Talking Fountain - Just A Warm Boy

Stopping so suddenly she almost lost her poise, an SIU co-ed wondered briefly about her own sanity when she thought she heard a statue talking.

The statues in the fountain on the east side of main drew some suspicions and famished students last week evening, when a voice seemed to be coming from one of the metal infants.

Standing casually beneath their water-spraying unbrel-nell will speak. Following the picnic the rushes will return to two houses of their choice.

What mistake accounted for the talking statue? No miracle at all, just hot weather and a little boy. Upon closer inspection, one could find the fully-clothed youngster near the base of the statues happily taking an impromptu bath, and making gurgling sounds for rocks on the bottom of the fountain pool.

Education Costs Less At SIU Than Other Schools

The cost of an education at SIU is, on the average, lower than at Big Ten schools and at colleges and universities throughout the nation.

The basic fixed cost of attending SIU is over $1,500 per year less than the 1960-1961 average for Big Ten colleges. Students here pay an average of $596 for in-state tuition, fees, and campus room and board, while the average for Big Ten schools is $1,121.

Even though SIU's enrollment is near that of the Big Ten average of over $3,000 per student, students here pay an average of $592 less for their yearly basic expenses (which do not include personal expenses such as transportation, clothing, entertainment, etc.) than the most expensive school in the group.

The estimated total yearly average expense of attending SIU is $1,109, as outlined in the Southern Illinois University Bulletin. This figure is almost $400 less than the national average of $1,700 at tax-supported colleges and universities.

In-state tuition and fees at SIU ($184 per year) are lower than those at any Big Ten school and are considerably less than those at Northwestern University ($1,005 per year). Although campus room and board rates per Iowa are lower than those at Northwestern University ($500 per year), SIU's rates are $80 less than the average group and are almost $200 lower than those at Northwestern University ($903).

The total estimated yearly average expense of attending SIU is $1,109, as outlined in the Southern Illinois University Bulletin. This figure is almost $400 less than the national average of $1,700 at tax-supported colleges and universities.

According to a recent informal survey conducted of unenrolled students living in campus housing, SIU undergraduates estimate their total college expense for one year ranging from $1,100 to $3,000, the average being $2,256. Of this amount, over one-half, 56 per cent, is paid by the student's family. The remaining 44 per cent is obtained by the student through scholarships, grants, part-time and summer jobs, and other sources of income.

According to a recent report of the Life Insurance Agency Management Association, each college student can not claim to offer the lowest cost for any particular course. According to an 1960-1961 survey of all public and private colleges and universities by the Life Insurance Agency Management Association, each college student can not claim to offer the lowest cost for any particular course.

Miss Marjorie Lawrence, research professor of music, will present "Sings for SIU Alumni" at 8 p.m. Saturday, June 5, in the University Center auditorium. The program will be accompanied by Robert Mueller of the music department.

Prof, Students Agree Cheating Goes On Here

Final exams begin today, and it's safe to predict that some students have spent as much time figuring out how to cheat on them as they have spent in studying. Nearly a group of students at the University of Illinois brought an official order with a similar problem cheating.

To learn some of the answers the Egyptian staff made an informal survey among students about cheating. Here are the results:

To date, no students have lodged a protest against cheating similar to the one made at University of Illinois.

However, the cheating problem at SIU is currently under study by a committee, and also by the Student Council," said I. Clark Davis, dean of student affairs.

"Like many other," Davis said, "I believe that cheating only hurts the cheater."

News of this survey will be told by other faculty members who added some possible cures. One is for individuals to avoid class cheat at one time or another," one instructor, who wished to remain anonymous, said.

"The most commonly used method is to look at another student's paper."

Leonard B. Wheat, professor of education at the Edwardsville campus, says he's certain cheating exists in some classes "but not all."

"The most commonly used method is that of looking over another's shoulder," he said. "Cheating, he added, bluffed whispering the answer across the aisle.

Nuclear Research At SIU Aided By New Equipment

Nuclear research at SIU has been accelerated with the purchase of new radiation testing and analyzing equipment including one of the largest scintillation crystals in any U.S. laboratory.

The sodium iodide crystal, made especially for SIU researcher John Eisele, is used for 12-Week Summer Term

Popular With Freshmen

Students have shown no great reluctance to attend a 12-week summer term. The only exceptions have been students who wish to work after the regular eight-week summer session, Raymond H. Dey, dean of Southern's extension division, said this week.

As of now enrollment for 100 level courses is about the same as this time last year.

In this year's extended summer term for 100 level courses is a "success" the 200 level courses will be extended to 12 weeks next year, the 300 courses the following year, and 400 the next, Dean Dey added.

The forms have space for listing of all student activities.

The forms are in the process of being distributed to all residence halls, but off-campus and commuter students must pick them up at the activities system.

Carolyn Kruse polled 155 votes in the Thompson Point Student Senate election last Thursday to win TPS's second seat on Student Council. Rich Emde carried 110 voters and Lad Zalud 101, according to Eric Holliday, vice president of the Thompson Point Executive Council.

More than 500 votes were cast in the election which Ron Hunt won for the first Senator's seat, so a second election was held in accordance with the senate's amendment election laws. TP representation is based on votes cast in election.

A third senator will be elected in the fall to accommodate residents of the new dorms under construction.

Adenauer Offers Reds Trade Deal
If Berlin Is Torn Down Wall

DORTMUND, Germany -- Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said today West Germany might prevent the breakaway Communist East German regime from selling trade credits if Berlin was torn down.

"If something is asked of us, then we can at least achieve that the wall is put out of business," the chancellor said at a news conference after a lunch meeting of newsmen attended by his Christian Democratic party convention.

If high protection of granting credit to East Germany had been discussed by the Chancellery, it was of the opinion that the authorities in East Germany must make a proper request before the matter can be considered.

The East Germans, through the West German trustees for bilateral trade in Berlin, have indicated they would like more than $500 million worth of goods from West Germany on credit.

ALGIERS -- Moellem auxiliary police fired on French troops Tuesday in the first such clash since the Algerians were called in to help cope with European secret army terrorists.

A French lieutenant and three Moellem soldiers were killed in the shooting which broke out when a French patrol was attacked by armed Moellem soldiers and the troops returned the fire.

PARIS -- The fate of ex-President Edouard Daladier, condemned to die for treason, rested Tuesday night in the hands of President Charles de Gaulle after the French supremacy Court condoned a plea for clemency.

Unless De Gaulle acts for clemency, the execution of the verdict of May 2, 1945 for treason, will be a disgrace to the Secret Army Organization could take place today.

WASHINGTON -- Senator Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., announced Monday that he is prepared to spend the second day of requiring some of its data by the National Academy of Science a "crului hoax" and will not give the committee its enactment in the 1930s.

To this Kennedy replied that the Committee on Science, as a result of his visit with the university in 1937 and 1938.

"The sage of the da Cunhans in a tragedy of social and cultural upheaval," says Mcnich, "only time will tell if it becomes a case of complete disintegration."

"They are going to have to be taught not to trust people, that stealing and lying are facts of life and that their humanitarian attitudes are not shared by everybody. They have to have to give up every thing and no one knows how much suffering they have sustained in this abrupt transition. In a social sense they are more isolated now than they were before," said Dr. McNich.
1962 Obelisk Features Ultra-Modern Look

The Obelisk this year will be ultra-modern in a traditional sort of way. SIU's yearbook, scheduled for release June 15, will cover everything in chronological order, a sharp contrast to sectioning done in earlier years.

"We've completely eliminated definite divisions between the administration, the colleges and student activities," comments Editor Judy Barker. "We feel this is a university, not a group of divisions.

One thing we've stressed," Miss Barker added, is academic coverage. We've tried to record the full life of a university within a given period of time."

The Obelisk in recent years has been awarded two "All American" ratings by the Associated Collegiate Press for good academic coverage. This year's book, Miss Barker said, will tell SIU's story through pictures, mostly informal, with a minimum of copy. "We didn't use headlines," she said.

Mahogany will be the cover color. Ten color pictures in four-color process, six duotones and about 30 more pages than last year will be included.

The Obelisk will run about 390 pages, Miss Barker said. She added that the 1963 staff has begun work on next year's yearbook.

Linda Goss, 1962 associate editor, will edit the Obelisk next year with two of this year's paid staff helping her. Miss Barker's staffers included Gretchen Schmitz, business manager; Jerry Lawless, associate editor, and Miss Goss, associate editor. Fiscal sponsor was W. Marlon Rice.

Recalling events during her editorship, Miss Barker said most of the Obelisk staff this year missed the spring vacation in order to meet yearbook deadlines.

"And then I called up a department chairman for a picture in the Obelisk. 'The Obelisk?' he said, 'What's that?' I told him it was SIU's yearbook. Then he wanted to know why he should worry about getting his picture in. I told him that of 75 department chairmen, 74 had had their pictures taken. So he had his picture taken that same day."

The main problem, Miss Barker said, was one of inadequate space. "We have as many as 15 unpaid helpers, but there isn't even enough room in our office for all of our paid staff," she said.

"When we begin working on the yearbook," she continued, "the first thing we do is plan our photography and start scheduling pictures. Then we meet with the engraver who helps us plan the yearbook. In all we sign three different contracts, one for the cover, one for the letterpress printing job, and one for engraving.

"The rest is simple. You just work," she said.
Responsibility Not To Cheat

The current investigation of cheating on final examinations underway at the University of Illinois comes as a timely reminder to SIU students.

The U. of I. administration circulated a letter last week (9-21) discussing the problem after some senior men wrote of widespread cheating at examination time.

The Daily Illini conducted "an experiment" which is designed to study the nature and extent of cheating. The program will allow students who witness cheating to report the instances without being obligated to disclose the names of those involved or reveal their own identity.

In announcing the program, the Daily Illini attributed causes of cheating to "negligence and apathy on the part of faculty members." The program "emphasizes on grades" plus "lack of student disapproval" in keeping the practice alive.

Cheating on examinations, in one form or another, is a problem faced by any educational institution giving written exams. If such dishonesty is not widespread at SIU it is because it has been carefully guarded against. At SIU, the U. of I., or wherever, cheating in a serious business and any attempt at it reflects a grave degree of utter depravity.

It is easy to urget instructors or students to take steps to insure against cribbing, copying, stealing of exams, and other forms of cheating. Such action is expected of faculty members conducting exams, but only as insurance. The basic responsibility lies with the student.

Anyone knowing of instances of cheating has a moral obligation to report it. Anyone despicable enough to cheat should expect to be caught, and that should dictate not to be summarily expelled.

Apron Strings

A note to parents -- leave "junior" alone, he can grow up by himself.

Apron strings are undoubtedly meant to be severed, but it is well to remember that parents are a little apprehensive about letting "junior" or "daddy" deal with the huge world of men, machines, and heavy responsibilities as college students. It is not always the student who must strip these parents of the apron strings in cases, the parent who must allow these cords to be separated.

The four years a young person spends in college are one of the most crucial periods in his life. It is a time when he is struggling to become a man himself. It is a time when he is trying to form an identity all his own, and a time when he is trying to find a place in the world around him.

The students have many problems, as no doubt many parents know. It may seem to some parents, most of these "trials" of life are not being handled by the student himself.

Students give junior the opportunity of scrubbing up a few backs by sending him notes, let them "neglect" their "career" totally.

Next, no doubt, will be candidacy to the student of apron strings and polka dot eight-balls. It is time, however, there is a hopeful sign. More and more homes, perhaps 500,000 in the United States, have apron strings cut to some as pocket billiards but more frequently as pool.

And it would be thought that the most logical and effective environment of the pool parlors would be the last resort, the pool halls. In the male, since the tavern has become thoroughly co-educational, it is not always. Indeed, new pool halls are emerging in our land and getting just as crowded as the bars of old.

This is compounded by (some will wipe away a tear) decorative colors--tables are actually covered with beige or blue cloth, the non-green sadness of it all, offspring occasionally, and in the long run, perhaps their first-born will be better off.

College students are, more than ever, learning how to face life on their own, and if many parents would realize this, junior just might be able to take care of himself. Training is after the four-year plan has been completed, he conceivably just might have learned to face life as it is -- cruel, flighty, a little impossible, and after a brief period of endeavor, a very happy and rewarding experience.

Folks Dot Eight-Ball

President Kennedy's next Supreme Court appointment may work behind-the-scenes revolution in that body.

The watch, say, the Washington, is whether the appointee smokes or not.

Presently a majority is said to endorse a "no smoking" rule in the court's private conference chamber. The President has already cut this option in favor of the recently naming chain smoker to speak, until this modern approach, a court again rules the pool hall.

For pool, it would seem, is in the dark, which is to say light, ages in America, especially excluding spitting tons and loiterers, and adding air conditioning. It is to sigh, the Kansas City Times.

To Smoke Or Not

Byron White to become Justice Whittaker, certainly he wasn't thinking of this result.

The next vacancy in the five anti-smokers--Warren, Black, Frankfurter, Douglas, and Harlan has a smoking replacement will bring Mark, Stewart, Drennan and White to the court's happy word to "light up!" and another 5-4 split shall shatter another precedent.

The Milwaukee Journal

A University's Function

The function of a university is, according to the dictionary, "to teach," and that is what every university has done for years, for without which there may be no lead, in the broadest sense. Professor, according to the dictionary, "is a person who teaches," or "a teacher of a college or university."

A rapidly changing world, zealous learning must include "teaching to think, in order to think clearly and incisively and dis-passionately about every possible problem that may arise." This means that professors are to be objective, however, they must also be able to express their opinions, best education is a bloody thing. They have the responsibility of making clear the distinction between facts and their own value judgments, and of soberly basing their opinions on the facts as they have found them.

A university administration has dual responsibilities. First, it must protect the constitutional freedom of full discussion within campus. Secondly, it must do its best to make sure that all such visible opposing views are adequately and fairly presented--the richness of opinions represented in particular departments, bringing opinions to the campus, or body of students.

A university, in the nature of things, does not speak with a single voice. A professor's opinion is not the opinion of the university. It is the opinion of the professor. A good university is one in which professors and students alike express their opinions, and where the professors, at least meet the standards of sober judgment that are the mark of a reasonable education for any qualified teacher.

Bird-Watching Dog

Editor,
A lady reported in Friday's EGYPTIAN (Page 6) that my column concerning dove hunting (EGYPTIAN, May 16, Page 8) irritated her.

During a few days of the winter time, the same lady had an ad in the Sectioning Center door, requesting a home for her young bird dog. I wonder now if the dog performed better at retrieving fallen doves or at bird-watching.

Police State Students

WANTED: Students who wish to live in a near police state, no rights, no privileges, and no voice in their future, apply Southern Illinois University, $61.50 per term.

Recent events such as the expulsion of five students for having a party, the ultimatum on water fights, and the new rulings on unsupervised housing have shown that the University officials are intent on taking away any and all students rights they formerly had.

Are we students in danger of losing our individuality? Do we need the university to watch over us as a benevolent grandmother? A university is an institution designed to equip a person to think and act for himself. The reason many students are living off-campus is to get out from under the protective wing of the University.

Seven SIU athletes were named to various All-American teams during the past school year. Receiving All-American honors were Ed Spila, Rusty Mitchell, Amos Bullocks, Ken Houston, Fred Orlofsky, Bruno Klaus and Tom Geocaris.

Gymnastics took the most positions among Southern's G-sports. Bill Meade's gymnasts placed four in the All-American category.

Mitchell received a first team berth on the All-American team by winning the tumbling event at the NCAA gymnastics meet. Orlofsky, Klaus and Geocaris received second-team positions.

Of the seven athletes receiving honors, Geocaris is the youngest. He is only a sophomore and Meade anxiously looks forward to next season when he expects Geocaris to stand out even more.

Amos Bullocks, who holds 11 of SIU's rushing records in football, received Associated Press honorable mention in the All-American team. Bullocks last fall set a new IU record for the most yards receiving a call.

Ken Houston was picked on the All-American team by Southern Cal.

For his four-year career at SIU, Tucker collected 27 victories and only nine setbacks. His freshman year was the most outstanding of his four year. He won nine games and allowed opponents only 46 hits in 74 innings. He struck out 58 enemy hitters during the year.

Tucker pitched 285 2/3 innings in his four years at SIU and struck out 262 enemy batters in that time. He walked only 136 men in the 285 innings.

Is Jelses Coming To Southern Or Going To Eastern School?

Joy Jelses, the world's last pole vaulter to clear 16 ft., announced over the weekend that he was interested in attending one of two Philadelphias colleges.

However, the announcement did not surprise Lew Hartzog, U's track coach who is keeping in close contact with Jelses. "The Easterners were pressing him into making a statement," Hartzog said. "He is laid up with a ankle and it gives the others an opportunity to prove the boy.

"However, I had a letter from him last week and he said he was still coming," Hartzog continued. "So far as I know the boy is coming to Southern."

Jelses stopped off at SIU closer this spring to work out and attracted several thousand fans. He vaulted 15-2 in McAndrew Stadium.

Castillo, Geremich Win Most Valuable Award

Pacho Castillo and John Geremich have been named co-Most Valuable Players on this year's SIU tennis team that won the Intercollegiate Conference championship for the third time in four years.

Castillo and Geremich each won 15 matches during the season while losing only three.

Cool Cooking Suggestions Offered For Relief From Hot Kitchen Drudgery

Summer is almost here and your parent and single students who do your own cooking may find that hot kitchen is no place to be during 90 degree weather. For a break away from the above try these cool cooking ideas.

Sandy Grummon, Southern Hills, likes to plan meals for her family of four around a big salad. She likes to take cheese, lunch meat or leftover ham or chicken and mix this meat right in with her salad dressing. Then she mixes this with lettuce, celery, peppers, tomatoes and whatever she happens to have on hand.

Sandy, who is studying for a degree in education, finds that her two children like lots of gelatin salads in the summer. For variety fix your gelatin this way. Instead of the usual two cups of water use only one and a half cups when preparing the gelatin. Let this chill until firm then chop it up with your electric mixer at low speed. Then, at high speed, blend in two-thousandth cup of canned milk and beat until the mixture fills a one and one-half quart bowl. Chill until firm. This canned milk fruit will make this dessert even more delicious.

Desserts made with milk, such as pudding, custards and the like, are not mentioned here but protein in a meal based around a green salad is what the Southern Hills resident, Jane Engel, likes to combine two small cans of frozen lemonade with one or one and a half quart of tea for really different summer beverage.

Another different idea for summer drinks is offered by Maryla Delaney. Mrs. Delaney adds cake coloring to their ice cubes. Clear beverages, such as lemonade, will show off the color of the cubes.

Mrs. Grummon also suggests this no-cook dessert. Roll out 33 Graham crackers mix with one stick soft butter and four into the two-quart dish, sprinkling with the remaining graham cracker crumbs and chill.

Going back to salads, Betty Sutton bases some of her cold salads on a plate of cooked tomatoes that have been scooped out and filled with nuts or chicken salad.

Hospitality Hard To Beat At SIU, Southerner Says

"It's hard to beat Southern hospitality, but the friendly and gracious atmosphere of Southern Illinois is certainly equal to it," says Dr. Leland Allbaugh, visiting professor in the agriculture industries department from Knoxville, Tennessee.

Allbaugh, who recently retired from an 11-year term with the Tennessee Valley Authority, is on the SIU campus this term as professor of agriculture industries. Highlight of his foreign service as economic consultant were in the Central and South American countries:

1. "It's hard to beat Southern hospitality, but the friendly and gracious atmosphere of Southern Illinois is certainly equal to it," says Dr. Leland Allbaugh, visiting professor in the agriculture industries department from Knoxville, Tennessee.

2. Hospitality hard to beat at SIU, southerner says.

3. Presbyterian Delyte W. Morris, Mrs. Morris and their son, Michael, descended a hillside after visiting the ancient Luxor temple in Luxor, Egypt. Dr. and Mrs. Morris are enroute back to Carbondale on the last leg of their world tour. Michael is remaining in Europe where he will study on a Fulbright grant.

To Be Offered For Children

Carbondale children will have an opportunity to get an introduction to Spanish, French and German on the SIU campus this summer.

Veria L. Peacock, chairman of the foreign language department, said the summer workshop scheduled for June 20 to July 11, will offer French and Spanish for children ages 9 to 11, and German for children 8 to 10.

Classes will meet five days a week from 10:30 to 11 a.m. in Wheeler Hall. Student observers will be on hand to watch the program.

Parents may enroll children by calling the foreign language department after June 1 or by bringing the children to the first day of class at 10:15 a.m.

Heldim A. Hartwig, professor of German, announced that approximately 20 ninth grade students, who wish to study German, can be accommodated in a demonstration class being held in conjunction with the second National Defense Education Act Summer Institute in German.

There will be no charge for the course which starts June 27 and ends August 6. Classes will meet from 10 to 10:40 a.m. five days a week at Browne Auditorium. Certificates of attendance will be awarded those who attend faithfully.

Workers Council
Meets At 7:30 p.m.

The non-academic employees council meeting will be Wednesday, June 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the Library Auditorium. The council will help each labor group to settle individual working problems which arise. Safety education will also be stressed at this meeting, and the council will discuss the possibility of buying an ambulance to be used in emergencies.

Committee Studies
The Best Way To Design Classroom

Preliminary recommendations for classroom design will soon be sent to the SIU Board of Trustees for approval, according to Charles Pulley, university architect. In evaluating how to design a classroom, the committee considered: the frequency of this class in facilities needed, location of the needed facilities, size of the classroom, and the best way to arrange these facilities.

John Rendleman heads a committee of approximately 25 people for deciding the best way to design these classrooms.
