To the Editor:

When you think of the Appaloosa with its dun-colored coat and its contrast with other varieties of horses, you must also realize that the Appaloosa is a remarkably colorful horse. A true beauty in any color, it is a good-looking horse that hardly ever fails to amaze the viewer. The Appaloosa is a breed that has been around for centuries and is known for its endurance and stamina.

In this issue, we will be featuring an article on the history of the Appaloosa, as well as several stories on the breed's unique characteristics. We hope you enjoy reading about these remarkable horses. Thank you for supporting the Appaloosa Horse Journal.

Salukis Trip Huskies In Season Finale

By Jim Horan

Salukis reeled off a hard-hitting 86-69 victory over the huskies, sending the second-place team to the third-place game in the Missouri Valley Conference.

The Salukis dominated the game from the outset, outscoring the huskies 21-13 in the first half and never being threatened.

Coach Lynn Huldal said the team played well and had a good game.

For an unknown reason, Kurtz was not able to make the trip to DeKalb.
