Seven Southern Students Selected for 'Who's Who' Volume

Each year the University of Alabama compiles a list of outstanding students from universities and colleges all over the country for the purpose of formulating "Who's Who Among Students of Universities and Colleges," yearly publication of the institution.

This book, appearing about June, contains the names of the selected students and their activities: scholastic standing, their hobbies, ideas, opinions, and attitudes, with each person having a separate write-up. Then, in one overall section, all the student opinions are joined together in a general student tabulation.

The Southern Regional Student Government, select the student candidates from each university and college, on a non-biased basis. They are judged on their services to the school, and their capabilities.

This year fourteen new members were selected from Southern, and three members from last year's list carried over, totaling seventeen representatives.

Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges serves as a valuable reference for parents, students, and others interested in the educational institutions and the students therein. It is also a valuable resource for future students in choosing a college or university.

Southern Alumni Goes to Press

The Southern Alumni organization has released the results of the recent alumni survey. The survey was conducted to gather feedback from alumni on various aspects of their college experience.

The survey included questions on academic programs, faculty interactions, extracurricular activities, and overall satisfaction with the college experience. The results will be used to improve the college experience for future students.

Student Members Picked for Faculty Committees

The Student Council has recently appointed several students to key faculty committees. These students will play an active role in shaping the policies and practices of the university.
GIVE DEMOCRACY A CHANCE!

You can hear it around the countryside, "We've got to win the war to save democracy.

It is an ominous statement, something to be said and easy to say. It sounds good around the country, and it is no doubt comforting in the foxholes.

But who is going to defend democracy—doing where?

"We" includes Russia, Great Britain, China, Brazil—all the United States is Russia fighting for, and all the rest of them. What is British democracy? What is the preservation of her kingdom? Is democracy involved in China's struggle against Japan? Is Brazil planning to switch to democracy after the war?

The record does not indicate that democracy is the thing most "we" are fighting for. "The Allies have been sorely criticized for an apparent indifference toward the democratic forces abroad. No official statement says that it is aimed to convert France will be converted into a democracy after the capitulation of the Nazi power.

Democracy in Japan. The fact is, if we keep the faith of the Tushman conference, it appears that nations will be allowed a great deal of freedom in directing their destinies in the post-war world. But such democracies could only be shells.

The United States is democracy as it is making its way. We can least spread democracy by making the democratic life in this country attractive enough so that it will be adopted by others. The example of a powerful nation, able to defend itself and still afford economic, social and political equality in its citizenship is an example which the world will not likely ignore.

We cannot fail in our example in the past. But we have another chance.

"We've got to win the war to save democracy," we've got to win the war to save democracy.

We will not preserve democracy through an armed victory alone.

THERE WILL BE A TOMORROW

The fate of the South is in your hands! Each student on the campus is responsible for the outcome of S.U.G.'s post-war campaign. Please take some time to think about it.

Post-war planning has been written and rewritten, and we're not sure if it will work. But it's important to make sure that everyone understands what's at stake.

The idea is to encourage students to stay in school and to consider the future. The government has the right to know what you want to do after the war, and we can help you make decisions.

The War is important; men and women are serving in all types of service, and there are still some who are in college and under the draft. The Government has every right to know what you want to do after the war, and we can help you make decisions.

We can't QUIT college—take a break with a good job and stay at home! Who wouldn't want to be in a job right after the war?

We will have a car and a house.
