Arson suspected in fire at shootout site

By John D. Town
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A Carbondale fire department officer said Monday that arson is suspected in a fire early Sunday morning which destroyed the house at 401 N. Washington where a gun battle occurred in November.

Capt. Allen Jackson of the fire department said he based his suspicion of arson on odor of some kind of liquid fuel detected at the fire scene shortly after the blaze was reported.

"It was a vacant house and there was an odor of gasoline, kerosene or fuel oil coming out the back door of this house," Jackson said.

The fire was reported at 2:10 a.m. The fire trucks and a crew of "nine or 10 men" answered the alarm, a fire department spokesman said. The house, a two-story frame structure, burned to the ground.

Jackson estimated the loss at $10,000. "That might be a little cheap. I don't know," he said.

The owner of the house, Roy L. Clark, assistant professor of speech, said the loss would come to at least $30,000, including furniture and fixtures. Clark said his estimate also included damages to the house from the shooting incident there in November for which he has claims pending.

On Nov. 12, the house was one of the scenes of four shooting incidents in which four policemen and five other persons were wounded and six persons were arrested.

"I had put in a furnace, and gas, hot water and plumbing fixtures and floors," Clark said. "We had beds, refrigerators, stoves, chairs, tables, desks and tables in the house. We had planned to get some of the things out.

The house had been unoccupied since the November shooting.

Clark said he sent the city and the University estimates of the damages in November but that "they wouldn't talk to me.

Clark said he had filed a suit against the University and the city to get his damages, as well as an $8,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of anyone who destroyed the building.

Clark said he also believes the fire was the work of arsonists.

The downstairs floor was burned through and by the time the fire department got there they were not able to save it," he said.

Clark said he had no insurance on the house. "They wouldn't insure the house from the beginning. I tried to get insurance from several companies, but they wouldn't insure it because they said it was a high risk area and also that students lived in it," he said.

Clark said although the house is gone, the law suit will remain. "If the house hadn't been demolished no one would have set it after," he said. "It's the city's fault, too, that there was no good protection of my property.

Some residents in the area said the flames were so intense they had to pour water on their houses to prevent them from burning.

Blazing bright

Fire had all but destroyed the house at 401 N. Washington at about 2:40 Sunday, 30 minutes after firemen were alerted. Heat from the blaze did considerable damage to surrounding homes and property. Shortly after this photo was taken, the walls of the structure collapsed.

Quiet, calm

mark holiday weekend

Southern Illinois had a virtually accident free weekend and, according to one sheriff, "the quietest Fourth of July weekend in history.

Police and sheriff's departments in the area reported no serious mishaps related to the holiday weekend. According to a Herrin policeman, "not even a ticket was issued."

Carbondale police said the weekend was "a fairly normal one." Williamson and Jackson County's Sheriffs said that only a couple of fender benders had been reported.

Although the weekend was quiet and without mishap, holiday celebrations attracted thousands.

A sky filled with colored sparks is a traditional sight at the Fourth of July celebrations. Carbondale joined in the tradition, holding its celebration Sunday evening at the SIU baseball diamond.

Approximately 10,000 persons were gathered to hear the Souvenir Sounds sing barbershop quartet favorites and to watch the fireworks display, said Howard Shand, Carbondale Lions Club president.

Another feature of the program sponsored by the Lions club was the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by Michael Craig, a music major at SIU. As the crowd joined in singing the national anthem, an American flag fireworks display glissened in the background.

"It was a fine show," Shand said. "As far as we know, there were no mishaps.

Gus says the holiday weekend was so quiet he wouldn't have noticed it if the liquor stores hadn't been closed.

Nixon certifies 26th Amendment on voting right for 18-year-olds

WASHINGTON (AP) — On a desk Jefferson used to work from, the 26th Amendment, which was officially certified Monday in a ceremony led by President Richard Nixon, becomes law. The document giving 18-year-olds the right to vote is in all elections was accepted and signed by President Nixon, General Services Administration Robert L. Knapp, and three youths selected from the Young Americans in Concert group.

More than 600 members of the concert group watched the East Room ceremonies.

"The reason I believe in young Kennedy campaign linked to Pentagon war history

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Journal-Constitution quoted an "informed source" Monday saying the campaign of Sen. Edward Kennedy probably had a hand in preparation of the reviled Pentagon papers and "wanted to be certain that President Johnson got full credit for backing the war."

"The Pentagon papers were made, among other things, an indictment of the Johnson administration's handling of the war," the newspaper said, citing the source. "The papers were also meant to be revealed, if necessary, during the political campaign of 1968 to tie the blame for expansion of the war squarely on the shoulders of President Johnson."

Kennedy was campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination when assassinated in Los Angeles in June 1968.

The article, which appeared in a midnight edition of the Journal-Constitution, was written by Constitution political editor Bill Shipp.

Assembly passes SIU budget bill

An appropriations bill for SIU of $186,283,506 has been approved by the Illinois General Assembly and is now on the governor's desk for his approval.

In the final hours before adjournment, a joint House-Senate conference committee approved an appropriations bill for SIU during a special session on Thursday and Friday that would have added approximately $1 million to SIU's budget.

The appropriations bill for SIU of $186,283,506 is now the same as originally approved by the Senate. The bill now goes to Gov. David O'Brien's signature.

The figure is a compromise between the $188,781,276 recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) and the considerably more expensive cuts recommended by O'Brien. One of the key amendments would have required about $2.7 million in fund for personal services and approximately $300,000 for rent paid to the Illinois Building Authority.

Another amendment to a capital improvements bill that would have required $900,816 for a security services building at SIU. The amendments were mainly designed to reduce the necessity of new parking facilities and staff layoffs resulting from budget reductions called for earlier this year.

Burp! And there goes banana-eating record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you're finding “Yes, We Have No Bananas” to Robbin Ellis, he may bless you profusely. He isn't too keen on bananas after failing to break the world banana-eating record.

The 14-year-old Ellis, from suburban El Toro, read in the 1970 Guinness Book of World Records that a 17-year-old college student in England had held the record for banana-eating, 40 in 40 minutes in 1967. He set out Saturday to top the mark by one and did it in 39 minutes and 44 seconds.

At his side were two banana-peeling aides and about 50 wellwishers and newsmen.

Twelve-and-a-half bananas and 17 minutes later, he reached the stage, shaved and dressed.

Young Ellis, who weighs 81 pounds and is 4 feet, 11 inches tall, may have been sicker had he reached the 1971 record book. It says a South African, Stephen Nel, 30, who weighs 320 pounds, consumed 50 and a half bananas in 10 minutes last July.

Ag economists will meet at SIU

Agricultural economists from throughout the nation will be at SIU at Carbondale Aug. 18-19 for the annual conference of the American Agricultural Economics Association. Between 2,000 and 2,500 persons are expected.

The AAEA conference will be a highlight of the 1971 year of SIU's five-year centennial observance, the year emphasizing the SIU's Schools of Agriculture and Business.

University Center will be the conference headquarters.

The program, featuring prepared papers with plenty of supplementary discussion, is built around the following major topics: international agricultural adjustments, organizing and financing agricultural production in the 70's, community and human resources development, domestic issues in rural America and policy issues in international trade and economic development, the role of forestry and natural resources in economic development, and environmental quality problems and their implication for agricultural economists.

Of special interest in sectional meetings will be discussions on the problems in the government's reorganization and revenue sharing proposals, Inflation, and the impact of property and income taxes on agriculture.

The Changing Political Economy of Higher Education and Its Significance for United States Agriculture will be discussed at the convention's opening general session August 15 by Chester

The streets are not for frisbee people

To the Daily Egyptian:

It seems that some people in authoritarian positions have a certain perspective, especially a certain Carbondale police officer. Hopefully this isn't a typical man in blue. To support this, I have brought up a certain incident that occurred on the evening of June 28.

This rambunctious police officer—so we'll call him--stopped me and another student while we were participating in a game of frisbee in the street. He informed us in language usually reserved for a child of two or three that he was confiscating the frisbee, and any further neglect on our part would result in our arrest. I might add this was our first warning. Indeed, one would call this a warning, or more precisely a threat.

One might say things, but here I do have another prime example of the mentality of many of our police who are called upon to serve and protect. Because this so-called protector of the people was allowed to infiltrate into a position of responsibility is beyond me.

This is the same type of officer who complains to his peers that the youth of America has lost its respect for law and order. But, until he decides to render the same respect to others that he himself requests, he is entitled to be called exactly what he is—a “pig.”

Defense fund clarified

To the Daily Egyptian:

The letter by Professor Morton in Friday's Daily Egyptian was a simple, moving, and compelling statement as to why money should be contributed for Blauberger's legal defense. Even geographer I was convinced. I do not intend to engage further in these pleasantries. However, I do have my professional work to attend to. I wish to thank those who have made contributions and those who have offered suggestions of support. All funds have been carefully accounted. If Allen drops his case, all funds will be returned.

Hitti terms Islam a way of life

A Way of Life, Philip K. Hitti, University of Minne-

Reviewed by Abdul Majid Abbas

Abdul Majid Abbas was a professor of government at SU in the late 1970s. His family had been displaced by the 1948 war and he grew up in Amman, the capital of Jordan, and later worked as an advisor to the government. He also served as an advisor to the United Nations in 1950.

The author of this book is a well-known religiously-minded Christian scholar. His approach is based on the Islamic view of the world and the considerations which are accepted by Muslims on grounds of faith, yet some of the conclusions are in disagreement.

Professor Hitti divides Islam as a way of life for the purpose of discussion into three main aspects and treats them under the headings of Islam the religion, Islam the state, and Islam the culture. But he points out that the three aspects overlap, sometimes imperceptibly passing from one to the other. He naturally proceeds from a historical description and analysis of the social, economic, and political conditions that surrounded the rise of Islam as a religion. Perhaps the most important contribution made by the author is the description of the personality and struggle of Muhammad. In plain non-religious terms he depicts the social, cultural, and intellectual climate of the time and contrasts them with the erroneous images which are circulated about him in Western literature.

"I see him as a prophet and an impostor, sketched by a ninth century caricaturist. The character was drawn against the bright colours of over-sexuality, dissoluteness, blood-thirstiness and brigandage. Their heads were shaved, their cloaks stained with the blood and hair of their own victims. Their hearts were hard and capable of no remorse, their bodies were stained with the blood of the innocent, and they were driven by an insatiable appetite for power and dominion. They believed in the power of the sword and the might of the dervish, and they were fanatical in their belief in the oneness of God. They were hostile to all forms of education and learning, and they were given to violence and cruelty." (p. 123)

The flowering of Islamic culture in science, medicine, philosophy, literature, art, and other branches of knowledge is adequately surveyed with some highlighting of the contribution of the leading scientists, theologians, philosophers, jurists, and historians.

Religious similarities traced

Next, the author claims briefly the beliefs and practices of Islam, the oneness of God, the belief in revealed scripture, etc., and then describes the various importance of these elements in Islam. He also describes the Muslim way of life, the Islamic marriage, and the role of women in Islam.

Brazil receives sixth specialist from SIU

By University News Service

Warren S. Rivin, associate professor of animal husbandry at SIU has departed to join SIU School of Agriculture's specialist at the University of Santa Maria in southern Brazil on a two-year assignment as a clinical veterinarian.

The year-old agricultural development program at the University of Santa Maria is under contract with the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization to upgrade the agricultural teaching, research and extension service work of the comparatively new Brazilian University at Santa Maria. Rivin is the sixth SIU faculty member going to Santa Maria.

Rivin joined the animal industries department faculty in February after finishing work for a PhD degree with a major in animal at the University of Missouri. He was an instructor in anatomy at Missouri for five years. He is a 1962 graduate of Kansas State University and received his Doctor of Veterinary Medicine there two years later.

Boon for the blind

One result of the Conference for Quality Education by Persons without sight held recently at SIU is a system that will Hopefully soon aid blind persons in getting around campus.

The aid is a beeper-braille system developed by the University Architect's office, working with the Counseling and Testing Center and Handicapped Student Services.

According to University Architect Willard Hart, there will be three types of beepers. One will point out danger areas; another will give general directions and the third will give directions at busy areas, such as the main or intersecting sidewalks near Logan Hall.

Each type will give a beeper that runs in speed and pitch A plaque in braille at each unit will give the necessary information.

Hart said plans call for six units to be installed as soon as possible.

Beeper units designed to aid blind

The projected total number of units is 16. It said installation should begin in September, if funds can be secured. The cost of each unit is presently unknown, as bids have not yet been sought.

Hart said beeper-braille units will be installed at various locations to aid the dozen blind students at SIU.

Saluki pups
nameless,
but happy

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A lack of official names hasn't seemed to put a damper on the growth or the enthusiasm of the eight Saluki puppies which were born May 19 at Saluki Kennels.

Jack White, a senior in wildlife who assisted in the delivery and one of three students living at the Cooperative Wildlife Research Laboratory where the dogs are kept, said they began eating solid foods about three weeks ago.

The puppies weighed between five and 10 ounces at birth, White said, and their average weight has jumped to six pounds. He said the largest puppy tips the scales at 7 1/2 pounds.

White said no decision has been made on whether StU will keep all eight. The puppies are scheduled to be weaned this week. After that, they conceivably could be separated from their mother, Dr. Sheila's Caco, more familiarly known as Cricket. The doing father of the eight is Billa De-Esta's Ibn Saad.
Multinational industries harm U.S.

Editor's note: The following article, first in a series on the corporate scandal, deals with the raging corruption of its effect on the nation's industrial base, in peace and in case of national emergency, testified George A. Simon of National Steel Corp.

By the time voluntary limits were imposed in 1988, steel imports had reached nearly 18 million tons, or 13 percent of the U.S. market, and were consuming virtually the entire normal growth of domestic output.

If prolonged, such a trend could impair the ability of American producers to maintain modernizing and expanding facilities.Simon concluded.

Free trade advocates discount the threat as artificial, noting that access to lower cost foreign steel helps to keep down prices on high-quality, high-performance products.

United spokesmen complain that the multinational corporations are also exporting goods without regard for the effects of lower prices on American industry and research and development contracts are "literally, provided abroad" at a fraction of their cost, contends the AFI-CIO, a bitter foe of the multinational industries.

The Nixon administration scoffs at the claim that the country's industrial base is being impaired. A White House official suggested the idea was "naive." A spokesman for the Commerce Department said U.S. industry may have lost the competitive position in some fields "but not our skills or ability."

The Senate-House Economic Committee has approved a bill for the steel industry, that saves the steel industry, on the verge of losing its leadership to the Japanese, that some limits are needed on imports of high-quality, high-technology and defense-related products.

American industries could be weakened to "critically impair the ability of our own industry to meet national needs in time of national emergency," testified George A. Simon of National Steel Corp.

As for the export of American technology, some industry and government officials see the possibility of future problems in the possible leakage of such technology through the network of multinational corporations, the licensing of foreign firms to make U.S. products, or the entering of joint ventures or mergers with over seas companies.

The White House is more concerned with seeing that the United States stays ahead of the race to develop new technology.

Paul Jennings, president of the Electrical Workers Union, insists the full impact of foreign competition in heavy electric equipment is yet to be felt. Most American companies are working on contracts awarded several years ago, he said, and "when that work is completed, they may face lay-offs because more relevant contracts have gone to foreign firms."

Purpose for DMZ ignored in Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — Fighting still raged around the demilitarized zone dividing North and South Vietnam nearly 17 years after the Geneva agreements theoretically ended the first Indochina war.

Ever since the last battle of U.S. forces in 1975, the DMZ has served as a military staging base for the Vietnamese, a free-fire zone for American and South Vietnamese forces.

The intent of the DMZ as outlined in Geneva in 1954 has been ignored by all sides in the Indochina conflict.

The Geneva agreements, theoretically ended the war between French Union forces and the Viet Minh in Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam. The three states were to become fully independent countries. Vietnam was to be partitioned near the 17th Parallel into the North and South pending reunification through free elections to be held by July 28.

The elections were never held, Chapter F of the agreements, dealing with the provisional military demarcation line and demilitarized zone.

"A provisional military demarcation line consisting of the line of which the forces of the two parties shall be withdrawn, the forces of the People's Army of Vietnam in the North shall withdraw to the 17th Parallel, and the forces of the French Union to the south," the agreement read.

It was agreed that a demilitarized zone shall be established along the provisional line, a width of not more than five kilometers (3.1 miles) from it, and in any event no military installations or personnel shall be maintained in the zone.

The Nhin Bat River divides the northern and southern banks of the DMZ, which stretches 40 miles from the South China Sea seaward to the Laos border.

Spurrloes promote youth

Singers constant in idea

By Pat Smith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Although a word association game might elicit "country and western" as a response to "Spurrloes," their Western-sounding name came from quite a different source.

The Spurrloes are a 23-member pop musical group that was started 17 years ago by a North Carolina Baptist minister of music, Thurley Spurr. According to Mark Harman, a Spurrloes manager, the group's name was chosen because people had difficulty keeping their "thurs" and "spurs" straight.

Harman, who said there are now 17 male and four female Spurrloes, said the members of the group have changed, but the group itself has maintained the same flavor since its inception throughout the years.

He said the Spurrloes, whom he called a fanfavorite in professional groups such as the Young Americans, were formed to project a positive image of youth in an era when most youth weren't even projecting much of an image.

One highlight of the group's performance history—a performance in the White Horse last Thanksgiving—came about by the timely cut of a Spurrloes television pilot film, Harman said. He said that tape, "America's Young Majority," "happened to wind up in the hands of Mrs. Nixon's press secretary just at the time she was searching for entertainment for the holiday show. "The show has been produced for 130 wounded Vietnam veterans from the Washington D.C. area.

Harman said the Spurrloes met President Nixon at the performance, and "you can tell just by looking that he is tired of tired." He said he was impressed by the fact that "you have to respect the power and position of the office," even if you don't agree with the man's politics.

He said the band members of the group are "entranced" plans to do some work with the Carpenters this summer, and the entire group will make a two-week tour of the country introducing the ISU 1972 America Meets Automobiles automobile.

U-Senate withholds action on women's status, ExPro

By Colby Tabley
Daily Egyptian Feature Writer

The Senate of the Student Government of the University of Illinois at Springfield met on Friday to act on a resolution on "The Status of Women" introduced by a group of female students at the University. The resolution was prepared by Elizabeth Fett, a student in science, and was presented to the Senate by a committee of the Student Government. The committee was asked to prepare a report on the status of women on campus and to make recommendations for improving their situation. The committee's report was presented to the Senate on Friday, and the Senate will vote on the resolution next week.

Religious heritage strong

Court keeps church, state apart

NEW YORK (AP) - From the first, the United States sought to establish a religiously neutral government. They were the cornerstone of the American Revolution, which the nation celebrates this weekend, July 4. And in the early years of the nation's existence, the nation's founders, the Declaration of Independence.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights," the Declaration reads. "That among these rights are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness."

Yet just as part-religion should play in governmental operations, the nation has been a keenly sensitive matter since, as shown again this week in the Supreme Court's ruling barring state payments to church schools. Why? Because the Court has held that the Constitution's First Amendment bars state aid to religious schools.

While forbidding what was called "governmental entanglements between government and religion," Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said the Constitution does not demand "total separation between church and state." "We are a religious people whose predominant predecessor a Supreme Being, Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has said. Although he is one of the strongest interpreters of church-state separation. Through the years, the stress and pull of both values, both prone to interpretations of the nation, have produced warring approaches. When private schools themselves remained largely under Protestant auspices, with state support, until 1800 when public schools got started. But in the last quarter-century with growing diversity in America, the nation has brought a continuing line of court battles.

In that time, the high court has banned officially sponsored prayers and Bible reading from public schools, rejected religious grounds for Sunday closing laws, and prohibited requiring belief in God as a criterion for conscientious objection to war or for holding state offices.

Bob Carr, a senior in journalism who helped author ExPro, reported he had an appointment with the Legal Council to discuss the legal aspects of ExPro.

Carr also read excerpts from an article that appeared in the fall 1970 edition of Journalism Association of College Educators' annual conference in Chicago. The article reported that the legal team of the council was on the decline in 1970 and 1971.

Carr said he would present the results from the Legal Council meeting to the next committee meeting. The committee also asked that the new edition of ExPro not be invited to speak, and that a report on the Daily Egyptian prepared by Jon Sturm, a member of the Campus Senate, be presented.

The Internal Affairs Committee will hold its next meeting at 1:30 p.m. Friday, July 15, in the University Senate office at 100 W. Grand

Hijack case goes to Argentine court

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A U.S. Navy deserter and his Guatemalan girl friend went to court Monday to face charges of kidnaping and theft of an aircraft in the hijacking of a Branniff International passenger.

Argentina's military government, which resistced pressure from the United States and Branniff to let the hijackers continue in Argentina, also issued an prosecutor's warrant for the couple. Robert Lee Jackson, 26, Marysville, Tex., and Lydia Laura Sanchez, 34, a Guatemalan living in Mexico, were arrested. Jackson and Miss Sanchez were arrested Sunday — 43 hours and 7,600 miles after hijacking the plane at gunpoint Friday on an Acapulco-Mexico-San Antonio, Tex., flight.

Federal Judge Luis Guerreiro began hearing their case at La Plata, the capital of Buenos Aires Province.

"It's their baby now," said a U.S. Embassy spokesman. The embassy had apparently given up at hopes of having the couple quickly deported to the U.S.

The FBI in San Antonio has charged Jackson with air piracy and assault with a deadly weapon. Much of the credit for talking Jackson off the plane 80 miles after landing went to Joe Alvarez, a Branniff employee.

"Alvarez spoke to him like he was wearing a woman," said a Branniff official.

At the point Jackson said: "I'm coming down now. But I repeat that I need the &100,000 for my defense. He was given the money by Branniff officials in Mexico in return for a young woman he had held hostage.

Stitt completes two-year job as advisor in Nepal

By University News Service

Thomas R. Stitt, SIU associate professor of agricultural education, returned to his regular assignment in the SIU School of Agriculture at Carbondale Thursday after serving two years in Nepal as an agriculture advisor to the SIU educational team in that country.

While with SIU's Agency for International Development, Stitt worked with the National Vocational Training Center near Kathmandu, with multipurpose high schools in the country and with the Nepal Ministry of Education. Shortly before finishing his work in Nepal, Stitt wrote, "A Young Farmer's Handbook for Vocational Agriculture Teachers of Nepal" which was published by the Ministry of Education as a guide for agriculture teachers in the country. Stitt passed the SIU agricultural education faculty in 1967. He received his doctorate in agriculture education from Ohio State University.

Aces win frisbee contest

COOPER HARBOR, Wash. (AP) — Five college students from Chicago who call themselves the U-Haul Aces skillfully scored a glowing encore in a win over the University of Washington in the annual International Frisbee Tournament. The Aces, last year's runners-up, defeated the Futo Five, the defending champions, in a hard-fought match of " Gate Frisbee" competition.

The Aces, last year's runners-up, defeated the Futo Five, the defending champions, in a hard-fought match of "Gate Frisbee" competition.

In a closely fought match of five players, the Aces, led by a 34-year-old, won by one point. One of the players, who is an exchange student, scored an important point for his team. The Aces are scheduled to play the Futo Five again in the national championship match.

This year's tournament is sponsored by the University of Washington, which offers a variety of activities for students, including a frisbee league and a frisbee club. The tournament is held annually and attracts teams from all over the United States.
NEW YORK (AP) - The Major League Players Association has filed an unfair labor practice charge against the National League clubs, citing their refusal to divulge terms of a new television contract.

The charge, filed with the National Labor Relations Board, contends that the club owners' refusal to furnish the association with a breakdown of terms included in the $71.75 million, four-year pact with NBC hampers the association in its efforts to negotiate a new television contract for its players.

The Association earlier put NBC on notice that there also is a legal question as to whether the current contract is valid since it was negotiated without the players' permission.

The charge filed with the NFLPA contends that historically contributions to the players for their benefit plan have been made by a percentage of the radio and television revenue or a flat sum based on such a percentage.

"Despite that history," Biller's statement said, "the club owners have arrogantly said the players that they should forget about radio and television revenue for their pension and insurance plans. What traditionally has belonged to the players, say the owners, should now be of no interest to them."

Dick Moss, counsel for the Association, said it had made a formal request for specific of the new contract and had "been told...that it is none of our business. The association now seeks an NFLPA order for the clubs to supply such details.

Pirates rally over Cubs, 6-2

CHICAGO (AP) - Two-run singles by Bowa and Dale Murphy in the third innings put the Chicago Cubs in a 6-1 hole in baseball.

Suns dominate all-conference team

Salukis dominate all-conference team

Conference champion SIU runnerup to Southern California for the NCAA championship, dominates the All-Midwest Conference baseball team selected by the league coaches.

The Salukis, also the Big Four champion, placed seven players on the 16-member club. Conference runnerup Indiana State, which also is a Big Four qualifier, placed four players each and Illinois State was represented by three.

No Ball State player made the list.

Only two players, both from Southern, were outfielders - outfielder Bob Blakney and catcher Bob Sedik. The Salukis' other all-conference choices were second baseman Duane Kupper, in-felder Mike Eden, outfielder Jim Dwyer and pitchers Dick Langston and Steve Randall.

Sedik of SIU led the all-conference team in hitting with a .424 batting average. Seven of the first eight batters in league play made the team.

The other were Kupper, Eden, Wilt Dwyer and Jackson.

Players' group sues big league owners

The complaint charges that Commissionner Bowie Kuhn has given the association only the gross figure of the pact.

The players currently are receiving $5.45 million per year for their benefit plan in a three-year agreement that ends March 31, 1972. The association says the figure is based on 45 per cent of television revenue from the World Series and 65 per cent from the All-Star Game.

The association contends it cannot negotiate on a new benefit plan without knowledge of NBC's payment for the World Series and the All-Star Game.

Yanks are co-favorites in British Golf Open

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) - U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino, pale-tired Monday after his Canadian Open victory and suddenly found himself the co-favorite with defending champion Jack Nicklaus for one of golf's greatest trophies - the British Open.

Trevino, who arrived at Royal Birkdale, where the Open starts Wednesday over this classic course by the Irish Sea, told newsmen: "I always like to play on Monday after a big Monday from his Canadian Open victory and suddenly found himself the co-favorite with defending champion Jack Nicklaus for one of golf's greatest trophies - the British Open.

Trevino, who has pocketed $180,000 this season alone and seems certain to break Nicklaus' record winning total of 285 in 1966, got a warm reception in from Monday morning looking shattered.

"I still have to adjust to the time change, but I intend to have nine hours sleep tonight and then I'll be rarin' to go," he said.

"Listen, I want this one very, very bad," Trevino said. "To me it's only just behind the U.S. Open in importance. It would be great to win the Open championship in the world."

This is the 106th playing year of the British Open championship.

Kansas City (AP) - Jim Rooker finished a three-bagger for his first victory of the season.

Chisholm knocked Chicago 4 to 1 with his double headed Home run Wednesday.

Rooker, who had dropped his first six starts, scattered four innings with four first-inning runs in the opener, went on to a two-hitter, striking out nine.
