WILLIE WINS STRAW VOTE ON SINU CAMPUS WITH COMFORTABLE MAJORITY

Republican Majority Shows Southern Students Are More Conservative Than at Other Schools

In the straw vote of the S. U. C. T. in which 1,113 votes were cast last Thursday by the Southern Illinois Normal University students, Republican presidential candidate William W. Willkie won by 606 votes over Democrat Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Willkie's margin was so comfortable that he received a majority of 606 votes. The result was: Roosevelt, 307; Willkie, 913; John W. Cranston, 22; and William D. Keeton, 5.

Willkie's majority was so comfortable that he carried all of the counties of the state.

Because of the large number of students from Southern Illinois, it is believed that the Republican vote will be much larger in the election.

Willkie's vote was also much larger than the total vote of the Democrat in the election of 1936.

ELEVEN DELEGATES ATTEND NATIONAL YOUTH CONFERENCE

Eleven delegates from Southern Illinois were present at the National Convention of the American Youth Commission last week, held at Carnegie Institution, Washington, D. C.

The delegates were selected in the convention of the American Youth Commission, held at Carnegie Institution, Washington, D. C.

The American Youth Commission is a national organization of all youth organizations in the United States. Its purpose is to promote the welfare of youth.

STUDENT COUNCIL HUGS — DEMOCRACY TO BOSOM — APPROVES PUBLICATION

In approving the publication of the minutes of meetings and the stand of each member on issues, the Student Council last Monday hugged democracy to its bosom.

The Council, in keeping with its policy of promoting interest in campus elections, will cooperate diligently keeping Students Council members informed on their responsibilities in a democratic manner.

In the same meeting, the majority of Student Council members took an active stand against publishing votes on personalities. Their reason is that an atmosphere of generalization and the tendency to misjudge by the individual will stand in the way of the electors of the campus political field, then their votes should be left to the students themselves. The second, on the other hand, so much major a policy as the Student Council is justified in taking the stand it has taken.

Commission on Teacher Education: Issues Suggests on Democracy

From a meeting at Mr. Stump, Pennsylvania, devoted primarily to discussion on the democratic process and leadership, the Commission on Teacher Education has issued the following suggestions:

The democratic process consists in making decisions by majority. A decision need not only formal consent, but behavior as well.

The great art of leadership is getting cooperation before, and after the decision—certainly after.

The minority position may yield, but it will be won on its merits—it will enslavement to certain individuals.

There is danger in democracy in the growth of corporate or industrial schedules, and patterns, which take small account of individual views.

By order to avoid misunderstandings and color candidates, group leaders should, ideally, understand each other. Secrecy and limitations. An advisory group should know it is only with the understanding that the enjoyment will be accepted, and regarded—that it will have to be tied to the bed it makes.

Every teacher should be his or her own democracy, seeking the greatest possible amount of participation by the group, and getting the help of the group to operate at the level of their highest potential.

There is great deal of special influence “leadership” going on in this school.

There is much vagueness about terms like democracy, “free” democracy.

Democracy as a process can be taught.

Democracy Does Not Come Naturally

Many men are beginning to drop the attitude that democracy comes naturally to the sons and daughters of America. They are beginning to understand that democracy is not something that is just part of our nature, but that it is something that must be fostered and nurtured.

Perhaps the most important lesson of democracy is that it is a process, not an end. It is a process that must be learned and practiced in order to be fully understood.

For the student body should rely upon that same faith to make their decisions and to exercise their personal in the interest of the social body, total democracy.

It is the responsibility of each individual to work for his or her own democracy, seeking the greatest possible amount of participation by the group, and getting the help of the group to operate at the level of their highest potential.

For example, a student should be his or her own democracy, seeking the greatest possible amount of participation by the group, and getting the help of the group to operate at the level of their highest potential.

What is the role of the leadership in fostering democracy?

The role of the leadership is to create an environment where democracy can flourish. This includes creating a climate of free speech and free expression, as well as promoting a spirit of cooperation and compromise.

The leadership must also encourage students to take an active role in the decision-making process. This can be done by providing opportunities for students to participate in decision-making, such as through student government or other student organizations.

Finally, the leadership must be willing to listen to the diverse perspectives of the student body. This means being open to new ideas and being willing to make changes when necessary.

For example, when a new policy is being considered, the leadership should listen to the concerns of all students, including minority students, before making a decision.

The leadership must also communicate the importance of democracy to the student body. This can be done through speeches, articles, or other means of communication.

For example, the leadership could hold a series of forums where students can discuss the importance of democracy and share their own experiences with democracy.

Finally, the leadership must lead by example. This means being actively involved in the democratic process and using their own decisions to demonstrate the importance of democracy.

For example, if the leadership is considering a new policy, they should make sure to consider all perspectives and involve as many students as possible in the decision-making process.

United States, Alone, Will Observe Armistice

The world, with a large part of it at war again, will observe Armistice Day, November 11, as an unusual day. The day marks the end of World War I and the beginning of a new era.

Armistice Day is a time to reflect on the sacrifices of those who fought and died during the war, to remember those who have fallen, and to honor those who have served.

Armistice Day is a day of reconciliation and remembrance, a time to reflect on the lessons of the past and to work towards a better future.

Cooperative Movement On-Other Campuses Progresses Rapidly
Mid-western Meeting Proves
Co-op Houses on S. I. N. U. Campus Operate on Small Margins; Are Unable To Buy in Large Quantities

BY ROBERT C. CALLAN

The cooperative fraternity system's great success is shown by the report of the 20th Annual Meeting of the National Cooperative Association, Inc., held in Chicago recently. The report shows that the system is rapidly gaining ground on the campus in the mid-western section of the country. The success of the system is due to the fact that the students are able to buy in large quantities, which makes it possible for them to obtain goods at a lower price than they could if they were buying in small quantities.

38 petcent of Coeds Believe Beauty Counts More Than Brains

By MARGIE JACOB

This belief that beauty counts more than brains is often heard on the campus. A recent survey of students showed that 38 percent of them believe that beauty counts more than brains. This is an interesting finding, as it shows that beauty is considered to be more important than brains in the eyes of these students.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS WITNESSED MOST UNUSUAL FALL WEATHER IN STATE'S HISTORY, Says Thomas F. Barton

By THOMAS F. BARTON

Thomas F. Barton, head of S. I. N. U. geography department, has said that Southern Illinois experienced the most unusual fall weather in the state's history.

The weather during this fall has been characterized by a series of unusual events. The first unusual event was the occurrence of a severe drought, which caused the crops to fail. The second unusual event was the occurrence of a severe flood, which caused the rivers to overflow their banks. The third unusual event was the occurrence of a severe tornado, which caused widespread destruction.

Eastern Averages

Weaver was the star of the show for the Illinois Averages, hitting a three-run home run in the first inning to give the Averages a 3-0 lead. Weaver, a senior at Eastern Illinois University, was named MVP of the game for his performance.

The Averages went on to win the game 12-3, with Weaver hitting two more home runs and driving in six runs. The Averages' pitcher, John Smith, allowed only one run in seven innings of work.

The game was played in front of a packed crowd at the Illinois Averages' home field, and the atmosphere was electric. The fans were cheering wildly for Weaver and the Averages, and the game was a true display of the passion for baseball in Illinois.

Weaver's performance was a testament to the hard work and dedication that goes into being a successful college baseball player. His two home runs were the result of hours of practice and dedication to the sport.

The Averages' victory was a huge boost for their team morale and will surely help them in their upcoming games. Weaver's performance was a reminder of the incredible talent that can be found in college baseball, and it was a pleasure to witness.

Weaver's future in baseball is bright. With his impressive performance in the game, he is sure to attract the attention of scouts and professional teams. The Averages are lucky to have him on their team, and they will surely thrive with his leadership and talent.
