CURRICULUM CHANGES WILL GREATLY BENEFIT SOUTHERN

The curriculum changes which will be made here next year should greatly improve the standing in the college, for they will make it possible for students to do work toward degrees as registered nurses or medical technology here and at Washington University. For the first time they are also offering their bachelor of education degree. It will, at the same time, make it possible for students to study library science, to do special work in practical teaching, and to complete the required course in three years with a selection of courses. Special courses in agriculture for rural school and school administration will also be offered.

As Mr. Pollard stated recently, "Our agriculture and rural schools department has a joint responsibility to lead and direct the other departments of the college so that they do not assume the status of a secondary school but make an important part of the college education."

These changes will help us offer a higher education more related to the real world of the community. And it will improve the quality of our work, as the school of social work will especially improve as a result because of the use of the college teaching staff. I. R. K. L. is becoming something more than a branch college. The college cannot go forever, though, improving the quality and quantity of the work, but I believe that we will have a greater degree of efficiency and reduce and control operation costs and would, I. N. C. must be given the chance to develop.

ONLY WELL-PREPARED STUDENTS USUALLY WIN GRADUATE AWARDS

The graduate scholarship in medicine awarded recently to Dr. Charles C. Corning brings the total to 32 scholarships received by members of this year's entering class. Nine of the recipients should be encouraged to continue their studies and the administration is happy that students are usually well prepared if they are interested in doing graduate work.

When making an appointment of this kind, a university looks first of all for scholarship. These students who have maintained high scholastic standing during the entire four years of attendance are preferred.

However, new scholarship is not enough. Participation in extra-curricular activities is an important part of the curriculum and those who determine what is the successful candidate must understand the various kinds of things—and do them well. The student who has a leading role in any extra-curricular organization is an added advantage.

The present policy in the college is to encourage the participation of all students who wish to do graduate work. It will be of interest to note that students may hold positions in the college and have enough time for extra-curricular work.

During the fall semester the students are encouraged to take part in the various activities of the college. The administration is pleased with the results of the work of the student body.

The student who decides what he wants and then prepares himself to get it, is the student who accomplishes the most. The person who is best qualified for a graduate award is the one who is most likely to receive it.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT LOOKS AT EDUCATION'S FUTURE

No one can deny that the world today is a very much more complex place than it was a few years ago. The industrial revolution has changed the nature of work and the pace of life. The social revolution has created new problems and new opportunities. Education has had to keep pace with these changes, and many of the educational institutions have had to adapt themselves to the new conditions.

Dr. Frank B. Schey, president of Northwestern University, has been one of the leaders in this adaptation. He has been active in the educational community for many years and has had a great deal of experience in teaching and administration. He is also well known as a writer and lecturer on educational topics.

The following is an extract from a letter written by Dr. Schey in which he expresses his views on education's future:

"The world today is a very much more complex place than it was a few years ago. The industrial revolution has changed the nature of work and the pace of life. The social revolution has created new problems and new opportunities. Education has had to keep pace with these changes, and many of the educational institutions have had to adapt themselves to the new conditions."
