the Chinese Communist Party's violent suppression of pro-democracy movement.

"I just wonder whether the United States has actually issued a strong warning against the Chinese government," Changwei Fu, a doctoral student in microbiology, said. "The United States should tell them that all of us and the world knows that you should not kill our people, that you are doing the massacre, and that we are strongly against it. Standing on the lawns of his rural Makanda residence this weekend, Simon gave encourangement to the crowd and said the United States should do what he called letting "our voice be heard as clearly as possible."

Simon said he believes there will be further response from the American government, but that he wasn't sure what form it would take.

Madigan-Rock budget plan may meet needs of education

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

The Illinois Board of Higher Education budget may be met after all, Richard D. Wagner, executive director, said.

A plan offered by Illinois House Speaker Michael J. Madigan and Illinois Senate President Phillip J. Rock would increase state funding for higher education, Wagner said.

"I enthusiastically applaud the Madigan-Rock plan for increased funding for education," Wagner said. "The plan will achieve nearly all of higher education's budget goals for fiscal year 1990."

The plan provides an overall increase of $235 million in general revenue funds, Ross Rodel, media consultant for the IBHE, said. This would translate to a 17.4 percent increase from last year.

The plan would also include the following factors in higher education:

- The restoration of full funding for Merit Recognition Scholarships and a maximum grant of the Monetary Award Program of $3,000;
- An increase in public university tuition rates beyond those already in effect;
- An eight percent increase for faculty and staff salaries;
- An increase of $3.5 million for Illinois community colleges;
- An increase of $1 million for grants for private colleges and universities to support undergraduate education;
- An increase of $1.5 million for the Illinois Mathematics and Science Academy;
- Lawrence K. Pettit, University Chancellor said that higher education is in desperate need of the Madigan-Rock plan.

"I think everyone should put pressure on the state government to get that plan passed," Pettit said.

The IBHE had previously recommended that Illinois increase funding for higher education to a total of $200 million. Although the Madigan-Rock plan was proposed, the only other program providing funding for higher education was the "Fund Education First" plan, which would give state education 50 percent of excess general revenue, Wagner said.

"Although all 50 percent may sound like a considerable amount of money, only $10 million would be given to higher education, almost $100 million under budget," Wagner said.

A severe increase in state's funding was needed to compensate for the increase in new students attending Illinois universities, Wagner said.

Fate of Halloween in Guyon's hands

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

The fate of Carbondale's annual Halloween bash is now in the hands of University President John C. Guyon.

Debate began last year on whether the celebration should be continued.

The Faculty Senate discussed the possibility of installing a fall break at great length last semester and finally decided to let Guyon have the final say. Guyon announced at the SIU board of trustees meeting June 8 that he was "absolutely convinced that it's a good idea" to institute a fall break for the fall 1990 semester.

AIDS cases increasing on campuses

By Christine Borda
Staff Writer

Two out of every 1,000 students tested positive for the AIDS virus, according to the results of the nation's first survey on blood tests gathered from college health centers.

SIU-C was among 19 universities selected by the American Health Association to participate in the year-long study.

Of the 16,681 blood samples included in the college survey, 30 tested positive for Human Immunodeficiency Virus infection, providing an overall rate of 2 percent.

The rate of infection ranged from zero to 3 percent. Ten of the nineteen schools had a prevalence rate of zero and five of the schools had rates of 4 percent or higher according to the study.

Dr. Richard P. Keeling, the principal investigator for the study and president of the American College Health Association, said the results "establish beyond any doubt that HIV infection is a current problem on college campuses."

Keeling also said the 2 percent rate of infection was higher than he hypothesized at the outset.

Dr. Helene Gayle, epidemiologist responsible for the survey said, "This study bolsters the need for more aggressive efforts to prevent the spread of HIV on college campuses."

United States warns against revision of Chinese actions

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The United States warned China Monday against revising the history of its actions in crushing the pro-democracy demonstration because "the whole world saw what happened in Tiananmen Square," a senior official said. As tensions were further strained over the safe havens granted to Chinese dissident Fang Lizhi at the U.S. Embassy in Beijing, State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler had harsh words for Chinese government efforts to brand as "counter-revolutionaries" the thousands of student protesters who peacefully packed the capital for weeks.

U.N. airlift transports 790 refugees back home

DOBRA, Namibia (UPI) — Five charted jets brought 790 Namibians home from exile Monday on the first day of a massive U.N. airlift to repatriate more than 41,000 refugees in advance of the territory's independence from South Africa. At the same time, authorities in northern Namibia grappled with another set of refugees — an unexpected rush of destitute Angolans who fled across the border and spoke of heavy fighting between Cuban-backed Angolan troops and U.S.-backed Unita guerrillas.

Mong monkclaiming POW sighting has delusions

TOKYO (UPI) — The daughter of a Japanese Buddhist monk who claims he saw several American prisoners of war in Vietnam at a prisoner camp where he spent from 1966 until his release in January said Monday he father suffers from delusions. The daughter of Iwanobu Yoshida, a 65-year-old priest who was held a political prisoner in Vietnam for 13 years, linked the hallucinations with the reported POW sightings, but the statement cast doubt on his reported claims to have seen Americans in Vietnam recently.

Egypt willing to mediate between Israel, PLO

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Egypt’s foreign affairs minister said Monday his government is ready to act as a mediator between Israel and Palestinians, including the Palesoln Liberation Organization. In response, Israeli officials again rejected direct or indirect contact with the PLO. In a statement, the only Arab country to sign a peace treaty with Israel, had an important role to play in the peace process.

Court upholds whites in affirmative action case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court upheld the rights of whites Monday to challenge affirmative action plans in a reverse discrimination case from Birmingham, Ala., known for its opposition to the civil rights movement. In a 5-4 decision, the court affirmed a ruling by the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that allows a suit by white firefighters seeking to block hiring and promotion quotas to go forward.

Bush unveils clean-air plan as promised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush proposed major changes in federal clean-air laws Monday, calling for a 50 percent reduction in acid rain emissions and tighter car exhaust restrictions and a crash program to develop "clean-tech" vehicles to cut urban ozone smog. Bush, fulfilling a macheind campaign promise, said his plan would address acid rain by requiring coal-fired power plants to cut sulfur dioxide emissions by 10 million tons and nitrogen oxide emissions by 2 million tons by the year 2000.

1,500 United Mine Workers strike, fear spreads

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — At least 1,500 coal miners in southern West Virginia walked off the job Monday, raising the fears of coal operators nationwide that the United Mine Workers’ rift with Pittston Coal Group could spread. UMW national officials in Washington, D.C., were not available for comment.

Horrell’s memory, photography could continue

By Irene Oploh
Staff Writer

The future of a book featuring photographs by the late C. William "Doc" Horrell remains in the hands of Pete Rhodes and the SIU Press.

Horrell’s unexpected death on June 4 left the fate of his work unanswered.

He took more than 300 photos for the book, which is a geological history of coal mines in Southern Illinois.

"The book is essential to preserve the heritage of Southern Illinois because it is the only definitive work on coal mines," Rhodes said.

The coal mining industry has become economically depressed in this area, according to Rhodes, and without the book, the effect and history of coal mines could fade from the pages of history.

The original manuscript of the book began with the first coal mines in Southern Illinois which was started by a descendant of Daniel Boone, William Boon, who dropped the "t" from his name. Boon ran a mine on the Big Muddy near Murphysboro.

Rhodes, a former student of Horrell, is writing the text for the book, and was given permission by Horrell to use his photos to complete the book.

"I will do everything in my power," Rhodes said, "I have been extremely close to his family and friends to finish it."

The book’s fate may be decided in the next two to three weeks by the University Press. According to Rhodes, the Press will decide whether to publish the full work, a short version or none at all.

Horrell remained over 35 years of professional service to the University, and his love of photography dates back even further.

He is best known for his contribution as chief photographer in another book, "Land Between the Rivers," published by the SIU Press to celebrate the University’s centennial in 1973.

Horrell earned a national reputation as a photographer; and in 1982 was awarded the Photographic Craftsman’s Medal, one of the highest honors given to professional photographers, by the Professional Photographers of America, Inc.

"Doc" Horrell’s life behind the camera began when his mother gave him a 120 Brownie camera for his high school graduation. He brought it with him to Carbondale when he entered Southern Illinois University in 1934.

As a student, he started what would become the University's Photographic Service, taking pictures for student organizations, the campus yearbook, intercollegiate athletics and other University organizations. Horrell earned his bachelor’s degree in 1942.

Horrell opened his own photography studio in his hometown of Anna, after making army films, at Scott Air Force Base during World War II.

But, impelled by his desire to teach, he left to earn his master’s degree in 1949 from the University of Illinois, and in the same year joined the SIU faculty. He earned a Ph.D. at Indiana University and in 1969 accepted a permanent faculty position in the SIU

Kleinau: a critic's critic on golf, salaries and rock music

By Curt's Winston
Staff Writer

Marvin Kleinau's job is getting easier.

Kleinau, who became acting dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts June 1, will likely be chairman of the Department of Speech Communication until July 1 when James E. Van Ootigten becomes acting chairman.

After July 1 Kleinau said he expects to have more spare time than he has had previously. He also is looking towards his planned retirement in August 1990. When he retires, he says he'll devote more time to his church and himself.

As a leader in the University's communications curriculum, Kleinau is in a natural position to criticize, judge and debate any issue, his reputation as a frank, fair critic has given him the informal task of being the critic's critic.

"Marvin just gives an enormous amount of time to other people," says Keith Sanders, former CCFA dean.

Sanders said Kleinau "has been instrumental in making the debate team what it is today."

Under Kleinau's leadership, the Department of Speech Communication is among the best in the country, Sanders said, "By the time he retire, his department could very well be among the top 10," he said.

Another positive for Kleinau is the Department of Speech Communication's recent addition of a Ph.D. to the faculty, Kendra Exner said.

The search for a new dean will be repeated at sometime during the next academic year, May, said the department chairperson, who is Kleinau's position now.

The search was called off in May after the search committee could not find strong support for any of the candidates.

Kleinau, who was chosen because he is a "well-qualified, willing soul," said, "I have every confidence in his ability to lead the college during this interim period," he said.

One dean candidate who probably has strong support for the acting dean is Mary Lou Higgerson, who was named associate vice president for academic affairs during the spring semester. She said she has been a long time friend of Kleinau.

"I just have the highest regard for him," Higgerson said.

She first encountered Kleinau when she was a 17-year-old undergraduate at Clarion University in Pennsylvania. She was on the debate team. He was her judge.

"He's the kind of judge who

Hurdler recognized as an All-American

"We would like to congratulate Kathy Raske of the SIU-C women’s track team for attaining All-American status as a 100-meter hurdler."

The Calumet City native finished eighth in the competition and sixth among American finishers in the NCAA Outdoor Nationals in Provo, Utah, June 2 and 3. The status is given to the top six American winners.

Raske, the University’s Female Athlete of the Year in her last season, has been a consistent competitor for women’s track coach Don DeNoon.

Her career has been marked by a number of successes that include making the All-Gateway Conference indoor team three times and the outdoor team four times.

During her career, Raske accumulated enough points to place her fourth on the list of all-time leading scorers in women’s track and field at the University.

She is the fifth Saluki women’s track and field athlete in the program’s history to qualify for both the indoor and outdoor nationals.

Raske’s dedication is evident not only in athletic success but in the classroom as well, where she has excelled while working on a zoology degree.

Adversity failed to slow Raske throughout her career, but in the classroom as well, where she has excelled while working on a zoology degree.

Adversity failed to slow Raske throughout her career, but Raske’s accomplishments and dedication to her sport are very admirable.

Raske and the entire 1989 Gateway Conference Champion women’s track team deserve to be commended for an outstanding season.

Japan reacts over situation in China

what was, for Tokyo, a strongly worded statement. ‘Japan has been adhering to a policy of maximum restraint on internal matters of China, but the Chinese government’s actions are intolerable from a humanitarian standpoint.’

Japan remains committed to its ‘fundamental policy toward China — to help China in its efforts to moderate and to internationalize that community,’ Watanabe said, adding that sanctions were not being considered.

In fact, however, all 14 of Japan’s economic and cultural missions have suspended activity because of the sheer impossibility of having meetings in Beijing or even reaching officials by telephone.

All but seven of the 11 staff members of Japan’s economic cooperation agencies in Beijing have left the capital, part of an exodus of about 3,000 Japanese nationals. As many as 1,000 Japanese may have remained, according to the Foreign Ministry, many of them are representatives of the 100 Japanese companies which have offices in Beijing.

"From the long-term point of view, most Japanese feel that China is still an unstable country," said Nobuo Kanayama, senior research officer of the government-funded Institute of Developing Economies.

Since the yen began to soar in value late in 1985, many Japanese companies have looked to save costs by locating labor-intensive plants in China. But Sue Kojima of the China-North Asia research department of JETRO, the Japan External Trade Organization, predicted that many new will look to other Asian countries, including Thailand, Indonesia, the Philippines and Malaysia.

Even if China’s political situation stabilizes soon and investors elect to stay there, project timetables have been set back.

"Some joint ventures might suffer, but most have decided to withdraw temporarily," Murayama said.

Veterans gather for 'Roll Call '89'

Southern Illinois' war dead remembered at veterans' reunion

By Irene Oploх
Staff Writer

The flag was lowered to half-mast, but patriotism rose high at the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds, as veterans gathered to pay their respects to U.S. soldiers who lost their lives fighting for their country.

The event, "Roll Call '89," was the veterans' family reunion. It was held Saturday and Sunday at the fairgrounds just off U.S. 51 south of Du Quoin.

"The reunion really affected me," said Vietnam veteran Frank Carlisle. "Shared openness is what most were looking for and found in the event."

Hosted by the Veterans of the Vietnam War, the reunion drew a crowd smaller than organizers expected, but achieved its goal of uniting veterans from all wars.

Present was 91-year-old Bill Yonce, a Veteran of World War I from Du Quoin, to help fulfill that goal.

More than 40 years after the war, three World War II POWs were honored by the veterans of Southern Illinois' oldest surviving World War I veteran, Bill Yonce of Du Quoin.

The three honored, Raymond Blaise, Oliver Birken, and Fred Ritter, served together in World War II in the 45th Infantry Division.

During the ceremonies, veterans from four wars, their families and friends joined hands while musicians Michael Martin and Tim Holliday of Houston, Texas, sang "Will the Circle Be Unbroken."

A team of F-4s flew over the fairgrounds in missing-man formation to honor soldiers missing in action.

When ceremonies were not underway, children and adults climbed on displays of war vehicles, such as the "Hum-vee" or the Highly Mobile Multi-Purpose Vehicle. The vehicle could replace the jeep in the future, according to Sgt. Keith Taylor, who served three tours in Vietnam.

Also on display was a UH-1 "Huey" helicopter, which served in the Vietnam War, and a T-38, an Air Force plane which is used in training.

Edna Pittman, the wife of a veteran, said, "These reunions really make a difference. Especially in the lives of veterans from the Vietnam War."

"Veterans of other wars were welcomed home and encouraged to talk about their experiences," she said, "but Vietnam veterans were on their own."

The Red Cross brought its national award winning photo exhibit, entitled "Sides by Side," which was set up to help veterans release and come to terms with the vivid memories locked inside themselves after returning from Vietnam.

"The response we have received from the veterans is amazing," Loretta Hassler, Red Cross worker and Vietnam veteran, said. "People look for their relatives in the photos, and even when they don't find them, they share stories and experiences with others."

would vote against you and still make you feel good," Higgerson said. In 1973 Higgerson would take a job as an instructor in the Department of Speech Communications. One reason she gave it was because she could "moodle the chance to work with Kleinau.

Kleinau, who is an ordained minister in the Reorganized Church of the Latter Day Saints, keeps a breakneck church timetable. Church activities fill his weekends and school activities fill the weekdays.

With a ministry, a department and committees to preside over, the pace of the 59-year-old Kleinau keeps him hopping. "I'm a great teacher of golf," he said. "I've got an interest in golf and I've got an interest in speech communication around this time."

Kleinau came to the University to work on his doctorate in the late 1960s, getting hired as an instructor in the process. He met his wife of 27 years, Marion, who was a faculty member in speech communication then.

University administrators have chosen Kleinau to be in charge of such important committees as the North Central Accreditation Steering Committee and the undergraduate education committee.

"He's a great teacher of golf, the way he can," Higgerson said. "But that's my fault, not his." Kleinau said plans to give more time to the church of which he became an ordained minister in 1978. "That's my main reason for quitting now," he said. His ministry, which is based in Marion, covers the entire Southern Illinois region.

Teaching Kleinau said, is a lot like preaching. "When I was a boy I always thought about teaching the future, but I became a teacher instead." "I answered the call," Kleinau said, talking about his decision to become a minister.

But he also had answered another call, a call for his leadership and advice from members of the University community.

University administrators have chosen Kleinau to be in charge of such important committees as the North Central Accreditation Steering Committee and the undergraduate education committee.

"I have so little understanding of an appreciation for contemporary music that I cannot fathom what it is you would like about the Rolling Stones," Marvin said. "I would give anything for being able to trade for 24 hours with somebody (the age of a typical college student) just to get a feeling of what it would be like to appreciate pop music," he said.

While Kleinau was in college at Illinois State University in Normal during the late 1940s and early 1950s, he professed to being "completely vested" in the likes of such superstars as Frank Sinatra and Tony Bennett.

"I thought they were the greatest thing that ever happened," he said. "I was so deeply involved in that kind of music that I never made the transition to rock 'n' roll.

"Music is definitely a factor in criticizing music, or any subject, Kleinau said. "Maybe you gotta be 50 years old or 40 years old," he said.

"I could be educated in classical music ... but not rock 'n' roll ... it's like a brick wall. I can't get through that wall." Kleinau admits a love for some of the music by the Beatles, the group that set the tone for most of today's rock bands.

"I didn't buy a Beatles record until they were near broke up, then I fell in love with them ... the really gentle stuff."

He gave Paul McCartney's lulling ballad, "Michelle," as an example of the Beatles' music that he enjoyed. "That's music from my era, a really lovely ballad music." Age is definitely a factor in criticizing music, or any subject, Kleinau said. "Maybe you gotta be 50 years old or 40 years old," he said.

"I can't see why students, especially those working as writers for the Daily Egyptian, have a lack of understanding of the critical process," Kleinau said.

"I'm disappointed that the paper has fallen so much to entertainment for the students," he said. "They worry so much about rock 'n' roll music."

Daily Egyptian writers "try very hard to be critical of the classics of rock 'n' roll music," he remarked. "Why can't they be just as critical of other activities on campus?"

As a teacher of courses in logic, Kleinau can't help being a critic of critics.
China attempts to seal dissident's escape routes

By Jackie Lay  Staff Writer

Three SIU-C professors on assignment in China have been asked to return to the U.S. The program, which is sponsored by the U.S. Information Agency at the end of its second year.

The professors were involved in a three-year change program designed to educate Chinese researchers on international relations at Northeast Normal University in Changchun. The program is sponsored by the U.S. Information Agency is at the end of its second year.

The order to police, carried by government radio in an early morning broadcast, again stiffened the diplomatic standoff between China and the United States, which granted refuge June 5 to Fang, an astrophysicist who is the country's most outspoken dissident, his wife, Li Shuxian, and their son, Fang Ke. Rumors swept the U.S. Embassy Monday of a possible pro-government demonstration outside its gates to protest the U.S. action. The protest did not materialize, but diplomats still are preparing for demonstrations.

Authorities issued a warrant for the arrest of Fang and his wife on charges they organized the democracy movement in a conspiracy to topple the communist government.

The radio broadcast said the Beijing Public Security Bureau had issued a circular ordering that all police "in railway stations, airline terminals and at borders should immediately step up guard against (Fang's) escaping overseas.

"If they are seen, they should be detained immediately," the circular said.

Expansion proposed for Cache River

By John Walblay Staff Writer

The deterioration of wooded and swampland areas in four southern Illinois counties has brought private, state and federal agencies together to support the expansion of the Cache River project.

U.S. Sen. Paul Simon sponsored a luncheon Saturday at the Shawnee Inn, which drew more than 300 supporters of the Lower Cache River project.

William Weeks, operations director of The Conservancy, urged the cooperation between state and national entities to ensure the conservation of the area. The Nature Conservancy is a non-profit group based in Washington, D.C., that has done the planning for the expanded project called "the Heartland.

Under the plan, surrounding land of the Cache and nearby farmland that has been cleared of forestation in Pulaski, Alexander, Johnson and Union counties will be purchased.

Simon urged state and federal agencies to work together to create what might boost the economy in years to come.

"There will be no federal use of eminent domain," Simon said. "We're not going to force people to sell the land."

Simon went on to say that, if anything, the land should increase in value. Citing that if developed properly the area could draw people to the area for recreation, increase the number of small businesses and, thus, influence unemployment.

A slide presentation by Ned Trovillion, who said he has been an advocate of the project for 30 years, showed the extensive deterioration of the woods and swamps within the area.

Supporters of the project believe farming techniques combined with the on-going clearing of the forests have created extensive sitting in the river. The supporters also claim the sediment, which was once precious topsoil has rechanneled the river and has created irrigation problems for many of the fields that have been cleared for farming.

The original project was expanded because of the necessity to restore a wider area surrounding the swamplands, which affects the "entire region.

The Lower Cache boasts of rare plant and animal species. Cypress trees in the swamplands are over 1,000 years old and feature 6-foot knees sprouting out of the water.

Trovillion said that hardwood planting has started in the uplands and more than 30,000 acres have been converted this far.

Over the years, before a large-scale movement was introduced, it has been the local citizens, mainly those who hunt and fish in the area who have tried to protect the area.

Dave Kennedy, Anna resident and representative of Ducks Unlimited, expressed Ducks Unlimited's commitment to preserve the habitat of migrating ducks.

Kennedy said, in the past, Ducks Unlimited has preserved 5 million acres of wetland throughout the country at a cost of $500 million.

Kennedy also announced the pledge of $50,000 for the Cache River project.
Five students on internships with French business firms

Five SIU-C students are serving summer internships in France with major international business firms.

The internships are a part of a three-year SIU-C under­graduate program in foreign language and international trade.

Chris Cripps, a senior and foreign language and international trade major, is serving summer internships in France with a major in­ dergraduate program in foreign language and international trade.

Nancy Sanchez, a senior and liberal arts major, is doing marketing research in the area of tourism for Michelin, a French tire company located in Clermont-Serrand. Deandre Woods, a junior and business major, is serving her internship with Johnson-Matthey, a French subsidiary of an English company.

Karen Hitberg, a senior and foreign language and international trade major, and Linda Lacko, a SIU-C graduate, are working with Credit Agricole in Agen, an international bank.

Karen Horrell, a University professor of French, arranged the internships. He has been to France several times to meet with executives of companies to set up internships and has also corresponded with French companies on a regular basis.

Horrell’s latest visit to France was in the spring. During his stay, he made more contacts in France for internships in Jodours and Albi. Horrell said that the SIU­C interns presently in France “are a very bright group. I’m confident that they will make a good impression and that the companies they are working for will want more internes in the future.

Horrell was loved by everyone, according to Henry Dan Pipe, an assistant professor who worked with him.

"There is a big difference between testing HIV positive, which is what this study indicates students know what (HIV positive) means yet. We know that a positive test does not mean you are geographically dispersed.

The study was limited to three U.S. cities in large universities which tend to attract students who are geographically dispersed. The sample was also restricted to students who had routine blood tests done at the student health center, and who probably use the center as their primary source of care.

The study was conducted as an anonymous, blinded survey. Campus-specific responses were not linked to the identities of the campuses.

The American College Health Association intends to continue the study next year by following up with schools which participated as well as including several new institutions.

New schools proposed include historically black institutions and those with predominantly Hispanic populations.

The study was funded under a cooperative agreement with the Centers for Disease Control, and represents the results of the first year of a five-year investigation.

Guyon says he expects results with.

"We Dave said Narve.

"I don't think you should use food and medicine as a political weapon," he said, pointing to an agreement from several students attending the meeting.

Simon said the United States should go to the United Nations and speak against the Chinese government's actions. He said even though China is one of the five nations in the United Nations Security Council, it has the power of veto if all the remaining nations vote against the Chinese, it would give a very clear signal condemning the bloodshed in China.

Simon added that he is a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, which is discussing taking steps to go to the General Assembly, where the Chinese government has no veto power.

"I think we ought to be taking every tool we can," Simon said.

Simon expressed the need for a broader broadcast of "Voice of America" to the People's Republic of China.

Rude Beat League kicks off 1989 Sunset Concert Series

By Theresa Livingston

Entertainment Editor

Reggae with an attitude. That’s how Dwayne Johnson describes the philosophy behind the music of Rude Beat League, the Chicago-based group that will kick off the 1989 Sunset Concert Series Thursday night.

“We have taken reggae to a different place. We incorporate a lot of different influences, like dance music and rock guitar. We make it a lot more fun,” he said.

Johnson, the manager-keyboardist-producer of a seven-piece group, said the group is forming a “conglomerate of the best musicians around” about three and a half years ago. At the time, the members were all involved with other groups and formed as a band in late August.

“It was perfecting their sound, by playing ‘every major hall from Nebraska to Ohio,’ be said, and touring with the likes of Biggie Marley and UB40.

Student Center Craft Shop to offer free summer workshop classes

By Carrie Pomeroy

Staff Writer

The Student Center Craft Shop will offer a variety of arts and crafts activities and services to help students, staff, and faculty. The classes are free to the first member who joins during the summer semesters.

A free workshop series, classes for adults and children, and a free summer camp are available. The classes are open to everyone, and the free summer camp is open to everyone.

The Craft Shop is also offering many new activities, such as arts and crafts for sale, pottery, woodworking, and figure drawing. These activities are chosen on the basis of past enrollments and survey responses. We also sell supplies to all of the students, and our summer camp is open to everyone.

The Craft Shop is also offering many new activities, such as arts and crafts for sale, pottery, woodworking, and figure drawing. These activities are chosen on the basis of past enrollments and survey responses. The student who joins during the summer semesters will learn to make small, decorative books that can be used for anything from journals to pressed flowers.

Summer classes usually meet one day a week for five weeks. Fees range from $15 to $30.

The Craft Shop also offers free, one-day workshop classes. For example, Duskel, these activities are often a good opportunity for students who are too busy to commit to a five-week class or who can’t afford class fees, but who still want to participate in arts and crafts.

Beginning arts and crafts enthusiasts can expect personalized assistance and instruction in many activities. Duskel said. Most classes and workshops have an enrollment of ten to twelve people. Ten student workers, a ceramics graduate student, and two staff members are available to help. Instructors emphasize safety and try to teach students “the theory of doing things the right way,” he said.

The Craft Shop offers facilities to accommodate everyone from beginners to experts. The pottery studio has six pottery wheels and two kilns, and also sells artists’ materials.

The Craft Shop summer hours are Monday through Friday, 3-8 p.m. and the Wood Shop hours are Monday through Friday, 1-9 p.m. It is located in the basement of the Student Center about the biggest Muddy Room. For more information, call the Craft Shop at 453-3030, or the Wood Shop at 536-2121.

Flying Salukis capture sixth place in national collegiate competition

By Micki Delhaute McGowan
Staff Writer

Three SIU-C Flying Salukis placed in the National Intercollegiate Flying Association Championships, which were held May 16-20 at the University of North Dakota.

Michael J. McDonnell, a sophomore majoring in engineering and the Flying Salukis' wing leader, won second place in the message drop event and ninth place in the power-off precision landing event. McDonnell said, "The message drop was the most fun event because you had to fly pretty low and drop a balloon, then bomb at a target." McDonnell missed winning first place in the message drop event by one point.

David L. Carlson and Christopher C. Shaw also placed at the meet, enabling the Flying Salukis to place sixth overall in a competition of 26 teams.

The Flying Salukis is a team of SIU-C students that compete in flying events in the Midwestern regional league. If the team places in one of the top three positions, it qualifies for the nationals. Most of the team members are aviation majors, but it is not a requirement.

Area businesses fail to view video, may lose license

By John Wallbey
Staff Writer

Failure to view a videotape on how to properly check for false identification cards could halt the July 1 renewal of five Carbondale business' liquor licenses.

A Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board reviewed six applications for renewal of liquor licenses.

Eight of the businesses were noted by the board as having police reports of underage drinking arrests.

Three of the eight, the American Tap, Hangar 9 and Six Bar and Billiards, have viewed the videotape.

Gately's, Sin City, 411 Pizza, T-Birds and Two Hearts did not have the videotape at the time of the board's Thursday meeting.

A Carbondale city ordinance requires all liquor license holders to send to least one representative to view the videotape.

Fire damage not expected to cause problems for students

A fire in the Baptist Student Center which caused an estimated $98,000 in damage will not cause problems for the residents of the off campus residence hall, according to the manager of the center.

Fire Chief Everett Rushing said the May 18 fire was started when workers using a blow torch to cut the roof caught the attic on fire and then went to lunch because they didn't realize what they had done.

Rushing said the fire burned for 10 minutes before the fire department was called at 11:59. He said three fire trucks and 11 men were overcome by heat exhaustion, were required to put out the fire, which was contained in the attic.

Sylivar Knobloch, manager of the residence hall, said $68,000 in construction damage and $20,000 in cleaning costs have accumulated from the fire. But he said the cafeteria, which is housed in the building that was subjected to the fire, is fully functional.

Rushing estimated an additional $50,000 damage to the contents of the building.

Soviet premier tours settlements, tries to calm recent ethnic attacks

MOSCOW (UPI) -- Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov toured the gutted remains of Turkish settlements in eastern Uzbekistan Monday on a mission Monday even as the premier had been adopted to evacuate all 11,290 Meskhetian Turks, including an estimated 2,500 children, from a refugee camp in eastern Uzbekistan. The evacuees were to be taken to holiday camps in European Russia in the next several days.

The Investga newspaper reported an outbreak of stabbing involving inhumanity had made evacuation of the refugee camp essential.

The violence, which government officials concede is racially motivated, is the worst such unrest in the Soviet Union since February 1988, when 22 people were killed and more than 200 injured in a single day of rioting in the Meskhetian Turks' homeland.

The Meskhetian Turks were thrown out of their native republic of Georgia in 1944 by the Soviet government and sent to several Central Asian republics.

But he said the cafeteria, which is housed in the building that was subjected to the fire is fully functional. Rushing estimated an additional $10,000 damage to the contents of the building.

Soviet premier tours settlements, tries to calm recent ethnic attacks

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov toured the gutted remains of Turkish settlements in eastern Uzbekistan and said the tense situation there was not that serious.

Ryzhkov, the Kremlin's railway station and rampaged during an official visit to the region, where unrest have raged virtually out of control and claimed more than 1,000 lives, the official media said.

There were no new reports of violence Monday, and authorities stepped up an emergency airlift of the threatened Turkish minority flying some 6,000 people out of the Central Asian republic to safety in European Russia and neighboring Kazakhstan, the official news agency Tass said.

Ryzhkov, the Kremlin's chief troubleshooter in the Chernobyl nuclear accident in April 1986 and the Armenian earthquake of December 1988, flew with Politburo member Mikhael Knobloch, manager of the center.

The television and Tass said an undisclosed official said an additional 2,500 people were to be taken to holiday camps in European Russia in the next several days.

The Izvestia government newspaper said an outbreak of stomach infections due to unsanitary conditions had made evacuation of the refugee camp essential.

The violence, which government officials concede is racially motivated, is the worst such unrest in the Soviet Union since February 1988, when 32 people were killed and more than 200 injured in a reign of terror in the Osh region in the neighboring Kazakhstan republic.

The Meskhetian Turks were thrown out of their native Georgia near the Turkish border by Josef Stalin in 1944 and sent to several Central Asian republics.

The television and Tass reported that the atmosphere in Ferghana remained tense Monday even as the premier arrived.

Buses protected by heavily armed troops and armored personnel carriers drove in convoy to the local cemeteries where thousands of Uzbek youths seized the local railway station and rampaged through other areas of the city, center stoning militia and police before they were dispersed.

It said an undisclosed number of riders and police were injured in the disturbances and 28 people were arrested.

In the nearby town of Kokand, two motorcyclists opened fire on an army patrol with sawed-off shotgun before troops returned the fire, killing one of the riders and wounding the other. In nearby Margilan, another person was shot dead when he attempted to steal an army rifle, Tass said. A local Communist Party official said Sunday that plans have been adopted to evacuate all 14,900 Meskhetian Turks, including an estimated 2,500 children, from a refugee camp in eastern Uzbekistan. The evacuees were to be taken to holiday camps in European Russia in the next several days.

Library catalog system offers more information to students

By Christine Broda
Staff Writer

Things are linking up for students using Morris Library this summer.

The library’s statewide online library catalog, ILLINET Online, is fully functional and contains over 45 million items from the collections of over 800 libraries in Illinois. It is one of the largest catalogs in the United States.

Betsy Glass, coordinator of Online Catalog Training and User Services, said that the presence of the terminals and the functions provided by the system will free library users from the card catalog on the first floor.

Available will be keyword searching which will enable people to find material even if they do not have an exact or complete title.

The traditional card catalog is still available, but eventually all new library materials will be available only online, Glass said.

The 10 system consists of two separate systems, the Library Computer System and the Full Bibliographic Record. LCS has been operating at Morris Library since 1983 and provides circulation records for over 300 academic libraries around the state.

FBR is the computerized version of the traditional card catalog. It also indicates which of the 800 participating libraries own an item. FBR is more powerful than the structure of LCS. Searches that were once unavailable by LCS alone are now easily accessible on FBR including searches by subject, editor-composer and keyword.

Public terminals for both components of 10 are available on every floor of the library.

Glass said that “user friendly” interface is available on some public terminals and can lead an untrained user through a search.

A training site has been created on the second floor of the library and training sessions for the general student population will begin the week of July 5. Faculty, staff and students may register for a training session by calling 453-2769. Registration may also be done in person at the third floor Social Studies Reference Desk.

Sunset concerts offer variety
By Theresa Livingston

Sponsored as a joint effort between the Student Programming Council, the Student Center and the Carbondale Park District, the 11th annual series of free concerts has become a Carbondale institution that is almost synonymous with summertime.

The scheduling of the concerts has changed a bit this year and will run every Thursday through July 23, from 7 to 9 p.m. and will end with the annual Sunset Concert Series on Main Street and the Carbondale Park District Auditorium on campus. The audience is advised to bring lawn chairs and blankets for the outdoor shows.

Although alcohol is allowed at the concerts, glass bottles and kegs are prohibited and the underaged drinking laws are strictly enforced.

Beginning at 8 p.m., food service again will be offered at the concerts on the auditorium steps.

Hot dogs, hamburgers, snacks and soft drinks will be available at "inexpensive, reasonable prices," as well as different specialty sandwiches at each of the events, according to SPC sources.

But the main attraction is the music!, so without further ado, here is the schedule and a brief description of the performers.

Red Beat League, June 13, Shryock Steps. The opening act of the series, this four-piece rock group out of Chicago is predominantly influenced with dance music and rock guitars. Shortly to have an album out, the band members recently sold out the Park West in Chicago.

Webb Wilder and the Beatniks, June 22, Turley Park. This local recording artist from Nashville plays all original rockabilly, rhythm and blues and rock 'n' roll.

Government Cheese, June 29, Shryock Steps. No strangers to the Carbondale Bar scene, this four-piece band out of Bowling Green, KY, make its Sunset Concert debut this year. The show will consist of their Reptile Records LP, plus covers of the music of the Beatles, R.E.M., The Replacements, and the Velvet Underground and others.

Captain Rat and the Blind Riffies, July 6, Turley Park. A '60s and '70s revival outfit, this four-piece band from Champaign plays everything from the Beach Boys to Tommy James. The band, which has been on the road and off for over a decade, has opened for such acts as Jan and Dean and Dion. It also cut a novelty single in honor of the Fighting Illini's trip this year to the Rose Bowl which sold 10,000 copies.

Otis and the Elevators, July 13, Shryock Steps. Also based out of Champaign, this band dishes up their own style of blues, folk and influenced rock 'n' roll regularly to crowds throughout the Midwest. The band, which has opened for Hot Tuna, Jason and the Scorchers and Gillon Ray Vaughn, performs all original music. The band has recently released their second album, "Cross the Bridge," which is the overall number one selling album in the Champaign-Urbana area.

Syzygy, July 20, Turley Park. A Syzygy (a-uh-gee), for those of us who are uninformed, is "the nearly straight-line configuration of heavenly bodies of three celestial bodies in a gravitational system," according to Webster's Third New International Dictionary. became her event and she placed in the conference championships from her freshman season.

It is somewhat symbolic that Raske competed in hurdles during her career at SIU-C. Raske had to jump over many hurdles in her own life to overcome adversity.

At the age of 12, Raske had to deal with the death of her father - a victim of cancer in his mid-40's.

Raske who grew up in Carbondale, a rural city on the outskirts of Chicago, was a driver for a drunk driver while crossing a street in Carbondale in just her first month of driving. She sustained a concussion, which caused memory loss and major damage to her knee. The accident sidelined her for much of her freshman season. Raske still has a scar on her leg that has no feeling.

She had a lot of adversity to overcome, said coach DeNoon. "But she is a fight-back person and sometimes adversity that people have to deal with makes them a stronger person in life."

Raske, SIU-C's Female Athlete of the Year, is only the fifth Saluki women's track and field recruit to achieve the history of the program to qualify for both the indoor and outdoor nationals.

Raske ranks as the No. 4 all-time leading scorer in the triple jump (47-9), high jump (5-6) and was selected for the All-Gateway Conference indoor team three times (1986, 1987, 1989) and the outdoor squad twice (1986, 1987, 1989).

Raske, who entered SIU-C in 1984 and earned a degree in zoology, set a new University record in the 400-meter hurdles with a time of 13.46.

Statement, "We were expecting to go 2-4," Cornell said. "That didn't work out, and we qualified everyone.'"

On May 13 SIU-C achieved its third highest ranking ever as Garrett Hines, Guy Sikora and Moore were all named in the long jump. Eric Bomball and Dirk Mathias each scored in the hammer throw, shot put and Beauchem won the 3,000-meter run.

Mike Kershaw finished fifth in the event. In all, SIU-C totaled 41 points, but more importantly, it had qualified numerous athletes for every one of Sunday's finals.

With just 11 points separating the first two teams heading into the last day of the meet, the team title was still wide open.

SIU-C's javelin throwers, led by Halloway, may have missed the championship by finishing one-two-three-four.

Holloway threw 15 feet farther than he had all year while Seth Moore and Dale Walker, in their first MVC championships, performed admirably for the Salukis.

Raske said, "I remember one of the opposing coaches telling me that we had the best team. That was important because the title was still wide open."

Bill Schertel vaulted 15-4, 9 inches above his personal best, to take second while SIU-C's two-time champion, Mike McLain, was nobelighted. Kevin Carlone ran a season's best 4:11:9 take third in the 400-meter dash. Hines jumped a career-best 7-0 to take second in the triple jump. Carlone would later go on to win the 110-meter hurdles.

In all, 28 of the 29 Saluki senior performers earned final spots. Paul Burkhart finished third in the 800 and Pegues added a third-place finish in the 300-meter dash before anchoring SIU-C's 4x400-meter relay team that closed the meet in victorious fashion.

the contract on personal differences. We were simply writing to find out what was going on.

Another part of the conflict is the way announcers for the upcoming football and basketball season were being selected.

The contract states that SIU-C has the right of refusal on broadcasters chosen. T said he claims that a letter was "hand delivered" with no indication that the announcers were to be used. "The letter also mentioned that if they were not satisfied, he could let me know."

Turner said. He also added that Hart stated the sale of the station was in violation of the contract and that we did not consult him when the announcers were assigned.

"Neither of these statements are correct," Turner said. "We had the basis of the termination on the contract."" Turner said.

WBBF had planned using Ron Head, a former player by play announcer for Benton High School football and basketball games, to handle commentary for the Salukis this fall. Bob Karres, former head coach for the BIG-10 Indians and Mike Rude, present head coach at Marion High School, were expected to handle most of the color commentary. Brad Pancoski, a former Saluki quarterback, now head coach at Marion Vernon High School, was also expected to join the broadcast team.

"The problem was not with the Japanese, the problem arose when they by-passed us in the decision," Turner said.

The contract had called for Communications to turn over the university to the University in an annual basis. Communications also was to keep the station running and maintain a network of area radio stations carrying part of the saluki sports program.

education.

"So many give a lifetime of distinguished service to their profession and they very rarely appear in this position," said Shea. "I truly enjoy the energy every day in the Recreation Center pool. I share this with others and I think they enjoy it as much as I do."

A member and past president of the American Academy of Physical Education, he started swimming at the University in 1935 after 31 years of service. For 23 of those years he headed the men's PE department, which merged with the women's PE department in 1973.

Last summer at the U.S. National Invitational Swimming Championships, Shea broke his own record with a 31.1 meter backstroke in his age group. He swam side-by-side and defeated his collegiate hero, Albert Vanderweghe, who was captain of the 1960 U.S. Olympic swimming team.

In 1957 he won the American Academy of Physical Education's Clark W. Hetherington Award.

In 1966 he was one of only 10 Americans selected as "Health Amos of Fitness leaders" by the United States Jaycees.

"Swimming for Seniors," which was recently translated into Japanese, "is going very well," he said.

Baseball Salukis take third in Valley tourney

From press release

SIU-C's baseball team concluded a 26-26 season by taking third-place at the Missouri Valley Conference tournament that was held at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. The Salukis finished the tournament with a .375 batting average, 3.75 team ERA, and 13-10 record.

The pitching staff was young, but every starter will return for next season. Seven sophomore. and four of them, Bergman, George Joseph, Bryan Gestrich and Kent Wallace, were seasoned with MVC tournament experience.

SIU-C loses only two players to graduation. Relief pitcher Shane Gooden and outfielder Rick Darnico. With Shields in the majors, SIU-C will have 20 of 25 top players returning next year.

Baseball recruits two JUCO pitchers

SIU-C has signed two junior college pitchers to join its roster. The players are Mike Brechtlebuerker and Rick Darnico.

The team, which began Monday and continues through July 16, is held at the Recreation Center. Coach Young, activity director for Intramural-Recreational Sports, said the University is one of seven sites in the state selected for the camps, which are held in urban areas throughout the nation.

"SIU was fortunate to get a camp of this magnitude in Southern Illinois," Young said.

O.L. Turner, chief executive officer of Turner Communications, which owns and operates WEQB, said Monday that his termination of the contract for rights to broadcast Saluki games was not because of differences with the University.

In a printed statement Turner said the contract was terminated because of "inauspicious and threatening actions" taken by Jim Hart, University athletic director, relative to the franchise agreement between the two parties.

"There are not any bad feelings toward the University," Turner said. "We will continue to support the University, the Saluki athletic department and sports program."

Hart said part of the conflict between Turner and Hart arose when Turner Communications announced the sale of WEQB to Jerry Girard, owner of Cape Girardue. "We have the quaint to cancel the sale if it was not valid," Hart said.

But Turner says his corporation is "in violation of the contract with the sale of WEQB because the contract was with Turner Communications and not the station."

"Mr. Hart is an extremely difficult person to be involved with in matters of broadcasting," Turner said, adding that he thought Hart "often makes decisions based on inaccurate facts or misinformation."

"Our problems with Hart were irreconcilable and of the type that are alternatives other than cancellation," Turner stated in a published release.

Hart said: "Turner seems to have based the termination of the contract on the poor performance of the station."

The Saluki basketball team has gained a little in adding a new recruit to its program.

Okenwa, an 18-year-old Nigerian from Overmi, Ilo Slate, has become a Saluki even though head coach Rich Herrin has never seen him play.

"I'll be the first to admit that we're gambling a little in this situation," Herrin said, "but it's the type of chance we're willing to take. This kid is very, very excited about it." Okenwa first contacted Herrin personally by mail last fall indicating that he wished to 'play big time basketball in the world of basketball.'

According to Smith, Okenwa heard about SIU-C from his teammates on the Nigerian national team. Okenwa also was impressed that the University had a high number of foreign students, Smith said.

Okenwa's dimensions are listed at 6-foot, 9-inch, 220 pounds.

Three Saluki running events were highlighted last weekend as the Salukis pulled ahead in javelin, steeplechase, and decathlon.

"Winning the conference title really goes along with it," Bill Cornhill said of the year. "We were picked third going into the meet but we just exploded. That's just personal bests. We just put it together and got a peak at the right time." The Salukis pulled ahead in javelin, steeplechase, and decathlon.

SIU-C runner Kathy Raske closed out her collegiate career by receiving the All-American status at the NCAA Outdoor National Championships.

Raske, a 100-meter hurdler, placed eighth in the 100-meter hurdles which was held June 2 and 3 in Provo, Utah. The top six American athletes receive the All-American honor. However, two more athletes qualified ahead of Raske enabling her to still qualify for the award.

Don Denoon, women's track and field coach, said Raske's ability was evident from the time she entered the University.

"Kathy's first and second year, she was so talented that we moved her in a number of events," said Denoon. "At that point she used the long jump, high jump, and shot put as well as. As she became stronger and stronger, the hurdles to SIU-C's Jamie Dashner, Traci Davis, Lisa Judscak, Christiana Philipp, Kathleen Reske, Carmen Robbins, Danielle Sciano, Dominique Vincent and Michelle Williams were all members of Denoon's winning 4x400-meter relay team.

This was a big season for DrNoon's Salukas. However, several of the new major people on the team have graduated or left at the conclusion of the season. The Salukas lose Judscak, Philippou, Raske, Robbins, Vincent, Dora meter dash in 11.89 and the 200-
