Seniors Taking 5-Day Test Series

Collision Kills VTI Student

Jerry A. Rice, an SIU student, was killed instantly at 8 p.m. Wednesday evening when the car in which she was riding collided with another car on a highway 12 miles south of Belleville. Miss Rice, a 19-year-old freshman from Grand Chais, Ill., was enrolled in Southern's Vocational-Technical Institute. She was being taken to Alton by her father, Mr. Sgt. Cecil Rice, who had injured himself critically in the accident and was taken to Belleville hospital. Miss Rice is survived by her twin sister, Sherry, who is also enrolled at SIU as a VTI student, and their mother, Elizabeth.

Free Recreation Available

Southern Isn't Miami Beach or Las Vegas, But It Offers a Broad Range of Activities

DOOR:—Construction workers fit into place the sections of a new picnic dome at the Lake on the campus. The dome, north of the boathouse near Chain Drive, is designed for group picnics and can accommodate 40 or more persons. It may be reserved by calling the Student Activities Office.

Second in a Series

"There's nothing to do at this school," is a familiar cry at SIU. You can hear it hundreds of times daily from the modern lounges in Small Group Housing to the crowded and uncomfortable basement rooms that serve as home-away-from-home for other Southern students.

And if you listen closely you probably can hear it repeated frequently above the clacking of pool balls nudging each other into the side pockets in the depths of the Olympic Room.

Of course, SIU isn't another Miami Beach or Las Vegas. It isn't supposed to be. Nevertheless, the University is aware of the recreational needs of the students and faculty and makes a concentrated effort to provide an adequate outlet for them. However, it must be kept in mind that the prime purpose is education—not recreation and entertainment. With that thought in mind, any students who really want to can find some form of relaxation on campus. Most of it is free.

A student whose recreational and entertainment tastes don't run to the physical sports, can take his choice from a smorgasbord of lectures, discussions and musical events. For example, more than 40 musical events are scheduled between now and the end of the term.

Audio Visual Service shows movies in Furr Auditorium on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights throughout the school year. While most of the pictures are popular, they are generally considered among the film classics and worth seeing again.

Among social activities, most of the dances, dinners and similar types of entertainment are managed by individual groups and housing units. However, there are a few other activities that will attract you to the University Building in the Roman Room at the University's Center in addition to others in housing areas and major social events such as the Military Ball.

For the indoor athletes there is table tennis, pool, chess, which is table tennis, pool, chess, and table tennis, pool, chess, which is table tennis, pool, chess, and table tennis, pool, chess, which is table tennis.

Another test, which will be used to evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of the senior class at the Carbondale campus and the college curricula in which they are enrolled, will be released to students for their own evaluation in deciding to pursue a graduate degree. Students who desire counseling and an interpretation of their scores may make an appointment at the Testing Center, which is administering the testing program.

Veteran Reporter To Lecture Here

Douglas B. Cornell, veteran White House correspondent for the Associated Press, will deliver the first Lovejoy Lecture during Journalism Week on the SIU campus, who delivered the first Lovejoy Lecture, Honoring Elijah Parish Lovejoy, famed Illinois editor-martyr, will speak at Shryock Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. in the morning and afternoon of April 16. Lovejoy was killed at Alton during the press war with an angry mob of slavery anti-abolitionists.

Miss Stone, Acting Director Of Libraries at SIU to Retire

Elizabeth Ogil Stone, who has been director of the library for 25 years, has submitted a resignation for acceptance at the minimum retirement age effecting July 1 of this year.

Miss Stone first came to Southern in June of 1929 when it was a small teacher's college. She noted that the library has grown from a staff of four to a present number of 21, and many thousands of books, as the school has grown.

In 1936 she left here and took up a position of teaching in the Graduate Library School at the University of California where she remained until the following years. She was named as head librarian at the University of Dalgupe, Iowa, before returning to Southern in 1946.

Upon her return she assumed the position of Assistant Director of Libraries. From 1947 to 1955 she served as Acting Director of Librarie.

Goulart to Uruguay; Successor Sworn In

RIO DE JANEIRO—Radio Jornal do Brasil said Thursday that deposed President Joao Goulart has arrived in Montevideo, Uruguay. The broadcast quoted a Montevideo radio report, Goulart fled into exile Thursday, culminating a two-day rebellion by anti-Communist generals.

His departure from the southern city of Porto Alegre, where he had hoped to rally support for a comeback, was announced by his followers there in a radio broadcast.

Early in the day, Congress declared the presidency vacant and swore in Paschoal Ranieri Marzilli, speaker of the Chamber of Deputies, as the new president of Brazil. Wednesday night Goulart fled to his home state in southern Brazil and defiantly called the action by Congress a farce, declared himself still president and predicted a popular reaction against the generals.

A broadcast heard in Argentina Thursday quoted the mayor of Porto Alegre as saying Goulart has decided not to resist, because he wanted to avoid bloodshed.

Congress Set to Approve $50 Million Alaskan Aid

WASHINGTON -- President Johnson, with personal telephone calls to Senate leaders, pushed Thursday for speedy congressional approval of a $50 million of federal emergency funds for Alaska.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois both said the Senate must act early next week. The House must act first.

In order to act on the appropriation, the Senate must put aside temporarily its lengthening battle over the civil rights bill. Mansfield told newsmen he expected no problems in getting unanimous consent for this.

Along with the decision to request a $50-million emergency appropriation, Johnson has named a special commission to plan rehabilitation of the earthquake - ravaged Alaskan economy.

Since March 9, the indictment charged, O'Brien in a hearing meant to support a motion by Hoffa for a new trial. But the alleged offer was not accepted, and the juror, a Chattanooga policeman, was sentenced to six months for the tutoring of high school and elementary students by college students.

Javits Urges Legal Protection For Civil Rights Demonstrators

Washington, D.C. -- Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., urged Thursday that the Senate put into the civil rights bill provisions to protect civil rights demonstrators against what he termed police brutality and excesses.

"These excesses have included the use of police dogs, cattle prods, and even tear gas bombs on peaceful demonstrators, and have set white policemen against Negro demonstrators in a way that is affront to the conscience of the nation," Javits said. As the Senate moved into its 20th day of debate on the bill, Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., who leads Dixie forces fighting the measure, protested in a brief speech that material, "much of it and much of it misleading," is being fed to the bill's supporters by federal agencies.

Pompous Punctured

Siporin Finds Anger Stirs Cartoon Ideas

Mike Siporin, whose pens have punctured the pompous and flayed the foibles of the foolhearty, insists that he isn’t an angry young man — even if at least not all the time.

"But it does help to be angry — to be stirred up about things if you want to get your message across in a cartoon," he admitted.

The tall, dark-haired cartoonist’s messages have been "getting across" to the readers of the Daily Egyptian for some three years now. And a collection of them, in book form, went on sale yesterday.

Being a student (he is working on a master’s degree in fine art), Siporin’s cartoons frequently take the student point of view. But he isn’t one-sided. Students get their lumps in his cartoons as well as the faculty administration.

"Siporin doesn’t look upon himself as a Don Quixote jousting with collegiate windmills. Nevertheless, he admits that his best cartoons generally develop when something "really bugs" him.

"If something affects me personally," he said, "I get moved to do something. I take the idea and think about it. My head is foremost, and the drawing is the last step."

For example, Siporin, who claims allegiance to no political party, became "bugged" by Sen. Barry Goldwater’s political speeches. He didn’t rush to the drawing board, however. In fact, it was three weeks and some 35 cartoons later that the final version of his cartoon on the senator appeared in the Daily Egyptian.

"It’s difficult to be objective and sometimes even more difficult not to be nasty in a cartoon," Siporin explained. "That’s why I take time to think about the idea thoroughly before I sit down to do the drawing."

Siporin has been "cartooning" since he was nine. But he admits that it wasn’t just "art for art’s sake."

"My brother, Tom, who was seven at the time, and I would draw comic books and newspapers and then we would sell them to our parents for a penny each," Siporin said.

Siporin, who looks more like a football player than the cartoonist he is, has ignored training, rather than the prototype of the artist, doesn’t limit himself to cartoons. His paintings and drawings have appeared in student and professional publications.

The Prince Meets Truth

By Fabiola

Once upon a time there was an everyday-type Prince skipping through the Center of the Kingdom of South, As was his practice, he was hoboing before him a mass of usual protoplasms. What it was was either a man or a woman or a pseudo-intellectual hippy beatnik who had read Ferlinghetti. Once, in a drunken stupor, it wore sandals, sunglasses (official Captain Video sunglasses), a beard, a zwischen shirt with a portrait of James Bond on it, a pair of cut-off stretch pants and it smoked a pipe. It looked like a combination of Hugh Hefner, Francis Faye, Ray Charles, and Pu Man Chiu. It was an everyday-type Prince, the Prince was sure that nobody wanted his astrograph, "What is it," asked the Prince? in the Petition of the Week.

"What's it for?"

"It's to bar Barry Goldwater from the cover of Time magazine."

"Why?"

"Well, we were going to petition against Cassius Clay, but we decided to put on the petition. Goldwater was the next on the list."

"You mean you have a black list?"

"Hey, man, what are you, a racist?"

"Well, that's what they're called, black lists!"

"What'd you say your name was?" added Kent, a student with pen and hand in.

"I didn't, but I'm called Prince."

"That's even worse that you're trying to do? Turn your back on humanity? Where's your social conscience? How do you justify your existence? What's your mission?"

"A mission? Well, I don't know if you could call it a mission, but I mainly bounce a little rubber ball."

"Good grief! (Certainly not something it had picked out of Ferlinghetti). "You mean," it continued, "you don't want to justify yourself by being the Prince Corp?"

"The Peace Corps? That is sort of a Salvation Army for unemployed Marco Polo's isn't it?"

"You're a regular Sidney Sheldon, man. What's this gig with the rubber ball? Don't you know it's unseemly?"

"Listen, when humanity can use anyone who can bounce a little rubber ball, and when humanity can damn and not need me, they'll be able to find me."

It was now incoherently mycket, a man who had made a little rubber ball but when humanity can damn it, it was for my talent in some way I value, they can look me up, they might be able to need me, they'll be able to find me."

It was only by this that the prince knew who he had been talking to, the illegitimate off-spring of Chicken Little."

Relief

by Ken Blumenthal

I have paid tribute many and many a day, Pieces of silver and gold and silver for sure. Never once had I reason to believe, That or what we did, I'd be able to heap upon me if I paid not.

Gleefully his altar stood there, Between a.m. till late into the night did his priests (The priests in their robes of blue, scowling, then crying, The priests of the cent of forty or a dime)

After many years I felt my burden payed and yet, the pain. Shamelessly called for more.

Many a day had passed and while his palace would come to lead us, All live work, Faculty and student alike.

With cold and rain and snow as his allies, an unsuspicous led appeared out of the skies. And his frozen icy breath with a little splash destroyed the heathen temple!

Freedom, release, aid from the fire! The toll booth of the University Parking Lot was blown down.

We should laugh and sing and cry out our relief, the fire temple has many priests; It shall rise again.

A hundred miles North Come again and free my people. Amen.

But it dawns on me recently that I am a human being. I will try to do better before the light under my ass has gone out. Premiershun has been Screaming for me over the library for years. And it is about time I visited him.

Go See Proscenium One

by Ken Blumenthal

A slight miracle has happened just off the SIU campus... it's called Proscenium One. As with most miracles, one could not very many of us are aware of it. The Proscenium is a cabaret-type theatre set right from the same intimate image as those in New York and Chicago. It provides a fresh, adult type of evening that most college students can identify with. Young people pay for admission, and the noise it makes at 3 a.m. and you have a beer; which is almost as good as sleeping through an 8 o'clock on purpose. It is pedestrian, but I love it.

SIU Golfers Tee Off Today
In Second Match With 'Cape'

Riding the wave of three consecutive dual match victories, SIU's undefeated golf team challenges Southeast Missouri State College today at Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Coach Lynn Holder's straight-shooting Salukis, victors over a good University of Missouri team here Tuesday, will be looking for their second win of the season over the Cape Indians. Southern whipped the weak Southeast squad 14 1/2 to 1/2 here earlier this week.

Leading SIU's experienced attack against the Indians are seniors Gene Carrillo, 3-D-this season with a team-leading 74.3 average in his last two matches; Jim Place, who carries a creditable 2-0-1 record and a 77.1 average; and John Krueger, who also owns a fine 17-6 record. In a doubleheader to open the season over the Cape Indians, Southern whipped the weak Southeast squad 14 1/2 to 1/2 here earlier this week.
