Education Exists to Foster Growth

"Education exists to make us ourselves, to bring out the best in us, to help us realize our potential. It is a means of self-discovery and self-improvement. It helps us understand our place in the world and our responsibilities as citizens.

Education is not just about learning facts and figures. It is about developing a critical and analytical mindset, and a desire to learn. It is about developing a sense of curiosity and a desire to explore the world around us.

Education is about challenging our assumptions and prejudices, and about learning to live in a diverse and complex world. It is about developing a sense of empathy and compassion, and about understanding the perspectives of others.

Education is about creating a better world for ourselves and for future generations. It is about making a difference and leaving a positive impact on the world. It is about learning to live a life of purpose and meaning."

deep red color has been the prominent color also used, with the exception of the first year when only the red was used. The "arrangement red for the first time. They wanted to create something different and unique for their school, and they thought red would make a great statement at the games. The "arrangement girls" are a small group of students who work closely with the Yell Queen to plan and execute the details of the College Games. They are responsible for everything from selecting the uniforms displayed in the best possible light. They are proud of their work and take great pride in their
