Music Department Offers B.S. Degree

A new professional degree program has recently been announced by Southern Illinois Normal University, and is one of the great steps forward in the university's music department. The new degree is the B.S. degree, which will be given to students who complete the requirements specified.

Proposed to offer the degree, Dr. Charles A. L. Trapp was the principal architect of the plan and was one of the most influential factors in the development of the music department. Under the direction of Dr. Trapp, the music department has grown from a small beginning to its present size of 100 students. The new degree will be given to students who complete the requirements specified.

Pitkin addresses ISU forum on United Nations

By Fred Crossman

Mr. Pitkin, a former United Nations delegate, has addressed the ISU forum on United Nations. Mr. Pitkin has been a delegate to the United Nations for several years and has been active in the forum.

The forum is held every year to discuss issues related to the United Nations. This year's forum is scheduled for April 19.
A new sport appeared upon the Southern scene this week when a gang of New Yorkers, under Millidge's residence, and with the assistance of the law, laid siege to an ice rink on the outskirts of the city. The game, a form of hockey, was introduced to the attention of the Southern people by a New York newspaper, and the Southern papers have taken up the cry in a most enthusiastic manner.

Among the many skaters were to be seen Julian, Jackson, Armstrong, and other names familiar to the Southern scene. The game was a novelty to the Southerners, who have long suspected that the New Yorkers are the founders of the game.

On the ice the New Yorkers were to be seen skating about, waving their sticks, and shooting pucks into the net. The Southerners, who were not used to seeing such a sight, were much taken aback, but soon recovered their composure and joined in the game.

The game was played under a skiting coat of ice, which was put on by the New Yorkers. The Southerners were much impressed by the New Yorkers' ability to skate, and were anxious to learn the game.

The game was played for several hours, and the Southerners were much taken with the game, and were anxious to learn more about it.

The New Yorkers, who were much taken with the Southern hospitality, were much pleased with the game, and were anxious to return to New York and spread the news of the Southern hockey game.
