Ficocelli Leaving Post
As Symphony Leader

Carmine Ficocelli will make his final appearance as conductor of the SIU Symphony Orchestra at the graduation ceremonies June 13 in Memorial Stadium.

Ficocelli received a lengthy ovation from the audience at the conclusion of his last public concert in Shryock auditorium Sunday afternoon. It had been announced earlier that he was leaving.

Hundreds of friends and well-wishers crowded back stage to express their personal disappointment that he is leaving.

Ficocelli made the formal announcement that he was leaving to members of the orchestra at this Saturday night dress rehearsal for Sunday’s concert.

Ficocelli’s departure had been rumored around campus for a number of weeks but no official announcement was made until he told members of the orchestra at the dress rehearsal.

More than 20 members of the orchestra, who are not members of the music faculty, have signed a petition expressing their disappointment.

Ficocelli did not announce his future plans.

“Perhaps in a few days I will be able to make a statement,” he added.

A proposal to curtail irresponsible or careless check writing will probably go into effect during the summer or the fall term, according to Joseph F. Zaleski, assistant dean of student affairs.

Students giving evidence of irresponsible or careless check writing will have their check cashing privileges suspended for a stipulated period of time, Zaleski explained.

This will be accomplished, Zaleski said, by having the student’s identification card stamped as having privilege rescinded.

“After the privilege has been rescinded,” Zaleski said, “the student will have to obtain a new identification card, the cost of which he will have to bear.”

“This will probably be more meaningful to students than fines are now,” he pointed out.

According to Thomas J. Watson, division chief of the Bursar’s office, the fines levied against students for writing bad checks are as follows: For the first offense, $2 per check; second offense, $5 per check; and subsequent offenses, $5 per check.

Watson pointed out that from September of 1961 to April of this year, 611 checks, money orders, or drafts of various kinds, have been returned to the Bursar’s Office.

“All of these were not official copies of the Obelisk during the summer but will be able to get them as soon as they return to campus in the fall.”

“Regret the delay in getting them from the printer,” he said. “But a series of circumstances over which we had no control contributed to the delay.”

Sloppy Check Crackdown

Civil Defense organizations in getting information to students, present cultural and religious programs, improve the quality of music now available on regular broadcasting channels, and augment news coverage of existing media.

“The station, tentatively called WKOS, would be financed by student residence hall fees, supplemented by income from commercial announcements by area merchants.
La Casita, Mayflower Typify In-Town Housing

Students Get Taste Of Life With An International Flavor

Finding reasonably-priced, approved housing close to SIU is a problem faced by most of the school's ten thousand-plus students. The Mayflower and La Casita are two of the more than 800 approved facilities which help alleviate this problem.

The Mayflower, despite its early American sounding name, is actually an international house. The traditionally American name was given to the house with tongue-in-cheek, according to Mr. and Mrs. Egon Kamarasy, who started renting the house to male students in Spring, 1960. They intended it to be an international house and have, to date, housed students from Korea, China, India, Germany, England, Pakistan, Venezuela, Africa and Viet Nam at 717 Forest Street. Both Kamarasys are members of the SIU Governmental Department, and his wife was naturalized American citizens. He is from Hungary and she is from Austria.

Rose Foley, house president, says the students all get along well and the presence of a foreign student increases their knowledge of other countries. At present, there are 13 students living in the Mayflower, one from Africa, and 12 American students, five of whom are Negroes.

Mrs. Kamarasy recalls one minor problem that age of the students encountered. The student brought back 12 pounds of frozen hamburger to the house, only to find there was no room in the freezer. The difficulty was solved with a kqg-sized hamburger fry for the student and their friends. Students who prefer their national dishes find the problem of cooking eased by the fact that there are two kitchens. The American students are able to become familiar with many foreign foods by living with foreign students.

La Casita is Spanish for little house. Mrs. Paul Osorio says she gave the house that name because in 1957, when she first bought the house, it was very small and housed only eight students. La Casita has since been enlarged and now houses 35 girls at 308 W. Cherry Street, Mrs. Osorio saye with 35 girls in the house. The telephone is constantly ringing. She adds that she can't understand how the girls can be up so late every night and yet leave in the morning so fresh and energetic.

Edie Chaudoin, a sophomore in secretarial and business education, says that living with 34 other girls "Makes you learn to get along with all kinds of people." Edie, a native of Hillisboro, mentioned that the girls learners that they must pick up after themselves, because no one will do it for them. They appreciate their room a lot more, she added.

Barbara Twietmeyer, house president, and elementary education sophomore, adds some of the girls borrow each other's clothes, thus expanding their wardrobes.

These are some of the advantages that both men and women students living off-campus experience. They share some of these advantages in common with on-campus students, such as learning to get along with different people; but there are also disadvantages, such as traveling a longer distance to school and perhaps paying more rent than they would on campus. But, students will continue to live in off-campus housing because the rising enrollment will prevent on-campus facilities from handling all students.

Mrs. F. C. Kuo, of the Housing Office, says "the on-campus facilities will never catch up with the enrollment."

Venezuelan Revolt Crushed; Arrest No. 1 Red

CARACAS, Venezuela - Loyal troops wiped out the last leftist rebels in Puerto Cabello Monday and ended the bloodiest test of President Romulo Betancourt's three-year-old regime. Authorities counted 135 dead, but unofficial estimates ranged more than 200 killed and 1,000 wounded.

With crushing of the weekend uprising, police arrested the No. 1 Venezuelan Communist on his return from a trip to Moscow. Detectives nabbed Gustavo Machado, a veteran secretary general of the Venezuelan Communist party, at Maiquetia airport. They hauled him into Caracas despite his protest that, as a member of that party, he had parliamentary immunity from arrest.

A Chamber deputy, Teodoroff, and Deputy Raul Lugo Rosales of the Movement of the Revolutionary Left party were reported captured with the rebels at Puerto Cabello, 45 miles west of Caracas. The core of the rebels was a marine garrison variously estimated now to have ranged from 400 to 1,000 men.

Many believed that the arrival of Machado, who went to Moscow before an abortive military revolt at Carupano a month ago, possibly pressured outlawing of the Communist and Revolutionary Left parties.

WASHINGTON -- American Communists preach racial equality but don't practice it, a Negro former member of the party told House probes Monday.

Mrs. Julia Brown, identified as an FBI undercover agent, testified before the House committee on Un-American Activities that as a party member in Cleveland she couldn't attend its meetings in her neighborhood "because it was a Jim Crow club."

Mrs. Brown said she was tricked into joining the party in 1947, thinking it was a Civil Rights Congress.

WASHINGTON -- New trouble for President Kennedy's plan for health care of the aged appeared Monday with an indication that a key member of the House Ways and Means Committee will vote to keep it locked up there.

Rep. Clark W. Thompson, D-Tex., wrote a letter to constituents he no not think the present law, limited to medically needy persons, had been in effect long enough for final judgment and "I think you should give it a full trial before we tinker with new legislation."

WASHINGTON -- The first refugees from Communist China to head for the United States under President Kennedy's new emergency admission program took off from Hong Kong Monday and were scheduled to land in Chicago last night.

Kennedy, whose Justice Department administrates immigration laws, said others were expected to follow soon, including a "substantial number of refugee Chinese orphans."

They will go toward making up the "seven thousand" the President announced on May 23 would be admitted under a waiver of normal annual admission quotas of 105.

CLEVELAND -- Members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen from 12 states set plans Monday for an all-out strike against the proposed merger of the New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroad.

W.P. Kennedy, head of the 105,000-member union who called the meeting, said Sunday the merger would create "economic mayhem for the eastern half of the nation."

"It's like strapping a main vein from a healthy person," Mr. Kennedy summoned BRT local general chairmen and legislative representatives from the District of Columbia and 12 states along the two railroads' routes to the session. Kennedy charged more than 33,000 jobs would be lost in the merger.

NEW YORK -- The stock market, which has been relatively quiet trading late Monday and early Tuesday, went through a generally expected selling spell from its big recovery of late last week.

Axelle, Kovarsky Serve As Council Faculty Advisors

Prof. George E. Axelle was named faculty advisor to the newly elected Student Council at the first meeting of the group last Thursday, following the regular session.

Assoc. Prof. Irving Kovarsky was approved as the just created post of associate advisor for executive committees by the Student Council. Prof. William Fenwick, winner of the student body presidency in the spring elections, approved the choice.

Steve Segner was approved as the Student Affairs Committee chairman and Dick Moore and Frank Heiligenstein were named co-chairmen of the Southern Spirit Council.

The Student Council, in its first body meeting of the year, passed two resolutions to help hold up a raise in the price of parking decals and inaugurated new student body officers.

Motions approved by the Council last Thursday asked the student body president to "discuss the proposed raise in parking fees" with University officials, and recommended that "no changes in the fee be made until the Council reconvenes in the fall."

Senator Dale Klaus, presently a member of the Parking Committee, asked if student members of the Committee would be notified of a Committee meeting this summer. "Hopefully" it was outgoing Student Body President Richard Childer's reply.

Bill Fenwick and Ted Hutton, winners of student body presidency and vice presidents, respectively, in the spring elections, were inaugurated. Oaths of office were administered by John Mustoe and outgoing student body vice president John Mustoe.

In other business conducted during the one-hour meeting, the Council heard a report from John Childers, a University supervisor, that the physical plant will install a cold patch on the temporary, fake tennis court on the Thompson Point parking lot.

Childers, a Columbia '47, faculty advisor to the Council for the past two years, was presented a certificate of appreciation by Elizabeth Mullins' help through-out the year was acknowledged, and Delegates to the National Students Congress and a National Leadership Training Lab were approved.

Economists Offer Cures To Spring Fever

Spring fever is real but SIU home economists have a whole battery of cures.

"Dress comfortably and daily...plant a herb garden... perk up your meals with colorful garden fruits and vegetables... brighten and lighten up your rooms with simple, unassuming, indoor plants...take advantage of the sunshine for other work or play."

"Yes, there really is such a thing as spring fever, according to Dr. Frank Konishi, nutritionist in the School of Home Economics. Like plants and other animals, man undergoes seasonal changes...simply mellow, in the spring."

"These changes are not only physical, but are a reflection of the emotional as well," he said, "so everyone is carrying around their spring fever." "How is the spring fever affecting you?" asked Dr. Konishi. "One scientist said, 'This spring fever is a must. A man to be still a creature of the sun, dependent upon its course through the months.'"

Here are the antidotes for spring fever suggested by Dr. Konishi for the School of Home Economics:

Miss Marion Jones, interior designer, advises that "whether you live in a single room or a sprawling house, give your environment a face-lift. A new lamp shade is the cheapest way to get a spring lift. Fresh slip covers and of course fresh curtains lift the spirit. So do new lampshades."

"Replace artificial arrangements such as housewarming flowers or potted live plants. Eliminate clutter. Put away half a dozen extra-leaf flowers. Replace heavy dark carpets with light-colored washable scarlet persicaria or Japanese straw. Where possible substitute cool blue and green for winter-weary reds and browns—even in such simple accessories as pillows."

"Another cure is to change our decor four times a year," Miss Jones said, "but we should make every effort to bring airiness, coolness, spaciousness into our rooms as warm weather arrives."

Dr. Jan Harper, associate professor of food and nutrition, suggests a herb garden, either outdoors or in the window boxes, and experimenting with herbs in cooking to tease the appetite. Such herbs as basil, caraway, dill, marjoram, oregano, rosemary, savory and thyme are easy to grow, and all can be used in appetizers and soups, meats, poultry, and vegetables. All except caraway can be used with fish, most of them with eggs and cheese, and many can be used either in or on top of for imparts a 'different' flavor."

The sense of sight and touch offer the best chance for combating Spring Fever with the 'medicine' of clothing, according to Miss Rita Whitesel. She recommends color: fabrics that soothe the skin, that are purplish and magenta, and garments that fit well and comfortably and above all, clothing that "gives you a lift."

Foot Cuts Top List At Health Center

The Health Center has treated a record number of foot cuts this spring, according to Dr. Richard Lee, University of Illinois. From Dr. Lee's viewpoint, the problem seems to be the beaches and shallow water of Crab Orchard Lake, according to Dr. Lee.

With warm weather and picnic season the number of accidents at Crab Orchard hit an all time high last weekend. Special cause for complaint is broken glass buried in the sand of Lookout Point and other frequently used picnic spots. The glass also has been carried into the shallows along the edges of the lake. Dr. Lee urged all area residents who use the lake for swimming to wear beach shoes of some type to avoid the danger of cuts and infections.

Dean Abbott Retires Soon After 34 Devoted Years

A bewildered chemistry student hastily raised his hand for the third consecutive time, "Would you please explain oxidation-reduction once again?"

An easy-going, acknowledging smile came ever so slowly, Dr. Talbert W. Abbott’s face, as he thought to himself, "the faces are coming thick and fast for the student of today is no different than he was 34 years ago.

This veteran educator has devoted 34 years to Southern as a teacher of chemistry, dean of Liberal Arts and acting dean of academic affairs.

Whether in the classroom, in his office, walking across campus, or watching SIU athletic events, Dr. Abbott is always eager to share a few minutes with students. Talented members in the School of Science at the end of his teaching career, Office of Alumni in connection with his retirement was made last September but delay in filling the position kept him at his desk throughout the winter and spring terms.

Dr. Henry Jan Piper of the California Institute in Technology, economics will succeed him as dean.

According to the records, Dr. Abbott will retire from the university, but he will never retire from his interests and friends in Carbonville. In fact, he says that he will be available for any odd jobs President Delyne W. Mathes may feel require his talents.

Dr. Abbott cuts a familiar figure at all of the athletic events. His avid interest in exemplified by his judging track and field events for more than 20 years. With a gleam in the eye, he remarked that the Saluki showing against powerful Kansas State in a recent track event was "the most outstanding meet he had ever seen."

Dr. Abbott is quite proud of the lifetime pass to all campus athletic events presented by the SIU athletic council.

Throughout his professional career at Southern, Dr. Abbott has been continually impressed with the caliber of faculty that have come to SIU. "Many internationally-known scholars are serving the university community," he says.

Another outstanding advancement that SIU has made is the physical expansion.

"Students study." These two words were emphatically spoken when asked to give students advice. "The four years, of college life should be among the happiest," he says. Studying should come first, and then there should be a balance between extracurricular activities and classwork. Each person should find himself as a student," he added.

Besides continuing to serve Southern, Dr. Abbott plans to supervise the construction of a new home on Briarwood Drive, travel, and improve his golf game.

Abbott, who came to SIU with degrees from Indiana and Harvard Universities and a doctorate from the University of Illinois, has been a member of the American Chemistry Society for 40 years.

Dr. Abbott’s two children: their daughter, Ellen, is in charge of the University Museum laboratory; and son, Frank, teaches mathematics and coaches wrestling in Kannakee.

"We can of course change our decor during any four-year time," said Miss Jones said, "but we should make every effort to bring airiness, coolness, spaciousness into our rooms as early as winter arrives."

Will Money Solve Poor Nations' Woes?

Noted British Economist Explores Problems of Rich Helping The Poor

It is sometimes thought that the technique of educating is to say the same thing in a thousand different ways. Happily, this book does not have a new or particularly startling message, but its worth is undeniable restatement of an important point of view. It is a view which this reviewer can be anguishedly denied, yet it is one which we often prefer to ignore.

Miss Ward's burden of argument is that the rich nations treated their present achievement through the interactive forces of four revolutions: those of equality, of this worldliness, of population growth, and of science and saving. The poorer areas of the world have been introduced to these movements via the West, but the impacts of some of these have outstripped others, and the net results are today less than satisfactory. The inadequacy of capital accumulation appears to be the greatest problem, and it is one to which the Marxist areas address themselves with telling force. This is the case because it is probably easier to force low income societies to save than to get them to do so democratically, because a doctrinaire solution is often defended simply to grasp, and because the Russians can point to their own small achievements within a short span of time as a blueprint for action.

Yet the Free World is not without weapons, and in this connection Miss Ward suggests a program of sustained systematic aid from the wealthy countries to help the underdeveloped countries obtain sufficient capital investment to arrive at the self-generating stage of economic development. To this end she uses the figure of one per cent of national income as "a fair criterion," and also states that in recognition of the fact that the United States has borne most of the burden of world war than has the Soviet Union, She would like to see the Atlantic Community forge more coherent means of mutual cooperation such as "banks, development funds, trade groups, common markets, statistical services, and, above all, common policy-making organs...." (p. 152)

While she denies that we can continue to operate entirely on the premise that the individual good of the separate nations will somehow achieve a general good for all (pp. 139-41 et passim), she nevertheless argues that we will, in fact, lose a world war. Accordingly, this reviewer feels that the reviewer doubts can be meaningfully disposed of in the following way.

On the other hand, adequate capital aid is not in itself a panacea. The use of adequate funds must be carefully planned to maximize the advantages of the recipient state. When this means that the characteristic projects of a charismatic leader are economically irrelevant, stateament, waste, and general wheel going of some sort of economic aid may result. And with the patience of the taxpayers in the capital supplying states may well thin. To be sure, the whole problem would be made simpler if one could always put the responsibility upon certain key leaders, but in fact the whole pattern of education and technology in an underdeveloped country may be at fault as The Congo well illustrates.

Miss Ward's prognosis and therapy appear to be well conceived, but the real problem is one of human nature. The poorer areas are, of course, destined to become a veterinarian but changed his mind in choice of career after being an active member of Wesley Foundation center for the Methodist student movement on the SIU campus.

In his career choice, Bodeen will spend three years in Japan the first six months being language study. Main duties in his work will be teaching English at the secondary school level, conducting bible classes for adults and doing social work in the area of the Methodist school.

Bodeen said "I chose to be a teaching missionary because I believe in the need for education and for a foundation of Christian faith and love in life. I choose to serve abroad because the requirements for service there is such that many people are unable to go. I felt a responsibility to serve since the need for Christian college graduates in many foreign countries is so great."
Cornell Sets New Record For Mile As SIU Takes 4th in CCC Track Meet

The old, theory that quality just as important as quantity was brought out again at the 37th annual Central Col¬ giate Conference track meet when SIU finished fourth. Despite the fact that Southern took only five men to the meet Saturday they managed score 31 points to finish third Western Michigan, Cornell, and Kansas, respectively. SIU's 31 points were good enough to move SIU's team into Big Ten track and field championship Michigan and an¬ er Big Eight school Parsee, Bill Cornell, Brian Turner and Jim Dupree turned in outstanding performances for the Salukis. Cornell established a new school record in the mile with a time of 4:06.2 breaking the old standard set in 1961 by Kansas' Bill Dotson. Cornell finished a stride, a move he made the previous Saturday, after running head-to-head to clear laps.

Turner in the three-mile run opened up with a torrid pace to finish first in the race. In the way to the first place finish, Turner had a 4:58.5 mile standard, 9.17 two-mile mark but could not maintain the pace and finished fourth with a time of 14:14.6.

Jim Dupree won the 880-yard dash by beating Big Ten hampton Egras Leppa of Michigan. Dupree's winning time was 1:50.3, Cornell 9.4, and Dupree with a 47.6.

The Salukis' time in the triple jump was 18.3, Kansas, which eastern Southern here in the mile, a hot month, finished third Saturday. Western Michigan placed second. In the 400-meter hurdles, Saunders and Peters turned in commendable efforts as they competed for the first time in the event. Saunders finished second and Peters fourth, Iowa's Jerry Williams won the event with a time of 54.0, only six-tenths-of-a-second faster than Saunders 55.1.

"I was very pleased with the boys' performances," said coach Lew Hartzog, "the boys all did a terrific job that is evident in our fourth place finish."

"We took five men yesterday that managed to finish ahead of some schools that had fifteen or more boys running," Hartzog added. "Western Michigan entered some 25 boys in the meet."

The Salukis next performance will be anthers for the National Collegiate Track and Field championships, June 14-16.

BY BILL CORNELL set a new Central Collegiate Conference mile record Saturday with a 4:06.2 time. His time bettered the old re¬cord of 4:08.6 set in 1961 by Kansas Bill Dotson. Dotson finis¬hed a stride behind Cornell, after running head-to-head to clear three laps. Cornell came back to run a 49.4 leg on Southern's mile relay team that finished second but was awarded first overall when Mississipi was disqualified for interference.
Two MVC Schools On Football Sked

Two Missouri Valley Conference schools highlighted this week. SIU's 1962-10 game football schedule, SIU will play five games in McAndrew Stadium and five away from home.

Drake and North Texas State, two Missouri Valley members, are scheduled to meet the Sabers, according to Dr. Alonzo Myers, visiting professor of higher education. Myers, former chairman of the department of higher education at SIU, said there was no indication of the communist threat that we appear almost to be living in.

Carmen Piccone's Salukis open their season September 15 at Texas A & I. Texas A & I is located outside Corpus Christi and is regarded as a top football school.

After the Texas A & I game, Southern journeys to Drake and Central Michigan on successive weekends before playing its first game Octobcr 13 against Hilldale, Pa.

Following the Hilldale meeting, SIU plays Lincoln University and Illinois State also coming to McAndrew for games.

SIU hits the road again November 3 for Michigan where the Salukis will meet Northern Michigan. Northern Michigan is one of the top small-college teams and in recent years have played in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics bowl games.

Fort Campbell calls on SIU November 10 for a clash. Fort Campbell will feature a former SIU football player, Ernie Wheelwright. Wheelwright played fullback and defensive end for the Salukis in 1960 when the

Authorizes Communist Threat Endangers Democracy In Colleges

There is a growing tendency in the United States to restrict the freedom of students as well as that of teachers, according to Dr. Alonzo Myers, visiting professor of higher education.

Myers, former chairman of the department of higher education at SIU and a nationally recognized authority on problems of higher education, said there is no indication of the communist threat that we appear almost to be living in.

"We seem to be moving in the direction of requiring young men and women to pass a loyalty oath as one of the requirements for admission to college," he observed.

Myers said there is a "widespread belief" that college students are too immature to participate in the conduct of their personal affairs and should not be allowed to participate in policy determination. "We seem to have lost faith in the ability of American college students to think for themselves, to distinguish between true and false, to detect a phony when they see and hear one in action."

Myers, who said he had visited most of the nation's universities and colleges in a lifetime of teaching said that since 1940 there has been a "growing tendency" for government agencies to investigate prospective employees by quizzing teachers concerning thoughts, actions, statements and behavior of former students.

"Many students today are advised to join no organizations, attend no meetings, sign no petitions, take no stand on anything, lest such actions be used later to interfere with appointment or promotion," he said.

"If we regard and treat students as honorable and responsible people, they will be far more willing to measure up to that expectancy," he noted. "We should remind ourselves that the only real superiority we can justify claim over our students is that we have lived longer and thus have had more time in which to gain knowledge."

"Those of us who live long enough," he said, "eventually learn that there is no distinction of dubious value."

ROTC Exhibition Drill Team Reorganized, New Commander

The AFROTC Exhibition Drill Team under its new commander, John P. Maguire, has adopted a new organizational setup.

The new program includes juniors and seniors in the Honor Guard. In the past only freshmen and sophomores served in the group.

The Honor Guard is composed of an exhibition team as well as the regulation drill team with a sponsor chosen from the Angel Flight.

The 20-man exhibition team under the direction of Sergeant Robert Kuly has participated in eight parades this year and has provided firing squads for three military funerals.

Dennis Kowal Sculpture On Exhibit

In Gallery Lounge Until June 17

Dennis J. Kowal of Chicago has designed and created a graduate sculpture exhibit which may be seen at the University Gallery Lounge until June 17.

The entire exhibit has been prepared by Kowal in corralation with a graduate requirement for his master of fine arts program. The exhibit is designed to present evidence of confidence and creativity through a one-man show. A considerable variety is evidenced both in materials and concepts.

This is the first time an exhibit such as this has been placed in the University Center, and is part of the art department's idea of making the entire University a living museum.

Kowal, who is married and has two children, has done his graduate work under Mil- stein F. Sullivan.
