CARNIVAL FESTIVITIES BEGIN TONIGHT

Three Day Affair Will Feature Goodband & Spring Play

The SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY faculty and student body are all geared up for the three-day SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY Spring Carnival which opened in a grand manner last evening with the presentation of an Inaugural Lecture by Dr. Morris Aching.

Dr. W. D. Morris, chancellor of the University, opens the first of the three-day program with a lecture on the importance of education. The lecture was well received and the audience gave Dr. Morris a standing ovation.

Selection of Miss Southern

Southern’s third annual Spring Carnival is set to begin tonight with the Little Theatre’s spring production of “The Green Door.” The production will continue for three days, reaching its climax with the presentation of “The Green Door” on May 12, 13, and 14.

Dr. Morris Becomes Eighth President in Ceremony Here Last Thursday

In an hour and a half of academic splendor, Dr. D. W. Morris was inaugurated as eighth president of Southern in Shoryth Auditorium last Thursday evening, with Gov. Adlai Stevenson as guest speaker.

Inauguration of President Morris was followed by a social hour at a large banquet in the University Hotel.

Sorority Teas Will Start Off Greek Week

As Spring Carnival draws to a close tonight, Greek Week will start out with a bang on Tuesday night when the sororities present their first teas of the week, according to Dr. Adlai Stevenson.

The teas, which are held in the Student Union Building, are a mainstay of Greek Week and will hold on the steps of the Student Union at 7:30 p.m. Each organization will stage three teas, one each night of the week, and will have open house to the Greek Week committee.

The Columnist Critic

Hundreds of books have been written on the fate of the individual student. Nevertheless, few of these books are as current, as relevant, and as timely as this one. The fate of the individual student is the fate of all students. The fate of the individual student is the fate of society. The fate of the individual student is the fate of the world. The fate of the individual student is the fate of the world.

And yet, there is something else. There is something that goes beyond the individual, something that goes beyond society, something that goes beyond the world. There is something that goes beyond the fate of the individual student. Something that goes beyond the fate of the individual student. Something that goes beyond the fate of the individual student. Something that goes beyond the fate of the individual student.

This is the book that addresses this something else. This is the book that addresses this something else. This is the book that addresses this something else. This is the book that addresses this something else.

The book is called "Letters to the Editor". It is a collection of letters written by students and faculty members, addressing a wide range of topics, from academic concerns to social issues. The letters are written in a variety of styles, from formal to informal, from critical to supportive. The book is a testament to the diversity of thought and perspective that exists within the university community.

The book is a testament to the diversity of thought and perspective that exists within the university community. It is a reminder of the importance of free expression and open dialogue. It is a reminder of the value of inquiry and critical thinking. It is a reminder of the need for a curriculum that is broad and flexible, that allows students to explore their interests and passions.

Washington Has Good Chance To Stop SIU’s Consecutive Strung At 23 Here Saturday
by Bill Hollada

Some streaks go on forever, but this one should be ended Saturday. The Southern Illinois University football team, in back-to-back games at Nebraska and Iowa lost, will take on Washington Saturday at 2:30 p.m. in the nation’s capital.

Washington has five more than it needs to go to a third place tie but the Cornhuskers have lost two of their last three games and two of the three at home.

The NCAA had to go through Iowa with a 1-0-1 record but Washington here will be the high point in the Cornhuskers’ schedule. Washington has played only the top teams.

Prolific Local Radio Announcer Has Multitude of Assignments

By Robert Veatch

Eleven and one-half years ago, an 11-year-old boy cut-out from Texas, innocently paid his registration fee for the full term of 1927 and made his way down the five streets of Southern to begin his first year at Smith's. Little did anyone think that this fruit of the Lamb would have just been passing through the registration line, to be released from those same big feet across South's' academic stage for a diploma in June of 1938, leaving behind him one of the most impressive records of service for a Southern student to be completed by a student.

When Freeman came down 11th street on that day in end of out of 11th grade school and a couple of after school ball games had gave him batter ball hit, but the big boys had been beat up by the little guy. This was it, and only a cup of coffee and some studying and a walk through the woods of wisdom he would not have missed.

“I can’t believe my senior year of high school,” Freeman said. “When we were younger, we were always thinking about what we would do after graduation. Now, we’re thinking about what we’ll do after graduation. It’s a different perspective.”

Freeman has been actively involved in the community, both on and off campus. He has volunteered his time at local food banks and community centers, and he has also been a mentor to younger students.

“Being a mentor to younger students has been incredibly rewarding. It’s given me the opportunity to pass on my knowledge and experience to those who are just starting out,” Freeman said. “I’ve learned a lot from them too.”

Freeman’s advice to high school seniors is to take advantage of opportunities and to never stop learning.

“We’re always learning, whether it’s in the classroom or outside of it. Don’t be afraid to try new things and take risks. Life is better when you’re willing to step out of your comfort zone,” Freeman said.

Freeman plans to attend college after graduation and major in business. He hopes to eventually own his own business.

“I’ve always been interested in entrepreneurship and I think it would be really rewarding to run my own business,” Freeman said. “I think I have the skills and the drive to succeed.”

Freeman credits his parents for instilling in him a love of learning and a strong work ethic.

“Thanks to them, I’ve always been pushed to be the best that I can be,” Freeman said. “I couldn’t have done it without them.”

Freeman’s advice to parents is to always be there for their children and to encourage them to follow their dreams.

“We as parents need to support our children and help them to realize their potential,” Freeman said. “It’s important to have open communication and to help them navigate the challenges of life.”

Freeman’s message to the community is to always strive to give back and to support one another.

“We’re all in this together, and we need to work together to create a better future for everyone,” Freeman said. “It’s important to support each other and to always be willing to lend a helping hand.”

The 11-year-old boy from Texas has come a long way since that day in 11th grade school, and he has much more to accomplish before reaching his goal of running his own business. But one thing is certain: Freeman will always be an active member of the community, always there to help and always striving to make a difference.
Goodman Tired of Hearing Swing Fans Called 'Adolescents of the Art World

Although he's preeminent in symphony as well as jazz, Benny Goodman disputes that consensus seriously as his musical appreciation as are detractors of swing fans.

Goodman, who will be heard Saturday for a 2-hour recital and encore, plans his 'scheerless interpretation of the classics were the adolescents of the art world. On the day that a million followers of 'Ivory Coast' name and the name of the second fist in the Minneapolis Symphony, I'll begin to believe that symphony fans were more important than the swing fans.' Until then, 'I'm just convinced.'

Benny Goodman's last concert emphasis is on what's conducting rather than simply playing. According to Benny, 'It's the swinging fans who are responsible for the genre of swing. There is a large number of big bands and make it possible for as far as the needs of American music and to be led in their arts. The symphonic and "attitude" of swing.

J. Paul Shandy Switched to Wideawake Cream-Oil Because He Flanked The Finger-Nail Test

As a matter of fact, the wideawake cream-oil was poor, and Andy Shandy when he absorbed something, he was apt to groan about it and say you, Widows Cream-Oil, it's good, but don't be afraid of it, don't worry about it, don't worry about it, don't worry about it, don't worry about it, don't worry about it, don't worry about it. It's a good, a good idea. Andy Shandy.

J. Paul Shandy is a woman's profession. And not on this thought Widows Cream-Oil is a word of happiness, and to put who just put good food growing.
