ST. VIATOR MAKES MANY LONG SHOTS TO WIN FROM MAROONS IN FAST GAME

Friday the thirteenth carried both good and bad luck in the game with St. Viator, for the Maroons were unable to score with their usual ability while the St. Viator boys hit many long shots to win 30-21. Numerous set-ups were missed by the Teachers. Out of seventeen tries for free throws the Maroons made only five points. St. Viator has an unusually fast team, even faster than the St. Louis squad. After the first few minutes of play both teams played the fastest basketball that has been seen this year.

The Teachers were handicapped by the absence of "Sannyboy" White who played only fifteen minutes of the first half, and was ousted because of four personal fouls. Evard, finest forward in the game of the game with time outs. Causing a running mate, made two field goals and twelve free throw points. Scott and Monceal divided ten points between them.

Vigor was early head and at the first of the game had 9-1 margin over the Teachers. At the half the Maroons were on the turn of end of the 18-9 score. The Maroons rallied in the last period and cut down the score, but a couple of long shots again put Viator safely ahead and the game ended 30-21.

XMAS PROGRAM TO BE GIVEN AT CHAPEL HOUR

SCHOOL'S MUSIC DEPARTMENT FEATURE ANNUAL EVENT FRIDAY, DECEMBER 20

For the past two years the chorus has sung parts of the Messiah by Handel as the principal part of the Chapel program given before the Christmas vacation. Each year we intended adding more of this great work for Chorus.

Program:

1. O Holy Night, by Adolphe Adam.
2. There were Shepherds, by Handel.

The Messiah, by George F. Handel, the Messiah was first performed at a concert given for charitable purposes at Dublin, Ireland, on April the 13th, 1742. Handel conducting the performance in person.

Our program begins with part four of the Messiah.

CHRISTMAS PAGEANT GIVEN LAST EVENING

The Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., and the student group of the First Baptist Church presented a Christmas pageant, "Miriam's Visits," in the college auditorium Tuesday evening. The solo purpose of the pageant was the furthering of the various Christmas spirit.

The scene opened with an argument, between a devoted prophetess, Anna, and a rebellious Jewish girl, Miriam. Dispute predominate this argument. Anna, Dorothy Clark, believes that the time for the Messiah's coming is near, but Miriam, Florence Younger is disinclined to believe any of the story. She is also filled with resentment against the subject of the people of Jerusalem. During their argument, a child appears before the boy and the fact is brought out that there is no more room in it, thereby breaking the stars. While they are sleeping angels appear and sing of the Christ child.

Gilbert Lentz to be Junior President

Guy Neal has stepped upwards a grade—junior to senior. Why he became a senior is a problem. Whether it was due to his great popularity, to the short-sightedness of the junior class, or to the ambition of himself or his colleagues remains a puzzle to be solved.

Anyway, a new president has been selected—Gilbert Lentz, son of Professor Lentz of the History Department of Butler College. He is a known as a salesman in Fly's book store.

We hope that he will be as successful as his predecessor. If he may be judged by his past accomplishments he will be popular and successful.

Football Team Names

1930 Co-Captains

Clarence Harris and Glenn Martin have been selected as co-captains of next year's football team. The plan of having two captains worked out in practice this year, the method adopted for the following season. At the banquet given by their mothers the letter men for this year elected the two men who will lead the Maroons eleven next year.

"Ace" Martin, backfield member of the partnership, is more than deserving of the honor bestowed upon him. Although this was his first year with the Maroons, he performed in a way that gained him high regard as and respect of admiration of his teammates. He will be remembered as the half who ran wild in the final drive of the Charleston game. He will add strength and drive to any backfield and he's not slow either. Well known and well liked, he is bound to prove an able leader.

"Fuzz" Harris, line captain, can play either guard or tackle and play it well. He has earned his right as a co-captain by the spirit and enthusiasm which has marked his play since his first team on the squad. Next year will be his last and in all probability his last. He always has pop and knows how to pop up the others.

RAY HARRIS BREAKS LEG IN WRESTLING MATCH

Thursday afternoon at the eighth hour Ray Harris, a freshman at the Normal, suffered a broken leg.

Ray, who is special instructor in a wrestling class at the seventh and eighth hours, was on the mat with Eugene Stintle, a sophomore in the Normal. The two were wrestling when Eugene fell & Ray's left leg, breaking the bone.

Dr. Fred Edmonson set the bone. An x-ray picture of the injured bone showed clearly the injury and once in the tournament.

Mr. Feltz to Lecture

In Pennsylvania

All this week, from December 16 to 21, Mr. Feltz is engaged in lecturing at the Butler County Institute at Butler, Pennsylvania. Such an extended engagement is very unusual and is positive proof of Mr. Feltz' worth as a lecturer. Further evidence of his ability is shown by the fact that this is his second engagement in Pennsylvania this fall. Early in October he addressed a meeting of teachers at Harrisburg, the capital of Pennsylvania.

For his topic of discussion Mr. Feltz will draw mainly upon the field of teaching arithmetic—the factors to be considered in teaching arithmetic. Those who know him, believe he will make very interesting and instructive talks.
NORMAL DEFEATS AGGIES IN FIRST HOME GAME

Among the Rural Practice Schools

The pupils at Forville school averaged reading one circle book per week last month. The following pupils had good readers: 6 at all. Oldfield's basket from the corner put the Billikens ahead, but Doc knocked the score from the foul line. McLandart who had struggled a good game made a long shot before the half ended, 10-8 for the Missourians.

Second half—Wilson opened the second half with a basket that tied the score 16-16. Strong made two rangers in rapid succession. Oldfield and Anderson made free throws, and Oldfield, again from the floor. Strong scored under the basket. Roberts took a counter from the foul line. Wilson added two to the Teachers' score. Roberts dropped one in with the basket, and Wilson ended the scoring with a field goal, 24-18.

Girls' Basketball Practice Begins

Last Wednesday the girls who are interested in playing basketball the winter term met in the gymnasium and elected: Freshman manager, Florence Peacock; sophomore manager, Elizabeth Terry; class president, Margaret Armentrout; and senior manager, Dick Py and Mary. The upperclassmen and sophomores practiced together on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Monday and Tuesday they practiced together on Tuesdays and school.

Miss Ethelborn and Miss Carpenter are the coaches. At this meeting the girls also formulated the training rules by which they will abide.

The A tournament later on in the term will mark the climax of the season.

Smoeker GIVEN FOR HISTORIC MAJORS

Last Thursday evening Dr. Hall and Mr. Baye gave a smoker party at their apartment. Mr. Leith and his students were present. The students were practically all majoring in history. The purpose was to bring students and instructors closer together in an informal way and thereby increase the understanding between them. In this the affair was especially successful. The party began at eight o'clock and lasted until 12. The evening was spent in card games and checkers. Last, but not least, were the refreshments.

SECOND TEAM OF TEACHERS PLAY PART TIME

LARGE CROWD LOOKS ON AS DIXIELANDERS HOW TO MAROON BASKETTEERS

The Maroon and White swept the Arkansas Aggies off their feet in the first home basketball game of the year last Wednesday evening 40-21. The Maroons outclassed the Arkansas boys, and White proved to be a scoring machine, for he tallied sixteen of the forty points for the Teachers. The second team played part of the first half and ten minutes on the second half, proving a fight of mixed football and basketball that held the Jonesboro boys on even terms.

Monical and Wilson were the other debuts of the Teachers with six points apiece. Keller, a substitute center for the Aggies, began connecting in the last half and made four field goals in succession. After a scoring binge, Wilson he received a bad cut over his eye and was removed from the game. He led the Jonesboro scoring with nine points to his credit. The Teachers had nine points, and they were five behind in the last half after eleven. The evening was spent in card games and checkers. Last, but not least, were the refreshments.

The American Shirt
BY MARC GREEN '33

For many long years people have disregarded the shirt. We cannot deny the fact that it is an inanimate, dumb, uninteresting thing. But yet in our deeper and more appreciative nature stands up in revolt, reminding us that, after all, it is very close to us. I feel like Benedict Arnold every time I think of the terrible things I have done to my shirts, but I am not alone in my vaunting miseries. We cuff them, let the washing machine "mash" them; and when they grow old and wrinkled, we toss them into a pan of Rit and wash them dry. But still they have a thing to do to have around—especially around December and one's shoulders.

For these many reasons, I am going to be a martyr to a noble cause. I am going to defend the American shirt and show to all the world, Hart, Shaffner and Marx in particular, that a good shirt cannot be held down. My early fondness in speaking of those shirts as American, I call them this not because they are Vanishing, nor because they are given to the impression that they leave the factories with the Constitution of the United States printed on them, but simply to demonstrate the spread of Americanism and its domination over this and that. Shirts are either Scotch woolen, Irish linen, broadcloth or a combination of all three. In such an instance I mean ("shirt") the weaver would look like the Prince of Wales—maybe. Generally speaking, shirts have a habit of being British, but it doesn't take them long to lose their citizenship. The Irish furnish the raw material and make the cloth. We see it together and make an American shirt. If you buy a shirt from Uncle Sam and get crumpled in a Scotch thimble, don't get angry; consider yourself a sacrifice for the foreign policy, smear on some iodine and try your best to believe that the scratch was made by American seaweed. Americanism, my love and forever, America.

To a casual observer it may seem that there are many kinds of shirts: Large shirts, small shirts, starched shirts, hanky shirts, buttonless shirts, dad's shirts, night shirts (some genius with a much longer life), and many others. To one who has made them a study, there are only two kinds: My good shirt and my other one.

It is surprising the amount of love and affection that a shirt can store in the form of memories. There is one little blouse that Willie used to wear before he grew up and got a job in a Chicago store. And then, somewhere among men's rag-bag reminiscences, is the silk shirt that papa was wearing the night that prohibition came into effect. Also there still remains the shirt that fitted, but I shall bar references.

In my love for this abused garment, I enjoy imagining a place where all lady shirts may wear their useful days are over; it is an Elizium for good American shirts. In honor of the homecoming, I hereby institute a chorus to the Song of the Shirt: Now hush, little shirt-tail, don't you cry. You'll be a mop rag by and by.

This chorus has been revised to meet popular demand. So have many shirts. With rum runners, skipping our roads, there's no reason why we cannot drink one long toast to our pride and joy, the button-bearing bearer of the blessed tie that binds. Oh, long may it wave and flutter and float, Over the backyard fence and the Har- len goal.

STUDENTS TO SELECT CONTEST MATERIAL

A number of University High students are beginning to select material for the Intellectual Contest, and very soon work will begin in earnest. This year it was hoped that an even greater interest would be shown; however, that we have an entry in every event. A great deal more stress is being put on the content than there has been heretofore. C'mon U. High! Let's go!

Curious persons will wonder why Miss Barbour's art room has been lighted by a large gas chandelier when the rest of the school has electric lights. The reason is that this gas chandelier was presented to the school by the class of 1882, we understand, as a parting gift. At that time it was considered something very grand indeed. It contains nine jets, each of which is surrounded by a glass shade. Each shade contains the initials of the graduating class; there was only nine in the class at that time: Wheaton Allm. (Mrs. C. W. Parkinson), Lillian M. Boardman (Mrs. F. M. DeMoss), Walter J. Emerson, Ada B. Goodall (Mrs. Dr. H. C. Mitchell), Dorothy B. Drysche (Mrs. W. H. Livingston), Albert E. Head, Albert E. Parkinson, Steve M. M. Pennington, Henry A. Stewart, and Susan Ads. As shown in this book and Wood. A few years ago it was sug- gested that this chandelier, which was so much out of date, be removed. President Strykow, who remembered how it was acquired, opposed its re- moval and consequently it remains there to this day.

A CHRISTMAS SUGGESTION

At this season every year the magazine are full of articles concerning Christmas. One would think that in time the subject would lose its fascination, but it seems to retin its power to interest the Glee Club.

The story of Jesus’ birth will be told again. In other lands we shall see our American Santa Claus parade as St. Nicholas, Roger Williams, or any other name. But what we hope is that the youngsters will open their eyes with delight and imagine all kinds of wonderful things about their favorite saint. Every adult and youth readies stories and poems will flood periodicals of all the kind.

Here is a suggestion:

Marley was dead, to begin with. There is no doubt whatever about that. The Register of his burial was signed by the clergyman, the undertaker, and the chief mourner. Scrooge signed it. And Scrooge’s name was good upon ‘Change for anything he chose to put his hand to.

“Old Marley was dead as a door-nail.”

Even so, Marley played an important part in this famous story. And within its compass you will meet other characters—Bob Cratchit and his wife, and Tiny Tim, and the four little dancers in the streets, and the pillar of salt, and the miserly old “Dr. Delia,” and the ghost of Christmas Future, to name but a few.

If, during the holidays you have time to read no new story, don’t fail to re-read Dickens’ A Christmas Carol.

PICTURE-TAKING

Have you posed for your picture for the Obelisk yet? Just five more days and the deadline will be passed. You should now consider your pictures, and you should review the advice of your club mates. As the freshmen were reminded last week Exchange, Ad x, Oklahoma, have planned a perfect place to write when you are autographing your friends’ Obelisks. You may write above, below, or on either side of your face, and be sure to cover up all the obelisks. There is a line page with your scroll, if that is, unless the book in which you are writing belongs to the possessor of one of these disks.

Don’t put off your visit to the photographer. Don your most becoming frock or tie and hie yourself down town today. Don’t wait until your fairy godmother smiles on you and makes you into a pretty Garbo or a Buddy Rogers. Remember that the presence of your sweet smile in the Obelisk will give pleasure through all the coming years to your acquaintances and friends.

SOME EXPLANATIONS

Last week the Egyptian’s inquiring reporter asked a number of students why they did not support the school paper by subscribing to it. Of course the reasons given were the best that could possibly be given, but they were so pitiful that it was well worth while to print them. One poor overworked student said that he didn’t have time to read the paper, and hence, naturally shouldn’t be expected to buy it. Well, this may be true concerning this particular student; but we’ll bet that if his room-mate or friend has a paper, he can find a few minutes in which to acquaint himself with the happenings of the week. Another student took a reasonable attitude. He reduced to his parents.

If he hasn’t a spare fifty-cent piece for the school paper, we ought to pass the hat for him in chapel; he is his own poor fellow. Another advisor was that the student staff and let the student-body publish the paper. No contribution by any student has ever been rejected. We have a box in which any article by staff members can be placed, and we welcome such contributions. If these are the good reasons we wonder what the poor ones are like.

BOOK REVIEW

Meet General Grant

By W. E. WOODWARD

Dr. STEAGALL

Readers who similarly meet Woodward’s General Grant?

He builds General out of the virgin timber of the West. He works him through the humdrum of "useless" boyhood, joyless manhood, and the fruitful West Point schooling. He makes him into a man that thinksrho, the deserts of army life in peace, through drafts of drudgery, through choirs of disappointment, and lands him in, the mire of dirt poverty.

Is this the routine that makes a man a human?

Woodward takes the glazed frame of ideal boyhood from Grant’s life; he restores all anticipations of great to zero in both Grant and his friends; he lands him successfully very much at the bottom of the bottom—from which he strides through having war, through carnage-bloody blocks, and the long struggle favoring of the victorious North.

He seats him in the President’s chair with not higher notion than to humble the people who had given him his present position, and yet had fallen beneath his firmest arm by the thousands.

The book is fascinating, still it leaves the impression of a season spent in Hades.

It makes the background of his life much more high-minded than along through all vicissitudes of life until, his physical strength failing, he is mastered, till the light and yet had fallen beneath his firmest arm by the thousands.

The book is fascinating, still it leaves the impression of a season spent in Hades.

Zetetic Society Features Quartet

Last Wednesday night, after the opening selection by the orchestra, Hazel Triggs gave a humorous reading; we wonder if she has a small brother such as was described in her reading. A novelty feature was that of the joke minstrel, Cornelia Raymond Etherton and Ethel McKevey; French born, William Petersen; bass, Carl Etherton. They played Whispering Hope, and Oh, Suzanne, and were then called back for an encore.

Raymond Etherton, the new president, gave a talk outlining the plans for the term, and appointing a Cabin which is to work as the program committee with the corresponding secretary, Harvey Phillips, who will be chairman.

The other cabinet members are: Howard Thrallkill, instrumental music; Harold Bailey, vocal music; Ralph Ward, debate; John Mitchell, plays, and other dramatics; Leo Brown, hall foreman.

Thus even better programs are anticipated.

The next number of the program was orchestral music.

Chorus to Give Xmas Program December 20

This year the Chorus will again give certain selections from "The Messiah," by Handel, at the chapel period, Friday, before the Christmas recess.

The Messiah is the story of the birth of Christ. It has been for years the greatest music for the celebration of Christmas. It is Handel's most successful and best known oratorio, and was composed in the year 1741 in twenty-four days. It was first performed at a concert given for charitable purposes at Dublin, Ireland, on April 13, 1742, Handel conducting, during the performance in person. Beginning with March 22, 1743, Handel brought out the Messiah every year in London with great applause. The Chorus will sing the following numbers: Robert Values, Virginian, Shaw Conceive, 0 Thou That Tellest Good Tidings to Zion, For Unto Us A Child Is Born, Glory to God, Lift Up Your Heads, O Ye Gates, and Hallelujah. Other portions will be given as vocals.

Christmas Party to be Given by W. A. A.

The Woman's Athletic Association is going to have a Christmas party. It is to be in the girls' gym next Wednesday at 4:15 p. m. Central Standard time. Come early and avoid the rush—all members welcome.

Decorations are in charge of the entertainment and she refuses to be interviewed by the press. We know, however, that she and the other girls on the committee are going to show the guests some real fun. By the way, we just found out something—Oh! Don't tell anybody—But Santa Claus is going to be there—in person. See you there.
