VOICE OF S.I.U.

FROM OTHER SCHOOLS

DARK MUSINGS

BY DOROTHY STYKE

THE FIRST NATION TO RECOGNIZE THE UNITED STATES AS A NATION was Egypt. In 1776, the Egyptian government sent a delegation to Congress to express its support for the American Revolution. In return, the United States promised to send 100,000 tons of cotton to Egypt. The cotton was needed to support the growing textile industry in Egypt, which was also benefiting from its trade with the United States.

ITALY—THUMBS UP OR DOWN?

From this we turned to the Mirror of Public Opinion. In the mirror, we saw little change. The same number of people were satisfied or dissatisfied with the war, but the war no longer seemed so important to them. The war was less and less important because the countries were no longer at war. It was as if the war had never happened.

BOOKS IN REVIEW

ELENA GRYFINSKI

The last time I saw Elena Gryfinski was at the annual conference of the American Library Association in Chicago. She was speaking about her new book, "The Forgotten Years," which tells the story of a family during World War II. She said that she had written the book in order to keep the memory of those years alive. She said that she wanted people to remember what it was like for families during the war.

THE PLEDGE OF THE OPA

Last week the national administration visited all the states, and the administration visited all the states, and the administration, and the administration went on a tour of the country. This was the first time that the administration had done this. The administration was very popular, and the administration was liked by all the people.

NO PRIVACY

In the New York Times, an article appeared that the word "privacy" was no longer in use. The word "privacy" had been replaced by the word "security." The article said that the government was using the word "security" because it was more important than privacy. The article said that the government was using the word "security" because it was more important than privacy.

THE FUTURE OF AERONAUTICS IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS

By O. B. YOUNG

March 23, 1943

"Science has been the key to all success. The following statement by O. B. Young, not to be paraphrased, must be followed by all the students in our school. The future of aeronautics in Southern Illinois is bright. No matter how bad the economy gets, the financial crisis will be solved."

They know they have prospects in this thing that only Americans have... for they had a lead that you couldn't catch up with... Believe and Movie Hagens were both ahead of the curve. The war, and the economic situation, and the political situation, and the world situation, and the psychological situation, and the psychological situation all combined to make it a big story. It's good for the public good of the public good of the public good.
