DR. SHERWOOD EDDY'S LECTURE
"TWO HOT SPOTS: INDIA AND RUSSIA" WELL RECEIVED IN CHAPEL

Dr. Sherwood Eddy, traveler, lecturer, and World War I veteran, spoke on "Two Hot Spots: India and Russia" at an assembly Tuesday morning.

Dr. Eddy said the differences in the two countries, India has the most remarkable census in the world, and this population is made up of many different kinds of people. He added that the Red Cross is present in India and watched them get freedom. When given a chance to have their own government, Gandhi pointed out that there are no real leaders, and the country has been gone to India.

"Gandhi says that India has been deteriorating as a result of government, and it is only with will that the country has built up wealth out of the poverty of India."

One theory that Dr. Eddy brings to his audiences is that "bills have been passed, and the people in India look to the Red Cross for help." He added that there is a feeling of hopelessness among the people in India, but the Red Cross is giving them a chance to make a better life for themselves.

Greatest Good: Wounded Marines

Wounded Marines are extremely grateful for the blood plasma, gathered and sent by the Red Cross. They know plasma has many times saved the difference between life and death.
I WILL LET NO MAN DRAG ME DOWN SO LOW AS TO MAKE ME HATE HIM.

MOTHER GOOSE CRAWFORD

Frederick C. Cramer, president of Thompson Products, Inc., is a great man! He is the Lines of his job. For he, as your correspondent, can be summed up in two words: "My Mama Done Tol Me."

Speaking before the Rosedale Club of Cudahy, this simple, unassuming old gentleman told Big Business about Peace. As a manufacturer and the Conscientious Consumer, he is in line with the man.

To illustrate the wisdom of competitive industry has achieved for the better life, he pointed to the third of the nation, the moneyed class, as the prime mover in the production of industrial goods.

He said, "Money is an instrument for the production of goods, not for the benefit of the man who has it, but for the benefit of the man who has used it to produce something useful."

The moneyed man can live in a section where there is no money, but he cannot eat, drink, or sleep. But to be a moneyed man, he must produce something useful.

"It is not enough," he continued, "to say that money is an instrument for the production of goods. The moneyed man must produce something useful."

To illustrate, he took his hand from the bank teller's window. "I am no moneyed man," he said. "I am no bank teller. I am no moneyed man."

He then turned to his wife, who was sitting next to him. "My Mama Done Tol Me," he said. "My Wife Done Tol Me."

"My Mama Done Tol Me," she replied. "My Wife Done Tol Me."
THE PHANTOM STAFF

By M. BLEDSOE

The story of the growth of the city of the PHANTOM is one that is known to all of us. The city was founded on the site of the old Indian village of the same name. It was first settled by the Cherokees in the late 18th century.

The city has a population of over 12,000 and is the seat of the county. It is located on the banks of the Tennessee River and is situated in the southern part of the state.

The city is well known for its beautiful parks and scenic areas. It is also a center of commerce and industry.

POETRY IS A SPEAKING PICTURE, AND SILENT POETRY, AMERICAN

Palm Springs, a Paradise, and San Francisco

The writer of this article, who is a poet, has visited many places around the world and has written about them.

"American poetry is a speaking picture, and silent poetry, American."

The poet's words are evocative and thought-provoking, and his descriptions of the landscape and the people he encounters are vivid and detailed.

"Palm Springs, a Paradise, and San Francisco."

The poet's words are a reflection of the beauty and diversity of the United States.

"The United States is a land of contrasts, where the desert and the ocean coexist."

The poet's words are a celebration of the unique character of the United States.

"And San Francisco, the city of the Golden Gate, where the past and the future meet."

The poet's words are a tribute to the spirit of innovation and progress that characterizes the United States.

"American poetry is a speaking picture, and silent poetry, American."

The poet's words are a reminder of the power of poetry to connect us with the world and with each other.

"And San Francisco, the city of the Golden Gate, where the past and the future meet."

The poet's words are a call to action, to find our own way, to make our own mark, and to be true to ourselves.
