Nixon tells nation of secret plans for withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon told the nation Monday night that he has a three-month timetable for withdrawing all U.S. ground combat forces from South Vietnam. But the president declared that he could sabotage it by stepping up military pressure.

At the same time, in a nationwide television-radio address, Nixon disclosed a buildup-secret exchange of correspondence last summer with the late President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam. Such he said illustrates his contention that Hanoi is blocking the road to peace.

The Nixon address broke no new ground in the realm of peace initiatives. It added up to a carefully prepared appeal for home-front support of the administration's Vietnam policies.

"I have chosen a plan for peace," he said. "I believe it will succeed."

"Let us be united for peace. Let us also be united again for defense. Because let us understand: North Vietnam cannot defeat or eliminate the United States. Only Americans can do that."

Declaring that he would not reveal any details, Nixon talked about his withdrawal program in these words:

"We have adopted a plan which we have worked out in cooperation with the South Vietnamese for the complete withdrawal of all U.S. ground combat forces and their replacement by South Vietnamese forces on an orderly scheduled timetable."

The chief executive said that if enemy infiltration and the current battlefield halt continues, withdrawals probably could be speeded. But he said should Hanoi step up military pressure and jeopardize U.S. forces in Vietnam, "I shall not hesitate to take strong and effective measures to deal with that situation."

Nixon added that South Hanoi could ease pressure by a force of about 5,000 North Vietnamese troops in the central highlands.

Administration officials declined to specify what counter steps Nixon might employ.

They also said they could not immediately give a total figure for the number of combat troops to be withdrawn if the Nixon timetable is carried out. However, since there are approximately 450,000 uniformed Americans in South Vietnam and support forces outnumber combat troops by a ratio of two to one, the total presumably approaches 175,000.

Perhaps the biggest surprise in Nixon's speech, most of which he wrote himself, aides said, was his disclosure that he had written directly to Ho Chi Minh on July 15 to declare, "The time has come to move forward at the conference table toward an early resolution of this tragic war."

Nixon said that he's been received in Paris three days before the death of the North Vietnamese leader. "I sincerely reiterated the public position North Vietnam had taken in the Paris talks and flatly rejected my initiative."

The White House made public the texts of the two letters. Nixon had addressed Ho as "Dear Mr. President." The Communist leader had addressed his reply to "Mr. President."

Each letter was signed, "From the President."

Nixon said that "the effect of all the public, private and secret negotiations" since the United States halted bombing of North Vietnam on Nov. 1, 1968, can be summed up in a single sentence:

"This program whatever it be planned except agreement on the shape of the bargaining table."

"The obstacle is the other side's absolute refusal to show the least willingness to join us in seeking a just peace."

Nixon said, upon taking office, he rejected a recommendation that the United States speedily withdraw from the conflict, arguing that this would "be a disaster because this is an immense mistake" that would "promote recklessness in the councils of those great powers who have not yet abandoned the idea of world conquest" and would spark violence in Berlin, the

U-City bus position supported

By Bob Carr

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Mike Hanrahan, director of University City residence halls, said Monday that the letter written by the students of University City was "hardly factual."

Hanrahan was speaking of a letter written to U-City administrators supporting William Ellis, 53, of R 2 Murphyboro, a bus driver for the dorms who is charged with aggravated battery in an alleged attack with a bottle on John Ham, a U-City resident director.

In addition, Donald Farmer, 22, of R 3 Murphyboro, and Robert Ellis, Garstelle Street, Murphyboro, were charged with criminal trespass to a motor vehicle, David Watt, assistant state attorney said.

The arrests came after the three men, who were picketing the bus in hopes of getting a new bus driver, entered a partially loaded bus driven by Ham. Ellis is charged with striking Ham with the bottle while he was aboard the bus.

The letter charged that Ham had drawn a gun on Ellis, but according to both Hanrahan and Watt, no weapon of any kind was found in Ham's possession immediately after the incident.

Hanrahan also announced that due to the three driver's illegal activity, their employment has been terminated.

Contrary to what was reported in Saturday's Daily Egyptian, no trial date has been set for Ellis, but he is due to return to the Jackson County Courthouse at 10 a.m., Nov. 14, to announce his attorneys and hear the trial date. Currently, Ellis is free on $2,000 bond.

The incident was a result of the driver's dissatisfaction with their pay. The two were demanding a union wage of $4.15 per hour. Previous to the incident, the drivers were working for a non-union company.

The driver's presented Hanrahan with a new contract, calling for the $4.15 wage with a guaranteed 10 hour overtime per week at time and a half clause. Hanrahan said that he accepted the contract, and would have signed it had it not been for the guaranteed overtime clause. The previous $2 salary was for a guaranteed 52 week salary, although the drivers actually worked only 32 weeks, according to Hanrahan.

The new contract would have the drivers punch a time clock and be paid only for the number of hours worked.

Teamsters and Chauffeurs Local 347 originally acted as mediator between the drivers and U-City, but now, said Hanrahan, "I have not heard anything from them this week." A lawyer from the local will represent Ellis at his trial.

If Ham does not file charges against Ellis and the others, U-City will, Hanrahan said.

Middle East and "wherever our commitments help maintain or improve our position." The result, he contended, would be war rather than peace.

"Rather than go the quick way, he" ... would be, the President said, "to choose a policy which would lead to a negotiated settlement."

While stating that some American's will disagree with this, Nixon said he was being addressed the "great silent majority of your fellow Americans" and added simply, "I ask your support."

The President, taking note of nationwide antiwar demonstrations past and present, said it is a strength of American's society that every citizen can disagree with its policy and urge immediate withdrawal or no withdrawal.

"But as President of the United States," he said, "I should be divided by the people who believe that our government's policy is right and just and that the time is not ripe for immediate withdrawal."

Nixon said that if a vocal minority, "especially one that is well organized and has groups that are able to influence the nation by mounting demonstrations in the streets," support is "powerful personal reasons for wanting to end the war as many as any American ..."

He said, "This week I will have to sign 83 letters to mothers, fathers, wives and loved ones of men who have given their lives for America in Vietnam. It is a little bit of news to the fact that this was only one-third as many as I signed during the first week in office. There is nothing I would more than to see Black separatist to

Ridiculous

To the Daily Egyptian:
This letter is in comment on Steven Kajewski's letter of Oct. 29. Kajewski asked why “do (American people) not wake up to reality? It is the 'Englische,' that are living in fantasy.

Throughout your letter you write “do’s and don’ts,” and may have communists sympathizers, which are very generalized. I doubt seriously that you have ever met, seen or heard a communist, so it is impertinent that you know what communism is all about.

The entire letter is ridiculous. It is prejudiced, one-sided, and completely biased. It has no facts, only broad generalities. Your logic is as perfect as a bucket that has holes.

You are the kind of person in America that is the problem. You refused to realize that certain situations in America, such as the depression of the 1930's, are serious problems. Blindly you point to a shadowy figure named communism, and you are ir-rate for anything that does not agree with you.

If you really feel this way, you don't belong in college—but kindergarten.

Let’s face it

To the Daily Egyptian:
A recent meeting of the "Guar Baby" fan club resulted in the following survey. Two per cent of the members are pleased with Guar Baby's "policy" only; seven per cent believe Guar has had a monotonous job and is afraid to show his face; and, in accordance with a great American tradition, 90 per cent were non-committed.

Clearly, with such a controversial issue threatening to tear the club apart, please give us an answer to the "whole face"

Bad morning news

To the Daily Egyptian:
Every morning when I pick up the Daily Egyptian, though there is a different kind of bad news. But I was able to go to the article stating there would be no Homecoming show this year. I was as disappointed as I've ever been in my life.

I wonder the administration does not recognize and take seriously the student government. It is the most ridiculous excuse for a responsible group of students. I've ever heard. An upgrade school civic club has more maturity and good judgment than these clowns have shown. Because of their inexperience, the whole student body, and everyone connected with it, will be just like the whole fruits of the year. What a shame that a University of our size and importance has allowed this thing to happen.

It was not so much the election itself that was so disappointing, it was the idea and the principle that if we are too busy to do something, let the world do it for us. These people think they have a voice in running the affairs of the University.

 Didn’t have to listen

To the Daily Egyptian:
On October 15, R.K. Johnston was strolling in front of the Black Student Center, and, to his shock and grief, heard bits of a recording by Abridge Cleaver that sounded obscene, such as “white mother —-”

Well, R.K., it’s none of my business, but really, do you HAVE to listen to it? If it annoys you, why didn’t you leave? You see, you are not only condemning an appropriate speech at an appropriate event, you are condemning the whole concept of freedom of speech!

On one individual with similar attitudes are responsible for nurturing and maintaining a prophecy of garbage since the beginning. I guess it takes all kinds.

Angela Davis—Marxist revolution for freedom

By Harry S. Admore

Angela Davis has become the most conspicuous member of the Communist Party in the United States, and she is surely the most handsome of those visible above ground. Tall, poised, eloquent, she usually appears in lady-like prints that contrast strangely with her towering Afro-style coiffure. On television, she has taken on the air of a fitting symbolic descendent of Dred Scott.

Dread Scott, in the prominence of martyrdom was conferred up Miss Davis by the University of California Regents, who have assumed the role played by Chief Justice Roger Therny and the California court. The Regents insist that the fact that Miss Davis is black is irrelevant, that she should be treated with the same respect and privilege as a Dred Scott back down the river was a matter of property rights. Miss Davis disavows this point, except by implication—her skin color is relevant, she says, only in that it conditioned the long journey upward from her Birmingham, Ala., childhood and persuaded her that nothing less than Marxist revolution can free people of the vileness of slavery.

The Davis case cuts through the usual obfuscations of conspiracy and guilt by association and rests forthrightly on the proposition that she is a disloyal member of the Communist Party who also has the necessary credentials to teach at UCLA. Court precedents are with Miss Davis and so are the administration, the faculty and the students of the university—a remarkable union that has not been seen in California in some years.

In a fascinating counterpoint to the obviousness of the regents in the Davis case, a similar buttheadedness in the ruling establishment of the Communist Party, U.S.A., has cast its most durable lady member into outer darkness, after more than 20 years as California party chairman.

Last year Dorothy Healey went to Yugoslavia and found that the Soviet tanks had crushed her hope that the party was moving toward what she calls democratic centralism and her Marxist superiors call bourgeois revolutionism. Mrs. Healey, who combines the goodness of heart and singlemindedness that characterized the missionary ladies of my youth, subsequently made public her perturbation over the “August workers’ and Soviet occupation.

So it was that, while Angela Davis was making her bones on the front page of the Los Angeles Times newspapers, a small item in the inside recorded the fact that Dorothy Healey had applied for unemployment compensation. In recognition of her betrayal the party sent in a new California chairman from Chicago and terminated Mrs. Healey’s $400 weekly salary. Unlike Miss Davis, Mrs. Healey has no one to sue.

She has informed the employment service that she stands ready to accept a job in line with her experience, but since her only previous employment was as a political party chairman, it sure isn’t likely that any vacancy will turn up. I am a loyal party member, her opportunism hardly was broadened by a subsequent job classification that placed her in public relations.

The Times has recorded all this as further evidence that California’s reds are red in the teeth of the absurd, but the affidavit that benefits the regents and the party is a local, and it has wrought far too much General Eisenhower to be laughed off. It is impossible to reckon the blood, treasure and energy we have expended as a result of the putative struggle between those who share a revolutionist dream they will never realize and those who seek at any cost to head off the only cataclysm to which we are almost certainly immune.
City officials will travel to Springfield, meet with heads of State agencies

By Wayne Markham
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale city officials will meet in Springfield Wednesday with heads of major state welfare and service agencies in what could be a precedent-setting showdown.

At stake will be the serious question of how much the state can offer, how soon, and the answer will be measured in what federal programs have to offer and what has been done in Carbondale.

The issues were first laid bare in a report submitted by the city to Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie in March of this year.

"Today, a large number of states have made meaningful efforts to explore broad means of assisting local government to utilize state and federal resources for comprehensive attacks on local problems," the report noted.

The key question is whether the State of Illinois is prepared to give meaningful assistance to the City of Carbondale." The report was drawn up by the city to support "Impacted Cities" legislation then pending before the state legislature. A bill introduced by Rep. Gale Williams, R-Murphysboro, called for special state aid to those Illinois cities where state universities are located. The bill was defeated by a close margin.

Reflected in Carbondale's appeal to the governor is a perception of numerous other communities, where too often efforts to obtain federal grants are seriously hampered by the lack of state assistance and community planning itself.

Federal grants are funneled through state agencies which administer the programs, often poorly.

Most federal programs are generally limited in scope and almost always ill suited to local needs. In addition, state and federal planners tend to be more individual-oriented than community-oriented. Thus, citizens can take part in state welfare for unemployment, in various job-training and job-hunting services or in income maintenance for the mentally ill.

Federal projects, on the other hand, usually represent capital gains to the community as a whole, with Carbondale's soon-to-be-built severe treatment plant a good example of tangible improvement.

The state of federal programs available to local government at the municipal level has increased steadily from the first much larger urban renewal program in New York City.

Standard tests on intergovernmental relations, including "State and Local Government in America," by Daniel R. Grant, indicate that only a few appear to bear a "new federalism," to describe the changing patterns of state and local government in the United States.

First used in 1963 by a test on local government in Illinois, the concept of state aid to local government has grown in significance.

The growth of federal-municipal grants in aid programs since then has led political scientists to a phrase, "the new federalism," to describe the changing patterns of state and local governments in the United States.

Carbondale Mayor David Keene, who will head the party of city officials going to Springfield for an interview last week, "we want to learn from these people (state officials) whether they can provide services or not. It is important that we know before we apply to Model Cities (a federal program administered directly with the municipality)."

Model Cities is aimed at low-income neighborhoods within a community and has as its purpose "the improvement of low-income neighborhoods economically, socially and physically."

The program was started in 1966 and is officially designated as "Demonstration Neighborhoods in Demonstration Cities: Title I of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966."

Carbondale has been participating in the Model City Concept since 1967 and was one of many communities to convert from Urban Renewal programs to the Model Cities approach.

Some states, of course, have not completely ignored the cities in the face of multiplying federal programs.

Illinois, for instance, set up a special executive arm, the Governor's Office of Human Resources, early this year to try to coordinate federal and state efforts at the community level.

Gov. Ogilvie was responsible for the move and has been working closely with the department.

The meeting in Springfield was set up through the Illinois Governor's office, but was not the first of its kind. The state agency, however, came over six months ago as a result of a meeting of Model Cities directors from throughout Illinois.

Concerned with the lack of joint planning in Model Cities projects, the directors in all the states were instructed to organize CAMPS, Cooperative Area Manpower Systems.

Robert Stalnacke, director of Carbondale's Model Cities Office, was an organizer in Illinois. A regional arm of the group was set up at the same time to include the 16 southernmost counties in the state.

Mayor Keene was named to head the Region I group and, together with Stalnacke, planned the regional meetings. Keene, Stalnacke and City Manager C. William Norman will attend the sessions.

Mayor Keene had requested that heads of major state agencies attend the week session.

"If we don't get the right answers, we'll just have to go to the governor," the mayor said.

Ultimate recourse to the governor points up one of the most significant facts of state management—-a lack of coordination among the various state agencies and noticeable concern about individual municipal problems.

A graphic illustration appeared in the city report to Ogilvie earlier this year involving the Illinois State Highway Department.

A study of construction expenditures by the Highway Department District 9, which includes Carbondale, showed that over the last 14 years the state has spent $34 million on non-interstate roadway construction in the 14-county area of District Nine. Of that amount, $56,000 has been spent in Carbondale.

During the same period (1957-1966), Carbondale spent more than two million dollars of its own funds for road construction in the city totaling several hundred thousands in General Tays, bonding power and contributions from local agencies.

The report wisely notes that "the amount spent by the City of Carbondale is over 30 times that spent by the State of Illinois."

Mayor Keene said he hopes the head of the highways department will be present at the meeting. The scope of the session, of course, is much broader than highway concerns.

The mayor would like to see people from the state rehabilitation, housing, intergovernmental and manpower training agencies at the meeting.

The city report to Ogilvie spelled out the total concept approach Carbondale and other communities have been seeking:

"It is hoped that the State of Illinois may become an example of what state and local government can do in combining their efforts in a comprehensive attack on socio-economic problems."

Federal programs under Model Cities alone comprise an umbrella of community services that include housing, education, training, health services, youth programs, physical conditioning, economic maintenance, senior citizens, police-community relations and transportation.

The track record for state programs is hardly as commendable.

"It is a different attitude that prompts such rebuke in the city report."

"Recognizing the urgent need, the city government enacted its own program for low-income citizens, instituted health care, assisted non-profit housing sponsors and gave financial aid and support to a cooperative state and federal effort to break the barriers of discrimination in employment."

It is interesting to note the state participated in the area of job discrimination only. The rest of the burden for those programs was borne by the city with partial federal assistance.

The state will be hard-pressed to match this comprehensive type of coverage, but a good deal of the state's ineffectiveness is due to the bureau-hodge-podge of various state agencies.

Mayor Keene said he learned from federal officials at Springfield that Illinois' state rehabilitation program that has been sought from local officials, including Carbondale's, but the local staff was completely unaware of the program's existence.

The Governor's Cenral Task Force is an attempt to improve the situation. The regular state program of Model Cities and other local efforts, building at the community level lends greater import to that program than perhaps the governor ever imagined.

For Carbondale the answer could well come next week. Without whatever the reply, the cities in this state are bound to take notice.

Parents without partners form club

Car wheels, bike wheels, wagon wheels, third wheel and whom all keep rolling along. But the third wheel or fifth wheels often cover the humbled ground.

A club, Parents Without Partners Club, forming to gather the third and fifth wheels—figuratively, the "wheels" in social situations—in the Carbondale area. The purpose is to help smooth out some of the bumps through various means, including group discussions and counseling.

Members must be single either through divorce, death of a partner or as a result of never having been married. Members must also have at least one living child of any age.

Two problems women with children and without husbands face are visiting privileges for the fathers and lack of money, according to Mrs. Lorene Garrett, an organizer of the PWP club. The problem is the father is too good. He takes the children on dates and brings gifts. But the mother has to talk sense into him. This makes her the mediator, Mrs. Garrett said.

Why a big problem even when the mother receives child support, Mrs. Garrett, who is majoring in dental hygiene at VIT, said a woman in the "third wheel partner" situation qualifies for special scholarships.

"You can’t get a decent job without an education," Mrs. Garrett said, "so you have to be determined you’re going to do it because it will be best in the end."

Mrs. Garrett pointed out that up to 1970 the school has the extra program of obtaining a babysitter. Mrs. Garrett has found baby sitters scarce in Carbondale, and the situation becomes even worse when the children are ill and need round-the-clock care of them while the mother is in class or at work. According to a male member of the club, a father experiences child-care bumps—He may pay child support, but like may not see his children enough. He often finds himself alone with few friends and nothing to do. Mrs. Garrett hopes these problems will be solved through the club’s discussion groups and the professional counseling of the board of directors.

Each chapter of PWP is part of an international organization with chapters in Canada, Australia, some European countries and the United States. Each chapter must have a board of directors and the three-member Carbondale chapter, organized

Heisler to talk on holiday tips

SU Newcomers will meet to hear Arlene Heisler, instructor in the Department of Home and Family, speak on "Quickies for Holiday Entertaining" at 8 p.m. Thursday in the School of Communications Lounge.

The focus of her talk will be tips to save money, time and energy and to provide holiday entertaining.

Safety threshold for smokers

WASHINGTON (AP) — It hasn’t been proved yet, but a government smoking expert says there may be a safety threshold for cigarette smokers—two or three cigarettes a day—that might not endanger the health.

August 15 will select its directors in the near future. The board will consist of professional men who will offer counseling for the group’s special problems.

Activities, including a Hal- loween party, are planned for the members’ children. One special day is Dad’s Day. On this day the men in the club take charge of all children six years and older. This contact with male members of the club is very important to those children deprived of the companionship of their father, Mrs. Garrett said.

Two projects for the future include: catalogues of available baby sitters and nursery series for working and student mothers and a small library. The library will contain books of interest to single parents.

Jack Koehn, a member from Herrin and one of the two male members, explained what the club means to him and why he joined.

"Once you’re alone, you have to eliminate so many of your former activities and probably many of your friends because you begin to feel like a social fifth wheel. You’re at home ends, and that is why this club is great. You have a chance to meet people that have the same kinds of problems."

Mrs. Mae Surman of Carbondale, believes, “It is one of the greatest things that has happened to Carbondale. I will grow if we can get the idea across to the men that it is not a marriage bureau. We want to be able to get together... and not feel like third or fifth wheels. This is not a man trap."

She added, "I’m not looking. But," she smiled, "I don’t have my eyes closed either."

Among her hobbies are cross-bearing, tobacco-spitting and haggling (as opposed to bartering or bargaining). She has full command of the Sioux language and is an ex-smoke signaler for the Cleveland Indians. According to Miss Evans, “This has been a thrilling experience. It was also a very, very cold experience, and I'd like to ask for the resignation of the Daily Egyptian photographer. I think we should be a complete investigation of this whole set-up.”

Housing gripes get action

By Darrell Averis
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Student housing complaint

The complaints, doesn’t give up. There is a place where you can file a complaint in the appropriate office. Complaints about campus are received at the Student Government Office in the University Center. If you are not majoring in government, you can ask the housing commissioner and she handles most of the problems.

Many students don’t realize that they can come here to register complaints. We are trying to help as many students as possible and we will find several complaints each day, Fera said.

If the office receives a complaint about the housing commission, the problem is checked by members of the housing commission. According to Fera, the commission wants to make sure that the have a legitimate complaint before taking definite action.

A complaint is found to be a real problem, the committee will report to the landlord and ask for a correction of the problem.

If the landlord will not correct the problem, then the complaint can be reported to the city board of health or the Office of Campus Housing, Fera said.

The housing office can take a landlord’s name off the approved housing list and then the students will not be allowed to live there,” Fera said.

If the problem cannot be settled by the housing office, then it can be taken to court. Already two cases involving students and their landlords have gone to court and, in both cases, the students have won, Fera said.

At a meeting last week, Fera said the University took a definite stand on nonpayment of rent by students. The University will bear both the landlord’s and the student’s side of the dispute and if the University feels the landlord is in the right, the student’s grazing will be withheld.

Fera said he will ask the Student Senate to oppose any action because it is illegal for the University to act as a debt collector.

“Even students under 21 must live in approved housing although married students and veterans can live where they want. This is discrimination against students under 21,” he added.

Fera said that students with complaints must take some initiative. When they file a complaint, they must be willing to spend some time helping us review the problem, he said.

The housing commission will set up a table Thursday in the University Center where students may file complaints.

Why is a Business Administration graduate like Chuck Carpenter glad he chose Ford Motor Company?

You don’t get lost in the numbers.

“You retain your individuality... says Chuck Carpenter, a Business Management Specialist in the Detroit District Sales Office, because people know each other here.”

An extraordinary example? Not at Ford Motor Company. Chuck wasn’t even sure where he’d fit in the automobile industry when he started in 1968. Now, I know where I’m going. It took about a year to get a solid business background. I’m doing what I like best—meeting with people, analyzing their problems, finding solutions. And it looks like I’ll reach my goal, District Sales Manager, much sooner than I expected.”

What about Chuck’s rapid advancement? “Not everyone can go as far as fast,” he admits. It depends on how much of yourself you put into your job. Naturally, Chuck’s wholehearted interest got noticed at Ford Motor Company. And his future is unlimited. Yours could be, too. Provided you’re interested, and a college graduate, and looking for a challenge.

There are many opportunities open to graduates in Business in fields like—Accounting, Financial Management, Purchasing, Traffic, Sales, Manufacturing Operations.

You can do it, too.工業関係, Systems Analysis.

Coalition halts construction

Special to The Daily Egyptian

CHAMPAIGN—The work on the $9 million University of Illinois Instrumental Physical Education building was stopped Monday morning by 1530 pickets from the Black Coalition protesting the dismissal of a black brickmason.

Some disturbances were reported at the construction site near Memorial stadium, James Ransome, affirmative action officer reported.

Ransome said there exists a "potentially dangerous" situation that could develop into trouble if the Black Coalition maintained picket lines again Tuesday.

Indications from the University of Illinois are that pickets will return to the construction site again today.

In a press release Monday, the Black Coalition charged that the Brickmasons Local 17 and the contractor, Kuhne-Simmons, conspired to have O.Z. Griffith, brickmason with 15 years experience, fired from the project on Oct. 25.

The coalition had demanded that Griffith be restored to his job with full remuneration of back pay.

Replying to the charges, the contractor denied any conspiracy saying "Mr. Griffith was discharged because during the period of his employment from Oct. 9-23, he did not demonstrate his ability to perform the work available."

Griffith was not rehired, the letter stated, because "we have no other types of masonry work available on this or any other project where we could further test his abilities."

One of the contractors, William Kuhne, said his company would take legal action to have the picket removed immediately. Kuhne reaffirmed the company's denial of conspiracy charges.

"We are employers," Kuhne said, "cannot establish one standard of ability for some employees and a higher standard for others."

The Black Coalition said Griffith was subject to "complete isolation and ostracization" during his time on the job and was never informed that his work was unsatisfactory until his dismissal.

The group also charged the contractor as "having deprived a brickmason the right to work on a federally funded project."

Kuhne said there are approximately 250 men employed at the construction site. About 20-25 are black.

Russian language program

By night, Dan Rogers patrols the 20th Precinct of the Chicago police force in his squad car. By day, he studies across the hall, one of the "new breed"—a policeman training to be a better policeman.

The man who wears a badge today has to know a great deal about the law, science, and society," he declares. "Most of all, he has to know people—what makes them act and why they react the way they do in any situation.

At 34, with four years of experience on the 20th Precinct Police Force, Rogers is pursuing that knowledge as a part-time student in the corrections and law enforcement courses at VT. The first student enrolled when the program began in 1967, he is within a few credit hours of earning the associate's degree in law enforcement.

Friends and relatives who held law enforcement jobs got the idea for Rogers to apply for a position on the Security Force as a part-time student in the corrections and law enforcement courses at VT. The first student enrolled when the program began in 1967, he is within a few credit hours of earning the associate's degree in law enforcement. He applied for a position on the Security Force because it included the opportunity to attend the University.

The Security Force's own in-service training program and a four-week school conducted by the University's Division of Technical and Adult Education for law enforcement officers from throughout the state gave Rogers the basic tools of his new profession.

Started two years ago with 10 full-time students, the VT course now has an enrollment of 51 students on campus and 31 prison employees at Monarch and Virginia, with students ranging from veteran officers to youths fresh out of high school who are interested in police careers.

The VT associate degree program in corrections and law enforcement incorporates studies in police, prison and parole work in a basic curriculum, with additional courses in each of the three specializations. Of '89 other two-year schools in the nation, only one in California uses this "team" approach in educating those involved in the apprehension and treatment of criminals as recommended by the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and the Administration of Justice.

"The people here have convinced Daniel to go on with his studies," says Josephine Night, director of University Student Employment.

Enrollment will be restricted to approximately 30 undergraduate or graduate students who have a minimum of two years of college Russian or the equivalent.

Tuition awards are available to students in good academic standing, Kupcek said.

The study tour is scheduled for July 26-Aug. 7, 1970. Deadline for the application is Jan. 31.

BERNICE PYREX says hello to all the GIRLS

"Here we deal with a lot of law enforcement officers, and we don't have as many family problems as you would encounter in the cities, but otherwise it's about the same," he says.

Since Rogers enrolled in the two-year law enforcement program, 11 other members of the Security Force have followed him into the classroom.

"I hope by the time I finish this the University will have a bachelor's degree program in police science," Rogers says, "I'm going to stay in law enforcement, and I want to have the knowledge to do the best I possibly can."

Modern police officers need extensive training

Today's policeman must take advantage of every form of training he can get. Du Quoin Police Chief George Foster told 24 law enforcement officers who graduated Friday from the police training course at SIU, more professional standing and public respect will follow better education and training. Foster said the men, who are completing a four-week course conducted by Southern Illinois University's Division of Technical and Adult Education under provisions of the Illinois Local Governmental Law Enforcement Officers Training Act.

Himself a graduate of the first such course offered at SIU in 1960, Foster is a member of the SIU police training advisory board.

The need for broad training

The officers for the SIU Botany Club this year are Ralph Brandon, president; Jack Keene, vice-president; and Bob Bartholomew, secretary-treasurer.

The Botany Club attempts to attract interested undergraduates and graduate students with a variety of activities. The club plans speakers for their monthly meetings which will be the first Wednesday of every month in Life Science Room 307. The group's special activities will include picnics, camping trips and field trips.

Donald Aherg will talk on "Botany in Latin America" Wednesday. At a future meeting, a talk will be given on "The Wild Orchids of Illinois."

Anyone interested in joining the club may contact Steve Wunderle in the Botany Office or call 543-2092.

Sweepy to speak on capitalism and the economy Wednesday

Paul M. Sweezy, noted American, socialist and co-editor of the Monthly Review, will lecture on "The Future of Capitalism" at 8 p.m., Wednesday in Deady Auditorium of the Wham Education Building.

Sweezy is presented by the SIU Department of Economics in cooperation with the University's Lectures and Entertainment Committee. Peter S. Stowe, chairman of the Economics Lectures Committee, said Sweezy's talk is one of a series on unsettled economic issues of the 1960s. Sweezy was educated at Exeter and Harvard and also did post-graduate work at the London School of Economics. In recent years he has been a visiting Professor of Economics at Cornell, Stanford and the New School for Social Research.

His books include "The Theory of Capitalist Development," "Soviet," "Cuba: An Anomaly of a Revolution" (with Leo Huberman), "Monopoly Capital" (with Paul Baran), and "Socialism in Cuba" (with Leo Huberman). He is also co-editor of "Fifty Years of Soviet Power."

Sweezy has recently been in Europe where he was invited to speak at the annual meeting of the Institute International des Sciences de la Societe in Rome and at the University of Oslo, Norway.

The lecture and a coffee hour to be held afterward in the Wham Building's faculty lounge are open to the public.

Robinson second, Moore third

Harriers finish third in state

By Jim Summers
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Saluki harriers failed Saturday to live up to the expectations of Coach Lew Hartzog as they finished third in the Illinois Intercollegiate Cross Country Association Championships, at Charleston.

Despite second and third place performances by SIU's Alan Robinson and Oscar Moore, an impressive University of Illinois squad grabbed four of the top seven places for the team championship. Illinois won the meet with 35 points, followed by Eastern Illinois University, 81, and SIU 88. The next five places were taken by Northwestern University, Illinois State University, Northern Illinois University, DePaul University and Western Illinois University.

SIU's Edwardsville campus finished in twelfth place.

Illini Rick Grove finished in the top position with a time one second better than Robinson. Grove covered the five-mile water-soaked course in 24.25.

Moore, Robinson, Grove and Illinois' Ken Howse pulled away from all other competitors at about the three-quarter mile mark and kept the lead until Howse dropped back late in the race.

With about 400 yards remaining, Grove was in front until Robinson began sprinting and grabbed the lead. Robinson then floundered and veered off course in his desperation drive. Taking advantage of the situation, Grove passed Robinson in the last few feet.

Robinson had been suffering from an ankle injury which kept him from practicing all last week. According to Hartzog, the injury along with the "soggy course," kept Robinson from finishing as expected.

"In that last 400 yards he just couldn't stay on the path," Hartzog said. "I didn't think that his laying off (of practice) would affect him that much. If he hadn't gone off course, he might have won."

The deciding factor was the performance of the other members of the SIU team. Glenn Uije finished 18th with a respectable time of 20:53, Ken Nalder finished 25th, Gary Mosher finished 39th, Bill Bethel 45th, and Paul Ingram 47th. There were 99 runners in the meet.

"I wasn't satisfied with any of the times down the line," said Hartzog, "and I was highly dissatisfied with some of them."

"Uije ran a good race but I expected a little more out of him."

"Nalder didn't do quite as good as I had hoped and Mosher and Ingram dropped off."

"It seemed that they weren't cooperating with the men in front of them enough. Evidently they were too concerned with the running pains."

Intramural flag football schedule

Rained-out games Monday have caused some rescheduling today in men's intramural flag football. All managers are requested to call the intramural office if the weather is threatening so rescheduling can be handled more efficiently.

Today's games are on Field 1, R.P. Swinging Singles vs. Saints, Field 2, Chi-Town Men vs. Russian Refuge; Field 3, Vet's Club vs. Pink Pussy Cats, Field 4, Big House vs. Malibu Murders, Field 4, TK's vs. Sigma Tau Gamma; Field 5, Trueblood vs. Nancy Nine and Field 9, U. City Cambridge vs. Newman Knights.

Offense dominates Bradley, SIU wins 36-14

By Mike Klein

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"Rain, rain go away. Come back again when the Salukis play!"

Although Coach Dick

Towers says it has no bearing on how his gridiron players play, fact remains that SIU's 10-1-1 defeat of Bradley University was played in the rain as were this year's two other Saluki victories.

On Sept. 27, the Salukis beat Youngstown University 43-14 and then three weeks later before a rain-swept home crowd of 4,500, the Salukis crushed powerful Indiana State University, 29-7.

The facts also remain that against Bradley the Salukis gained 418 yards rushing in 53 3/4 yards total offense, out-gained Bradley in first down rushing 23-5 and an sophomore sensation Bob Hasberry set a kick return record and gain a remarkable 177 net yards in just over one-half of football. In addition, senior Ed Wallner set a punt return record. Ed Edelman replaced Hasberry for much of the second half and scampered for 52 yards.

Bradley quickly in the first quarter, Herb Madison, a co-most valuable defensive player and at the time an intercep-ted a pass at the Bradley 48-yard line. Bradley marched 85 yards following a 56 and 10 yards sandwiched between a 13-yard pass by Bill McMurray to Sherman Blade.

With little remaining in the first quarter, Herb Madison, the co-most valuable defensive player and at the time an intercepted a pass at the Bradley 48-yard line. Bradley marched 85 yards following a 56 and 10 yards sandwiched between a 13-yard pass by Bill McMurray to Sherman Blade.

Hasberry set up his touchdown run of 56 and 10 yards sandwiched between a 15-yard pass by Jim McMurray to Sherman Blade.

Illini stop soccer club 2-0

Elliott Edelman scored the final Saluki touchdown less than three minutes later on a one-yard plunge.

"Edelman looked very good as a replacement and gave Hasberry a lot of rest he needed today," Towers says. "Eddie ran very hard, as hard as he ever ran. And I was glad to see it because he figured real strong in our plans all the time."

Safety and punt return specialist Ed Wallner set a school record with 110 yards returned on punts. The previous mark had been held by Doug Hoggman who returned three punts for 97 yards against Northeast last year.

Wallner is also closing in on the club's 12-tackle record of 26, also held by Hoggman. Wallner currently has 23 and is expected to easily break Hoggman's record.

The victory will prove costly to the outstanding defense of as regular starters Chuck Canali and Leonard Counsell were hurt and will miss the rest of the season.

Canali is a letterman and as a junior has another year of eligibility but Counsell was playing his final campaign, Canali sustained a frac-tured ankle from an illegal broken leg just above the ankle and Counsell stretched ligaments in his lower knee.

Towers said there is a possi-bility Counsell might be able to play in the last game but there also a danger of cartilage damage. Canali and Counsell had been two of the stalwarts of an extremely impressive defensive unit which held Pierson without a field goal and opposing runners and done a fine job of closing in on enemy quarterbacks.

Towers said he will move sophomore Bob Thome from linebacker to one of the tackle positions and insert Dave Pietruncio at the other, with a possible switch available to play both ways, Lasutka is currently playing offensive guard as the leading tackler of the season.

Although the Salukis led Bradley statistically in every offensive and defensive category, Towers wasn't extremely happy with all aspects of the contest.

"I don't think we played exceptionally well against Bradley. They played a real fine game. The fact that we know they passed the ball as well as they have and I didn't think our defense was as sharp as it has been.

"That was one of the things we didn't do very well. Plus, it was very wet out there. Our defense was not very well. Lasutka fumbled the punt return and then fumbled the ball right back to them as well. We played well in the back but, in general, our defense was not quite as good as usual. Early in the game the players are able to execute very well and run hard until you get bumped around a little bit and then things just don't go quite as easy.

But all was not doom in the game evaluation and Towers found many things to be happy about.

"Sherman Bladene looked very good. He ran hard and it's best that he's finally rushing (75 yards compared to 117) against Youngstown. He looked very good on our reverse and counters which we've got to have in order to get a consistent offense going.

"We just can't keep running the same play over and over.

Towers also praised the receiving and progress of An- thrace the big sophomore tight end who "made two great catches in the game and then fumbled once. He reached up, caught the ball one-handed and then ran to the 41 and fumbled. But he had a real good day receiving."

The third-year coach was also happy over the improve- ment of the kicking game and the play of defensive tackle Herb Madison who earned co- honors for most valuable defensive player. This week in the first week this season the coaches have awarded more than one designation per unit.
